HOUSE IS SET TO OPEN MAIN POLITICAL BOUT

Could Topple Govt. by Thursday

OTTAWA (CP)—Preliminaries over, Parliament is set to open the political main bout today. It's an eight-rounder with the Progressive Conservatives putting their government title on the line.

The opening bell rings at 2:30 p.m. in the green-carpeted House of Commons chamber.

Formally, it is the debate on the speech from the throne—that 3,000-word outline of government legislative plans which Governor-General Vanier read to Thursday's opening of Parliament. The rules give the Commons eight days to debate the governor-general's motion to accept the speech.

In reality, it is a rough political battle which will be the first real test of the minority government's chances of surviving.

A united opposition could bring about the downfall of the government Tuesday night at the earliest, setting the machinery in motion for a new general election at the end of November.

Next in line to speak are

Former General Leads Student Charges Against Besieged U.S. Marshals

Night-Long Battle Precedes Enrollment of First Negro Student

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The University of Mississippi enrolled James H. Meredith, a Negro, as a student today. His presence on campus had sparked night - long rioting in which two persons died.

It was not until 7:15 a.m. today—almost 11 hours after the rioting started—that Brig-Gen. Charles Billingslea, commander of federal troops in Mississippi, was able to say: "I now declare this area secure."

Meredith, 29-year-old U.S. Air Force veteran, thus became the first Negro knowingly admitted to Ole Miss in 114 years.

Massed federal power—using bayonets and tear gas—forced the enrollment upon a terse and stubborn state whose Governor Ross Barnett had sworn to go to jail rather than submit.

Barnett indirectly gave up physical resistance Sunday in a public statement to his citizens. President Kennedy had flatly rejected an appeal for public order.

Still, aroused students and the embittered citizenry—and spiders—exploded into wild disorders even as President Kennedy made his plea.

ESCORTED BY TROOPS

Armed escorted—some federal marshals or regular troops—took Meredith into the Lyceum, the aged administration building of the university, about 7:15 a.m.

Because of the Sabbath, university officials had refused to complete registration for Sun e day when Meredith first arrived on the campus. He had stayed in a dormitory overnight.

Besides the two killed in the riots 90 had been injured. Ninety-three had been arrested. Twenty - two burned-out cars and trucks, 20 other vehicles had been badly damaged.

The federal forces used the tear gas and the riot sticks brought in as reserves in the repleted it by giving her a silk shirt.

Mrs. Elander was delighted.

Longshoremen On East Coast Walk off Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — Longshoremen quit work today on Atlantic and gulf coast docks from Maine to Texas, tying up U.S.-flag ships in the affected ports.

Only action by President Kennedy could halt the work stoppage, other than immediate agreement on a new deal on the contract, which seemed remote.

But there was no word that the president was considering invoking the labor law to force the dockers back to work for a 60-day or an 80-day cooling-off period.

The International Longshoremen's Association (AFL-CIO) ordered its 75,000 members off the job as of 12:01 a.m., when the union's old contract expired with 145 shipping firms.

Although the general public was not expected to experience any immediate hardship, the work stoppage might affect dockside operations of passenger liners scheduled to arrive here. This would include the un loading of baggage.

Retired Farmer and Pastor Has Read Bible 103 Times

KITCHENER (CP)—Champion Bible readers in the United Missionary Church and probably a champion for any denomination in Canada is a 76-year-old Stouffville man.

He is Leslie Grove, a retired farmer and pastor, who has just completed reading the Bible through for the 103rd time.

In June, he read the Bible through for the 100th time. And he read it aloud that time, while on his knees.

After work as an laborer, an factory worker, he served the United Missionary Church as a pastor in the Ontario district. He served in Elmwood and Hanover charges for three years and then spent five years in the Bruce Peninsula.

He finds he can read the Bible in 60 or 70 hours. On four occasions, reading almost 16 hours a day, he completed a reading in the week.

RCN Pilot Makes Dress For Survivor

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP)—A hard-bitten Royal Canadian Navy pilot told Saturday how he made a dress for a pretty blonde survivor of an American airliner which was ditched in the North Atlantic last Sunday.

Mrs. Elander's dress was tattered and Sub-Lt. Bill Vallee, a 24-year-old flyer in the 21st Hawk Squadron, decided some new togs would improve her morale.

So he obtained "some woollen curtains ordinarily used in the ship's mess—grey with a maroon thread running through the material—and set to work with scissors and sewing machine.

"I started the job at three o'clock in the afternoon and had it finished by nine o'clock the next morning," said Vallee.

Vallee, married for three months, said he had studied dressmaking for three years and frequently made clothing for his 22-year-old wife at their home in Dartmouth, N.S.

The outfit he produced for Mrs. Elander consisted of a slim-fitting straight skirt and a bolero jacket. Commodore William H. Landymore, skipper of the Bonaventure, completed it by giving her a silk shirt.

Mrs. Elander was delighted.

2 BIG STORMS MAY POSTPONE SPACE FLIGHT

Would Interfere With Landings

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Two major storms—Tropical storm Daisy in the Atlantic and typhoon Dinah in the Pacific—posed possible threats today to Walter M. Schirra's projected six-orbit space flight, scheduled Wednesday.

Daisy was an immediate threat. Dinah was not expected to cause trouble unless the shot is delayed.

Daisy boiled up 420 miles east of Puerto Rico Sunday and the two Juan weather bureau reported winds up to 50 miles an hour in a small area near the centre. The storm was following a course which would create a heavy sea problem Wednesday near Grand Turk Island, the ocean area where Schirra would land if trouble forced his flight to be terminated after three orbits.

CAN BE HURRICANE

Intensification of the storm could make it a full-fledged hurricane by Wednesday.

Dinah was reported in the Pacific southeast of Japan. It could bring rough weather to the recovery areas for the fourth, fifth and sixth orbits—east and northeast of Midway Island.

Almost perfect weather is a must in possible landing zones

'I Can't Believe This Is Happening to Ole Miss' Says Student to Reporter as They Watch Savage Riot

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — "I can't believe this is happening to Ole Miss," a student told this reporter as both watched the savage rioting that swept the University of Mississippi campus.

A few minutes before, a coed had said the same thing in almost the exact words. And, several more students did later.

Along with their memories of college days among the trees of the university campus, the present generation of Ole Miss students will have to remember a night of exposed hatreds amid the stink of tear gas.

It started because a Negro, James H. Meredith, was on the campus, presumably to be registered as a student in the all-white university.

The night of the Greek - columned Lyceum Building, the original college structure built in 1848, ringed by marshals who wore gas masks and carried a grotesque blend of battle equipment—that alone was enough to give the feeling of a bad dream. It got worse.

BECOME EXPLOSIVE

Heckling of the marshals in the early evening could have been only a dangerous lark, the end of a football weekend. The underlying emotions became explosive.

A camera car was methodically smashed. Pop bottles were thrown. Then the outnumbered officers let loose a barrage of tear gas.

Much of the crowd reacted violently, although some of them had heard President Kennedy on television and radio tell them: "The eyes of all the world are on you . . . and your honor and the honor of your university are at stake."

Rocks, bricks and pop bottles began to fly. Most seriously of all, shots were fired, including some that seemed to come from well-positioned snipers.

The students blame outside troublemakers. But in any case two men died.

The pop of tear gas grenade launchers became almost continuous. Blinding clouds cut communications on the main axis of the campus.

The last effort that had any resemblance of order started—as ness came when students got a fire hose and one of the cam- pus fire trucks. With them they fought the tear gas throwers with solid sprays of water and charges in the big red wagon.

Major Scandal Breaks Over Charges by School Teachers

COLOMBO—A major scandal broke open today with the publication of charges that two Canadian school teachers were being expelled from Ceylon because they resisted the advances of several top Ceylonese government officials.

The charges appear in an editorial in the Ceylon Daily News and demand an immediate investigation into the "loathsome immoral advances . . . of official whom they prey on the helpless by virtue of their brief authority."

The paper names the schoolteachers as Sarah de Vico, 22, of Bow Island, Alta., and Alice Sorochan of Lac la Biche, Alta. They came to Ceylon together on a vacation.

Both women were planning to leave Ceylon Tuesday on the French liner Cambodge after having been given a week to get out of the country. Miss de Vico's visa was officially cancelled because of an adverse police report but there are no accusations against Miss Sorochan.

Miss de Vico claimed she had been the victim of immoral advances by several leading Ceylonese, including a member of the legislature, several high-ranking police officers and a top Ceylonese civil servant.

"They tried to get off with me at every turn," she said. But "I refused them and was given less than a week to pack my bags and get out of Ceylon."

The case of the two women has been taken up by the inspector-general of police who said Sunday he would look into the circumstances surrounding the expulsion.

Before the two women came to Ceylon, they travelled through North America, Hawaii, Japan, Hong Kong, Burma, Thailand and India. They are returning to Hong Kong.

The Daily News in its editorial says "The public will be as disgusted as the unfortunate" Canadian women at the behavior of the Ceylonese officials.

The paper demands that the officials be "exposed so that society can mark them down for what they really are and give the punishment such outcasts deserve.

"It's such conduct of men at the top that corrupts society and wrecks it after destroying its moral foundations," the paper says.

Miss de Vico, an attractive daughter of a grain farmer, told the Ceylon Observer earlier that one of the officials wanted to marry her wild life in the jungles.

She has a temporary job here with the Pakistan International Airways and has been living with a Ceylonese family in Colombo's swank Longden Place district.

President Says It Was His Duty to Call Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy declares it was his inescapable duty to call out troops when Mississippi defied court orders to enrol a Negro at the state university.

The president said Sunday night in a radio-television address that he hoped it would be unnecessary to use troops, even though conciliation and persuasion had failed to obtain the admission of Negro James H. Meredith.

After his address, Kennedy sat beside the telephone in his office getting up-to-the-minute reports on rioting, gun fire and tear gas sweeping across the university campus at Oxford, and the arrival on the scene of federal military reinforcements.

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy and several members of the White House staff kept the vigil with him.

Courts of law, all the way up to the Supreme Court, Kennedy said in his speech, ordered Meredith's admission into the university.

ITS U.S. OBLIGATION

"When the orders were defied and those who tried to carry them out were threatened with arrest and violence, the U.S. Court of Appeals "made clear that it was the enforcement of its order had become an obligation of the United States government."

"Even though this government had not originally been a party to the case, my responsibility as president was therefore inescapable. I accept it . . .

"I deeply regret the fact that any action by the executive branch was necessary in this case, but all other avenues and alternatives, including conciliation and conciliation, had been tried and exhausted."

A peaceful and sensible solution would have been possible "if only Governor Ross Barnett of Mississippi and other state officials had been willing to support court orders instead of "deliberately and unlawfully blocking them. Barnett had on numerous occasions quietly admitted Meredith.

Kennedy said students have been admitted, regardless of race, to universities in nine other southern states.

The president had put off his address for 2½ hours. In the interval, U.S. marshals had installed Meredith on the Ole Miss campus and the governor, Ross Barnett, had acknowledged "We are physically overpowered."

Barnett, who has been cited for contempt for spurning court orders to permit Meredith's enrollment, still protested hotly that the federal government was trampling on Mississippi rights and was urging all Mississippians to defy federal officers to "do everything in their power to preserve peace and to avoid violence in any form."

Kennedy avoided any direct slap at Barnett in his speech. And, as he spoke, the students were demonstrating against the governor's appeal to avoid violence.

Kennedy closed his talk with an appeal of his own to the students, to uphold the law and accede with honor to the admission of a Negro in their midst. He said "To have a new opportunity to show that you are men of patriotism and integrity. For the most effective means for upholding the law is not the state policemen or the marshals or the national guard. It is you."

PSI Rates To Be Increased On January 1

TORONTO (CP) — Rates of Physicians' Service Incorporated, Dr. J. H. Cook, president of PSI, has told some doctors participating in the plan about the increase and has outlined some minor extensions of the benefits. Formal notice will accompany the rate increase.

The president said since PSI implemented the 1962 Ontario Medical Association schedule of fees eight months ago, it has been paying out six per cent more than it has received from subscribers.

"We must increase subscriptions substantially not later than Jan. 1 . . . if the machine is to sound financial position," Dr. Cook said.

A Toronto physician estimated the increase might be as much as 25 per cent.

"If they don't raise it that much, I think there is any increase in cost, they would simply have to bump the charge up again," he said.

"This is bound to intensify the demand in some parts of the province for a compulsory medical plan similar to the one recently adopted in Saskatchewan," the doctor said.

Landslide Traps 2500 Tibetans And Indians in Desolate Valley

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters) Heavy cloud has failed efforts to airdrop supplies to more than 2,500 Indian and Tibetan refugees trapped by a landslide in a desolate Himalayan valley.

At least 30 persons died, according to official reports reaching here from the Spiti valley area, where the men are trapped. At most a week ago.

Those are suffering from frostbite and snowblindness and supplies of kerosene and medicines have reported to be low.

Contact has been established with a party of Indian survey officials in the area, who lost all their instruments and maps in the blizzard and landslide which swept the valley last Tuesday. A government film unit is missing.

One of the biggest mountain rescue operations in Himalayan history was mounted to reach the trapped men and Sunday's day made flying conditions too hazardous for helicopters.

Four Sherpas have crossed the snowbound 14,000-foot Robang La to lead the way for relief parties assembling at Kolang on the other side. If the weather improves, helicopters will be used to fly the sick and injured from the valley.

The laborers, including Tibetan refugees, have been employed by the Indian government on building roads to provide supply routes to Indian forces threatened by Chinese the Ladakh border area.

Today's Chuckle

Historians tell us about the past and economists tell us about the future. Thus only the present is confusing.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mainly sunny skies and near normal temperatures in the 60s today. A band of cloud will break extreme southwestern Ontario today as a U.S. weather system moves slowly eastward. This disturbance will bring increasing cloudiness over Southern Ontario with some showers likely over the lower lakes regions today.

Hastings County Ontario Farmer's Union Elects Officers

The Hastings County Ontario Farmers' Union annual convention and potluck supper was held in Roslin Hall on the evening of September 27th.

After the enjoyable repast served by the ladies of the organization to the large gathering, the business part of the evening was begun by a call to order from the county director, Harold Wright.

Mr. Morton Reid was acting secretary.

Mrs. Jeanne Williams, lady director, reported on her year's activities and stressed also the importance of the coming provincial convention to be held on October 22nd, 23rd and 24th at Lindsay, Ont.

A reading entitled "Farmers' Idle Days," was given by Mrs. Fred Elliott. Three resolutions were brought before the convention and discussed. One dealt with cattle marketing; a second with the purchasing of dairy equipment, and the third, the electing of marketing board officers. All were voted on and approved and will be forwarded to the provincial convention for further study.

The election of the 1962-63 county officers was chaired by Mr. Orville Dowdell. The slate elected was as follows: county director, Bernard Murphy; woman director, Mrs. Jeanne Williams; secretary, Mrs. Earl Graham; treasurer, Mr. Wesley Finch; directors, Harold Murphy, Lorne Mackenzie, Norman Gibson, Wesley Farrell, Murray Bateman, Morton Reid, John Cassidy, Clarence Graham, Earl Brennan, Pat Murphy and Kelly Murphy; women sub-directors — Mrs. Jim Ryer, Mrs. Fred Meyer, Mrs. Bernard Murphy, Mrs. A. B. Trudeau, Mrs. Earl Brennan, Mrs. William Bate, Mrs. Fred Elliott and Mrs. Ken Jeffrey. auditors, Mrs. Freeman Howes and Mrs. Fred Elliott.

The guest speaker, Mr. Orville Dowdell, was introduced by the chairman, the latter stating that Mr. Dowdell was a member of the provincial executive, also of the OFU marketing committee, a municipal clerk of his own township, as well as a farmer.

Mr. Dowdell remarked that it was his first visit to Hastings County.

Farming in this county was not too different from that of his own, he added. However, land values in his area had greatly increased owing chiefly to the nearness of the city of Toronto, and to the extension of the green belt. Furthermore, it was almost impossible for farmers in his district to increase their land holdings and their operations if they wished to expand it was imperative they move somewhere else.

Having been a member of the O.F.U. since it had begun in his county, Mr. Dowdell related some of his experiences in his work with the O.F.U. locally and on delegations to Ottawa and Toronto.

O.F.U. VALUABLE EXPERIENCE

He claimed that the experience and education he had received in the principles of dairy association with the O.F.U. had been, to him, as valuable as a university degree and he would have missed one of the best jobs of his life if he had not become an active member. In his work as a municipal clerk, he mentioned the salaries of the engineers, surveyors and others that his township had to employ. Every one of these professional groups, he continued, had an organization and would not have been able to demand the salaries they did without their own particular association.

He felt the farmers should take a careful look at some of these facts and at the way the laborer had improved his bargaining power through his organization.

The O.F.U. was the type of organization the farmers wanted and needed. In a voluntary organization such as the O.F.U. the purposes of the union depended on the continued loyalty and support of its present members. Those members, too, must be sufficiently sincere and dedicated in order to go out to acquaint others of their occupation with the opportunities that should be ahead in the work of the union.

Following a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker by the chairman there was a discussion period after which the meeting was adjourned.

Rainfall During Past Month 4.20 Inches

After a drier than average summer, better than average rainfall during September was received, according to weather statistics received this morning from the city water filtration plant.

Rainfall during the past month was 4.20 inches, as compared with a mere 1.1 inch during September last year. The ten-year average rainfall for September is 3.06 inches.

Maximum temperature during the month was 84 degrees as compared with 92 degrees a year ago. Minimum reading was 35 degrees as compared with 39 degrees last year. Mean reading for the month was 58.3 degrees.

The coldest September in recent years was in 1956 with a mean reading of 55.4 degrees and the wettest September was in 1957 when there was 8.16 inches of rain.

Crafts Classes Will Begin Soon

Classes in home decorating and basic design, which get under way Monday October 15 at the Recreation Centre; all are ten-week courses. Home decorating, instructed by Mrs. Grant, will start Monday, October 15, as will basic design given by Mrs. Phillips Faulkner. Ceramics, a Tuesday night course, will be given by Mrs. Davies. Courses on silk screening and weaving are still in the organization stage and if registration warrants a class there will be held on Tuesdays, beginning October 9. The ever-popular children's art classes will begin Saturday, October 6 and a full class is expected. The advanced art class, under the leadership of Pearce Almon is full, but the basic class, to be given by Phillips Faulkner, has a few vacancies. This class is offered on Monday afternoon and is now in progress. For further information on all classes, call the Recreation Centre, WO 2-1401.

Bey of Tunis Dies

TUNIS, Tunisia (Reuters) — The last Bey of Tunis, Sidi Mohamed Lamine Pasha, died here Sunday, success close to his family said today. He was 81.

The former Bey was deposed in 1957 when the Tunisian assembly proclaimed a republic and elected Habib Bourguiba as first president.

Busy Swimming Program at Y Is Underway

Even though the weather outside may hardly suggest bathing, the swimming program and tests are still being carried on at the Belleville YMCA.

Recent passing tests for beginners' swimming test were Leigh Bowles, Bonnie King, Beverley Hem, Elizabeth Burrows, Kerley Scott, Steven Morton, Bruce Gibbons and Billy Summers.

In the "Y's" five star card series of progressive swimming tests seven passed the first star card tests the past week. These tests include creating water for 45 seconds, bobbing 20 times rhythmically, demonstrating the back flutter kick for 35 feet and a plain front dive from the edge of the pool, as well as being able to swim 40 yards.

Those passing this test were Cathy Cresswell, Carol Cresswell, Jane Riley, Grant Wilson, Bruce Gibbons, Bill Harley and David McMaster, with the latter had also passing tests for his second star card.

Three passed the fourth card tests which require the candidate to do a surface dive, proceding for three minutes, two porpoise dives, the back crawl and their crawl stroke and tread dive, as well as being able to swim 300 yards non-stop. Pat Hall, David Nelles and Jim Wiggins were the successful candidates of the past week.

Carrying on with its swimming program, tonight is the night on which the "Y" holds its junior life saving course for boys. It is open to boys for the next nine weeks and is conducted between the hours of 8.00 and 9.00 p.m.

The girls are not being neglected this year. Both advanced and ornamental swimming classes have been initiated in the past week. Candidates for these classes must have passed their first star card tests and the ornamental swimming class will require that candidates demonstrate their skill after a trial period.

Ornamental swimming emphasizes beauty and skill in synchronized swimming and is being tried for the first time this year.

The advanced swimming class will emphasize perfection in the various swimming strokes and both life saving and swimming skills. It will also be a preparatory class for those wishing to advance to ornamental swimming.

Three Minor Mishaps

The city police department was kept busy this morning when they were called to investigate three accidents since 8 a.m.

One occurred on Front Street, one in front of the bus terminal on Dundas St. E. and the third in the vicinity of the Belleville General Hospital, also on Dundas Street East.

There were no injuries as a result of the mishaps and damage was reported to be slight.

HOUSE IS SET

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson and H. W. Herridge, NDP House leader.

Mr. Pearson's speaking time will be limited to 40 minutes, but it's doubtful whether the prime minister will get the floor much before the scheduled 10 p.m. adjournment.

Should he and of his speech the Liberal leader will move a motion of non-confidence in the government's handling of the international situation. The vital motion still is secret and all parties will be waiting anxiously for it.

Mr. Pearson has said he intends to make his motion in a form which the other two opposition groups will find difficult to oppose. If they accept it, the government topples.

TO VOTE THURSDAY

A vote on the final non-confidence motion is to take place Thursday night, just before adjournment.

Meanwhile, Mr. Thompson's turn will probably come late Wednesday or early on Thursday. He has said he has an opportunity to move an amendment to the motion. This amendment will be voted on at 9:45 p.m. Tuesday. It could destroy the government. It is secret, too.

Mr. Herridge may move an NDP amendment later in the debate. It is likely to be voted on just before the Liberal one Thursday night.

Thus there can be three votes this week, each capable of giving the Liberals decision back to the electorate.

If the government comes through the three votes it can regrind on until Oct. 10. Speakers for the throne speech introduce any subject they wish and the fur will be flying throughout.

Trophies Meet Held by Handgunners

On the Rednerville Range Sunday, the Bay of Quinte Handgun Club held its first fall shoot for the John Labatt and Ellis Bell trophies. The John Labatt trophy going to the highest scoring team, and the Ion Bell trophy to the highest score shot by an individual during the shoot.

The winning team was the Quinte Sharpshooters with 1280. Northern Electric second with 1214 and Trenton with 1189. Top shooter for the marksmen was scored by Allin Tuttle 279, Ken Sperling 278, Ken Isaac 257; Frank Allin 245; Jack Hinchey 240.

In the classification event Trooper Redner 2nd class 120, R. Wilson Class 1 with 119, and C. Patrick Class 1 with 116.

The Ion Bell trophy for the best individual shot was taken by Bud Seabrook, expert; by Jack Brassford and master by Henry Tom.

Aviation Fuel Truck Explodes Burning Block

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP)—Fire cut a gaping, block-long hole in the main north-south Alberta farming community's business section Sunday after a semi-trailer tanker truck carrying 4,200 gallons of aviation fuel crashed and exploded on the main street.

The truck, driven by Charles Sams, 28, of Edmonton, apparently lost its brakes while descending a long curving hill leading into this town of 3,000 persons 300 miles northwest of Edmonton. It thundered down the hill, crashed into a theatre and exploded.

Flaming fuel was spattered on the theatre and an adjoining drive-in restaurant, setting them ablaze. Within minutes the flames had spread to a furniture store, a food market, a drug store and a dry cleaning establishment. The men's wear and dry cleaning shops occupied one building. All were destroyed.

Twenty-seven persons, including 13 children, were forced to flee from living quarters above the business premises. All were taken in by neighbors.

A woman and a young boy suffered minor burns but were released from hospital after treatment. Sams was in hospital suffering from shock.

Two trucks and 10 cars, parked in the street in front and in lanes behind the fire-ravaged buildings, were also destroyed by the flames.

There was no official estimate of damage.

Master Mechanic At Sulphide Plant Burned

TWEED (Special) — Struck with 4,160 volts of electricity as he was preparing to restore power following a power cut-off, a 29-year-old employee of Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Ltd., is in good condition at Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Johnston, a master mechanic at the Surphide plant, was thrown back to his right wrist and sustained a burned left ankle when he was knocked from a ladder on which he was standing.

He is under the care of Dr. Henry Bateman, who said it was a miracle that Mr. Johnston wasn't more seriously injured. The victim's burned hand Mr. Johnston's hand and wrist were minor, he said.

Officials at the Nichols Chemical Company said the accident occurred Sunday morning following a power cut-off at the plant.

IN MEMORIAM

BAIGENT — In loving memory of a dear husband, Arthur Alfred Baigent, who passed away, October 1st, 1961.

Sadly missed and forever remembered by Ethel.

Upon his grave I lay a flower,
Dear memories are all I have,
Sweet memories that will linger,
Until we one we love,
And the one we sadly miss,
Are reunited there above.
Kenneth and Mervin.

BAIGENT — In loving memory of a dear husband, Arthur Alfred Baigent, who passed away, October 1, 1961.

Sadly missed and forever remembered by Ethel.

Dearer still as time departs,
His memory lives within our hearts,
No length of time can take away,
Our thoughts of him day by day.
Ever remembered by wife Ethel.

BAIGENT — In memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph Alva Baigent who passed away October 1, 1947.

Dearer still as time departs,
His memory lives within our hearts,
No length of time can take away,
Our thoughts of him day by day.
Ever remembered by wife Nina, sons Angus, wife and granddaughters.

BULPITT — In loving memory of a dear husband, daughter and sister, Mrs. Madeline Bulpitt, nee Madeline Whitney, who passed away October 1, 1947.

Sweet memories that stars look down
On where we lost her from here,
Where gone but not forgotten,
Her memory is dear.
The one we love so dear,
Memory is a treasure,
From which will never part,
God took her home,
It was His will,
We have her in our hearts.
Sadly missed and always remembered by sons Stanley and Gerald, Mrs. Bulpitt and family, daughter-in-law, Evelyn Whitney and grandchildren, Billy and sister-in-law, Evelyn Andrew and Ella.

Elevate Rector Of St. Thomas To Archdeacon

The elevation of Canon A. S. McConnell, MBE, CD, LTh, rector of St. Thomas Church, to Venerable Archdeacon, was announced over the weekend by the Rt. Rev. Kenneth C. Evans, D.D., Bishop of Ontario.

Ven. Archdeacon McConnell has served St. Thomas' since 1955, coming here from St. George's Church, Trenton, after eleven years' service as rector.

Prior to that he served in the parishes of North Frontenac, Sydenham, Stirling and Frankford, and Trinity Church in Brockville.

He was graduated from Trinity College, Toronto, and was ordained in 1928 by Bishop Seagar. He was born in Northern Ireland.

A wartime padre, Ven. Archdeacon McConnell served for five years as an army chaplain in World War Two. He served overseas with the 4th Canadian Armored Division.

He transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in 1946, remaining with it until the end of hostilities.

After his return to Canada he was appointed chaplain of the Hastings and Prince Edward militia battalion, serving for ten years and retiring with the rank of major.

Ven Archdeacon McConnell is the president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, and a member of the Rotarian Club here. He is a member of Trent Lodge, A.F. & A.M., and of the Scottish Rite. He is the chaplain of the Col. P. H. Wills Branch, No. 587, Canadian Legion, an ex-service women's organization.

Local Students Win Bursaries From Legion

Les Digby, president of Branch 99, Royal Canadian Legion, advises that he has just been informed by Major Pat Biggs, Provincial Secretary of the Ontario Command of the Royal Canadian Legion that two Royal Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary Bursaries to the value of $400.00 each have been awarded to former high school students of this district.

These bursaries are to assist the students to continue their education at a university of their choice. This is the first time that two of these bursaries have been won in one year by students from Belleville.

Guardsman John E. J. Gibson, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen J. Gibson of R. R. 1 Plainfield, Ontario graduated from the Canadian Guards Depot recently, following 20 weeks of basic training. A member of the Canadian Guards he will commence advanced training with the 2nd Battalion Canadian Guards at Camp Petawawa.

He enlisted in the Army at Ottawa in February of that year.

FORMER

at Ole Miss brought on the night's tragedy. Armed marshals, who brought him to the campus late Sunday, placed him in a sparsely furnished, guarded him through the night.

Today Meredith awaited the trip to register him as a student, the first Negro knowingly admitted to the school in its 114 years.

The dramatic date with Registrar Robert Ellis seemed to be on schedule, this morning.

REPORTER KILLED

A French reporter, Paul Guihard, died amid the fog of tear gas, a bullet in his back. He was reporting for the London Daily Sketch and Agence France Presse.

A 29-year-old jukebox repairman of the town, George Gunter, was shot twice, once through the head and once through the body. He was dead on arrival at a hospital. State police said he was killed on the campus.

Their bayonets fixed, 200 military policemen trained in riot control stood in front of the administration building where for an hour and a half the rioters had held federal marshals and national guardsmen trapped.

Mississippi National Guard units with fixed bayonets had little success with the hilltop run campus marauders, who exploded into violence even as President Kennedy broadcast appleas directly to them for peace and non-violence.

Hour after hour the riot rose and fell despite the indirect address from the White House, next, leader of the state's fight against integration, that he had given up physical resistance to the thousands of marshals, military police and combat troops massed around this college town.

SHOT IN MP'S

Halfway to daylight, 200 riot-trained military police from Memphis, Tenn., marched to the campus in the gloom of the Lyceum, the stately three-storey administration building that was' here when the Yankees marched in on the Confederate War.

Now and again the sharp crack of a pistol, reported to be a .38-calibre arm stolen from the university some time ago, punctuated the sporadic sniping of the riflemen or rattled like a wild fusillade, the bullets kicking up dust in the red brick wall of the Lyceum.

Once the students commandeered a bulldozer. They roared slowly toward the marshals but it broke down before it could reach effective range.

HURL TEAR GAS

Massed students twice charged against a shower of tear gas grenades hurled by the marshals. Former Maj. - Gen. Edwin Walker, the man who led the troops ordered by President Eisenhower into Little Rock, Ark., in 1957 in another desegregation crisis, led about 1,000 college youths in one charge that fell back a hundred yards from the marshals.

Walker jumped on the Confederate memorial and yelled:

"If you can't win, go home. Don't stay at the university. But let's not quit. We can win."

The second charge stopped through drifting fogs of tear gas but ground to a halt and turned to a retreat in the face of gas pellets.

Following is a timetable of the night:

4:36 p.m. CST Sunday — The first 300 deputy U.S. Marshals flew out of Memphis, Tenn., supposedly to encamp 15 miles north of Oxford.

5:30 p.m. — The marshals landed, were fed into trucks and moved out. Suddenly, from the rumbling trucks in tandem, one swerved out and through a back gate of the campus. Minutes later the administration building had been ringed with marshals in helmets and carry-all vests carrying gas pistols and shells and carrying riot sticks.

7 p.m. — Meredith arrived by plane, under guard, moved into an apartment on the campus.

7:20 p.m. — Meredith announced by indirection in a statement at Jackson, the state capital, that he had given up physical resistance.

7:50 p.m. — Students returning from a football weekend learned of Meredith's arrival on campus. Tension grew slowly, suddenly erupting into violence.

8 p.m. — President Kennedy began his speech to the nation in which he pleaded for law and order. To Ole Miss students, he said "your honor and the honor of the university are at stake." To the nation, he said: "My obligation as president was inescapable. I accepted."

Midnight — The Tupelo, Miss., National Guard unit was ordered into action "followed as the rioting continued by other units, including the 169 man contingent from Kosciusko, Miss., Meredith's home town.

2:15 a.m. — Military police, trained in riot control, marched on campus from Memphis and relieved the troops of the Administration building where marshals had been trapped by snipers.

START TO TAKE OVER

In the beginning grayness of dawn, federal troops began encircling movements around massed students — the prelude to taking control.

Streets of the 640 - acre Ole Miss campus in the first light of the day looked like a strange battlefield—covered with bricks, rocks, broken glass and spent tear gas cartridges.

The air reeked of the gas but a rising breeze lifted it away so gas masks weren't needed.

Reporting on the firing, marshals said some members of the mob used homemade .50 gaut triggered by strong rubber bands. Screws, bolts, nuts and rocks were ammunition for these weapons.

Retarded Children's School Officially Opened Saturday

TRENTON — Despite the wet weather a good crowd attended the official opening of the Trenton-Brighton and District Association for Retarded Children's School on Saturday afternoon. H. B. Beattie, Superintendent of Special Services, Ontario Department of Education, performed the opening ceremony. Elmer Sandercock, Hastings West MPP, was also present.

Mayor D. James MacDonald, of Trenton, said that members of the association had indeed accomplished a major project in the erection of the school.

"It's time the Department of Education took a second look at this and gave you what you deserve", said Mayor MacDonald.

R. G. Anglin, president of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children, also spoke, as did Robert Carlaw, Reeve of Brighton Township; Donald McMaster, Reeve of Murray Township; J. Irwin, Deputy Reeve of Sidney Township, and Fred Denyes, Reeve of Brighton.

John Martin, president of the Association, after giving a short history of the school, said that he was very honored to have been chosen as president, before the opening ceremony took place, ladies of the LOBE Trenton No. 604 and ladies of the Trenton Crystal Chapter No. 20 presented Mr. Martin with substantial cheques, which are to be used towards the purchase of a new school bus to transport the children, many of whom live several miles from the school.

Rev. Thomas Reid, minister of Bethel Temple, offered the opening prayer and Rev. Mr. Martin the closing prayer.

During tea were Mrs. H. Lafferty, Mrs. K. F. Blachford, Mrs. A. C. Hicks and Mrs. J. Martin. The tasteful table decorations were bronze and gold chrysanthemums and green candles in silver candelabra.

Visitors were high in their admiration of the school and of the students' handiwork, which was displayed in the classrooms.

Among those present were Tom Bowen of the Belleville Association, Antony Lassing of the firm of Mirons Lassing, who built the school, and many others who aided in the erection of the new building.

The lettering and ornamental scrollwork which now adorn the outside of the school were much admired by the visitors.

New RCAF Station Fire Hall Opened

TRENTON — The new RCAF Trenton fire hall was officially opened by the Station Fire Committee Chairman S/L I. J. Mignon, on Sunday. Approximately 65 members of the Northumberland-Durham, Fire Fighters' Association visited the fire hall. After a welcoming address from S/L Minion and Fire Chief F/O G. Kennedy, the visiting firemen were taken to the fire training area to view a display in aircraft crash fire fighting techniques, then proceeded to the new Cantilever Hangar for a tour through the Yukon aircraft and to inspect the automatic fire protection foam-water deluge system in the hangar. The visit concluded with various demonstrations of the fire vehicles and refreshments were served at the fire hall.

The new fire hall situated on the east end of the air base can be seen from the 6-Regal Depot road. The fire hall has six large bays to house the four crash fire fighting vehicles and two triple combination fire pumpers.

29 FIRE FIGHTERS

The fire department is presently manned by 29 RCAF fire fighters, all of whom have taken a 3-week course on the latest crash and structural fire fighting techniques before coming to the Trenton fire hall.

The duties of the fire department personnel include fire prevention inspections of all buildings and their maintenance hangars month by, Maintenance of equipment, sprinkler systems, and all matters pertaining to fire equipment. Fire prevention lectures and demonstrations on the use of first aid, fire extinguishers are carried on the year round to RCAF personnel and civilian employees.

The fire department placed third in the Annual Fire Prevention Contest (Military Class) for their efforts in 1961.

The prime duty of the fire department is to provide aircraft crash protection. Also the fire department on numerous occasions has been granted permission by G/C D. J. Williams, Commanding Officer, to respond to fire calls off the station.

Wants to Get Education in Prison Term

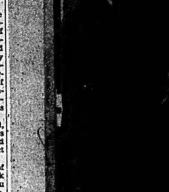
KINGSTON (CP) — Clifford Coulombe, 28, asked Magistrate James Garvin today to sentence him to seven years so that he could graduate from penitentiary with a Grade 13 education.

He pleaded guilty to taking part in a bank robbery in Sudbury Sept. 15, 1964, in which he and another man stole $3,500.

Coulombe began serving a two-year term at Kingston Penitentiary in June this year after he was sentenced in Hull, Que., for theft and possession of stolen goods. Today Magistrate Garvin added four years.

Coulombe, who has a Grade 4 education, said he has never held a steady job because of his lack of schooling.

He said he likes Kingston Penitentiary and the treatment he receives there. He is attending Grade 5 classes.



Justice Walsh Dies Suddenly

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice George C. Walsh, 71, of the Ontario Supreme Court died Sunday in Timothy Eaton Memorial Hospital (Anglican) just before the morning service began.

Born in Millbrook, Ont., he attended Toronto Osgoode Hall law school and was called to the bar in 1913. He first served overseas with the 216th Battalion when war broke out the following year.

Mr. Justice Walsh practised law in Toronto until becoming counsel to the royal commission to enquire into the Don Jail break in 1953 and in 1954 was appointed to the Supreme Court, trials division.

He was predeceased by his wife in 1939 and is survived by two sons and two grandchildren.

Trenton Youth Selected as Officer Cadet

TRENTON — P. F. Lonergan of 33 Crown Street has been selected by the Canadian Army for enrollment as an officer cadet under the Regular Officers' Training Plan. It was announced recently by Army Headquarters.

He is one of 220 high school graduates from across Canada who have been enrolled under this plan and will be entering the Royal Military College in Kingston, Royal Roads in Victoria, B.C., College Militaire Royale in St. Jean, P.Q., or the university of their choice.

Tuition and book fees are paid by the Canadian Army and the Candidate also receive Army pay whilst attending school. In the summers they receive military training both in Canada and abroad.

Similar training plans are available to high school graduates wishing to enter either the Royal Canadian Navy or the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mr. Caouette Shows Discretion

The decision of the Social Credit party to refrain from contesting the coming provincial election in Quebec is being represented as a victory for Real Caouette. Mr. Caouette has argued, with apparent sound logic, that the monetary measures needed to initiate Social Credit principles can only be undertaken at the federal level. In other words, he appears to be afraid of what might result from his party gaining power in Quebec. Since it would be unable to make the monetary reforms which he regards as essential, he apparently fears that disillusionment would result and that this would harm the party in the federal field as well as in the provincial.

This is not the first time that Mr. Caouette has advanced this argument. On the first occasion there was speculation as to the effect his stand would have on relations with the Western Socreds, from the provinces of Alberta and British Columbia, both of which have Socred governments. However, both Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta appear to have decided to ignore Caouette's arguments. In both provinces peculiar circumstances safeguard their political positions. In B.C., Social Credit is the only apparent effective safeguard against the election to power of the CCF or New Democratic Party and all those who fear this group's socialistic policies are anxious not to rock the boat. Indeed, the fact that Social Credit policies cannot be instituted at the provincial level constitutes one of the party's main assets for many of its backers in provincial politics. In Alberta the revenue obtained from oil leases has enabled the Socreds to combine such a high level of services with such a low level of taxation that voting against the government would be almost akin to voting against Santa Claus.

In all this conjecture, there is a danger of sight being lost of one pertinent fact. Whether Mr. Caouette considered it or not, his decision not to back any Social Credit candidates in the Quebec provincial election enhances the chances of defeating Premier Jean Lesage. Mr. Lesage is seeking a mandate from the people to nationalize Quebec power companies. Willy-nilly, the Union Nationale must oppose nationalization. The policy was almost forced on it, but probably coincides with the private convictions of most of its members. But Social Credit, too, is unalterably opposed to anything that is tinged with socialism and the party is specifically on record as opposing the nationalization of the power companies. It follows a full-scale campaign by Social Credit would split the vote in opposition to nationalization, leaving the Liberals to gather in all the votes of those favoring such policy. Since private ownership of power companies has been linked with English domination of Quebec's economic life, the vote in favor of nationalization is likely to be large in any case. If the opposing vote were split, the result would be a foregone conclusion.

Entering the provincial election would also put the Quebec Socreds in the unhappy position of appearing to oppose the strong separatist movement, a movement from which it is suspected of receiving a considerable share of the support which it won at the last Federal election.

Disassociating himself from the conflict is, therefore, for Caouette, an act of discretion, a rather unusual procedure for him, since in the past he has been only too quick to goose-step where angels fear to tip-toe.

Make Amends by Mending

A Toronto lady alderman is seeking a special police force in an effort to thwart the maniacal acts of vandals who in a recent three-month period destroyed park property to the tune of over $5,000. She also suggests a few jail terms and strappings would not be amiss.

One case mentioned was the flagrant upheaving of flagstones and ripping off of building ventilators and so on. One wonders if along with the orthodox punishments it might not be practical to take these delinquents back to the scene of the crimes and see that they do the actual repairs under supervision. Is it too much to be hoped for that after a day of lugging heavy stones and doing other strenuous construction jobs these hoodlums might be too exhausted to ravage public property again? This just might teach them a little respect where other treatments have obviously failed, and couldn't possibly harm their delicate psyches.

There is nothing like a healthy sweat and a few charlie horses to make these anti-social characters decide they are not cut out for cutting up.

Vatican's Efficiency High

By Murray Kempton in the London Spectator

The American Institute of Management, an expression of the national religion, has published the latest of its periodic audits of the efficiency of the Roman Catholic Church.

The Vatican attains a rating of 8,000 out of a possible 10,000 points on AIM's management evaluation scale.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, as summarized in Mammon, the latter's faith, is a mere 510 points higher, an advantage owed in part to the Vatican's estimate that the telephone company's earnings are doubtless due to prospects for expansion brighter than the church's.

The church is the oldest religion and American efficiency the newest to command a portion of the faith of Western mankind.

"The AIM's study of the Vatican turns up questions unexpectedly comforting to those sceptics who might regard both as superstitious and only one as worthy of respect," runs a superstition which has proved powers of prediction.

For example, if the Vatican is divided into staffs, why can it as well run as the telephone company?

But then, if it is not divinely inspired, why is it run, even according to Mammon's standards, almost as well as the telephone company? Or, though some of its princes is a graduate of an American executive training school?

For the church turns out to function well with no regard at all for the prescriptions of modern management analysis.

The institute points out that the church has neglected the merchandising potential of that middle class which rules every other institution of Western civilization. "The bishops and the cardinals are too frequently either priests or lawyer in origin."

The Sacred College is an instrument peculiarly at war with progressive corporate development.

"The present regulations regarding the Consistory and papal election can elevate rascals in as great number as men of extraordinary spiritual worth. It is shown by the records," the institute says.

"What concerns us most is that a majority of the cardinals and the fact that they so largely seem to constitute an Italian clique that perhaps thinks more in terms of a restoration of the Holy Roman Empire than a strong spiscopate in the provinces."

In other words, we wonder if the cardinals sometimes do not look backwards more than forwards in business matters that require progressive attitudes. Such as depreciation reserves for instance.

The notion that the Lord will provide is an unsound management principle. The cardinals, from parochialism, may be giving much of the property in Italian enterprises.

"Few important corporations in America or elsewhere, list the church among their large stockholders."

The church's public relations would be improved if it would issue financial reports. It has not learned, as American corporations have, to avoid doctrinal intrusions into public affairs.

Its sale program shows "an amazing amount of duplication."

"It would be the better part of business wisdom to have the organization familiar with all the various procedures so that one method can be given the most effective means."

"For example, the most important mail-order houses in America exchange information freely. Though they are competitors. How sensible it would be for all agencies of the Catholic church to use the same degree of co-operation."

To the American Institute of Management, the path to the understanding of the church is financial structure and not its doctrine.

This approach tells us wonderfully little about management, which is more and more a system for improving the distribution of products that are steadily worse produced.

American management is adept about finance and public relation, about paper and not substance.

Roger Blough is chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation. Its annual reports he understands how steel is made but because he understands how it is sold.

Plus IX, from being trivial and stubborn, was the church the nineteenth century.

But he saved it at the end by clinging to the one cardinal principle of doctrine: The only heresy that can destroy the church from within is the heresy of modernism.

Mr. Caouette Shows Discretion

The decision of the Social Credit party to refrain from contesting the coming provincial election in Quebec is being represented as a victory for Real Caouette. Mr. Caouette has argued, with apparent sound logic, that the monetary measures needed to initiate Social Credit principles can only be undertaken at the federal level. In other words, he appears to be afraid of what might result from his party gaining power in Quebec. Since it would be unable to make the monetary reforms which he regards as essential, he apparently fears that disillusionment would result and that this would harm the party in the federal field as well as in the provincial.

This is not the first time that Mr. Caouette has advanced this argument. On the first occasion there was speculation as to the effect his stand would have on relations with the Western Socreds, from the provinces of Alberta and British Columbia, both of which have Socred governments. However, both Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta appear to have decided to ignore Caouette's arguments. In both provinces peculiar circumstances safeguard their political positions. In B.C., Social Credit is the only apparent effective safeguard against the election to power of the CCF or New Democratic Party and all those who fear this group's socialistic policies are anxious not to rock the boat. Indeed, the fact that Social Credit policies cannot be instituted at the provincial level constitutes one of the party's main assets for many of its backers in provincial politics. In Alberta the revenue obtained from oil leases has enabled the Socreds to combine such a high level of services with such a low level of taxation that voting against the government would be almost akin to voting against Santa Claus.

In all this conjecture, there is a danger of sight being lost of one pertinent fact. Whether Mr. Caouette considered it or not, his decision not to back any Social Credit candidates in the Quebec provincial election enhances the chances of defeating Premier Jean Lesage. Mr. Lesage is seeking a mandate from the people to nationalize Quebec power companies. Willy-nilly, the Union Nationale must oppose nationalization. The policy was almost forced on it, but probably coincides with the private convictions of most of its members. But Social Credit, too, is unalterably opposed to anything that is tinged with socialism and the party is specifically on record as opposing the nationalization of the power companies. It follows a full-scale campaign by Social Credit would split the vote in opposition to nationalization, leaving the Liberals to gather in all the votes of those favoring such policy. Since private ownership of power companies has been linked with English domination of Quebec's economic life, the vote in favor of nationalization is likely to be large in any case. If the opposing vote were split, the result would be a foregone conclusion.

Entering the provincial election would also put the Quebec Socreds in the unhappy position of appearing to oppose the strong separatist movement, a movement from which it is suspected of receiving a considerable share of the support which it won at the last Federal election.

Disassociating himself from the conflict is, therefore, for Caouette, an act of discretion, a rather unusual procedure for him, since in the past he has been only too quick to goose-step where angels fear to tip-toe.

Make Amends by Mending

A Toronto lady alderman is seeking a special police force in an effort to thwart the maniacal acts of vandals who in a recent three-month period destroyed park property to the tune of over $5,000. She also suggests a few jail terms and strappings would not be amiss.

One case mentioned was the flagrant upheaving of flagstones and ripping off of building ventilators and so on. One wonders if along with the orthodox punishments it might not be practical to take these delinquents back to the scene of the crimes and see that they do the actual repairs under supervision. Is it too much to be hoped for that after a day of lugging heavy stones and doing other strenuous construction jobs these hoodlums might be too exhausted to ravage public property again? This just might teach them a little respect where other treatments have obviously failed, and couldn't possibly harm their delicate psyches.

There is nothing like a healthy sweat and a few charlie horses to make these anti-social characters decide they are not cut out for cutting up.

Got Charter Strange Way

Windsor Star

The Windsor Raceways Ltd. has secured sanction for a large harness racing enterprise in this area. It is a reputable organization, has big plans and its operations can be of certain advantage to the community. The location of the track and associated activities will be at Ojibway.

The manner in which the organization has obtained the charter, however, is an illustration of government at its worst. The facts are stranger than fiction. The fault is with the Government, rather than the organization.

Windsor Raceways dug into the dusty files of the companies branch at Queen's Park and found among the records a racing dating back to 1877 and the newest lapsed in 1929. It got these documents and from that the present sanction.

None of these old charters had been used since 1906!

It should have been possible under present legislation for the Windsor Raceways to apply for a new charter in a legal way rather than having to scrounge around to find long-disused ones. And such an application should have been heard in the open instead of behind the closed doors of the Ontario Racing Commission, a government - appointed body. The Windsor Raceways is an unfair sight.

This is a situation to which Premier John P. Roberts should give his personal attention; to have proper modern legislation so there will need be no repitition of the circuitous procedure. The Windsor Raceways, if entitled to a charter, is entitled to a new charter, not one based on extinct organizations of long ago.

Meantime the companies branch at Queen's Park should go through the files and revoke all obsolete old charters. It should have had a lesson when the gambling fraternity resurrected old club charters as fronts for its nefarious operations.

It would make just as much sense for someone to acquire old bar licences of the year 1900 and use them as a basis for current hotel licences.

The Ontario Government is leaving itself open to ridicule by the use of outdated charters for modern usage. One thing a Government cannot survive is ridicule.

Volunteers Go Slumming

Milwaukee Journal

Eighty peace corps members who are to be assigned to the slums of cities in Colombia will be given a month's training in Milwaukee's Hull House east side of New York.

The volunteers have had eight weeks of preliminary training and four of "roughing it" in Puerto Rico. During October they will work in settlement houses, day care centers and shelters in New York City. Their training will be supervised by the New York school of social work at Columbia University.

It ferquently has been suggested that this country should also train a domestic youth corps to work in our city, urban and rural slums. The New York experiment of the 80 volunteers may help determine whether this would be worth while. It might make at least some of the corpsmen, after their return from South America, to join the undermanned ranks of social workers who labor in our blighted areas.

Strictly Personal

Disaster Intrudes Stealthily

By SYDNEY HARRIS

I was only travelling at about 10 miles an hour, when the car ahead of me suddenly stopped with a lurch, and I rammed it from the rear. The children sitting in the back seat of my car did not suffer a bump or scratch.

It is a week later, and I am still a mass of tenderness and soreness. If I had been going five miles an hour faster, I am sure some bones would have been broken, or some internal organs severely injured. And this was the mildest possible crash — nothing like a head-on collision.

This shocking and shaking experience brings home to one more forcibly than all the words of warning in the world how close we are to death or permanent injury in our automobiles. The accident occurred in a fraction of a second; the preparations for it long before I even knew what had happened.

We ordinarily think of fatal auto accidents as taking place on a high state of speed, while passing or turning on a highway. Actually, however, most fatal accidents take place at speeds under 35 miles an hour, usually in cities, streets or country lanes, when the vigilance is relaxed and danger seems to have disappeared.

The human body is not designed to withstand violent impact, even at a low velocity. Travelling at present-day auto speeds, we are a perpetual invitation to disaster. No wild animal in the jungle moves so much a threat to man's survival as his own automobile today; this is a truth we find it hard to believe — until that moment of impending crash.

Beyond the banal facts of my little crack-up, there is a wider moral to be drawn. Life race — that we do not learn until it is too late, that proverbs do not teach us, that, as pain does, that warnings are abstract symbols unless they reach the nerve and bone and muscle.

The whole trouble with life", Kierkegaard once said, "is that it must be lived forward, but can only be understood backward". The futility of wars is seen only after both sides are bleeding and exhausted; the consequences of carelessness, or selfishness, or cruelty or greed, can be grasped only after the tragic, historical event.

We learn the hard way, in our public and social, as well as in our private lives. Even those of us who buy seat belts, as I did, do not wear them when we should; we use them as magical tokens, hoping that their mere presence will protect us from disaster.

The essence of disaster is that it strikes when we least expect it, when we are least prepared. We are peering hopefully into the future, when we should be learning our lessons from the past.

Average Patient Aids In Hospital Costs

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

I've recently been reading some financial reports on hospitals. The American Hospital Association finds that it costs $94.36 a week to take care of a patient in our general hospitals. The cost is less in mental, tuberculosis and similar long-term hospitals.)

Almost $13 a day is certainly an important figure, since 25,000,000 Americans went to hospitals last year. About one in seven, that is.

The cost rose by $2.75 compared to the year before and from everything I can see, and hear, the cost will continue to rise. The cost of everything a hospital uses; labor, which is the largest item, sheets, food, supplies, repairs and so on, continue to increase.

Further, new kinds of equipment keep coming along, and if a hospital is to be modern and give its patients the best treatment known, it has a necessary expense. Increased research costs have to be reckoned as another factor, plus the not-inconsiderable cost of training nurses, and the true value of the services of student nurses. Still another is the constant amount to train them, and new personnel.

Therefore I think it behooves us to know these things. We don't enjoy going to bed $30 a day to be in the hospital, but if that's what it costs, there is no point in hoping that by some good fairy would make it less. Only thinking is to help at all.

You may have noticed that I just mentioned paying over $30 a day," where a few paragraphs ago I said $13 a day.

I did this on purpose — because the average patient pays $22.85, or $23.00 for the amount it costs to provide the care. The difference is made up from gifts or grants to hospitals. The average patient still isn't paying enough to provide hospital care.

Which is right, because in some localities charity patients are cared for, supported, at "public expense," but the cities or counties involved don't always pay the full cost.

The hospital thus is forced to make up the difference from gifts, or if this is not enough, is forced to send patients somewhat more than they rightfully should be charged for their own care. This, it seems to me, is most clearly wrong.

The amounts I've cited are "average daily costs." The first day in the hospital, with its extra laboratory tests and so on, can run to twice the average cost in many cases. Later on it may drop, bringing us back to the "average."

Costs vary with localities, so don't try to make that your hospital ought to be exactly average. If you're in Toronto, somebody else's has to be higher.

Whether we pay directly, or through Blue Cross, or through some other plan, hospital care is not cheap. But I don't know where in the world it equals the quality of that in the U.S. and Canada.

Line Drawn On Razzing

Windsor Star

A Baltimore judge this week handed hoodlums a decision that will have wide acceptance. "It is a fan's privilege to razz the umpire," Judge Sharp, he said, "but only as to their ancestry, not to them as-an individual."

The judge drew this line before a baseball game between Senators' outfielder Jimmy Austin and a disorderly conduct charge. Piersall had climbed into the stands after some uncouthed fan who had been shouting that the baseball player's mother, and his mother, too. It was an uncalled for taunt to a great but high-strung athlete and this he recovered from a mental illness.

Sportsmanship finds its lowest water mark in those loudmouthed characters, most of no athletic competence themselves, who go to games of various kinds just for the results. There are cheerful oddballs who make humorous observations at sporting events, and are regarded as a legitimate part of them. The offensive screamer is not.

The Baltimore decision has the virtue of condemning that type which is the same time informing players that there is a legitimate form of razzing and they might as well learn to take it.

Campbellford Driver Fined as Impaired

Magistrate R. C. Jackson of Madoc today found Patrick J. Laffin, of Campbellford, not guilty of drunk driving, in Hastings County magistrate's court. He found the defendant guilty of impaired driving, fined him $75 and suspended his licence to drive for three months. Before passing sentence Magistrate Jackson told the defendant that except in special cases, he considered a fine of $100 a minimum for this offense.

Laffin was stopped by the OPP's in Foxboro, about 1.00 a.m. on Aug. 17. He admitted that he had four glasses of beer earlier in the evening, but ascribed his slow, erratic driving to fatigue. He said he had worked more than 14 hours on the preceding day.

Major Denied Fair Hearing Says Counsel

OTTAWA (CP)—R. K. Laishley, civilian counsel for Maj. William Allan Platt, told the court martial appeal board today that the 40-year-old major was denied a fair hearing when he was prosecuted for gold smuggling in Indochina.

Maj. Platt was convicted at a court martial here last May of a breach of army discipline while serving last year with the international truce supervisory commission. He was fined $500 and given a severe reprimand —a notation on his service record that affects his chances of promotion.

The army major was one of five soldiers convicted by courts-martial for smuggling. A sergeant and two corporals were given severe reprimands and fined $100 each in Indochina and two mail clerks of the external affairs department were dismissed.

DENIED JUSTICE

Mr. Laisley said Maj. Platt did not have a trial in accordance with the rules of law. He was denied natural justice contained in the Bill of Rights.

Maj. Platt, Mr. Laishley said, was deprived of making a full answer and defence to the charge against him due to the court's refusal to order a commission to take evidence of witnesses he was unable to call because they were in Indochina.

"All of the witnesses necessary for Maj. Platt to call in support of his defence were in Indochina," Mr. Laishley said. Maj. Platt also was denied the right to freely communicate with these witnesses either personally or through counsel, contrary to army regulations.

City Manager Simply Amazed At Development in Britain

Ontario Municipal officials, who last month toured European countries to compare municipal government operation with that at home were simply amazed at the industrial development currently going on in England and in continental countries visited.

This was noted today by Belleville City Manager J. D. Reynolds on his return to the city following his month's visit on the other side of the Atlantic.

Approximately 80 municipal officials from all parts of Ontario took the trip, part who visited England, Germany and Sweden with others taking in France and the lowland countries of Belgium and Holland.

"The industrial development going on in England is simply fantastic", noted Mr. Reynolds. "They can hardly find room to put the new factories".

Some of this development stems from reconstruction following the war although this is now being caught up.

QUITE A TRIP

The main object of the overseas trip was to compare municipal government administration but also took in housing and planning.

No specific invitations were visited by the group but in covering housing and planning it was inevitable that they also were informed on industrial development.

"It was quite a trip", commenter Mr. Reynolds, "although I don't know whether you could actually call it a holiday".

Mr. Reynolds' party visited the bustling port of Hamburg, Germany and also Sweden and the city of Stockholm.

Within the next two weeks or so Mr. Reynolds will present council with a detailed account of his overseas trip.

Bancroft Girl Killed by Car Near Her Home

A seven - year - old Bancroft girl, Carol Baumhour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerth Baumhour of R. R. 2, Bancroft died on arrival at Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, Sunday afternoon after being struck by a car while crossing No. 28 highway in the vicinity of her home.

Police said the girl was in the company of three companions, when she attempted to cross the highway from north to south in front of an approaching vehicle driven eastwest by a 20-year-old Oshawa man, George Marsela of 46 King Street West. It is believed she was struck by the side of the car.

Ontario Provincial Police at Bancroft investigated the accident which occurred about 1.40 p.m. Sunday afternoon, just east of the junction of highway No. 109 and No. 28. She was a grade two student at Faudash Public School.

An inquest will be held. She leaves her parents, three sisters and two brothers.

before the launching will be attempted.

The six-orbit mission will keep Schirra aloft nearly double the time spent by U.S. astronauts John H. Glenn Jr. and Malcolm Scott Carpenter.

Schirra's primary task will be to determine what must be done to the Mercury capsule to make it capable of a 24-hour flight.

How well he can conserve fuel, coolant water and electrical power will be the items under closest scrutiny as the 36-year-old navy commander races around the world, more than 100 miles high, at 17,500 miles an hour.

'DEMANDING MISSION'

Schirra calls it a very demanding mission and has spent several weeks at Cape Canaveral training for it. Simulated space trips and countless reviews of the flight plan have etched every detail in the minds of Schirra and his backup pilot, air force Maj. Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr.

Schirra is scheduled to blast off between 8 and 9 a.m. Wednesday.

The six-orbit flight requires a more extensive recovery operation than previous missions. More than 40,000 men, 30 ships and 100 aircraft will be standing by around the world to receive the astronaut.

If the flight is terminated one, two or three orbits, Schirra will land in the Atlantic Ocean as Glenn and Carpenter did. But a Pacific Ocean landing is necessary beyond three orbits because daylight is required for safe recovery. Nightfall comes to the Pacific a few hours later than in the Atlantic.

Family Security Check-Up

✓ Useful to you whether you need insurance or not. ✓ Explains your true "life value" and its worth to your family. ✓ No obligation, except to those you love.

There are many reasons to check your family's financial health: incomes change, children's ages change, family needs change.

There can be mistakes in the financial security plans you have made. Plans may be out of date. You may have unintentionally "disinherited" a child. You may not be getting the most from the dollars you put aside for security.

The Family Security Check-Up reviews the plans you have made, helps you see your present situation clearly, puts you in a position to judge intelligently whether the provisions you have made for your family are all you want them to be.

Whether you need insurance or not—whether or not your insurance is with Metropolitan—a Family Security Check-Up makes sense. Over 2,100 Metropolitan Representatives in 102 local offices across Canada are trained to bring you this service. Call your local office today.

Family Security Check-Up

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES FOR YOU

With the help of your Metropolitan man—

1. You check the facts: Your pension plan, your home, your life insurance, your savings and other assets. You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth.

2. You weigh your responsibilities: Mortgage or rent payments, education, retirement, accident and sickness emergencies; how much it would cost your family to live without you.

3. You learn where you stand. You determine your weak and strong points . . . whether the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. You get the facts in front of you.

4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions—one which makes good sense for you.

MCGOWAN - CHAMBERS

On Saturday, September 8th, at high noon, a pretty late summer wedding was solemnized in Trinity United Church, Madoc, by the Reverend R. Milley, pastor of the church, when Paula Marie Chambers, became the bride of Douglas Allan McGowan. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Chambers of Madoc, R.R. 1, and the bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson D. McGowan of Madoc.

Guest organist, Miss Jean McGowan of Havelock, rendered the traditional wedding music and accompanied the guest soloist, Miss Linda Wellman, of Bonarlaw, who sang "The Wedding Prayer" during the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of Swiss imported organdy designed with a fully appliqued shirt, delicately puffed around the hipline and caught with dainty bows. Her silk illusion bouffant veil, in finger-tip length, was caught to a queen-like crown of pearls with drop crystals. She carried a cascade of red roses mingled with small white carnations.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Myra Chambers, of Madoc, as maid of honour, gowned in street-length peacock blue peau de soie, designed with a rounded neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The skirt was bell-shaped; caught with self bows. Her matching circular mohair stole was encircled with a rose and worn with an over-the-face veil. She wore matching shoes and white gloves and carried a cascade of white carnations centred with peacock blue 'mums.

The flower girl, little Miss Janine Read, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Read, of Peterborough, was dressed identically to the maid of honour, and carried a miniature replica of her bouquet.

The bridegroom was attended by his cousin, Mr. John Varty, of London, while Mr. Douglas Devolin of Peterborough and Mr. Gary Chambers of Plainfield acted as ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors. The bride's table was covered with white damask, silver candelabra with white and pale blue candles and centred with the bride's two-tier wedding cake, misted about the base with pale blue tulle and flanked by the bridal bouquets.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, attired in a two-piece ensemble of willow-green linen with matching shoes, pillbox style hat of beige marabou, beige accessories, and corsage of bronze 'mums. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. William Irwin of Eldorado, wore navy with gold and white accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. McGowan are now residing at 637 Aylmer St., Peterborough.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Misses Alma and Minnie Moorcroft, with Miss Eileen Pitt and Mrs. A. Pitt as co-hostesses; also at a shower at the home of Mrs. Don Irvine, Peterborough, with Mrs. James Jarvis as co-hostess.

The staff of the Peterborough Utilities Commission where the bride is an employee, presented her with an electric frying pan. The fellow employees of the bridegroom at Industrial Acceptance Corporation presented him with a cut glass bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Woodward are shown signing the register following their recent marriage in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Jean Diane Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Phillips, of Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woodward of Trenton. White baskets of gladioli and ferns adorned the altar and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

WOODWARD — PHILLIPS

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the setting for a recent pretty wedding when the Reverend Peter Murphy united in marriage Jean Diane Phillips, of Belleville, to Thomas M. Woodward, of Trenton. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Phillips, of Belleville, and the bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Woodward of Trenton. White baskets of gladioli and ferns adorned the altar and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

The wedding music was provided by Miss Dorothy Grant, who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, in his rendition of "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal gown of peau de soie featuring a fitted bodice on princess lines, with scalloped neckline, long V-pointed sleeves over the wrists, and full skirt in floor-length accented with over-skirt of Chantilly lace. She wore a crown-style headdress encrusted with white sequins and seed pearls with shoulder-length veil of bouffant silk illusion, and carried a cascade bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses and white stephanotis with green foliage, and rosebud-studded streamers of white satin.

Her maid of honor was Miss Karla Hay, of Belleville, wearing white nylon organza over taffeta fashioned with molded bodice having a scoop neckline, short sleeves and full skirt with wide hemline accented with pink lace trim. Her matching headdress was in pink, with white accessories and she carried a bouquet of pink and white 'mums, and wore a sterling silver cross charm, the gift of the bride.

Miss Wendy Phillips of Belleville, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Carol Hagen, sister of the bridegroom were dressed identically in blue with blue lace trim, matching headdresses, and carried bouquets of blue and white 'mums. They also wore sterling crosses, gifts of the bride.

Mr. Joseph Vieau of Trenton attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Angus McFee of Belleville, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Lionel Rivers, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

The guests were received by the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother at the Social Room of Club Canara, Belleville, the former in a blue-fusion organza sheath over flowered silk with matching clutch mother; matching hat, navy accessories, and corsage of white carnations; and the latter in brown and beige floral silk sheath style, with matching beige and brown hat, brown accessories, and corsage of white carnations.

The bridal table was daintily appointed with white damask linen and centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by lilies, while silver holding wedding rings beneath an arch of pink rosebuds. Tall pink and white candles and the bridal bouquets completed the attractive setting.

For travelling to Muskoka, Barrie, and other Northern Ontario points, the bride wore a three-piece ensemble of ivory and cinnamon brown, with three-quarter sleeves, box-style jacket, brown and cinnamon accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower held by Mrs. A. McFee, with Mrs. Walter (Blanche) Ross as co-hostess. The bride was also the recipient of an electric steam and dry iron and lovely cup and saucer from her co-workers at the Northern Electric Company, of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodward are residing at 89 A Catherine Street, Belleville, Ontario.

St. Michael's PTA Names Staff Members

St. Michael's Parent-Teacher Association held the first meeting of the school year on September 24 in St. Michael's Academy. Classrooms were open for inspection. The meeting was opened with prayer by Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan.

The attendance prize for grades 9 and 10 was won by the Rev. Sister Mary Andrew; for grades 11, 12 and 13, by the Rev. Sister Mary Avita, and for the junior school by the Rev. Sister Mary Rose and Mrs. J. E. Milne.

A film entitled "The Sociable Sixes to the Noisy Mixes," narrated by the Rev. Sister Mary Carthagh, was informative and enjoyable.

CLASS MOTHERS

Class mothers for the year are: Mrs. Andrew Walsh, Mrs. Loretto Daly, Mrs. Bernard McAlpine, Mrs. Thomas Lynch, Mrs. Terence McCabe, Mrs. Michael Burke, Mrs. James Black, Mrs. Ed Tomsett, Mrs. Robert Allore, Mrs. Oriel Griffiths, Mrs. J. Walsh, Mrs. Jean Armstrong, Mrs. John Moore, Mrs. Mombourquette, Mrs. Bruce Roote, Mrs. Douglas Duminie, Mrs. Ken Soden and Mrs. George Bell.

Victoria Girl Wrote Best Research Thesis

VICTORIA (CP)—Extract heat never bothered Andrea Miller of Victoria, who produces gobs of it in her daily trim and five feet nothing high.

She wasn't content to be just one of nine girls among 42 graduates last spring from the University of British Columbia's school of pharmacy.

On her way to the degree, she wrote the foremost research thesis of all graduates in pharmacy schools across Canada.

While most students were writing less-ambitious graduating essays, the 20-year-old Miss Miller pent three hours a week in a laboratory and many extra hours investigating "factors involved in formulation of moisturizing creams."

"I experimented with isolated ointments first, then lanolins and waxes in ointments and creams to test moisturizing ability," she said . . . I didn't really come to any conclusion. It's such a large topic that you could work on for years."

WON GOLD MEDAL

The thesis won the Dean E. L. Woods Memorial Prize in Pharmacy, a gold medal, impressive certificate and an all-expenses-paid trip in June 1962, convention of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association in Vancouver.

She believes girls stand to take a greater share of pharmacy honors in future. She sees the job as a natural for women, despite the fact that the pharmacy degree involves work in such subjects as chemistry, mathematics, zoology and biology, as well as a smattering of drugstore retailing and accounting.

She is spending this year in practical training to obtain her licence from the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association. And she's pondering a choice between dispensing drugs and continuing in research, but expects the dispensary will win out, at least until she gets her teeth into the profession.

MONTREAL (CP) — Sometimes all it takes to please a tourist is a bag of ice.

Mrs. Madeleine Smith, the chief aide of the only husband-and-wife team of tourist guides in Montreal, told about some of her experiences in an interview.

"The bag of ice solved the problem of burning feet for an elderly lady.

"It was a hot day," Mrs. Smith recalled, "This old lady asked me if she could get some ice cubes. I guess she was too shy to ask for them herself at the hotel.

"I told the hotel manager my problem. He quickly got a bag of ice and I reached the woman before she got to her room, gave her the ice and told her to dump it in the bathtub and soak her feet.

"That dear old lady was so grateful I'm sure she left Montreal with a good impression. And all it took was a little effort and a bag of ice."

Another time, a group of U.S. tourists on a sightseeing bus wanted to hear the French language spoken. But Mrs. Smith knew they would miss all the attractions if she spoke French they didn't understand.

SANG FRENCH SONGS

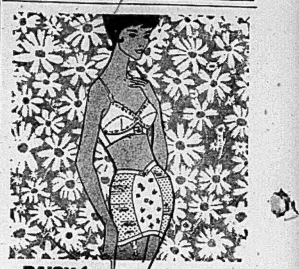
"So, I sang a few choruses of 'Vive Les Canadiennes' and everyone was happy."

Mrs. Smith, a dress designer who fashioned the role of husband-wife tourist suit she wears to escort visitors around, says a guide should serve as an ambassador of goodwill and a liaison between the city and tourists.

A graduate of the University of Montreal's course in tourism, she wants some day to work in a government tourist agency.

Her husband, Harvey Smith, is a guide who sells Montreal's attractions in the U.S. when isn't shepherding visitors around the city. They have been married 13 years.

The Smiths have an extensive library on Canada in general and Quebec province in particular. They spend their off-season vacations touring the U.S. showing slides of Montreal and giving lectures in schools and churches.



Mr. Smith has presented a brief to the Quebec government on tourism in the province.

What is the Smiths' main topic of conversation at home? "Montreal, what else?" answers Mrs. Smith.

Main Racial Groups Urged To Intermarry

By PETER SMARK

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—The different races of Singapore and Malaya are being urged by a Singapore government adviser to intermarry as a way of improving race relations here.

The inter - racial marriages are being recommended by Inche Rahim Ishak, political adviser to Singapore's ministry of culture, at a time when negotiations are in progress for the formation of a federation of Malaysia—a merger of Singapore, Malaya, Brunei, Sarawak and North Borneo.

Ishak pointed out in a speech that although the various races in Singapore and Malaya had lived together for centuries they had always kept themselves in social compartments, divided, disunited and suspicious of each other.

"South America, and to a lesser extent the United States, are the outstanding examples of how diverse peoples can mix," he declared.

"It is said that in South America, one can see a blonde Negro talking to a Chinese red Indian and I would like to see in Malaya more of such radically 'mixed-up' specimens," who, I am sure, would make excellent Malayans."

ONE LANGUAGE

He appealed to all sections of the community to give up communal schools, and encourage multi-racial schools based on the national language—Malay.

In Singapore and Malaya, the main racial groups are Malay and Chinese, with a large number of Indians, and small groups of a dozen other races. In the three Borneo territories, the main racial groups are again Malay and Chinese, with various Melanesian tribes adding a more varied inter-racial aspect to the proposed Malaysian federation.

Over-all, there has been little inter - marriage among these various racial groups.

European blood has mingled with all groups to form the group loosely known as "Eurasians," many of whom now are prominent in politics, law, statistics, trade unionism and commerce in both Singapore and Malaya.

However, intermarriage between people of the Chinese and Malay races has been rare.

Weddings

LONGWELL — ORMSHAW

North Trenton United Church was the setting on June 30, for the ceremony that united in marriage Linda Ormshaw, of Trenton to Donald Peter Longwell of Toronto. The altar was decorated with baskets of white mums and yellow shasta daisies. The Rev. J. T. Irwin officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ormshaw of Trenton and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maclaren Longwell of Port Colborne.

Mrs. R. Jones provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white nylon sheer over taffeta, styled with a molded bodice buttoned to the waistline accenting the graceful lines of her bouffant skirt, embroidered in appliqued flowers at the hemline. Her scoop neckline was outlined in appliqued flowers encrusted with tiny pearls and sequins, with short sleeves of sheered nylon. She wore elbow-length gloves, pointed at the wrists. A "Juliet" cap of sheered nylon held a chapel veil of illusion in place and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Attendant to the bride as matron-of-honor was Miss Betsy Smith, Trenton. Miss Margaret Fiskle of Trenton and Miss Marilyn Phillips, of Belleville, as bridesmaids. They were gowned in dresses of gold and white silk. Matching white accessories and baskets of shasta daisies completed their ensembles.

Mr. Mahlon Longwell of Port Colborne was groomsman and the ushers were Messrs Hector Lasseny of Trenton, Paul Hudson of Ottawa and Ray Prophet and Bert Johns of Port Colborne.

The mother of the bride received guests in a ribbon lace dress of champagne with matching jacket and accessories and corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a blue shantung dress with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Travelling to the West Coast for their honeymoon, the new Mrs. Longwell donned a flowered nylon sheer dress with matching accessories and corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Longwell are residing in Toronto.

Tricky Treat

By ALICE ALDEN

Fashion may be a tricky dame, but the tricks she plays are for our benefit.

For instance, Sarah Coventry, subscribing to this tricky trend, comes through with a versatile wonder. It's a necklace, a lariat, a chatelaine or a belt.

It can also do duty as a bright bracelet.

Vegetables That Titillate The Palate

by Mary Moore

"The only vegetable I eat is peas!" said a girl of seventeen who has a poor complexion. I was incredulous but managed a quiet "Why?" "I don't know — that's what my mother gives us."

This universal problem of children of all ages not eating or liking all the vegetables available is probably the fault of the cook — the mother.

If every variety of vegetables was set before children every day from the time they were put on strained vegetables in infancy the vegetable shunning habit would be overcome.

To persuade you to make capital of our colorful Fall vegetables we have glamorized a few of the common ones today. Select from these the vegetables you will feature on Thanksgiving Day.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Grilled Crumbed Veal Kidneys with Green Onion Milk Gravy; Baked Summer Squash; Brussels Sprouts; Celery Curls; Peach Shortcake; Coffee.

BAKED BEETS JULIENE:

3½ cups (about) shredded cooked beets, or 2 15-oz. cans shoestring beets, ¼ cup beet liquid or hot water, ½ cup of dairy sour cream, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons grated mild onion, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper to taste, ¼ teaspoon MSG (accent), ½ cup fine, dry bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine.

If canned beets are used drain beets, reserving ¼ cup beet liquid. Mix beets, sour cream, the ¼ cup beet liquid or hot water (if you cook your own beets, lemon juice, onion, salt, pepper and MSG. Turn into greased casserole. Mix crumbs and melted butter; sprinkle over beets. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes or until bubbling hot and golden. Serves 6 to 8.

SAVORY CREAMED SPINACH:

3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 can mushroom cream soup, 2 lbs. spinach, cooked, drained and chopped, 2 tablespoons sherry (optional), ½ teaspoon grated onion, dash of nutmeg or mace, salt and pepper to taste, ¼ teaspoon MSG.

Melt butter in top of double boiler over direct heat; blend in flour; add undiluted soup and cook slowly, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Place over boiling water. Add spinach. Cover and cook over boiling water for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add remaining ingredients; mix well and serve.

GREEN BEANS WITH ALMONDS:

2 lbs. fresh green beans, 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1-3 to ½ cup toasted, slivered almonds.

Remove tips from fresh beans and cut in long thin strips, diagonally. Simmer slowly in a small amount of boiling salted water until tender, about 12 to 15 minutes. The beans should not be too soft. Drain and add butter, salt, pepper and almonds. Serves 8.

NOTE:

If you are trying to reduce your calories but want to serve carrots because of their color and low cost, cut them in very fine strips, cook in a very small amount of water. While still crisp-tender, drain. To about 2 cups of them all 3 tablespoons whole milk and ½ teaspoon each salt and sugar. Cover and heat through. These are delicious.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

ON WEDDDING MONTHS — AND COSTS

A recent statistical study answers the question in an odd-time song by proving that people now love each other as much in December as they do in May.

Although June still is the bride's month, with 12.6 per cent of the year's marriages that droopingly, December, with May are now tied at 8.4 per-cent each of the annual total.

Actually, sweethearts increasingly are waiting for the later months of the year to exchange marriage vows. More than 33 percent of marriages last year occurred in the last six months.

Judging by these figures, the concept of the marriage ceremony, lately, is slowly changing according to clothing, customs and costs, and it may be due to the cooler weather, when people, even those with stars in their eyes, dress and eat differently.

For one thing, the ceremony is being returned to marriage. Many couples, of course, still spend about $10 for blood tests, license and a City Hall blessing, but more and more are being married at home or in a hotel. And it can cost a pretty penny.

According to one survey, the average national cost of a modern engagement and wedding is $1000. But don't get discouraged. It also points out that a wedding can cost less, so it's possible to be just as "correct" at one end of the scale as it is at the other.

You can spend $100 for a wedding gown (the average price) or spend $10 to rent a similar ensemble. The groom usually rents his cutaway and striped trousers for about $15.

Formal wedding pictures cost between $30 and $200 a dozen, the variation depending on the quality of the photographs and the reputation of the photographer. Candid pictures and the wedding will run from $25 to $100 a dozen.

The caterer's charges will vary considerably, depending on the number of guests and the menu chosen.

Tent weddings are becoming popular because it keeps all the clutter out of the house. The catered affair of this type will range from $10 to $30 a person, and includes refreshments, food china, silverware, linen, glassware, flowers, orchestra — and, of course, the tent.

One hotel in New York City recently estimated a wedding for 150 guests could cost about $7000 with ceremony, or considerably more than a tent arrangement. Some of the items broke down as follows: 12 to $25 a person for food; $5 to $10 a person for beverages; 50 cents a person for wedding cake; $1 a person for table floral arrangements; $250 to $1000 for room decorations; $3 extra a person for coatroom and washroom tips. No estimate was made for musicians.

Musician costs are hard to hazard on where the wedding is held, time of year, hours of the wedding, the number of the musicians and whether the music is continuous.

Many successful wedding parties have had only an accordionist at about $20 an hour. On the average, a five or six piece ensemble will have a price tag of $250 to $300.

So take out your slide-rule and step on the sliding scale. These are just a few of the figures that have to be weighed carefully when budgeting a wedding that is correctly detailed any month of the year.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note — The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor; encountered by guidance counselors and social workers.

Leo F. — He won't even talk to me. His mother should intervene.

Marie F. — He'll come out of it himself. I can't force him.

Leo. F. — Can you imagine how it feels to sit down to dinner, night afternight, with someone who won't talk to you? It's weird and unnatural. But that's what I have to endure with by 16-year-old stepson.

I married Marie a year ago. We waited until her older boy was ready for college and Mal was old enough to be making plans for his own future. I felt it would work out.

But Mal resents me, keeps me feeling like an outsider. And Marie won't mend matters. She should. Mal needs a dad. It's a shame the way a bright boy like him wastes his time with the beatnik brigade. While his marks go down, his prowess with the Twist goes up! And I'm supposed to look on and not say a word. This isn't right.

Marie F. — My boys were very close to their father. He died eight years ago. When I married Leo, he knew my sons had no objection, but also no enthusiasm about the change. The trouble is that Leo wants to rush right into the role of father and son. And the boys feels that Leo is with us only as my husband, not as a replacement for his dad.

I'm embarrassed at his rudeness and slightness to Leo, but I know he'll come out of it. I can tell he's fighting it out with himself and I beg Leo to be patient.

If I were to bawl him out and scold, he'd sulk and stop talking to me, too. This way, at least Leo holds on to me as his friend. Believe me, it's my fondest dream that Mal and Leo should get along. But first Mal must get used to the idea of a stepfather.

The Council — Easy does it, Leo. We agree with Marie. Marrying a woman with young children involves special emotional acrobatics anytime, and marrying one with a teen-ager calls for the delicate skills of a tightrope walker. Try to treat it that.

As a stepfather and a Johnny-come-lately one, too, Leo is hurt by Mal's rejection of him. But the pain may ease with a few insights into Inside Mal.

First of all, some sulky teen-agers treat their real dads the same way. If it's any comfort to Leo, let him rest assured that the puzzling coldness is dished out by natural sons, too. He's got company there.

But what seems to be operating here principally is the tail end of a trauma Mal is going through following the death of a beloved father. His estranged wife's remarriage is a way of proclaiming, "Nobody but nobody can ever take my dad's place." And perhaps Leo's eagerness to fill the breach makes Mal more resistant than ever. Afraid that he might capitulate, in a weak moment, he keeps his hackles up. This is his confused form of loyalty to his deceased parent.

The shift can occur as a result of friendly "pressure" from two directions. From Marie can come testimony of how happy Leo is making her. Loving his mother, Mal may begin to feel a new fraternal warmth toward the man who is caring for her and will be her life companion. This will be a subtle, slow awakening. From Leo's comments (Leave that to Mom who's "in good.") Any common interest can become a bridge builder. At any rate, the road to Mal's heart (for Leo) is from a side door.

Present First Aid Certificates At H-S Meet

POINT ANNE — At a recent meeting of the Point Anne Home and School Association which was held in the school, grades six, seven and eight were presented with their first aid certificates by Mrs. John Ambulance Corps. These were presented by Mr. Ronald Lee.

Among the presentations Mrs. Hutt, principal of the school, made a presentation of a plaque to Mr. Lee for which he expressed appreciative thanks. Refreshments were served by the committee.

APPROVED FUNDS

Italy's administrative council for the Fund for the Development of the South has approved the appropriation of ₤727,500 for 14 day nurseries.

Guild Told Of St. John Ambulance

The first fall meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Guild was held in the Sunday school rooms last Tuesday evening in the form of a potluck supper with the Rev. and Mrs. Walker in attendance.

A business meeting followed and plans were discussed for the forthcoming Synod meeting and also for the annual bazaar.

Mrs. Lyon introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mr. Jack Sproule of the St. John Ambulance Corps who gave an interesting account of the historical background of this organization and followed this by telling of the work done in the present day.

Mr. Sproule was thanked by Mrs. Elvidge on behalf of the group present.

Parents Quarrel, Daughter Afraid

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—Things are going from bad to worse around our house. I say house because it doesn't seem like a home any more.

My mother and father had a big argument yesterday and it was my fault it started. Dad asked if there was anything we needed at the store. Mom said there was, thinking it would save me a trip. Dad said it was such a small article I could go.

Then I opened my big mouth and said that I told her (my mother) I'd go. Then it started. Dad stalked out and Mom called him some names you couldn't print. She was so angry there was talk of murder and suicide.

What am I going to do? Please don't suggest a marriage counselor because neither of them would go.—TRIGGER.

DEAR TRIGGER—Do nothing. Perhaps you triggered a row, but the disagreement is deeper than that—and it's not your fault!

Violence is remote. But damage to feelings is even more destructive. I'm sorry your parents don't see what their verbal blows do to you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TONGUE-TIED — You are not the first one whose blood congealed at the thought of presiding at a meeting. There's a lot to knowing the right way to do things. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the title of a handbook about this. Then those present won't be correcting you. You'll be correcting them.

DEAR DORIS—I am thirteen years old and I am entering grade eight. I fear that if I did pass into grade nine I would not be able to go because it is too expensive.

Since my father is deceased, my mother can't send me We can barely get along on what she does get.

I would like to get a job somewhere, but I think that the person will think that I am too young and besides, I don't know what kind of a job to get nor how to go about it—DIANE.

DEAR DIANE—In Canada you cannot leave school until you are sixteen without a permit. If attending involves some expense you cannot afford, see your principal.

You've got a year to find some baby sitting or a store job to do after school or on Saturdays to help out with such things as transportation or books.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALEX—Your injury and unearned pension have spoiled you. You keep feeling yourself to find out what you want. Start helping someone else for a change and you'll start feeling better.

TO PUZZLED WIDOW—If you have lived in Canada for ten years, you are entitled to the Old Age Pension. You don't even have to be a Canadian citizen. There's just this proviso, that the year immediately prior to application for the pension must be lived in Canada.

Having once qualified, you may receive it wherever you are.

TO EVENING WEDDING—I have seen candles used with charming effect. Tall candelabra from your florist will hold perhaps a dozen candles each. You rent them. The lights at the back of the church are on, but the candles do the job at the front—beautifully.

DEAR DORIS—Here I go writing to you again. I had my husband in court and won the case.

Now I have to take boarders in and have managed fine. But now I have a girl who brings other girls with her and never asks me.

She gives them the key and they come in at four o'clock in the morning. My daughter says I have nothing to say about it as she pays her board. But I still think that's not right—E. A.

DEAR E. A.—Either you charge extra or ask for your key back. Taking boarders in is not like renting a house.

It's different if a boarder asks permission to have a sister visit her one night in a great while—provided she is not a night prowler!

TO WORRIED MOTHER—If there is a bridal book for guests to sign, this could be looked after by a bridesmaid. Small fry may also put in their names if they've a mind to. All adds to the charm of this souvenir.

Guests sometimes come from far off, and enjoy seeing the bride open their gifts to her. Quite a ceremony may be made of this, with Mr. and Mrs. untying bows and lifting lids together. Happens after cake and toasts.

Smartly simple, elegant, wearable clothes are waiting to be claimed by the shopper who wants something nice to wear for late afternoons, dinner and the theatre.

U.C.W. Meetings

CANNIFTON U.C.W.

Mrs. Williams, Belleville, was the hostess to the Canniffon U.C.W. when they met at her home for their October meeting. The date for this meeting had been set forward a week owing to another commitment on the regular day.

The president, Mrs. Douglas Brenton, opened the proceedings with a warm welcome to all and extended her thanks to Mrs. Williams for her kindness in opening her home for the meeting.

It was decided during the business period, that the Explorer group would be given the job of selling the United Church calendars again this year. They had done a good job last year and derived much pleasure in the thought that in their small way they were helping to contribute to the church.

SYMPATHY TENDERED

The sympathy of the UCW goes out to Mrs. Fred Furmidge Sr., in the recent loss of a dear brother.

As this should have been an October meeting, the theme of the service was "Thanksgiving." Mrs. Roy Pound gave an interesting reading on that subject and Mrs. T. Howard read an article entitled "The Miracle of Growth."

The worship service was under the leadership of Mrs. Howard and the Scripture, read by Mrs. G. Stone, was Mt. Mark 4: 26-34. The lovely old song "In The Garden", was rendered as a duet by Mrs. G. Brenton and Mrs. Howard, with Mrs. Boyd as accompanist.

Mrs. J. Botting gave thanks for the offering which was taken by Master Richard Dawson.

The Bible study was omitted in order that the ladies might hear an account of Mrs. Williams' visit to the first U.C.W. school in Whitby.

Mrs. Williams' brief description of the program there, day by day was much enjoyed by the ladies.

The study period was given by Mrs. D. Brenton who introduced the two new Study Books, "As Asia Goes" and "On Asia's Rim". She gave an outline on both books which showed much interesting material to follow. The meeting closed by Mrs. Troop, a former's minister's wife and well known in Canniffon.

Mrs. Brenton thanked all who had taken part and said what a pleasure it had been to welcome the visitors, Mrs. Troop and Mrs. Waterhouse being old friends.

The ladies enjoyed the ever-welcome cup of tea with cookies. During the social half hour a pleasant note was struck, when Mrs. T. Howard was presented by the U.C.W. with a beautiful birthday cake, this being her birthday, a fact not known to many which accounted for her surprise when the cake was presented. Mrs. Howard thanked the ladies and said she appreciated the kindness of the ladies in thus remembering her.

Mrs. A. Boyd presided at the piano during the service.

Brother-in-Law of Girl Gets Her Out of Quarters for Coffee, Then to Freedom

EDITOR'S NOTE: The girl he was trying to rescue had passed within a few feet of Stephen Dinka, but he was helpless. With time running out, how could he reach her? Here is the third chapter of the intriguing story which started when a pretty Hungarian dancer wrote her sister in Ann Arbor, Mich. The Detroit Free Press and the Knight newspapers provided money and staff to help. They made the resulting stories available to The Associated Press.

The Detroit Free Press

PARIS (AP) — Time was a vicious whip Thursday, driving Stephen Dinka and me close to panic.

The night before, he had been only a few feet from Emese Szklenkai, his pretty sister-in-law whom he was trying to spirit away from a Communist Hungarian dance troupe on tour. The next morning, after only four hours of sleep, we met again to plan some more, but with a similar feeling of failure.

In her letter to Mrs. Dinka in Ann Arbor, Mich., the girl had said she would be in Paris on Sept. 19, 20 and 21. It was now the 20th.

We knew now that the following day—perhaps even early in the morning—Emese's Hungarian national dance troupe would fly back through the Iron Curtain and we would have lost our dangerous game of cat-and-mouse.

We were booyed only by the hard-won knowledge that we knew where the troupe was quartered—in the College Neederlain, a high, walled dormitory in a cluster of such buildings in the ferrity sector on the outskirts of Paris.

Our ears sharing the telephone receiver, we placed a call to the dormitory.

A French voice answered. I asked for Emese Szklenkay "with the Hungarian national dancers." There was a long pause.

Then a man spoke sharply in Hungarian. Dinka picked up the conversation smoothly and said he was an old friend of Emese's family, "just passing through" Paris. He gave the name "Pityu," a family nickname which Emese would recognize. The gruff voice said he could not carry a message to the dormitory's quarters. Dinka asked if he could come to the dormitory. The man did not object, but when by long by you would were fearful.

At 8:30 a.m., Dinka walked boldly into the College Neederlains' dark, cold lobby, and found two men in civilian clothes were dancers, speaking Hungarian. He got by to chat and suddenly there was Emese, walking toward him with outstretched arms, a smile of recognition.

She embraced him warmly—just right for an old friend of the family. The young men asked them to sit down. Dinka didn't trust the young men. He suspected that they were to be watched. But he talked calmly, and finally, to allay suspicion, Emese stooped in the iron gate.

At exactly 10:30 that morning, the old station wagon, open my door at the Hotel Castiglione, and said:

"This is Emese."

From my hotel, it was a five-minute walk to the Paris headquarters of the Resistance Internationale (police headquarters).

I told the authorities that Emese wished to defect to political asylum. There were papers to be signed. Mme. Pasch's signature was magnificently co-operative.

Secrete agents drove us to the United States Embassy. There were more forms.

But an official deadline continued Friday—a call at the United Nations refugee and migration office. Then a visit to the Roman Catholic Relief Service, Emese's resettlement agency, a medical examination.

I made reservations for Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pasch's flight 119 leaving for New York at 2:30 p.m. Sept. 21.

That evening, an inconspicuous grey sedan with two Surete agents stopped at the hotel. Dinka, the girl and I got in the back seat.

The big jet was waiting at Orly Airport.

Then they were gone. And because it seemed wise, I caught a plane for Rome.

Next: A peculiar twist of fate.

New Democrats Can Act as They See Fit

OTTAWA (CP)—If the public thinks of a dame as a broad or a broad as a dame, politicians have their special appeal to the voters on those terms.

Without any disrespect intended to the fair sex, David Lewis, New Democratic vice-president and MP for the Toronto constituency of York South, used the descriptive phrases Sunday night to illustrate that his party's new preoccupation with communicating its image to the voter.

The occasion was a press conference discussion of decisions at a two-day meeting of the party's federal council to improve its public image and enliven the organization to be ready for an early federal election.

"It's like this," said Mr. Lewis in discussing the party's efforts to communicate with the voter. "I don't know whether you call a dame a broad or a broad a dame but we want to be sure we're using the right word."

'OUT OF DATE'

"And if you call her a slick chick, you're definitely out of date," interjected national leader T. C. Douglas who was taking time from his campaign in the Oct. 23 by-election in Burnaby - Coquitlam in British Columbia to attend the opening of Parliament and the party's government council.

The party's new look at itself included a study of voter and its resolve to improve organization by having a series of organization and election schools to train key workers across from a critical examination of its efforts in the June 18 general election.

At the same time, the council determined to put its next election campaign on a more expert basis than it has in the past. Hence the decision to establish training schools.

At the same time, the council decided that "because of the possibility of an early election," local constituencies should begin immediately to nominate candidates and set up campaign machinery.

GET CARTE BLANCHE

The council gave the 18 New Democratic MPs carte blanche to act as they see fit in showdown votes in the Commons where three opposition groups outnumber the Progressive Conservative government supporters 146 to 116.

Would the NDP members join with the Liberals in voting nonconfidence in the government?

"The decision will be made in the light of all the circumstances," replied House Leader T. H. W. Herridge, MP for Kootenay West, indicating that members are waiting to see what elaboration Prime Minister Diefenbaker will make today of the program outlined in Thursday's speech from the throne.

United States Will Give Support to Defence Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has decided to throw strong support behind Latin American moves for creation of a Caribbean defence organization to reinforce military protection against growing Communist power in Cuba.

Formation of a new defence pact, probably embracing 10 nations, is expected to be the central issue up for discussion in the meeting here Tuesday and Wednesday of foreign ministers of the Organization of American States. U.S. officials said all the countries now active in the OAS—Cuba is an outcast—will be represented.

U.S. administration authorities are reported encouraged by soundings on the Caribbean defence pact concept made in New York this week by State Secretary Rusk.

Rusk is said to have found widespread interest in new steps to deal with the continuing buildup of Soviet military might in Cuba in support of Premier Castro.

COULD TAKE ACTION

Formation of a subordinate OAS group of Cuba's neighbors, authorities here believe, would provide an international agency for taking collective action under the general umbrella of the OAS. More immediately it would encourage creation of new steps to deal with the continuing buildup of Soviet military might in Cuba in support of Premier Castro.

Sect Members Throw Gloom To Their Goal

HOPE, B.C. (CP) — British Columbia's Freedomite Doukhobors became trekkers again this weekend, moving 80 miles from Princeton into the village at the head of the Fraser Valley.

It will be a month Tuesday since the Freedomites left their homes in the Kootenay, 300 miles to the east, after announcing their intention of migrating to Agassiz, where the Freedomite terrorists are held in Mountain Prison.

The Doukhobors have marched and been shuttled westward in cars. Long stops were made near Nelson and at Bromley Park, a government campsite east of Princeton.

About 400 of the 1,000 - odd Bromley camp number arrived Thursday and the rest were expected to follow as quickly as cars could carry them in.

AT PARK

The Doukhobors are staying in Coquihalla Park, a village-owned site.

Paul Scherie, chairman of the Freedomitarian, said earlier the Sons could use the site for two days before they moved on to Agassiz. He added that the group is not likely to move until Wednesday at the earliest.

Agassiz is a part of Kent municipality, which passed an emergency bylaw two weeks ago saying the Freedomites couldn't enter Agassiz, because it is the past record of violence constituted a hazard. There was no bylaw when a Bromley camp, any, will be made to prevent the Sons from entering.

Is Big Increase In Cremation

KITCHENER (CP) — Cremation is becoming more popular in Ontario, Fred D. Clark, of Toronto, oldest original member of the Ontario Cemeteries Association said Sunday at the association's 50th anniversary.

Twenty years ago there were only five cremations a year in Toronto, he said. This year there will be around 1,200. The trend was even stronger on the west coast.

He said municipalities owe it to their citizens to provide crematorium services because cremation costs much less than burial and land conservation is becoming increasingly important.

61 Fatalities Across Canada During Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidental deaths took a heavy toll in Canada during the weekend.

By midnight Sunday the death toll had risen to 61, almost as many as on a normal three-day holiday weekend.

Road accidents claimed 44 lives, five persons were killed in shooting mishaps and nine drowned Eight persons died in fires, including a mother and her four children who perished when flames swept their home at St. Leo, Que.

In Manitoba a farmer suffocated when he was buried under tons of wheat after a grain elevator collapsed.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times to midnight Sunday shows no provincial death toll was recorded.

There were 14 fatalities in Quebec, 13 in Ontario and seven in Manitoba. Accidents claimed seven lives in each of British Columbia and Saskatchewan, five in Alberta, three in Newfoundland, two in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and one in Prince Edward Island.

FIRE IN FOUR

Three persons died in shooting accidents in Manitoba and one each in Saskatchewan and Quebec. Ontario reported three drownings, British Columbia two and Quebec one.

Six of the deaths were in Quebec, the other two in Ontario.

The roundup does not include industrial accidents known outsides or private homes.

Livestock Withholding Action Causing Bitterness Among Western Farmers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Bitter quarrels have flared among midwestern United States farmers this fall.

Neighbor has turned on neighbor. Fences have been cut. Homes have been damaged. Trucks have been fired on. Relatives aren't speaking.

The NFO is an organization with voluntary membership, founded seven years ago when farmers were getting only 12 cents a pound for hogs, it now has units in 16 states.

After years of building its strength, the NFO a month ago began keeping cattle, hogs and sheep off the markets in an attempt to boost and stabilize farmers' income.

What has been accomplished? Opinions vary.

Most NFO officials and members say they still believe they can stabilize their income-long-term contracts with processors calling for higher prices for farm products. They feel action to hold milk off the market this week to increase the effect of the holding action.

But some NFO members, fed up with mortgage payments, school costs, and day-to-day bills, are wavering.

And packing plant officials and farmers who have not joined the NFO say they think it was doomed to failure before it was launched.

Some members of the midwest farm group are unhappy that they have been shut out. Other members say stronger measures are needed to make farmers withhold from livestock at home.

The holding action was most effective in the first and third weeks. Only 1,000 packing plant workers were idle in Iowa because of a shortage of livestock. Most have been called rehired. Prices in recent days dropped to those paid before the holding action started Sept. 5, and receipts have been climbing to near-normal levels.

Gren Lee Staley, president of the NFO and a driving force, says that although recovery is numerically are near normal, packers and processors are buying animals that are not ready for market in order to fill demands for meat.

Packing plant officials say there are plenty of marketable animals available. Harry Ellis of Rath Packing Company at Waterloo, Iowa, says "we are getting all the animals we want."

"So are we," says R. D. Hallcomb, manager of the Swift and Company packing plant at Marshalltown, Iowa. "But we won't hold any grudges when NFO farmers again decide to sell livestock to us.

"I think, however, their proposals are rather unrealistic. The farmers just can't get together. Some will join the NFO, and others won't because they want their independence."

The NFO's contract with its members call for them to market all their products through the NFO if and when the NFO gets contracts with processors. Members standing outside the NFO would pay 10 per cent penalty on their gross sales.

On products marketed by the NFO, the processor would withhold 10 per cent of the sale price and turn it over to the NFO as the member's dues.

"That one per cent sounds pretty high to me, too," says Dwight Hart, 50, an NFO member south of Truro, Iowa, "but if we could get contracts with processors and be sure of a steady price, it would be worth it."

Hart admits he is feeling a financial pinch and adds:

"I've got hogs ready to sell. I don't know how long I can keep them and I'm broke."

The number of NFO members is a closely guarded secret, but estimates range from 75,000 to 250,000 members, who pay $25 per year dues.

Staley says NFO members control 6% to 30 per cent of total U.S. agricultural production.

Staley says the NFO does not want force or violence, to keep livestock off the market or to persuade farmers to join. But he says the holding action started, however, many incidents have been reported. Bottles have been tossed through windshields and tires of livestock trucks have been shot. Most of the violence took place in northern Missouri.

Soviet Writers' Union Attacks Those Trying to Break Up Love Affair

MOSCOW (Reuters) — "High-minded" Soviet citizens who tried to break up a hospital love affair by putting the woman involved on trial at a meeting have been attacked themselves by the Literafurnaya Gazeta, organ of the Soviet Writers' Union.

In a recent issue it told the story of a young doctor named Valery who separated from his wife after quarrels and went to work in a hospital at Nikolayev in the Ukraine.

There he fell in love with a woman doctor named Galina and told her about his marriage. The couple began living together and, the article by Yuri Scherbak said, Galina immediately was dubbed his "mistress."

Valery sought an official divorce, but instead a hospital meeting was held "at which were present not only members of the Young Communist League but dozens of sensation lovers."

'PUT ON TRIAL'

Galina, who was "put on trial," was asked questions such as: "how dare they have you living together" and "have you had a love affair with a married man before?"

The "moralists covered the young woman with filth," the newspaper said.

The meeting expelled Galina from the Young Communist League and recommended her banishment from the city. But these efforts failed to break up the love affair — the couple moved to another city.

The article asked who had given the "righteous citizens" the absurd idea that "a public meeting or administrative conference could return a husband to his wife, or could re-awaken a feeling in a forever."

Such people "know in advance how many times a person ought to love and how many times he ought to marry."

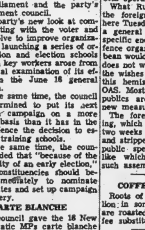
Soviet law, the article declared, has no limit to human tragedies. But beyond the limits of law lay "intimate personal relations where no one has the right to intrude rudely."

Boy Missing From Home For a Month

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police said here Saturday they are conducting a province-wide search for Geoffrey Edward Lowes, 14, who disappeared from his home at Stoney Creek, near Hamilton, a month ago.

Insp. Henry Sayers of the Criminal Investigation Branch said the youth took a sleeping bag and left his home on Aug. 25, shortly after returning from a trip to Europe with the Saltfleet District High School band.

Police parents said they were puzzled by the boy's disappearance. They have had been no family quarrels, and he appeared happy.



The youth—170 pounds and slightly more than six feet tall —has medium brown hair and a fair complexion. When he left home he was wearing a brown sports coat, gray checked trousers and white shirt.

COMPOSER RECOVERING

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Meredith Willson, 60, composer-conductor of radio, stage and movies, is reported recovering satisfactorily after an emergency appendectomy.

Premier Lesage Claims Control by Alien Trusts Is Key Election Issue

MONTREAL (CP)—Premier Jean Lesage said Sunday control by alien trusts is the key election issue in the Nov. 14 Quebec election is whether the people of Quebec or "a few financiers" will control the province's economy.

He told a meeting of Liberal supporters gathered at a $50-a-plate Liberal dinner that the days of "economic colonialism" are coming to an end in Quebec.

"For the first time in our history," Mr. Lesage said, "the people of Quebec are in a position to become masters in their own house."

To achieve this goal, it would be necessary to place all production and distribution of electric power in Quebec under public ownership.

The Liberal government, elected only two years ago after 16 consecutive years of Union Nationale administration, has pledged to take its existence "on this vital question."

CHALLENGES UN LEADER

Referring several times to Daniel Johnson as "the leader imposed upon the Union Nationale," Mr. Lesage challenged him:

1. To say "categorically and without beating around the bush" where he stands on public ownership of electric power.

2. To explain how he participated, for his personal benefit, in the destruction of a public legacy in profiting from the sale of Hydro-Quebec's natural gas system to private interests."

This sale, to the Quebec Natural Gas Corporation, took place in 1957, A royal commission reported earlier that several ministers in the Union Nationalist government of the day, including Mr. Johnson, had interests in the private corporation.

3. To "disclose what sort of scholarship and what education his party is receiving to cantonize Quebec in favor of the private power companies?"

LEVESQUE COMMENTS

René Levesque, natural resources minister, spoke at the Liberal dinner in Montreal Sunday night and said "the domination of private power companies is a "unique and unhealthy part" of French-Canadian nationalism.

Mr. Levesque said the exproprietion "is not the beginning of any general policy of nationalization (expropriation). If I felt that, I would not be here otherwise.

Meanwhile, Mr. Johnson had to cancel a weekend flying trip to the Magdalen Islands because of bad weather. He had announced earlier the trip would launch his campaign.

In another election development, Dr. Marcel Chaput resigned as the provincial agent of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale—a separatist movement—to emphasize he is running on a personal basis as a candidate in Montreal Bourget.

Liberal Leader Thinks 12 Grades Are Enough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader John Robarts said Saturday that French should be taught in Ontario elementary schools.

But the province gives students only a nodding acquaintance with it after a meeting sponsored by the Peterborough Women's Liberal Association.

Mr. Wintermeyer also said the Ontario school system needs a complete overhaul and it is time the "double standard" of education in the province is equality of opportunity.

He suggested that in rural area does not have the same chance of a university education as those who live in the city, he said.

He suggested there should be an Ontario education research institution to study all phases of education.

The Liberal leader also contended that the present 13 grades could be reduced to 12 with no loss of content.

Sir Winston Marks Diamond Jubilee as MP

LONDON (CP)—Sir Winston Churchill today marks his diamond jubilee as a member of Parliament with no sign of abdication the former prime minister intends to quit after 60 years.

Churchill first entered Parliament Oct. 1, 1900, as a Conservative member for the Lancashire cotton spinning town of Oldham. Later he became a Liberal and represented Northwest Manchester before returning to the Conservatives and becoming MP for Epping.

Commenting on the switches in politics, he once said: "Anyone can say that it takes a certain amount of ingenuity to retire."

He was defeated in Dundee in 1922 and was out of Parliament for two years before he was returned for Epping. In 1945 this Essex constituency was dissolved and he continues to sit for the Woodford part of it.

There has been no hint that Churchill, who will be 88 Nov. 30, intends to retire from the House of Commons he loves so much. In recent years his visits to the chamber have become rare as he has not returned since he suffered a big loss in a fall several months ago.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

This could be the year of the Great Omission.

It could mark the first gap in city OHA competition since the turn of the century.

In fact a sports patriarch of the city who remembers the troops singing "The Girl I Left Behind Me" as they marched over to the South African casper, said the first Belleville club to play OHA was formed in 1899.

"If we do not enter a team in the Eastern Junior 'B' League," he said, "I think it will be the first time we have not been in organized hockey since that year. If there were omissions in war times I do not recall them."

The records proved he was right. Belleville's first OHA squad was organized for the 1899-1900 season and established quite a record. It was entered in the Ontario Intermediate series, won its group and wrenched the finals against London. It was beaten 2-1 for the championship.

And ask your grandpappies if they remember the club. It was seven-man hockey and on our side that year were: goal, Winchester; Wallace, point; Dubois, cover; Young, Emory, Meiklejohn and Marks, forwards.

Since that time the Old Lady of the Moira has run the gamut of the great winter sport. She has reared teams of every category from junior to senior "A". She has plummeted to the depths and risen to the heights of world glory. She has been praised and castigated.

Her hockey name is recorded in the archives of three-score years. There is not a blemish on her hockey escutcheon.

And despite the cloud of financial aftermath, nothing can take away the glory that was hers in Prague in March, 1959, when a handful of us saw the Red Ensign flutter aloft in token of world supremacy.

What we did not know as we quaffed the champagne of victory from the world trophy in the plush ballroom of the Hotel Jalta on Wenceslas Square was that senior hockey here had completed a cycle.

In fact senior "A" hockey as represented in such clubs as the McFarlands, Whitby Dunlops and the famous Kitchener Dutchmen, had, as subsequent events proved, reached the end of the trail.

The day of the Golden Era had ended. Self-inflicted wounds from the dagger of out-pricing proved fatal. And Ontario knew it. Hockey in general felt the effects of a reaction on the part of fandom. Attendance fell off to the extent where several clubs were forced to fold.

Attempts at resurrection resulted in the OHA forming a senior division. The "A" category was dropped. In some places top intermediate "A" clubs were brought up to the new division. This season another attempt has been made to install senior "A" hockey. Those in charge claim it will be a success. They are bold in their predictions. "They have developed the salary system. They have faith in fan reaction.

Here in Belleville we are, to use a sports cliche, back at scratch. Failure of fan support last season halted plans for an intermediate club this year. The McFarland sponsor has refused the support of the Junior "B" club. At the moment for the first time in a half a century we are not represented in organized upper brackets hockey.

It seems that the survival of hockey here rests squarely on the shoulders of the fans, and other supporters. Four or more community and hockeymindedmen and organizations have sponsored a new-born City Hockey League. Efforts are being made by the Booster Club to keep junior "B" hockey alive.

Alderman Bill Loewen, chairman of the Arena Commission, has assured hockey of his full support.

The City Hockey League is well organized with a strong executive. It meets tonight at Recreation Centre, where it will discuss several important matters. Consensus of fandom indicates the new league will prove popular.

Nor should we allow junior "B" hockey to die. The Booster Club is to be commended for its efforts and deserves the full support of fandom and those who can help it in other ways. There is plenty of room for both hockey outlets!

The box-office produces the life blood of all public sports organizations. Without it, they fade away and die.

Dodgers, Giants Finish In Dead Heat

Three-Game Playoff

"I knew it was gone," said Mays, smiling. Willie Mays.

"Damn it, damn it," said defeated Johnny Podres.

That summed up the feelings of the players Sunday at the two focal points of major league baseball — in San Francisco, where the Giants won, and in Los Angeles, where the Dodgers lost. The combination brought about the fourth pennant playoff in National League annals.

Mays led off in the eighth with Houston and San Francisco tied 1-1, and slammed a one-strike pitch over the left field fence for his 47th homer and a 2-1 Giants' victory.

Podres, who had a two-hit shutout with one out in the eighth, served up a pitch to Gene Oliver, and the St. Louis catcher hit it into the lower left field stands for a homer that carried the Cardinals to a 1-0 triumph over the Dodgers.

A three-game playoff begins today in San Francisco. The World Series, with the American League champion New York Yankees furnishing the opposition, starts Thursday.

BLANK THE PHILLIES

In the other closing NL games Sunday, John Tsitouris' five-hitter led Cincinnati Reds to a 4-0 victory over Philadelphia Phillies, Hank Aaron's two-run single gave Milwaukee Braves 4-3 on Dick Cecil's defensive double and Chicago Cubs pulled off a triple play in a 5-4 decision over New York Mets.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox belted the Yankees 8-4, Minnesota Twins blanked Baltimore Orioles 1-0 behind Camilo Pascual's three-hitter, Detroit Tigers whipped Kansas City Athletics 5-1, Cleveland Indians defeated Los Angeles Angels twice 4-3 and 6-1, and Washington Senators and Boston Red Sox split, each taking a 5-1 decision.

On Saturday the Giant split with the Colts, winning 11-5 and losing 4-2 while the Cardinals blanked the Dodgers 3-0. Milwaukee downed Pittsburgh 7-3 and the Mets ended E. J. Miller's 15-game personal losing streak by edging Chicago 2-1.

In the American League the Yankees topped the White Sox 8-6, the Angels split with Cleveland, winning 4-1 and losing 5-1, the Twins overpowered Baltimore 8-1, Detroit edged Kansas City 3-2 and a Washington-Boston doubleheader was cancelled because of rain.

"I hit it good," said Mays, of the shot that tied it up for the Giants. "I don't know if that was my biggest homer ever—or not."

Podres was sure.

LOSES 'BEST' GAME

"This was the best game I had pitched in my life. Just one blankety blank pitch and I get beat."

Mays' homer came off Houston starter Dick Farrell (10-20), who had been touched for Ed Bailey's 17th homer in the fourth inning that sent the Giants out to a 1-0 lead. The Colts tied it in the sixth against Billy O'Dell on singles by Roman Mejias, Bob Aspromonte and Jim Pendleton. O'Dell left for a pinch hitter in the seventh and Stu Miller (5-5) received credit for the victory with no-hit relief over the final two innings.

At Los Angeles Cards' starter Curt Simmons (10-10) allowed only five hits, barring the second straight St. Louis shutout against the Dodgers. Podres (15-13) had given up only the two hits and hadn't permitted a runner past first base when Oliver connected for the clincher.

The Reds backed the pitching of Tsitouris with home runs by Jerry Lynch and Gordy Coleman to beat the Phillies and Art Mahaffey (9-14). The Pirates rode Groat's eighth inning bases-loaded double to their victory over the Braves and the Cubs turned back the Mets for Bob Buhl (12-14) with the aid of the key eighth inning triple play.

Mickey Mantle went 2-for-3 for the Yankees, but lost his bid to overtake Pete Rozmeik of Boston for the AL batting title when Runnels was forced to sit out the Red Sox games with the flu. Runnels wound up at .326 to Mantle's .321.

Colonels Grab 3-2 Edge

LOUISVILLE, Kentucky (AP) Louisville Colonels tabbed reliable Fred (Chi Chi) Olivo to pitch against Atlanta Crackers tonight when the Colonels seek to wrap up the 1962 Little World Series.

The Colonels took a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series Sunday. Danny Schneider garnered home runs in the first game Louisville a 2-1 victory. It was a bases-loaded situation when Jerry Hill Roof sent a drive deep to left center. Schneider, on first as a pinch runner, streaked in from third.

On Saturday the Crackers got back into the series with a 4-2 victory as Ray Sadecki pitched his way in and out of jams and drove in a run for his second victory of the set.

Rocket Wins At Mosport

ORONO, Ont. (CP)—Gerald Rocket of Philadelphia captured the Canadian sports car racing championship for 250-cc production-type machines at Mosport Park, 40 miles east of Toronto.

Rocket also won the unlimited section for motorcycles of 500 cc. or more. He won over 11 other competitors.

Ron Rouillard of Ville Les Saules, Que., took the Junior National Open championship.

More than 125 drivers from 10 United States and Canada took 119 part in the eight-race program. Spills were plentiful on the rain-slicked, 2.5-mile track, but there were no serious injuries.

Kelso Takes Rich Race From Jaipur

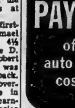
Kelso earned $74,800 in covering the 1¼-mile distance in 2:03 1-5. This rocketed his earnings to $865,595 on 30 victories in 38 starts. The Woodward was his 14th stakes decision.

The winner paid $3.80, $2.50 and $2.40, Jaipur paid $2.80 and $2.60 for his runner-up spot and Guadalcanal returned $2.70.

Kidd Wins 8-Mile Race

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Bruce Kidd of Toronto's East York Track Club won the annual senior eight-mile road race of the Niagara District Grape and Wine Festival here Saturday.



Kidd completed the run in 40 minutes, 40 seconds—11 seconds ahead of Ken Ellis of Toronto. Toronto Olympic Club's John McLean was third, David Royle of University of Western Ontario fourth, and Jim Moore of Toronto Olympic fifth.

Bill Millward of St. Catharines Civitan Track Club took the 4-mile Junior race with a time of 13 minutes, 16 seconds. Dave Morris of Ridley College, St. Catharines, was second, while another host city runner, John Beresma, completed St. Catharines' sweep of the event by finishing third.

Riders Canter To Win Over Ti-Cats

OTTAWA (CP) — Smarting from three straight losses, Ottawa Rough Riders came bounding out of their slump Saturday, crunched through Hamilton Tiger-Cat defences, and walloped the visitors 27-0 to ease their way to within one point of first place in the Eastern Football Conference.

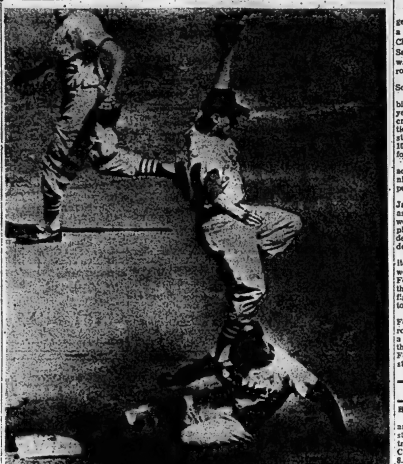
To the 17,294 fans, it was a decidedly different affair than the season's opener here when Riders took a whacking from the charged-up Ticats. This time, without the experienced hands of Bernie Faloney to pass out the ball, the Hamilton team seldom got within shouting distance of Ottawa's goal posts.

On the other hand, Rough Riders played throughout as though they were trailing in the last quarter.

When Canadian quarterback Russ Jackson took the first snap of the game, he zipped a pass down the field that had touchdown written all over it—if Ron Stewart could have grasped it. That was only the start.

Ottawa didn't give up possession of the ball until they marched down the field in 10 plays to score the first touchdown. Len Chandler was sitting pretty in the end zone to snare the pass.

In the next quarter Millard Flemming took a pass from Jackson on a gallop that ate up 50 yds. Then Jackson punched his way through the shaky Ticat defences for the second major.



Again in the third quarter, Jackson slipped through from the Hamilton 15-yard line for another touchdown. And in the final frame, Flemming polished off the touchdown parade with his charge into the end zone.

Rough Riders piled up 25 first downs compared with Hamilton's 10. They gained 287 yards rushing against Hamilton's 115, and the home team piled up 170 yards in the air compared with Hamilton's 122.

Ticats lost 121 yards in 13 penalty calls, compared with Riders 30 yards in three calls.

Canadian Frank Cosentino started at quarter for the visitors, and he returned later in the game when import Joe Zuger also failed to get the Ti-cats on the march in the second quarter.

Dave Thelen led Ottawa's rushing with 68 yards in 14 carries. Cosentino gained 40 yards on five carries for Hamilton.

SEARCH FOR TOMB

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Prof Julio Ribamonti of Venezuela's Caracas University has launched a search for the tomb of Moses.

By whipping first-place Hamilton, Ottawa now has 10 points in the Eastern Conference standings, one point behind Ticats. Montreal has six points, four more than one-win Toronto.

Fernandez Wins Over Geo. Scott

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Angelino's Jorge Fernandez won a unanimous decision over Charley Scott of Philadelphia Saturday night in a brawl that was a slugfest for the full 10 rounds.

Fernandez weighed 150½ and Scott 149½.

Fernandez, who had his 27th birthday Friday, and the 26-year-old Scott brought the small crowd in the Las Vegas Convention Centre to its feet as they staged a wild exchange in the 10th round, both going all-out for a knockout.

Fernandez had the game Philadelphian in distress in the ninth round but he could never put Scott on the deck.

Co-promoters Mel Greb and Jack Doyle announced as soon as the fight was over that they would offer welterweight champion Emile Griffith $50,000 to defend his title against Fernandez in this same arena Dec. 8.

Fernandez was a 5-to-1 favorite and many thought Scott would never last the distance. Fernandez has a record of more than 50 knockouts in his 82 fights but Scott was too durable to go down.

Will Send Oarsmen To Brazil

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The Canadian Association of Amateur oarsmen reversed a previous stand not to participate in the 1963 Pan-American Games and decided Saturday to send a 15-man rowing team to Sao Paulo, Brazil, next spring.

The meeting named the University of British Columbia eight, four and pair, which will compete in the British Empire Games, as its Pan-American sweep oar competitors.

The Toronto Argonaut entry of Bart Hildebrand and Leif Gottfredson, recommended by the CAAO for the British Empire Games in Perth, Australia, but turned down by the B.E. Games Association, will also be entered in the double sculling competition in Brazil.

Laurie West, coach at UBC, will coach the Canadian squad while John Murray of Kingston, veteran secretary of the CAAO, was named manager.

The 1963 Pan-American Games will be from April 20 to May 5.

STUDY POISONINGS

PADUA, Italy (AP)—Authorities sought Sunday to trace the cause of food poisoning that sent 75 children to hospital. Italy is in the midst of a major food scandal with the government trying to stamp out adulterations which have turned up in almost every type of food on the market.

How long since you counted up the savings in your Life Insurance?

You probably know the exact amount of family protection that your life insurance represents. But how about the savings in your life and endowment policies?

How much do these total right now? How much will they build up to in the next five years? In ten years? How much by the time you reach age 55, or 60, or 65?

A good many people find, when they look up their cash values, that the amount to their credit—present and prospective—is considerably higher than they expected.

In your permanent life insurance, you have an unexcelled form of savings for the future. Your money is safe—completely safe. You can provide that, even though you should be disabled, your savings will continue to build up, your premiums will be waived, and you will have an income besides. At retirement, you can arrange for paid up protection for life—or you can use all, or part, of your accumulation to provide you with an income that you can never outlive. And at every step of the way, you have guarantees of the amounts at your credit.

You can't have too much of this excellent combination of protection and savings. Are you sure you have enough for both purposes—right now?

Sports Snapshots

Canadian Press Sports Editor

Figure skaters are inclined to agree with a young Toronto redhead who says that roller skating is a little tougher to do than figure skating. Beverly Bowers has the credentials to back up her statement. She does both.

The 18-year-old freckle-faced high school student is the reigning North American and world women's roller skating champion. She's now route to Australia to represent Canada in the 10-country world championships at Brisbane, Oct. 10-14.

"We go through much the same routine as figure skaters," Beverley said in an interview a few hours before she departed for Australia. "Really, it's figure skating on boards except that it's harder because figure skaters can dig into the ice before and after their jumps while we haven't anything to dig into. The surface is harder."

YEAR-ROUND SPORT

The five-foot-five, 105-pound Miss Bowers has won 102 cups and medals in a 13-year competitive career that started when her mother decided the youngster had to do something to keep out of mischief. "Ice skating took up only four or five months a year and my mother said I should do something constructive with all the energy I had, so she decided on roller skating. It would keep me busy 12 months a year."

As a result—and like figure skaters who want to make a career of their sport in their formative years — Beverley hasn't had a normal social life. "I haven't had much time to get acquainted with kids," she said. "I go to very few dances. And I haven't a steady boy friend."

She practises four hours every day throughout the year. She has logged nearly half a million miles going to meets, mainly in the United States because there isn't a national championship in Canada.

TRAVEL EXPENSIVE

It has cost her parents a considerable sum to keep her going. Her father, a mechanical engineer, has spent an estimated $18,000 in 12 years sending her to championships and paying $2.50 for 30-minute lessons from a professional in Pennsylvania. "I had to go to the U.S. because I couldn't get the professional tuition in Canada."

The cost of sending Beverley and her mother — who is her coach—to Australia is $2,200. She received $500 from a brewery (O'Keefe), private donations and her father has borrowed $500 from a bank to make up the rest.

Skates cost up to $125 a pair and Beverley says she was a bit lucky here. Her dad made her a pair in 1957 and she's been using them since.

She started skating when she was four years old, went into competition at six. She hit the big time in 1953 when she entered the North American championships.

That year she won the juvenile girls' title, was second in the junior girls' in 1956, was second in the senior ladies' in 1960 and reached the top in 1961 and successfully defended her championship this year.

Her future in the sporty looks bright. "Teaching is my only outlook," she says. "There used to be a professional show, much like the one we have in figure skating, but that folded."

Meantime, she hopes that business men in Canada "can be educated to the point where they will promote the sport and build roller - skating arenas. Right now, it seems that nobody wants to take that chance."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Three horses came owling through the soft turf of New Woodbine's stretch in Saturday's 36th running of the $30,785 Cup and Saucer Stakes for two-year-olds. At the wire, Leslie Mahoney's Hop Hop was the winner by a length over R. and R. Stable's Prince Maple. Mike Della's Prince Bubi was half a length further back.

With Hugo Dittfach in the saddle, Hop Hop was one of the last to leave the starting gate. Dittfach brought Hop Hop through the field to be seventh turning for home. Then Dittfach started to work and his mount collected Prince Maple in the final yards. Windfields Farm's Regional Canebora finished eighth.

Hop Hop's a bay son of Chop Chop, is out of Calaria, a stakes winner in Ontario. He was bred by E. F. Taylor and the $29,286 winning share of the purse for this event brought his seasonal earnings up to $31,340.

Lions Blast Eskimos

Saskys Sneak Past Argos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The lower echelons are still stirring up trouble in what promises to be the closest battle in years in the Western Football Conference.

Saskatchewan Roughriders and British Columbia Lions took a turn in scrambling the standings Saturday in a race in which everybody still stands a good chance to make the playoffs.

The chief sufferers in their upsurge were Edmonton Eskimos, who went into the weekend in a third-place tie in the five-team standings and came out of it in the cellar.

The undermanned Eskimos took a 46-24 pounding from the Lions Saturday night, putting a damper on the festivities as 18,122 fans turned up to honor Rollie Miles, the retired Edmonton halfback.

Meanwhile, the Riders pulled out a last - minute squeaker, edging Toronto Argonauts 21-17 in an interlocking fixture with the tail-enders of the Eastern Conference.

PLAY ARGOS TONIGHT

The second - place Calgary Stampeders, who have won five games in a row and still only lead the Riders by two points, have a chance to widen the gap tonight as they take on the luckless Argos, who have won only one game in eight starts.

Rider halfback Ray Purdin completed an 80-yard pass-and-run play with quarterback Bob Ptacek on the last play of the game Saturday after Saskatchewan had trailed the visitors most of the way.

Earlier, a similar Ptacek-Purdin play had covered 60 yards to set up the first Rider touchdown by Bill Gray early in the first quarter. Then Tommy Joe Coffey was leading 10-1. Fullback Ferd Burke scored the other major and Reg Whitehouse added two converts and a single.

The Argos bottled up Saskatchewan's ground attack to a total of gain of 36 yards but were unable to cope with Ptacek in the air. The Rider quarterback completed 16 of his 21 passes for 323 yards.

Argonauts, normally a passing club, mustered their most effective ground offensive of the season, rolling for 212 yards with fullback Gerry McDougall doing most of the work. Quarterback Tobin Rote picked up 167 yards by completing 15 passes in 27 tries.

Veterans quarterback Joe Kapp took personal charge of B.C.'s demolition job on the Eskimos, passing for six touchdowns and going over for the seventh himself. Mack Burton and Tommy Larscheid each took a pair of his touchdown flutty, and Jim Carpalis and Willie Fleming cashed in on the offense. Vic Kristopaitis converted four.

Eskimos, trailing by 30 points before hitting the score-sheet, replied with touchdowns by Jim Waldon, Bob Waldon and Tony Kehrer, a single by Bob Walden and two converts by Ted Urness.

The Eskimos actually picked up 22 first downs to B.C.'s 20 but Kapp's passing told the story as he made good on 13 of 22 tries for 427 yards. Don Getty and Jim Walden, sharing Edmonton quarterbacking, picked up 200 yards by completing 13-at their 30 attempts. Lions went for 145 yards on the ground to Eskimos' 112.

B.C. also looked sharp defensively, picking off three Eskimo passes and recovering a fumble.

Apart from tonight's Toronto-Calgary game, everyone is idle until Saturday night when Winnipeg Blue Bombers, currently three points ahead of the pack, entertain the Lions while Calgary visits Edmonton.

Tony Lema Takes Vegas Golf

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—California's Tony Lema, whose happiest break came when his first round 75 was washed out by rain, won the fifth annual $30,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament Sunday with two fine subpar rounds.

The 28-year-old Lema shot 66 and 68 in the final 36 holes over the par-71 course for a total of 270 and a three-stroke margin over his nearest challenger, Don Januzzi.

Januzzi, who suffered an unfortunate one-stroke penalty in the morning round, had 67-70—273. Billy Casper Jr., finished third with 72-68—276 and Dave Hill was next with 67-72—277.

Lema picked up $2,800 for the tournament win, $1,000 for the low score in Sunday's two rounds and $625 for his efforts in the pro-amateur competition the first two days.

If Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs could replay last year's tanley Cup playoffs this week—guess who would be favored.

Black Hawks, rolling through the exhibition circuit as if they were the defending National Hockey League champions, chalked up their seventh straight wins this week-end.

Leafs, who dumped Chicago in the playoffs last season, were walloped 5-1 by Portland Buckaroos of the Western League Sunday night.

In the only games between NHL opponents, Chicago whipped the hapless Boston Bruins 4-2 at St. Catharines Saturday. Hawks recorded their eighth win in a league Buffalo Bisons 4-2 Sunday night at Buffalo.

Leafs had better luck Saturday when they staved off a third-period rally to down Seattle Totems of the WHL 7-4 at Seattle.

CANADIENS WIN TWO

In other games, Canadiens rapped Hull-Ottawa 9-2 in Eastern Professional League 9-1 Saturday at Shawinigan, Que., and shut out Quebec 3-0 in one of the AHL 3-0 Sunday at Quebec.

Bruins spoiled Syracuse Braves' debut in professional hockey with a 7-1 win over the new EPHL club at Syracuse Sunday.

Rangers drubbed Calgary Stampeders of the WHL 9-5 at Calgary Saturday—each they lost Bronco Horvath in the process; chalked up their seventh straight wins this week-end.

Doug Jones German Fight Draw

Jones, ranked No. 2 among the world's light heavyweight boxers, showed some brilliant fighting against the German who had been out of the ring for the last 11 months because of a leg injury.

There were no knockdowns. Jones weighed 181½ pounds, Schoeppner 177.

Canada Outdoors

By IRA DILTEDALE

HALIFAX (CP)—The weather in Nova Scotia this year has been good to deer, and hunters, innkeepers, guides and the government are looking for good hunting this fall.

In recent years the lands and forests department has taken a hard look at what the annual Oct. 15-Nov. 30 season means to Nova Scotia. It's big business, representing about $4,000,000 a year.

Clarence Mason, director of wildlife conservation, says this is the amount spent by hunters on guns, guides, accommodations, licences, special clothing, liquor and food and all the paraphernalia involved in a hunting excursion.

A few more seasons like last fall's could spell trouble, however. The total kill—about 14,000. This compared with an average of about 30,000 a year for the previous three or four years and a record 46,000 in 1954.

The problem seemed to lie chiefly in the weather.

The winter of 1960-61 was one of the worst since the white-tailed deer was introduced to Nova Scotia around 1900.

ROBBED OF WILL

Guides and hunters found the woods in some parts of the province strewn with the rotting bodies of deer.

Heavy snow and severe cold both take a toll of the white-tail—Nova Scotia's only species of deer—which was introduced to the province from the warmer New England states where it still abounds.

In deep, crusty snow, they have a hard time moving about the woods. Sometimes they starve within a few yards of food, have miscarriages or fall prey to wildcats or dogs which can travel over the crusted snow. Mr. Mason says that in severe cold they seem to lose their will to live.

Last winter was kinder with less snow and less cold weather. The spring and summer were better too. Continued wet weather has kept the woodland feeding grounds green and heavy, a fact gry from the shrubbery, brown growth of the unusually hot, dry summers of 1960 and 1961.

PLENTY THIS FALL

Reports from the far - flung hunting districts indicate deer are fat and fairly plentiful through not as plentiful as they were 15 to 20 years ago.

Wildlife experts are not worried about a gradual decline in the province's deer population since the Second World War. They say they don't think heavy hunting is responsible.

They attribute it to a natural law of nature—that after an animal is introduced to a new area he often multiplies faster than is good for him for a few years. The population declines, then levels off.

Mr. Mason figures the leveling off has begun in some areas of Nova Scotia, notably in the southwestern counties. In the rest of the province there are still many deer, he says, and in some parts of that island there is not enough food to go around.

This is part of a theory held by Donald Geddes, a wildlife conservationist who spends part of his time studying Nova Scotia's deer. From it comes this advice: If you want to be sure of a kill your best bet is to hunt Cape Breton Island, but if you don't mind a big drive try southwestern Nova Scotia where there is plenty of food for the smaller number.

The bag limit is two deer for Cape Breton and one for the mainland except for Yarmouth County where no deer hunting will be permitted.

Ohio State Matches Alabama

NEW YORK (AP)—Ohio State used everyone but the cheer leaders and everything but punt formation in an awesome display of power that matched Alabama's similar show in the first full weekend of U.S. college football action.

Ohio State used 62 players and never were forced to kick as they rolled 41-7 over North Carolina in the season opener, before a record home crowd of 84,009—the 24th consecutive Columbus, Ohio crowd over 80,000.

Alabama stomped Tulane 44-6 for its second straight and 30th without a loss Friday night.

Ambers Win Over Parsons Take Trophy

Trenton Ambers, Bay of Quinte Soccer League champions, won the Trenton Challenge Cup saturday, defeating Belleville Parsons Cleaners by 6-0 score.

Backed by the sensational play of Terry Clough in goal, the Ambers swept to a first half 3-0 lead and added three more in the second half.

Clough hurled back the Parsons' challenge on several occasions and was one of the main factors in the Ambers holding the opposition scoreless.

Saturday they added the Trenton Challenge Cup to the league championship, and the Belleville Charity Cup.

On Monday, October 8th starting four o'clock, the Ambers meet an all-star team selected from the Parsons Cleaners and Trenton RCAF at the Fair Grounds here.

Russian Beats Own Jump Mark

CP from AP-Reuters

MOSCOW—Valeri Brumel of Russia set a world high-jump record Saturday with a leap of two metres, 27 centimetres (just over seven feet, 5¼ inches), beating by one centimetre the mark he himself set last July.

Brumel set the old world mark of 2.26 metres (seven feet, five inches) at a Soviet-American track meet at Palo Alto, Calif.

Richardson Dethrones Greaves

GLACE BAY, N.S. (CP)—Blair Richardson of South Bar, N.S., battered Will Greaves for more than seven rounds Saturday night to win the Canadian middleweight boxing championship by a technical knockout before a boisterous crowd of 4,700.

Richardson used a crisp left jab and follow-up right crosses to down the champion on three occasions, once in the seventh and twice in the eighth. Referee Bobby Sexton halted the contested affair at 35 seconds of the eighth round, with Greaves prostrate in the centre of the ring.

"I'm getting tired of knocking down batters. It'll be nice to go drop some ducks for a change!"

This is the restyled 1963 Acadian Beaumont, convertible, one of 11 models built in Oshawa by General Motors of Canada. The new Acadian features many design and engineering improvements, including "air-washed" rocker panels to help prevent corrosion, positive crankcase ventilation and a Delcotron alternating current generator for longer battery life. Self-adjusting brakes and a 54-plate battery with three-year warranty are also standard equipment.

The six-cylinder engine develops 120 horsepower while the four-cylinder version produces 90 horsepower. Both engines are available with standard three-speed synchromesh transmission or optional Powerglide. A new aluminized longer-wearing muffler is a standard on all Acadians.

Shirley Booth Accustomed To Her Second Identity

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Shirley Booth, after a year, is accustomed to her second identity.

The other day Miss Booth, accompanied by this reporter, was attempting to cross busy Sunset Boulevard on the way from the film studio to a nearby restaurant. We leaped back onto the curb as a small car with Illinois license plates and jammed with people slowed around the corner. Its brakes squealed, the car stopped and the occupants beamed as they recognized an old friend.

"Hazel!" exclaimed a woman, passenger. "It's Hazel! Hello, Hazel, how are you?"

"Fine," replied Miss Booth heartily, "Just fine. Nice to see you all."

Later, over a chef's salad, Miss Booth talked about the woman named Hazel Burke, whom she loves dearly and whose identity in 12 short months has become hopelessly confused with her own.

SHOW IN TOP 10

"I had already the other night with two of my oldest friends and their daughter, whom I've known all her life, kept calling me 'Hazel.' It didn't bother me, but it drove her mother crazy. She finally said: 'Call her aunt Shirley' or even Miss Booth, but stop calling her Hazel.'

"But as far as I'm concerned, it pleases me that kids as well as adults like the show and love Hazel."

There were some who were surprised when "Hazel," the NBC comedy series about an indomitable domestic, quietly crept into television's top 10 shows. And there were some Booth admirers who felt it wasn't quite proper for a woman who is one of the country's greatest actresses to be playing the part.

But Miss Booth (who won a movie Oscar for her first motion picture part and an Emmy for her first television series) feels differently about it.

"It's sound drama," she said, "it highlights things that happen to everybody—cleaning a closet, trying on hats, not being invited to a party. It makes there everyday things—and the lives of the viewers experience them—seem more dramatic and they are more satisfied with life."

Miss Booth works hard to make "Hazel" come alive — as hard or harder than she ever did in a Broadway role. For nine months of the year she concentrates on the part. She lives in a four-room apartment in a Hollywood hotel and deliberately avoids the usual pop of buying a house, swimming pool and other responsibilities.

"I don't want to get interested in anything much more than my work out here," she said, "I want to concentrate on the part."

For company she has her two miniature French poodles. She indulges in a bit of needlepoint. She sees a small group of close friends. And she watches television a lot.

"If you're going to do this television thing, you must be your own audience," explained the blonde performer. "You must watch yourself closely, and always be on the lookout for mannerisms."

'Joggers' Clubs' Popular In Parts of New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Visitors to Auckland are constantly intrigued at the sight of athletes in shorts, singlet and sneakers dodging in and out among busy city traffic or pounding along suburban streets in groups.

They are even more surprised to note that many of the runners are far from young—in fact, a good many are portly, grey-haired businessmen.

The spectacle, indeed is possibly unique to New Zealand. What is more startling is the fact that some of these middle-aged runners now have acquired serious athletic ambitions and even taking up marathon running.

It all started when athletes and trainers by the noted Auckland coach Arthur Lydiard began winning world attention. Runners in his "stable" captured a string of world records from 800 metres to three miles, as well as Olympic and Empire Games medals.

An essential feature of the Lydiard technique is long-distance training on the roads to build up stamina. Some athletes cover more than 100 miles a week, including runs of more than 30 miles over a gruelling course through ranges on the outskirts of Auckland.

BENEFITS ALL

The success of the Lydiard methods brought attention to his claim that running would benefit anyone, whether teenage student or portly professional man. Lydiard insists that there is no risk of overtaxing strength in such runs.

The result has been the formation of "joggers' clubs" in various parts of Auckland. The clubs are not organized and are entirely informal. They consist merely of groups of men who get together to run in company —in parks or along the roads, or anywhere else convenient, morning, afternoon or evening.

One club consists of an importer, two dentists, a general practitioner and a prominent surgeon. Some joggers have become so pleased at the improvement in their physical condition that they have given up late nights and eat down on spirits.

Joggers go at their own speed and decide their own distance. Some run no more than a couple of miles around blocks near their homes. Others cover up to 30 miles, on the country and by serious athletes.

The latest development has been the transformation of joggers into competitive athletes. Seven of them, aged from 30 to 36, and not members of regular athletic clubs, have been picked for a major marathon contest to be held in Auckland in October.

Old Familiar Ingredients Seen in Gleason's Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Five new programs moved into their network positions during the weekend, ranging from a slapstick comedy series to Jack Webb's autobiography program.

Technically, Jackie Gleason's American Scene Magazine is a new show. Unhappily, the evidence on Saturday night's premiere indicates it will be a faithful but faint carbon of the old Gleason show.

All the old familiar ingredients were there — the pretty girl dancers and Jackie in an assortment of comedy roles. But there was a tired spoof of The Untouchables and a tiresome Honeymooners sketch with Jackie and Art Carney in a silly situation comedy connected with civilian defence.

The new Ray Rogers — Dale Evans variety hour, which premiered the same hour on ABC Saturday, was much more entertaining. It features some of the fights at the cattle Worlds Fair, some mild comedy and pleasant singing numbers with both Roy and Dale contributing surprisingly fine voices. It was a nice, warm family show.

COMEDY ENTERTAINS

"I'm Dickens . . . he's Fenster," a new ABC program on Friday, stars two engaging comedians, John Astin and Marty Ingels, and is unbibbited and ingenuous enough to be amusing.

Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, which moved into ABC's Saturday night schedule, looked like a pretty weak entry. The comedy was almost non-existent.

Jack Webb's first true story in his new CBS series was the heroic of a doctor—safe enough this season.

ABC's Closeup returned for another season Friday with a disturbing report on education in the Soviet Union.

The Lucy Show, premiere, CBS 8:30-9 EDT—Lucille Ball and Vivian Vance in a new comedy series;

Tyrone Guthrie to Open Theatre in Minneapolis

By BOB THOMAS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Next May 7 the Tyrone Guthrie theatre will open here as a gleaming showplace, billed as the best new hope for breathing life back into the semi-living American theatre.

It now is a jumble of scaffolding and cement forms. But the asymetrical theatre is taking shape. When finished, it will offer an example of how a progressive city, prodded by theatre zealots and stage producers might be able to rescue the legitimate theatre from its expense-account ghetto.

It all started a couple of years ago. Tyrone Guthrie, whose stature as a stage director matches his own size (six feet, five), grew weary of the overpriced hit-or-flop commercial theatre of New York City. Together with Broadway producer Oliver Rea, he expected a desire to start a grass-roots theatre in the United States along the lines of English repertory.

Sir Tyrone and Rea barnstormed the country for prospective cities. The choice narrowed down to three, far enough removed from Broadway and tryout towns: Minneapolis, Cleveland and Milwaukee.

Minneapolis won because: 1. It had a good record in boosting art and music; 2. Nearby University of Minnesota had a graduate drama school to provide a workshop group; Minneapolis and St. Paul boasted a ready audience of 28,000 college students.

Then there was the matter of money.

"Allen will come through," said the confident Guthrie.

Minn. did, with publishing heir John Cowles Jr. as president, the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre Foundation raised $1,600,000 from 3,500 local families. Guthrie signed on for three years at much less than his usual salary.

The first play will be Hamlet, starring the young southern actor George Grizzard of the road sensor in the film Advise and Consent. Guthrie and Rea are recruiting other actors in New York and Hollywood. Joanne Woodward and Diane Baker have been mentioned for Ophelia. Hume Cronyn, Jessica Tandy and Douglas Campbell haven't already joined the troupe.

The idea is to have a company of 25 professionals — 15 male, 10 female — to present four well-known plays in a 20-week period starting in May. This time span was chosen to take advantage of the 350,000 visitors to the twin cities during that time; also it is the slack period for television actors.

In Other Words He Was Fired

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gabe Paul, the general manager of Cleveland Indians, announced Sunday that the contract of Mel McGaha to manage the club would not be renewed for 1963.

Paul said McGaha, just finishing a disappointing freshman season as skipper of the Indians, "has been offered a job by another club and was granted permission to leave the Indians today to confer with officials of that club."

Paul did not identify the other team.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Nag and then everybody gets a "tired-out" feeling, and may be bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary condition caused by urinary irritation or bladder discomfort. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help stimulate the kidneys to relieve this condition which may allow annoying backache and tired feeling. Then you feel better, rest better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. Look for the blue box with the red band at all drug counters. You can depend on Dodd's.

Astrological Forecast

For October 2

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Check investment possibilities in both time and money. Gain indicated if you move to improve standard of living. Study read, and listen! You'll be glad you did.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Lunar aspect highlights independence, impatience. Take time to see beauty which exists around you. Avoid petty disturbances created by constant criticism. The grass is not greener on the other side!

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Promises made by "romantic figure" in your life should be taken with grain of salt. Don't react too much and you will not be disappointed. Pave your own path to success.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23): Favorably lunar aspect today encourages multiplication of activity. You can be confident and with good reason. Avoid self-deception. Take a chance on intuitive "hunch"!

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Finances in connection with security, property claim spotlight. Accept added responsibility. You earn respect of superiors by showing enthusiasm for job at hand.

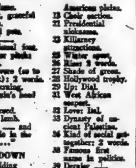
Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Make views known through personal contacts. Excellent for visits, short journeys, pursuit of hobbies. Be perceptive. Read between lines. Make your own intelligent, creative interpretations.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Stress ability to find real bargain. Settle for nothing but the best. But also demand your own price. Means you could be in position to dictate terms. You will win!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You win many concessions. Cycle high enough to bring you personal victory. Key is ability to accept graciously. Be firm but sympathetic. Tear down the old in order to rebuild.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Clear tendency to scatter forces. Combat this by taking time to enjoy what you do. By channeling efforts instead of spreading them, you arrive at correct goal.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Many of your desires could be fulfilled. Key is moderation. Means you get more if you soft-pedal demands. Let others come to you. Surprises are in evidence.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Stimulating conversation could provide needed information. Don't be shy about asking questions. Good for romance, expressing love. Accept advices offered by relatives.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Think beyond temporary inconveniences. Be resourceful. Realize that your own ambitions can best profit. But patience, determination are required. Plus day indicated.

If today is your birthday . . . you possess artistic ability, including the ability to appreciate creative efforts which others display. This month fine for accomplishing major goal.

General Tendencies: Persons born in November in public eye. On international front, nations express desire for peace but "fear their muscles."

Britain's Labor Party Against Common Market

By DOUG MARSHALL

BRIGHTON, England (CP)—Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell has pushed Britain's Labor party out of the race to join Common Market territory. The move came not with a bang but with an uneasy whimper.

On the eve of the party's annual conference the national executive produced, after 10 hours of wrangling, a 5,000-word policy statement. It endorses Gaitskell's position and will almost certainly receive strong support from the 1,235 delegates to the five-day gathering here.

The policy declaration says the present terms negotiated Britain's entry into Europe are inadequate. It adds that the party would approve entry if better terms were forthcoming but if not, Britain should step out.

In broad terms this has been Gaitskell's position since he began with Commonwealth labor leaders just before the recent Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

The statement makes no outright demand for a general election on the Common Market issue. But it is supposed to mean that since there is little hope for better terms and full particulars of their claim. Immediately after the said date, the estate will be distributed, having regard only to the claims of which notice has been received.

DATED this 28th day of September, 1962.

Rusk Rules Out Any Possible U.S.-Soviet Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Rusk ruled out Sunday night any possibility of a U.S.-Soviet deal by the Russian intervention in Cuba for Western concessions on Berlin or on American bases abroad.

"You cannot support freedom in one part of the world bordering freedom in another," Rusk said in a prerecorded television interview.

"In any event, we have special commitments here in the hemisphere under our hemisphere charter, and we cannot connect in negotiations or in trades the problem of Cuba with the defence of freedom in other places."

His remarks were made in response to a question about some possibility of a Soviet deal. There has been speculation in congressional and diplomatic quarters here and in New York that the Soviet government might try to use its position in Cuba to pry U.S. concessions on West Berlin.

Earlier, President Kennedy and Lord Home, the British foreign secretary, restated Sunday their countries' determination to stand firm in Berlin.

Kennedy and Lord Home expressed also their agreement on the "seriousness of developments in Cuba" and discussed methods of halting any further spread of communism in the Caribbean area.

Oshawa Man Found Drowned At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — An Oshawa man and his nine-year-old son drowned Sunday when their car plunged into Kingston harbor.

Dead are Robert Weir, 50, and his son, David, Mrs. Weir and a daughter were travelling with them but were not in the car when it went into the water.

Kingston taxi driver Earl Rutton said that a woman rushed up to him shortly before 8 p.m. crying that her husband and son were in the water.

He said he ran to the harbor and saw the car in the water, one of its directional lights still flashing. Two men in their undershirts were in the water, apparently trying to get the occupants out of the car.

The car and bodies were recovered soon after the accident. Police said cause of the accident is still unknown.

BATH SAN BANNED

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—People in a corporation-owned block of apartments here now can take their baths whenever they like. A 20-year-old ban prohibiting them from bathing on week nights was lifted after a councillor said the "antiquated regulation almost makes cleanliness a crime."

My Fair Lady Closes After 2,717 Shows

Cries of "More, more" and thunderous applause salted every big scene. And when the 2,717th performance of the long-set running musical in theatrical history was over, the audience rose to its feet and sang Auld Lang Syne along with the cast.

The play, putting to music the story of Pygmalion by the late George Bernard Shaw, first opened on Broadway March 15, 1956.

The show grossed a record $35,535,041 box office receipts and brought in millions more in the sale of recordings of the show's music and in royalties.

The play was adapted from the Shaw piece by Alan Jay Lerner and Fritz Lowe and was produced by Levin.

ELECTRONIC ALARM

DERBY, England (CP) — A Derby man has invented a peeping alarm designed to help catch shoplifters. When a passing policeman shines his torch at the lamp placed in the window, a photo-electric cell switches on all the store lights, catching any thieves in the act.

Live Canadian Polar Bears Were Status Symbols in Medieval Europe for Time

By JIM WRELLY

EDMONTON (CP)—Live Canadian polar bears were status symbols in medieval Europe, Dr. Jean Soper of the University of Manitoba department of history says.

The eight-foot-long tusk of the Arctic Ocean narwhal, he says, was at the height of its popularity, far northern Canada was the mystical unicorn by men of the middle ages in Europe and until recently was credited with great medicinal value by the Eskimos.

In the beginning, Europe's polar bears came from Iceland, discovered and settled by Norwegians about 880 AD. The bears were carried on Viking and Arctic drift ice. About 880, Ingimunder the Old captured two cubs which he took to the king of Norway, Harold the Fairhaired. In return, the king gave him an ocean-going vessel and a cargo of timber. The value of the polar bear was recognized.

GIFT FOR EMPEROR

Greenlanders later set traps for the bears in the Lake Melville Peninsula near Hudson Bay and their catches usually were given to kings.

When the Icelander Ialeifr went abroad in 1004 to seek a bishopric in Iceland, he took with him a live polar bear to present to the Holy Roman Emperor, Henry III. Elmar Sokkason on a Viking voyage in 1235 gave a polar bear to the Norwegian king, Sigurd the Crusader. Both missions were successful.

Visitors of many European countries preserves the tale of Audun of Iceland, who spent everything he had to buy a polar bear and took it, about 1068, to King Sven Estridsson of Denmark.

In was rewarded by the king to go to Rome, a ship with a valuable cargo and a leather pouch filled with silver. He was also offered to make Audun a member of his household and follower him with pleasure.

The kings of Norway began to use the bears as diplomatic instruments to curry favor with other European rulers. About 1250, King Hakon Hakonarson presented Henry III of England with a polar bear which was kept in the Tower of London and said to spend hours at each day fishing in the Thames. Another good fisherman was a polar bear that reached Cairo for El-Kamil in Damascus about 1229.

The pelts of polar bears also were sought. They were used in the cold churches of northern Europe as rugs on which a priest might stand before the altar. Sometimes they were used by barefoot penitents standing outside the church. Modern writers praised their softness and said many were taken to Egypt.

The white falcon in the middle ages drew the attention of royal huntsmen to what now is the Canadian Arctic, especially Baffin Island, where Greenlanders caught gyrfalcons for export to Europe. When falconry was at the height of its popularity, far northern Canada was known to Europe as the Falcon Islands.

A dozen white falcons were a king's ransom in 1366 when the Saracens took 12 of the birds in exchange for the captured Duke of Burgundy.

Ivory in the middle ages came mainly from the walrus rather than the elephant and the walrus also reached Europe from Arctic Canada through Greenland.

WALRUS HIDE ROPE

From walrus tusk came many of the beautiful crosiers of medieval bishops, exquisitely carved Christmas and many other articles.

Ropes made from walrus hide were used for ships' rigging and were so strong, says a 13th century author, that 60 men pulling on such a rope could not break it. It was in walrus tusks and hides that the papal dues and tithes were paid by the church in Greenland.

All these products, as well as the furs of many kinds of Arctic animals and animal oils for the lamps of medieval man reached Europe until the disappearance of the Icelandic settlements in Greenland at the beginning of the 16th century.

Once the Scandinavian connection was broken, Canada's Arctic wildlife almost ceased to reach the royal courts although Europe has never really lost interest in the noble polar bear, which may now be seen in almost every European country.

Detecting Front End Noises

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Most front end noises which car owners ask about are generally described as either squeaks, shocks or rattles . . . all of which tend to defy detection.

Very often, a squeak is a plea for lubricant by shock absorber linkage, coil spring seats, stabilizer supports or front wheel bearings. Adequate lubrication will silence them. Of course, squeaking has other causes, too. Among these are damaged or tight wheel bearings and loose wheel stud nuts.

Front end knocks are often due to loose or faulty shock absorbers or to worn brake shoes or backing plates.

Rattles are more difficult to pinpoint. The most likely sources of troubles are loose shocks, loose or defective wheel bearings, loose brake drums, shoes or backing plates.

I. McG. asks: "When the engine is quite cold, is it best to drive at a slow speed in order to warm it up quickly?"

(A) Slow speed is correct — not for faster warm-up, however, but to save excessive wear on engine parts.

A. G. writes: "If front tires are supposed to wear quicker due to braking, how do you explain the fact that the rear tires of my convertible are worn more than the front? All four tires were bought at the same time, and I've never rotated them".

(A) You couldn't do that much driving in reverse . . . so apparently you go in for tire-screeching jackrabbit starts.

From E. S.: "Yesterday morning, I turned on the radio as soon as I got into the car. I couldn't locate my keys immediately, so the radio was playing for a few moments before I switched on the ignition. As soon as I hit the starter, the radio went dead. What happened."

(A) Cranking the engine while the radio is on can ruin tubes.

T. H. asks: "When a garageman replaced my distributor points yesterday, he showed me the old ones and said: "See how blue they are?" I saw, but still don't understand what he meant. Can you tell me?"

(A) Burned points usually have a bluish cast. The burning is the result of incorrect gap setting, or a faulty condenser —usually the former.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in the position to employ the service of a professional accountant or visit an income tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor Income Tax Dept.

When a husband finds his wife has deserted him and taken the children with her, he is usually at a loss as to how this will affect his income tax return.

It will make no difference to his exemption in the year of the desertion. If he supported her for part of the year he is entitled to the exemption allowed a married man supporting a family. In such cases the deserting wife rarely asks for support. If however he did contribute money to her, he will have no claim for such contributions as he already has the maximum exemption for himself. This applies only in the year the desertion took place.

If they are still living apart in the following years, and he contributes nothing towards their support, he will be taxed as a single person. If he makes only token contributions it will depend on the total amount contributed to determine if a claim for a dependent is in order.

In the absence of a written separation agreement or court order, he cannot deduct the amount of his contributions. If any claim is allowed it will be for one or more dependents, depending on the amount that was contributed to their support during that year.

If there are points in any particular case that have not been covered by any of these articles, we can only advise the taxpayer concerned to contact his local income tax office to have them clarified, or write to me in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for a complete analysis of the problem.

Question 1 — My wife left me in 1960 taking the children with her. I was allowed full exemption for them in 1960. I have not contributed anything to them in 1961. Is that exemption am I allowed this year?

Answer — As you did not support your wife and family in 1961, you will be taxed as a single person.

RISING GROWTH — Canada's national output expanded to an annual rate of $39,424,000,000 in the second quarter of this year, up about 1.5 per cent from the first quarter.

This rate made it appear likely that the government's April 10 budget forecast of a gross national product of about $36,423,000,000 for the full year would be achieved and perhaps exceeded.

Lay 3 Days In Wilderness Beside Plane

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pilot told Sunday of lying semi-conscious for three days beside his light plane after it crashed into the side of a mountain near Hope, 100 miles east of here.

Ernest Johnston, 28, of Sidney, B.C., said he lay dazed, aching all over and suffering from thirst, he could not reach a stream nearby.

He said in an interview from his hospital bed he has no idea what caused his single-engined Cessna to crash Thursday night on a flight from Castlegar in the southeast Kootenay to Victoria.

He was picked up Sunday by RCAF helicopter and taken first to hospital at Hope, then brought here. He was reported in satisfactory condition. Full extent of his injuries was not determined.

Prison Warden Hasn't Received Notification

KINGSTON (CP)—Warden W. S. J. Richmond of Kingston Penitentiary said Sunday the case of Elwin Aonzo Boyd has been under consideration by the National Parole Board since last June.

The warden said, however he has not received any communication from the national board in connection with Boyd's release.

Mr. Richmond did say that he would be the most surprised man in the world if Boyd ever gets his trouble again if he is released.

Boyd has served 10 years of a life sentence for crimes that included robbery of eight Toronto area banks of a total of $152,000 and twice escaping from Toronto's Don Jail. The 36-year-old man was Canada's most wanted criminal before his arrest 10 years ago.

The warden said Boyd has been working outside the prison for the last few months with only one unarmed guard. He said he told Boyd about the news reports that indicated the men would be paroled "because he would probably hear it on the radio."

DESCRIBES PROCEDURE

Describing the procedure followed if such a parole were to be recommended, by the national Parole Board, the warden said:

"We (the warden's office) receive notification in the form of a certificate with the conditions of parole. I read it to him (the prisoner) and if he agrees to the conditions he signs it and I personally witness and date it.

"We almost always receive the certificate two days before various police forces are notified of the parole," he said.

Mr. Richmond said Boyd's wife telephoned him Sunday and asked if the warden could confirm her husband's parole. He said he told both Boyd and his wife that he had received no official word from the National Parole Board regarding the parole.

Pearson Makes Major Bid To Topple Govt.

Liberal Leader Accuses Govt. of Political Fraud

OTTAWA (CP)—In a sharp, wide-ranging attack on the government, Opposition Leader Pearson has made a major bid to topple Prime Minister Diefenbaker's government in the Commons and force an early election.

His three-hour speech Monday accused the government of "major political fraud" by concealment of the June foreign exchange crisis, of having "broken and resumble government, and of having tried to fool voters by a forecast of full employment this summer.

Mr. Pearson also presented a five-point Liberal program embracing a federal boost to the construction industry, development of new manufacturing industry, greater aid to education and job-training, a national health care plan and a system of contributory retirement pensions.

But his main pitch was to the effect no opposition party can rally behind his non-confidence motion which stated, simply, that the government of the day "do not possess the confidence of the House." A vote on this motion is scheduled for Thursday night.

THE TORY VOTES

Social Credit, with 30 members, and the New Democrats, with 19, plus the votes by Mr. Pearson and his 99 Liberal supporters need to defeat the minority Progressive Conservative government with its 116 Commons members. But the leaders of those parties say the government should have a chance to bring in its legislative program.

Mr. Pearson said he pointedly that he doesn't envy the task of other opposition parties in trying to "pick up" support for a government ghtich a few months have been attacking on the election hustings.

"I wish them great wise/ and sound policy from "a weak and discredited minority government," he declared. The three-hour speech outline of the government's legislative program was "a dish of very lukewarm hash" provided no grounds for Social Credit or NDP support.

Mr. Pearson said the other two parties had waited, hoping for the change of heart by the government, but had found the government that proved is incapable of taking important but constructive steps.

Today Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who got the floor after Mr. Pearson, was expected to spar tonight with only 10 minutes left before adjournment time, presumably for a speech-making session tomorrow.

MAY BE BIG NEWS

There was speculation that Mr. Diefenbaker might announce important increases in reserves may come more quickly.

STILL NOT CLEAR

It was not yet clear whether —and to what extent—the flow of long-term capital had resumed, and there had not been time for improvement in Canada's trade position to become evident.

Mr. Fleming said that in the first full week of June, the average daily loss of exchange reserves "was neither large nor abnormal." This loss rose some what during the second week of June, but not enough to require immediate corrective action.

"It was not until the third full week of June that the average daily loss of reserves rose to serious proportions. It was only then that the outflow became a hemorrhage which had to be staunched."

Mr. Fleming said another "misunderstanding" is the claim that the government was misleading the people during the election campaign by pointing to improvements in production and employment.

"There is no inconsistency whatever between the attainment of internal prosperity and the emergence of external financial problems."

AUSTERITY PLAN NOT EXPECTED TO END EARLY

- - Fleming Reserves Are Below Desirable Level

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Minister Fleming has indicated clearly that Canadians should not expect an early ending of the emergency "austerity" measures adopted June 24 to protect Canada's foreign exchange reserves.

The reserves, apart from the $650,000,000 in special international loans "are still considerably below a desirable level," the former finance minister said Monday in a luncheon speech to the Canadian Club here.

He emphasized that the import duty surcharges—one of the key steps in the emergency program—are "strictly temporary."

Apparently referring to statements by Liberal Leader Pearson, Mr. Fleming said it was a "myth" to claim that the foreign exchange emergency began much earlier than the June 18 election and that it was somehow concealed by the government.

He added that it would have been "a most irresponsible act" for the government to have made a detailed public statement before the election on the state of the foreign exchange reserves.

MIGHT START CRISIS

"A government statement of that kind would immediately have precipitated the very kind of foreign exchange crisis we were seeking to prevent."

Such a statement should only be made when an emergency has "unquestionably developed" and should be accompanied by a corrective program.

Mr. Fleming, moved from his finance portfolio in August, said Canada's exchange reserves rose from the June 24 low point of about $1,100,000,000 to $2,350,000,000 at the end of August, including the $650,000,000 in special borrowings.

The reserves still were rising.

But he cautioned that "substantial increases in reserves may come more quickly."

Alonzo Boyd Released From Kingston Prison

OTTAWA (CP) — Edwin Alonzo Boyd, 48, has been released from Kingston penitentiary on parole after serving 10 years of a life sentence imposed for masterminding ripped-off Toronto bank robberies and other crimes.

The National Parole Board said in a statement Monday that Boyd, who led Toronto's notorious Boyd Gang, has been released. Spokesmen refused to say when Boyd left the penitentiary or where he was going from there.

The statement said Boyd was released after "very favorable reports" on his attitude in prison.

"There are several people interested in his welfare who are willing to assist him."

The famous robber, who twice escaped from Don Jail in Toronto, will be on parole for the rest of his life. This means he will be subject to continuous supervision to assist him in his readjustment and to ensure that he does not return to crime or misbehave in any way."

BELIEVED LIKELY

Boyd was sentenced to life imprisonment Oct. 17, 1952, for the bank robberies, escapes and two counts of car theft.

The eight robberies netted his gang $115,000. Only $36,000 was recovered.

The parole board spokesman said it is not unusual for a prisoner sentenced to a life term to be released after 10 years. But it was done only when the board was convinced the prisoner had reformed and definitely was prepared to lead a useful life in the community.

Usually there is no announcement of parole decisions but this one was announced "because of the considerable publicity about his proposed release."

TO BOOST WORK FORCE

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Alex McIntyre, superintendent of the city sewer bureau, says an experiment, in which two men worked all spring to keep the grass of a sewer plant trimmed by pulling it, worked well he plans to put six sheep on the job next spring. Total cost: $30 for the sheep and $7 rental for a salt lick.

Provincial Secretary Denies Charges of Gross Negligence

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Secretary John Yaremko denied these clubs to . . . operate." three charges of "gross negligence" by himself or his department in the administration of charters for "social" gambling clubs in Ontario.

The minister appeared before the provincial royal commission investigating gambling and rendered against allegations made by Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer in the legislature speech of last November that touched off the investigation.

Mr. Yaremko, returning to the witness box to add some further evidence he gave early last month, told the commission he had eliminated clubs "out after another," starting in by cancelling a charter on his first day in office May 27, 1960.

"I developed new policies to impose . . . even more, stringent control," he said. "I have not failed to enforce the law."

"I deny that any action or inaction by myself or my department has been motivated by any improper consideration."

Mr. Yaremko said he personally had issued 322 charters, including 10 where police reports were not completely favorable. In no instance—included the uncensored 10—had there been any subsequent commission.

Officials Plan to Spruce Up Tourist Reception Services

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two top tourist officials said Monday they hope for a start next year on a plan to spruce up traveller reception services in Canada.

Project Hospitality was conceived by the Canadian Travel Association, which began its annual convention here Monday.

Alan Field, director of the federal travel bureau, told 200 delegates he had asked the government for a grant next year to help pay for the project.

The scheme he said, "has my strongest support, but I cannot as yet say whether it will be approved."

Loyal Kelly of Toronto, association president, said he hopes for a 1963 start on the project.

Prospects for the implementation of the plan were bolstered by an array of impressive statistics on the tourist industry.

Mr. Kelly said foreign visitors will spend more than $500,000,000 in Canada this year, and most of this is from United States travellers.

He said for the first time the industry has earned more than half a billion in a single year.

Mr. Kelly said lack of facilities "has not been long" until the tourist industry earns more than Canadians earn.

Mr. Field said it has been apparent for some time that a coordinated educational program is needed for the tourist industry.

He said that industry faces a major educational chore in British Columbia because the image of Canada is distorted.

"Still too many people overseas think we live in igloos and hunt frozen northland policed by Mounties," he said.

The recent opening of a Canada government travel centre in London is a step in the right direction in breaking down this misconception, Mr. Field said.

He asked tourist operators to make sure United States tourists get the seven-cent premium on American dollars.

Mr. Field said: "Reports that merchants, or restaurants or hotels are not giving the exchange creates ill will."

Actor Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Frank Lovejoy, 50, was found dead in bed today at his quarters in the Hotel Warwick. The discovery was made by his wife, Joan.

A physician said Lovejoy apparently died of a coronary thrombosis.

Lovejoy recently had appeared in a production of the play "The Best Man," at Paramount. The actor's career embraced both Broadway and motion pictures. In addition, he had been a radio announcer.

Mr. Pearson accused the government of fraud and misrepresentation in the election, of the beginnings and extent of Canada's foreign exchange crisis.

Prime Minister Dicfenbaker, describing Mr. Pearson's address as a "non-confidence election speech," said it was generated by fraud and rats.

The Commons gave first reading to 41 bills sponsored by the private members' day them by the 18-member New Democratic party group.

FIVE DROWNED AS CAR PLUNGES INTO OTONABEE

Four Bodies Have Been Recovered

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Five persons were drowned Monday night when a car plunged into the Otonabee River at Nassau, a small community two miles north of here.

Four bodies were recovered from the car and identified as Mrs. Geraldine Hughes, 38, Bernard Trudeau, about 30, and June Flynn, 26, all of Peterborough, and Herbert Smith, 29, of Toronto.

Eyewitnesses said that when the car went into the river a man came to the surface and shouted for help, then went under.

Police said divers will search the area downstream from the point of the accident for the body of the fifth person.

The car left the road next to a bridge and landed upside down in about 15 feet of water. It was smashed out by police an hour later.

Tax Evasion Trial Results In Deadlock

NEW YORK (AP) —The income tax evasion trial of former New York Stock Exchange chairman Richard Whitney ended early today in a hung jury. The government said later it would try Bidwell again.

The jury entered the federal court room after a three-hour midnight to report a deadlock after the second time Judge Thomas F. Murphy, who refused to accept the first deadlock report, ordered the jury and declared a mistrial.

Bidwell was convicted of evading payments of almost $56,000 in federal income taxes for 1956 and 1957. The government contended he did this mainly by claiming fictitious expenses as tax deductions.

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Unit-ed States federal troops arrested more than two dozen persons carrying weapons during the night as they tightened an uneasy security around the University of Mississippi.

One man and his 14-year-old son arrested during the early hours had a collection that included one rifle and two shotguns, one sabre, two hunting knives and ammunition.

About 10 marshals accompanied Meredith to class this morning. There were no demonstrations and other students walked briskly to class as they watched Meredith.

Under tightest security guard, James H. Meredith began his first night on the campus as a forcibly-enrolled student. Floodlights played on Baxter Hall where the 29-year-old Negro had a room reservation.

In New Orleans, Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett had a last minute meeting in an attempt elicitation, harvested from his visit effort to prevent Meredith's entrance as the 114-year-old university's first knowingly admitted Negro student.

"I call on the president to put a stop to the reckless course by immediate removal of Meredith and the withdrawal of federal troops marshals from Mississippi soil," the 64-year-old governor said in a speech telecast Monday night.

BLAMES WASHINGTON

Barnett blamed federal intervention for the weekend segregation riots and the deaths of a French reporter and an Oxford repairman.

Washington's rebuttal was a mounting building of nearly 12,000 soldiers including the 101st Airborne Division paratroops outfit called the 1957 school integration violence at Little Rock, Ark.

Troops streamed into Oxford, culminating the Army's hasty battalet's citizens two to one in the most massive display of federal might since the end of the Civil War nearly a century ago.

The federal invaders arrested more than 200 persons since Sunday night, about one-third of them Monday. Most of them went free, but more than a dozen are being held in the Lafayette County jail on charges of inciting to riot.

DIG FOXHOLES

Jeeps rattled through inky blackness as the last of the new armed soldiers who dug foxholes began their night rath. The campus was sealed off to anyone the federal government looked upon with favor. The square of Oxford, where shortlived disturbances erupted Sunday between civilians and helmeted troops.

There was no indication whether Barnett would meet a

Six Missile Experts Killed In Plane Crash

SANTA MARIA, Calif. (AP)— Six missile experts en route to nearby Vandenberg Air Force Base were killed Monday night when a transport plane plunged into the ground near Santa Maria airport, authorities reported.

The crash also killed the plane's pilot.

The twin-engine craft was attempting a landing at the field here after a flight from Los Angeles.

It circled the field, one engine sputtering, then clipped the top of a 75-foot-high grove of eucalyptus trees and smashed onto a field into the ground.

Santa Barbara County Sheriff James Webster said the seven crewmen aboard were killed instantly.

He said the bodies were so badly broken that it meant that it was difficult, at first, to determine the number of dead aboard.

The reports indicated 11 persons were killed.

The men were identified as missile engineering and technicians employed by the Martin Company, builder of the Titan missile.

The plane was operated by Pacific Airways, a commercial carrier which specializes in flying technicians to Santa Maria from the Los Angeles area.

Chas. Laughton Said to Have Cancer of Spine

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Charles Laughton, 63, has cancer of the spine, Cedars of Lebanon Hospital said Monday.

The British - born actor entered the hospital for the surgery on a collapsed vertebra.

A hospital spokesman said Laughton is in fair condition. The tumor is centered in the lower back, he added.

"Doctors don't consider it terminal at this point," the spokesman. "He has tremendous resistance and is putting up a terrific fight.

"He has all his faculties and cheerfully conversed with the nurses and the few visitors he has had."

The spokesman said the actor receives mild sedation on some days.

Last June Laughton underwent surgery in New York Presbyterial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases. It was reported then that the operation was to correct a collarbone fracture suffered in a bathtub fall in January.

BEHIND ON BILL

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—The telephone company has cut off 37 of the 44 telephones in the city government headquarters at Keelung, Taipei's seaport. The government is more than $9,000 behind in its telephone bill.

New U.S. Television-Telescope Photographs Orbiting Satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A missile and satellite tracking television - telescope far more precise than the best radar has been developed experimentally by a group of U.S. Air Force and industry men.

The military potential of such a camera for tracking, mapping and battle-area reconnaissance is little short of fantastic.

It already has been used on take photographs of orbiting Soviet and U.S. satellites at altitudes of 100 miles and more.

It has photographed and identified craters on the moon more than 3,000 feet in diameter with less motion distortion than still photos taken with the best telescope in the world, 200 - pound camera, mounted on an altazimuth gun frame, will be used to track the first U.S. satellite, Schirra Jr. during lift-off on his projected six-orbit trip around the world.

If all goes well, television astronaut Walter Schirra's space capsule, Sigma 7, separate from the Atlas booster 9½ minutes after takeoff.

Manning declined to discuss the military aspects.

There were hints from other sources that the camera possibly had taken photographs of space capsules flown by two Russians last Aug. 11 and 12 and might have figured in the recent announcement by the space agency that two Soviet attempts at Venus shots had failed.

Thailand Student at UBC Suspected Smallpox Victim

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia officials placed a student in isolation Monday after they were informed that a student from Thailand was a suspected smallpox victim.

Three hours after being told of Mrs. Kelly's suspicion, they had a skin infection that resembled a modified form of smallpox, medical health authorities had vaccinated 750 persons living at a campus residence.

Wetanachai, who arrived here by air direct from Bangkok, his home, Sept. 20, was put in isolation until blood samples sent to Ottawa were analyzed.

Health officials said there was little chance the illness was smallpox, but added they could not be sure until they had received the results of the analysis in 48 hours.

Wetanachai, doing graduate studies in commerce with his tuition paid by the federal government under the Colombo plan, lived downtown until Sept. 20 when he moved to Fort Camp on the campus.

He went to Shaughnessy Military Hospital in charge of medical care for Colombo students, Monday when he became concerned about his condition, seven doctors saw him and forwarded their suspicions to UBC.

Medical health officials at the university, which has an enrollment of 12,500, arranged for free vaccinations for any stu-

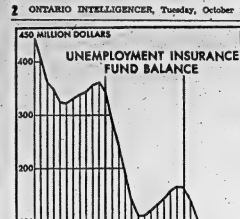
Royal Commission Probe Sought Of Growth of Separate Schools

The royal commission should find ways of preserving unity of religion, unity of nationality, unity of purpose and unity of language, the proposal was made.

"Religion and education should be unifying influence rather than a divisive influence of Ontario," the board said.



The brief, if resolution will be dealt with today at the closing session of the convention.

Public school boards have criticized the cost of school textbooks.

William Ross of the Toronto board of education, attacked the proposal to provide free textbooks, saying the manner of a Broadway play is the best publicity.

He charged that the expense of wining and dining school officials and board members could better be spent in reducing the cost of the books themselves."

Max Parnell, of the department of education, said the fault is with the school board whose approval should have been given before the books were bought.

TO REPORT ON FUND—A four-man commission named 14 months ago is expected to report this autumn on Canada's unemployment insurance system.

The commission was formed as the unemployment insurance fund was rallying from its December, 1958, peak of more than $900,000,000 to a record low of $19,851,162, reached last May.

With the summer improvement in jobs situation, the fund strengthened to a balance of $56,833,704 at the end of August. Graph traces fund balance from start of 1960 to August 31. (CP Newsmap).

Alan E. Haw Honored by Bible College

Alan E. Haw, active in the work of the Calvary Temple here for many years, has been awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree by the Trinity Southern Bible College and Seminary, at Mullins, South Carolina.

President of the college, Dr. A. D. Shoemaker, in his citation said the degree was awarded on the merits of Mr. Haw's efforts in sacred and religious work in the field of publication.

"You are deserving of this honor," Dr. Shoemaker told Mr. Haw, "and we hope you will receive it in the same Christian spirit as we bestow the distinguished degree upon you."

Also, recently Dr. Haw has been appointed a chaplain in the Associated Special Investigators, a world organization of police chiefs, secret service men, army officers and executives concerned with the maintenance of law and order in business and communism and subversive elements.

Head of the organization is Col. C. E. F. Hubley of Saint John, N.B.

House Briefs

WILL STUDY PROBLEM

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Balcer told Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) he has received no complaints about CNR plans to curtail uneconomical service during the winter months. Plans to be agreed to study the problem if he receives any.

GETS A SLAP

Paul Hellyer (L — Toronto Trinity) received a verbal rap from Defence Minister Harkness when he inquired whether the government still plans to replace BCAF NATO squadrons to Europe. Mr. Harkness said if Mr. Hellyer hadn't been asleep for two years he'd know he had been planned phased some time ago.

HAS NO POWER

Walter Gordon (L—Toronto Davenport) asked Finance Minister Fleming about the government or Bank of Canada will act to stop foreign corporations from using Canadian farm corporations with the object of getting around taxes on them. Mr. Nowlan replied that such take-overs have been going on for a decade. There is no power in the Bank of Canada Act to change the situation.

WILL HEAR SOON

The Gill commission report into the slate of the defunding unemployment insurance fund is expected some time this autumn, Labor Minister Starr revised James M. Forgie (L—Renfrew North).

NO FURTHER LAYOFFS

Associate Defence Minister Nowlan told Dauphin Liberal Peter Dell (L—Brandon-Souris) Haldimand that no further layoffs at Hagersville, Ont., of the 500 men now contemplated before the end of the year. Mr. Pennell said 91 have been laid off.

Baptist Young People Tour Bell Plant

About 40 members of the Parkdale Baptist Young People's toured the Bell Telephone Company's business office on Bridge Street last night. The group, led by Lamont Parks, was shown all the facilities and methods in the building and was told about the Bell organization. After the tour they had refreshments, courtesy of the company.

Lowell Smith, of the Engineering Division of the Bell Telephone Company, had arranged this tour, said, "anyone can take a tour through this office." He said the arrangements should be made with the business office of the company. The Baptist Young People's tour was supervised by Ambrose Macdonald, business manager of the company.

Tropical Storm May Delay Space Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—U.S. astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr., his eyes on a nine-hour space trip Wednesday, was told of a tricky wind with a feminine name.

She is Storm Daisy. Her whirling winds in the Atlantic had increased by Monday night, the officials said cautious, but unconvinced, weren't ready to call off the flight of Schirra's six orbits around the earth.

They planned to take another close look at Daisy and her winds today. Then if the winds had increased to about 20 miles an hour as she moved near high noon Tuesday, Schirra, a 39-year-old navy commander, will hop into his Sigma 7 spacecraft on their flight. Possibly last before a U.S. astronaut spends a full day in space.

The critical area Daisy menaces is the locale where Schirra would land after one two or three orbits.

CBC Radio Network Now In Operation

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC radio network, born through the death of the Trans-Canada and Dominion networks, went on the air Monday across Canada.

The new network of 78 stations—24 CBC-owned and 55 private-ly-owned—covers over 90 per cent of Canada's English-speaking population and brings them the best programs from the two previous networks.

With radio audiences diminishing because of television, the CBC had been considering consolidation of the networks for some time. The Oct. 1 date had been set early this year.

When the CBC announced its plans for the new network it said that international and educational programs would be stressed along with a balance of light and serious entertainment. Most of the well-known programs from both previous networks will continue to be heard.

Bowling Notes

The women's section of the Lawn Bowling Club have concluded another successful season, have elected their officers for the coming year and are looking forward to another season of their favorite pastime. The annual meeting of the section was held Thursday night at the clubhouse, which was preceded by a pot luck supper. There was a large number of the members on hand and considerable business was transacted before the assembly broke up.

Mrs. Joan Watkin, a member of the club some years, was the unanimous choice of the meeting as president for the coming year. Her husband, Gordon Watkin, was elected president of the men's section on the following night and this combination should assure the club of continued success. Mrs. Mildred Smith, president for the past two seasons, was sincerely thanked for her contribution to the success of the club. She in turn thanked all the members for their co-operation.

Miss June Avery, a competitive newcomer but a hard worker, was chosen first vice-president, while Mrs. Hazel Boyle was elected second vice-president. Mrs. Lawrence was chosen as secretary and Mrs. Thelma Fitzsimmons was re-elected treasurer. Mrs. Elsie Humphreys will be tournament chairman, while Mrs. Grace Hunter as co-chairman. Mrs. Ed Hanson will be in charge of Thursday bowling. Mrs. Carm Mott will be in charge of the telephone committee, while Mrs. Irene Trudeau will head the Sunshine committee. Mrs. Grace Clapp will be in charge of publicity and Mrs. Laura Hyde and Mrs. Gerald Gilbert will act as auditors. Miss Anne Avery and Mrs. Jessie Hunter will be convenors, while Mrs. Beryl VanHeest will be in charge of honors and keeping at the clubhouse. The nominating committee was Mrs. Jessie Hunter and Mrs. Hazel Boyle and their slate of officers was unanimously accepted by the meeting.

Before adjourning the members voted to turn over a sizable cheque to the men's division but the club treasury was left with a nice balance to start next year's season.

ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of District 18 of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association will be held at the Belmont Restaurant on Wednesday evening with the chairman, Lieutenant-Governor George Ross of Campbellford presiding. Representatives of clubs from Campbellford, Stirling, Brighton, Madoc, Kingston and Belleville will be present.

At this meeting a new chairman and secretary for the district will be elected and it is expected that William Cohn of Brighton will assume the chair for the coming season. Also at the meeting a schedule of tournaments for next year will be drawn up and this business usually takes considerable time as it is the wish of the delegates at all clubs be satisfied with their dates. No doubt a number of resolutions will be adopted so that they can be discussed and acted on at the annual meeting of the Provincial body to be held in Toronto later in the month. The meeting will be preceded by a dinner for the guests and the Belleville Club will be represented by Ralph Tuck, the secretary and Austin Wallbridge, convenor for the PLSA will be on hand to answer any questions from the floor. It is expected that the Provincial finals for rinks, rink, Doubles and Singles will be held in this city next year.

Three Children Severely Bitten By Savage Dog

BRANTFORD (CP) — Acting on the command of an unknown man a German shepherd dog savagely attacked three children Monday night.

Both the McDonald escaped with scratches.

A woman who witnessed the attack said the animal ran off with a broom.

Brantford small animal control officer Ken Harrington said a boy ordered the white German shepherd dog to attack the children.

The dog will be kept in quarantine for 14 days to find out whether it has rabies. The animal's master has not been found.

Boyd Has Not Been Re-United With His Wife

TORONTO (CP)—Break rolls her Alonzo Boyd, whose release on parole from a life sentence was announced Monday, had not been reunited with his wife by midnight Monday night.

Mrs. Boyd, her face pale and tear-stained, waited alone in a shabby little flat in west-end Toronto.

The constant ringing of her telephone brought no response outside. She refused to speak to reporters at the door.

"I don't tell you anything," she said.

A glass pane on the inner door had been broken, but none of the fleeting occupants could explain how it happened.

Mrs. Boyd said earlier she expected 26-year-old husband to come home as soon as he were released. But there was no sign of the notorious robber Monday night, although reports indicated he was in the Toronto area.

"Maybe we'll be like strangers," Mrs. Boyd had said earlier. "Ten years is a long time. I just can't believe it's over. I won't—until I see him walk across that doorstep."

The wheresabouts of Boyd's two sons and daughter were also unknown.

Men's Physical Fitness Class Has Workout

The Men's Physical Fitness Class of the Y.M.C.A. had its first "work out" last evening, when a number of men came out to its first session. It is expected that this class will grow considerably.

Conducted by Physical Director, Joe Ruddy, the class had a few minutes of "keep-fit" exercises, followed by two sets of volleyball. A shower and plunge in the pool ended the first session. A very enjoyable time was had by everyone as they "played their way to physical fitness".

The Men's Physical Fitness Class will meet regularly every Monday and Wednesday at 5.30 p.m.

Flea Market Is Profitable Venture for Retired Couple

ABERFOYLE, Ont. (CP)—A flea market of with all its traditional quirks, broke the quietness the fleas has become a profitable commercial venture for a retired Northern Ontario couple.

The flea market operated by Mr. and Mrs. Stan Owens not only offers its visitors antique items ranging from buttons to buttons but a quiet picnic and swimming spot as well.

On the first Sunday of every month, 30 antique dealers, some from as far away as Montreal, bring their wares to the Owens' rustic barn and ground and foyle, 10 miles northwest of Hamilton.

And about 2,000 antique collectors, buyers or just plain interested people descend on the Sunday markets either to browse, exchange information or to purchase items for their home and picnic on the grounds.

Admission charges are per person and dealers help with the advertising costs but pay no rent for their stalls.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens thought of starting up a flea market when the picnic and swimming area they had built on the swampy property behind their home and chopping mill failed to attract large enough crowds.

"My husband and I both being English, we thought a flea market would be a bit of an English countryside flair," said Mrs. Owens.

In the summer of 1961, she wrote to antique dealers across Canada asking them if they would be interested in a one-day sale and invited them to bring all they could manage in a station wagon and to dress like gypsies.

The response was enthusiastic, and after the first market in September, 1961, dealers suggested the flea market be held inside the mill during the winter months.

The Owens agreed, built an enormous stone fireplace to heat the mill, and the first of the monthly flea markets was held on the first Sunday of 1962. Even with Southern Ontario under a fresh coat of ice, 395 persons came to buy from 20 dealers.

Business which was brisk during the winter months has turned into a deluge during the warmer weather and the outdoor market.

Twenty dealers are on the waiting list hoping that one of the lucky 30 fall that the Owens can accomodate) will drop out. Buyers and collectors who attend the market come from as far away as Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens, who retired to the country 10 years ago to get away from the hectic pace of life in Toronto, now find themselves working seven days a week.

In the winter they plan to convert the swimming pool into an ice skating rink while chopping will continue with Strauss waltzes. Hot mince pies and butter tarts will be offered for refreshments.

Ottawa Stores Remain Open Friday Nights

OTTAWA (CP)—City council Monday night gave Ottawa merchants the right to stay open until 9 p.m. on Friday nights, the first time such shopping has been allowed in the city.

There have been repeated demands for night shopping since discount houses were established outside city limits in the fast few years. These stores remain open at night.

Controller Reid's motion, calling for Friday night shopping, was defeated by council last week when voting produced a deadlock. The same motion Monday night was passed with a 13 to 7 margin.

Under the bylaw, Ottawa merchants can remain open if they wish on Friday night and they will remain closed on any other day they choose.

Two Russians On Way Home

Trenton Council Briefs

TRENTON — Squadron Leader R. Bowbery of Public Relations Department, RCAF Trenton, told Trenton councillors of the excellent coverage given to the recent Trenton military tattoo. Sq.-Ldr. Bowbery presented a short talk with photographs and newspaper cuttings. Councillor Lloyd Worrall said a vote of thanks should be given to S.-L. Bowbery for his work in publicizing the tattoo.

A letter from W. A. Goodfellow, minister of highways, informed Trenton council that Eric Aldersey, Trenton town engineer, had been appointed to the Ontario Traffic Advisory Committee for the province.

"We should have no trouble getting that thing," Trenton police chief Councillor Claude Graham told Mayor Wood. Chief Graham said that Mr. Aldersey is eminently fitted for the work of the committee, which has its headquarters in Toronto about 10 times per year.

Mayor D. James MacDonald remarked that the worth of having Mr. Aldersey on the committee to daily reports on jobs going on in the town and province. He asked at the recent trial concerning the application of the estate of Thomas Hubbard to operate a town of Trenton. All claims were dismissed, costs to be paid by the plaintiff.

All councillors as well as the mayor signified their intention of attending the dance at the First World War to be displayed at the Canadian Legion Hall on Friday, October 5, at 8 p.m. It is the first time this film has been shown to the public.

Tuesday, October 16, is to be Credit Union Day in Trenton.

A committee under Councillor Claude Graham was appointed to meet with representatives from the Trenton Board of Education for reconsideration of the price of the pool now under construction on Queen Elizabeth School. This is a second time this matter has come up recently. An equity in the town by the separate school board was the decision of action on the piece of land concerned.

Council decided to ask the Trenton Public Utilities Commission to increase the wattage of the light on Dundas and Bain Street, in reply to a request by a George Street resident that additional lighting be placed there.

October 15-20 is to be Victorian Order of Nurses Week in Trenton.

A discussion on the felling and trimming of trees on Bain Street, on several Trenton streets brought comments from councillor Ed Todd "Only do the emergency ones". (Council has been criticized for its tree policy lately) "There are no funds to meet this work."

"They are all emergency ones" stated the Mayor. It was pointed out that a requisite sum needed under public works.

The Mayor announced that the opening of the Community Gardens ice service will be on October 15. Those who have wished to register for the junior hockey groups should have had their registrations in by now, said that mayor, but additional ice time would be turned away who registered now.

night he apparently didn't have time for that.

Mr. Diefenbaker instead gave the Liberal leader's speech a quick once-over of crossfire criticism.

He called it "a warmed-over election speech, generated in large measure by frustration" in having lost on narrowly in the Liberal bid for office last June 18.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberal leader's speech had been "stuffed in press reports as a broadside. It was more like a number of packages of fire-crackers together—somebody took longer to explode and didn't do much harm.

He suggested that Mr. Pearson's omission of any mention of agriculture was because the votes 3f the western farmers had slashed away his election night hopes of victory.

LET OFF STEAM

Monday's opening of the eight-day throne speech debate provided the Commons with its first big chance to let off partisan steam this session.

Liberal members cheered loudly as Mr. Pearson's major points, shouted down many Conservative interjections, and gave their leader a protracted deskbanging applause when he finished. As soon as the Conservatives tried to outdo the Liberal desk-thumping when Mr. Diefenbaker began.

Mr. Pearson showed himself adept at fielding Conservative jibes. At one point, during a criticism of Mr. Diefenbaker's performance at the recent Commonwealth conference in London, a Conservative backbencher shouted: "He didn't sell Canada short."

"He didn't sell Canada at all," Mr. Pearson shot back. The Liberals cheered.

HAS 3 MAIN POINTS

Mr. Pearson based his attack on three main points: The June foreign exchange crisis, emergency with its resulting "austerity" program, the government's record on unemployment, and its stand at the London conference on Britain's bid to join the European Common Market.

He said he did not "pull any Canadians of the foreign exchange emergency before the last election, the government was guilty of "fraud by concealment and misrepresentation of the situation."

The prime minister had told voters in a June 14 television speech that the government had "concealed nothing and left nothing." Two days after the election Agriculture Minister Hamilton had said there was no crisis that anyone could point a finger at. Austerity was announced June 24.

"The government's explanation of the nature, cause and timing of the dollar crisis in June is shot to the point of being nonsensical."

Mr. Pearson said the real cause lay in five years of economic stagnation, chronic trade deficits, government discouragement of foreign capital, secret efforts to force down the dollar's exchange rate and huge budgetary deficits.

SCOFFS AT PREDICTION

He scoffed at Mr. Diefenbaker's election prediction that "virtual full employment" would be achieved by July or August. He said there had been no shred of evidence to support this claim.

In June, unemployment fell to 300,000. In July rose to 350,000 and in August fell to 280,000—6.1 per cent of the labor force.

This, he said, was twice what is nearly three times as high as under the former Liberal government.

"How can we prosper with a government that thinks 300,000 unemployed in mid-summer is something to cheer about?"

The government had tried to force Britain into a position of choosing between the Commonwealth and the Common Market. It had shown its "peculiar genius for getting into quite unnecessary difficulties, even with its good friends."

QUOTES PROVERB

The Liberal leader quoted what he said was an old Chinese proverb:

"The wise man doesn't use a rachet to ilfix fly on the forehead of his friend."

Mr. Pearson said British entry to the Common Market would bring problems for Canada, but not as great as the problems if Britain stayed out. By joining, Britain could gain economic strength, provide a growing market for Canada and still remain the heart of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Pearson repeatedly struck a pole of confidence that the Liberals will be in office soon.

We have a plan, he said at one time, and "will be able to use it before long."

OUTLINES PROGRAM

He outlined four main points:

1. A government boost to construction, including a municipal loan fund to local works projects.

2. A program to seek out new ways of expanding industrial production. For instance, the auto industry imported 600,000 worth of car parts. Surely a good deal could be done to increase the Canadian content of cars made in this country.

3. Much "more" to encourage education and job retraining, including extension of family allowances to age 21 from 16 for children remaining in school.

4. A national health care program, with free medical services for children, the aged and unemployed and—for the employed—medical services at a cost limited to $5.

5. An adequate contributory retirement pension plan that would be "fully portable" allowing workers to keep pension rights while changing jobs.

Mr. Diefenbaker dismissed the program as something which the government is already doing or which the Liberals had promised long ago without carrying out.

Name October Industrial Safety Month

Industrial workers in this area, as well as those in other parts of Ontario, are being urged to be more safety conscious and to use protective safety equipment during the month of October, in an effort to reduce the toll of lives being taken annually in industrial accidents.

This annual safety drive during the month of October is one phase of a continual safety program designed and sponsored by the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations. This is a cooperative non-profit organization whose principal aim and objective is to develop safety methods and practices and to reduce disabilities and deaths from industrial accidents.

The Associations serve 17 different causes of industry which employ more than 800 workers.

October has been chosen as Safety month because statistics prove it is the month which leads all others in the number of industrial mishaps.

In this area an active committee has been formed with the chairmanship of R. L. Sharp, production engineer, Proleaz of Canada Ltd., Trenton, to help make workers more conscious of the need to prevent accidents. Others on the local committee include: Gerald Cleaver, Trimble Co. Ltd.; G. J. Cooper, Northern Electric Co. Ltd., J. Hall, representing Hardware; E. Wickerson, Mead Johnson Co. Canada Ltd., Belleville; Butcher, Stewart-Warner Corp. of Canada Ltd., and C. Lundy, Wilson's Concrete Products.

Rotarians See Movies Taken In Switzerland

Yesterday afternoon the members of the Rotary Club of Belleville enjoyed a cinematic visit to mountainous Switzerland thanks to the combined efforts of Rotarian producer Dr. Alan Sprague, Harold Mott, Arnold Campbell, Bruce Graham and Alan Ireland.

Special student guests for the meeting were William Cosbert and Jim Hall, members of the special group of students here who are preparing themselves for a university education, and Alan Slavin of Toronto, president of the student council there.

The birthdays of Rotarians Dr. Alan Sprague, Ron Cass and Bob Graham were celebrated with cakes and the traditional song. A sing song was also held, led by Rotarian Bill Gay.

Members of the Picton Rotary Club were present to promote their club project, the sponsorship of the Don Cossack Choir in Picton on the 15th of the month.

President Harry Burns conducted the meeting.

12,000 SOLDIERS

deadline today set by the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. He was given until that hour to purge himself of contempt, incurred last week when he personally blocked initial federal efforts to register Meredith at the university.

Barnett faces a $10,000 daily fine and imprisonment if the contempt sentence is carried through. Mississippi Lieutenant-Governor Paul M. Johnson faces a $5,000 a day fine for his defiance.

The highlight of Monday's segregation drama was the speech of Walker, the spit-and-polish former army general who led the 1957 Little Rock Central High School during the Little Rock segregation crisis.

Walker, 53, resigned from the army after a dispute over his indoctrination program for overseas troops. He came here from his home in Dallas, Tex., after urging the massing of tens of thousands of volunteers to resist Meredith's registration.

On Sunday, Walker, rallied rioting students on the Mississippi campus. He was arrested and charged with the shooted encouragement to rioters who hurled bottles and rocks at federal troops in Oxford's central square.

UP TO 20 YEARS

Walker failed to make $100,000 bond on charges that included seditious conspiracy and insurrection against the flag he once served. The maximum penalty upon conviction would be 20 years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

Walker's post bond, Walker was whisked away to Springfield, Mo., medical centre for psychiatric study. It is a centre for, among other things, treatment of mental cases.

As units of the 82nd and 101st Airborne moved into Oxford, Lt.-Gen. Earle Wheeler arrived to take command of all military forces in the university area.

Amid all this massing of force and the threat of martial law, Meredith played his pioneer role with every appearance of outward calm. The Negro marshals escorted him into the Lyceum from his dormitory building, Monday morning. A contingent of flag hung at half staff.

A justice department spokesman said he will be under protective guard "as long as he is in danger."

During the night, rebel yells and the popping of firecrackers echoed through the campus. But the army held tight control.

Hundreds of students followed Meredith to his first classes, calling "You've got block on your backs."

The students' reference was to the death of two men in Sunday night's rioting.

In Monday night's television address, Barnett called them two victims of "a reckless, inexperienced and highly nervous group of marshals" and said "it completely will last (Sunday) evening on the campus of the university."

BLAMES PRESIDENT

The governor said that "as late as Sunday morning he pleaded with President Kennedy and his brother, Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, to give Mississippi a cooling off period."

"The responsibility for this unwarranted breach of the peace and violence in Mississippi rests directly with the president of the United States. He ordered armed forces to invade Mississippi and their actions were directly responsible for violence, bloodshed and death," Barnett added.

In Washington, however, the justice department made it plain he feels Barnett reneged on a promise to provide police protection that Meredith first appeared on the campus Sunday, preparatory to his registration. President Kennedy was reported stood to share his brother's feelings.

In Washington, also, Senator James O. Eastland (Dem., Miss.) Monday night directed his Senate judiciary committee to make a complete investigation of the Oxford violence. He charged that justice department personnel and U.S. marshals.

One of Walker's supporters, Lt.-Gen. Ashland Burchwell, a 22-year-old Texan, was picked up in Dallas, Tex., along with a large supply of arms and ammunition police said he was taking to Walker in Mississippi. Burchwell said he had worked for Walker both in the army and in Texas.

But the "lens of thousands" Walker promised to lead to the rescue of Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett, fighting to prevent Negro James Meredith's enrolment at the University of Mississippi, never showed up.

Instead, Walker led a band of some 100 students as they charged seditious federal marshals on the Ole Miss campus Sunday night. The marshals, under fear gas and no provocation, Monday morning. A contingent of flag hung at half staff.

A justice department spokesman said he will be under protective guard "as long as he is in danger."

Three Sections Of Barbed Wire Face Douks

ROPE, B.C. (CP)—Ir 30-odd miles of barbed wire separate over a 60-mile-an-hour highway.

Today this small distance and the 30 minutes it takes circumventing three sections of barbed wire, appear to be all that is between 1,200 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors and the goal of a 400-mile trek that started in the Kootenay a month ago.

The self-styled Sons of Freedom are nearing the end of a journey that would re-unite them with 63 of their brothers, jailed in the maximum-security Mountain Prison at Agassiz for acts of terrorism.

The attorney-general's department Monday night made plain it will go no further to enforce a special bylaw passed by Kent municipality to ban the Freedomites from the district.

WON'T STAND UP?

The bylaw, passed two weeks ago, said a threat of entry by the radical sect into Agassiz constituted an emergency. Such legislative action by a municipality is allowed under the Municipal Act.

But Attorney-General Bonner and a staff lawyer doubt the bylaw would stand up in court.

Solicitor Ian Sinclair, the department's deputy, said the RCMP does not have a contract with Kent—of which Agassiz village is a part—and the area is policed by the provincial government as unorganized territory.

Other bylaws passed earlier by Agassiz presumably would still affect the Sons—that certain sanitary minimums be adhered to and if buildings are erected, they be better than shacks.

The Doukhobors are re-grouping in a municipal campsite here for the last section of their trek. Hope officials said the camp is clean, that the Freedomites are building extra toilets, a problem at their last stopping place—Bromley Park near Princeton 90 miles east of here.

Pools Ticket Will Pay Fare Out of Jungle

LONDON (Reuters) — Mrs. Elizabeth Lawton, 30-year-old mother from a coconut village in British Guiana, has won about £35,000 ($105,000) in a British soccer sweepstake at her first attempt, it was announced today.

She left her three young sons in Cotton tree, British Guiana, last September to join her husband Emmanuel in a one-room apartment in London and did not expect to see them for five years while she saved for their fares.

Last week she stashed five shillings (70 cents) on a pool coupon, a neighbor checked it and excitedly told her "your boys are just around the corner."

She said today:

"There will be great rejoicing in Cotton tree village. The greatest thing of all is I shall be able to educate my children the way I want. Now education is the main reason I came to England."

Builders Say Road-Building Must Continue

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Good Roads Association was told today that road-building programs can't be sacrificed to any government austerity program without insidious effects.

"This association is not with us in the highway enterprises should dedicate ourselves to the proposition that roads are not an expendable item of government," John Thompson, president of the association, said in his annual review. He is Manitoba's municipal affairs minister.

"The present economy wave roads would seem a logical target for the axe," he said. "For one thing, roads are not visible and evident effect and a prompt result.

Mr. Thompson said any departure from planned road building programs would reverse a trend "that has produced benefits many times the payer many millions of dollars."

President Sorry Over Death of French Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy expressed Monday the shock of the world "as can people" at the slaying of a French correspondent covering riots at the University of Mississippi in Oxford Sunday night.

The president sent a telegram of condolence to Jean Marin, president and director-general of Agence France - Presse in Paris, which employed Paul Guihard, 34, who was killed there at Oxford. Guihard also represented the London Daily Sketch. Kennedy said in part:

"I want to express to you the shock of the American people at the death of your correspondent, Paul Guihard, last night in Oxford, Miss.

"The American people, I am sure, as well as the law-abiding citizens in the State of Mississippi, share my sorrow that this could have happened in our country.

"Please you will convey my condolences to his family."

Hydro Moves Mechanical Shop To New Quarters

The Ontario Hydro's East Central Division vehicle maintainance shop moved, over the last weekend, from their 26 Harriet St., location, to 195 Moira St. The move was made because the lease had expired, and not been renewed, on the Harriet St. property.

The new shop, which will be in operation within the next two or three days, employs three auto mechanics. These men, with one other, in a smaller shop in Peterborough, maintain all the vehicles owned by the East Central Ontario Division of the Hydro.

The new shop is in a building owned by College Motors. Gordon Crake, owner of College Motors said yesterday the section of the building rented to the Hydro was not required for his use, and that the presence of a hydro shop would not interfere with his own work. The Hydro has agreed, according to Mr. Crake, to rent the shop for one year.

Presbyterian Synod to Meet Here Oct. 16-17

The Toronto-Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada will meet in-St. Andrew's Church here on Oct. 16 and 17.

The theme speaker will be the Rev. David J. Ernsberger, minister of Greenhills Community Church (Presbyterian), Cincinnati, Ohio, whose subject will be "An Educated Ministry of the Laity."

Mr. Ernsberger is the author of the book, "A Philosophy of Adult Christian Education."

Proposed Land Use Plan To Be Discussed at Hearing

Belleville citizens will have the opportunity of presenting any comment or suggestions in connection with the city's proposed land use plan at an informal Municipal Board hearing.

The hearing is slated for city hall council chambers at 7:30 on the evening of October 11th.

City Planning Engineer Charles Mott notes that copies of the proposed land use plan are posted at Carnegy Public Library, at the post office, and also can be seen at the planning department at city hall.

"Any person having any suggestions in connection with the plan are invited to do so," noted Mr. Mott, "if so it would be appreciated that suggestions could be made in advance of the public meetings and in writing so they may be tabulated."

Advertisements in connection with the public meeting are placed in this newspaper, the first appearing this evening.

The city's land use plan has been in the making for the past three years with a Toronto firm of planning engineers being retained to draw the plan.

Foreign Press Praises Kennedy For His Action

LONDON (AP) — The row over admission of Negro James H. Meredith in the all-white University of Mississippi has aroused strong emotions outside the United States.

There was widespread praise for President Kennedy and almost universal denunciation of Governor Ross Barnett and other Mississippi officials for attempting to bar Meredith.

Chairman Harold Wilson of the British Labor party called the attempt to bar Meredith a "plot on Western civilization."

The Soviet news agency Tass described the University of Mississippi as a "stronghold of bigotry and racism" and charged the governor with instigating the disturbances.

The Ghana press and radio, often critical of U.S. policies, generally praised the story without special prominence to the news value. One newspaper, the independent Accra Evening Pioneer, denounced the "jungle selfishness of a few white Americans.

Newspapers in several countries lamented the Mississippi dispute as crisis confronting the U.S. and the Democratic administration in Washington—much as the Little Rock, Ark., affair five years ago.

The Manchester Guardian said "the whole nature of the United States as a political society" was at stake.

The Guardian called Barnett's action "the most flagrant assault—perhaps the most dangerous—flesh between the federal government and any Southern state since the Supreme Court ruled against segregation eight years ago."

Le Monde said there has been a lot of talk about violence in connection with school integration in the United States "but mostly about violence by white schools where the law has been respected without the least trouble."

Pierre Mayeaux, president of the French Federation of Master Printers, said his organization is ready to "collaborate with your organizations to study the problems of our professional life."

CLOSE UNIVERSITIES

ROME (AP)—Italy's universities were closed today by a wave of student and assistant professors. The strikers said they would stay out the rest of the week. The teachers are demanding creation of more teaching posts and job security for instructors under the rank of full professor. The students are pressing for low cost medical care, cheap restaurant rates and scholarship assistance for graduate study.

Hostages Suggested

Jack Scott, a columnist of the Vancouver Sun, devoted a column recently to a suggestion by one Stephen D. James, an advertising copywriter from New York. Mr. James' suggestion, (and he is himself, according to Jack Scott, willing to be a participant), is that some Americans and some Russians change places, in hopes of preventing a war. The idea is that Russians will be hesitant to aim rockets at the United States if there are enough Russians there, and that the United States would have the same reservations about bombing a Russia partially populated by Americans.

According to Mr. James' suggestion, the initial participants in the scheme should be relatives of President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev. The theory is that, barring a family squabble, each side would hold hostages of personal concern to the opposing leaders.

The problems of language training and job adjustment might prove a barrier to the scheme, but both Jack Scott and Mr. James have faith in the organizational abilities of both nations, and the probability that these problems could be overcome. It would be a relatively simple job, considering the benefit it offers, to transplant all American and all Russian universities, complete with facilities, students and staff. American students, for example, would attend American universities, in the heartland of Russia, and Russians could be Russian-educated in the United States. The security value of the arrangement would be unparalled, because neither nation could survive with a whole crop of university students wiped out. Further, the understanding that might be developed between Russians educated in the United States and Americans educated in Russia would alone be worth the cost of the scheme.

There is, in fact, only one hitch. Russia, we are sure, is not secure enough in her appreciation of communism to consent to the wholesale exposure of her youth to the United States. And we assume the Russians are sure that Americans are not secure enough in their appreciation of capitalism to consent to the wholesale exposure of American youth to Russia. Probably, both groups would be surprised if the experiment were carried out.

But one might safely bet the experiment would never be carried out. Ideal as the scheme might be made to appear, we suspect it is just one of those things for which 20th Century man just hasn't got enough nerve.

Too Old for Job?

A mob of Negroes in Kinloch, near St. Louis, Mo., has demonstrated over the killing of a Negro by a police officer. The demonstrations included arson, and rioting in which people have been wounded.

An interesting feature of the incidents is that officer who killed the Negro, apparently by accident, was himself a Negro, 74 years old. The accident occurred during a struggle for the officer's gun, which resulted from an attempt to serve a careless driving warrant.

It is commendable that the white Kinloch police, in the southern United States, are backing up a Negro member of their force. But one might wonder about how the man came to be in his unfortunate position.

A police officer has a strenuous job, and although there may be no need to set, or enforce, a retirement age for police officers, an officer on the beat should be in good physical condition. Any man 74 years old, if he is not retired from the force, should at least be given assignments for which there is no need to carry a gun, and no reasonable likelihood of a struggle.

Just Shenanigans

The Soviet embassy in Ottawa has published a rather uncomplimentary report of some American students' activities in Canada. According to the report, they have been chasing women about in trains, drinking, and propositioning female railway conductors.

The Russians, as they always do in a Russian news release, reacted with marvellous restraint. It was only when one American tried to stab a train chief with a bottle opener that the Russians tied him and locked him up until he was sober.

According to the report, a police sergeant who watched them commented, "what can you do with them, they're our guests?" If the report is correct, the sergeant's comment is commendable. But it is likely the Russians would have found a ready solution to the problem if the Americans had done something really serious, such as offering criticism of a five-year plan.

Pearson Erases Suspense, Sets Future Voting Pattern

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Unless he has made a last-minute switch, Liberal Leader Pearson by now has moved his first want-of-confidence motion against the Government.

This is a direct challenge to the Government, questioning its right to remain in power.

In moving want-of-confidence, an Opposition in effect says: "You have done a thoroughly bad job . . . now get out and make room for someone who can do better."

Others, like the motion Mike Pearson is moving, must be taken on its face value.

He has been hinting it for weeks, inviting the two splinter parties to join him, and in a three-way combination add Social Credit's 30 votes and the New Democrats' 19 to the Liberals' 100, and so throw out the 116 Conservative rascals.

There is one hitch in the Pearson strategy . . . and that is, if it does not work, he is stuck with it.

TRIES — AND LOSES

Just as he advertised his motion well in advance, so, too, did the two Splinter Opposition groups publicly proclaim they would not vote with it merely to overthrow the Government and force an election.

Therefore, they would have no confidence motions of their own to worded, probably, as to defeat Mike Pearson's plea for Liberals, or indeed, by each other.

On that basis, then, this would leave Mike Pearson with his 100 votes, and possibly, a small handful of New Democrats, including mavericks Doukhobor Dave Barrett Arthur and Harold Winch of Vancouver East; who would vote for almost anything if it meant flinging the Diefenbaker Conservatives.

So there, on the first challenge in the first week of the new Parliament, is the threat to oust the government to the test with a non-confidence motion — and, if there has been a change in caucus election-day switch in Liberal strategy or decision realignment of Social Credit and New Democrat votes, he fails short of the Conservatives' majority required to topple the Tories.

Now, in Parliament after Parliament, session after session, for years, no-confidence votes routinely were moved by the Opposition; and lost. But this is different Parliament, with a minority Government ruling on borrowed time at best.

NO SUSPENSE

But right away, by his direct no-confidence challenge, Mike Pearson removes whatever suspense there might have been in this dramatic situation.

He establishes in the very first vote in the first week of the Session that the Splinter Opposition parties will vote with him on a Government-beating vote, and as simple arithmetic has shown all along, the Liberals, in turn, thus pass a pattern.

Social Credit and even the NDP begin getting used to "supporting" the Liberals by their votes swing in behind the Government . . . and the Liberals' start getting accustomed to have to fight alone, or at best, with only some Splinter support.

How much more deadly it would have been for Mike Pearson to have kept the Government in suspense. Instead of directly challenging on a no-confidence vote, he could have served notice that he alone is rather dramatically, too — that he was putting the Government on "suspended sentence". If it got creaking with sound legislation, he presumably would string along — but only so far as its performance deserved support. Then, when it failed . . . then boom, the Liberals would swing the executioner's axe.

Even then, if they did wait, they couldn't vote out the Government, but at least this "suspended sentence" sort of strategy would worry the Conservatives, create tension and suspense and give the Liberals the next best thing to a whip hand in the Commons . . . but then, at the last moment, Mike Pearson may have changed all this and be amending his political battle plan.

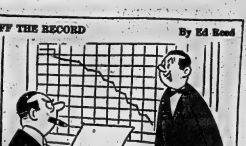
Letter To The Editor

Deplores Failure Of Women to Vote

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

We ask why did so many of our women refrain from voting? It was such an individual opportunity to protect our children from the evils of strong drink.



God has given to women a power, in fact the Standards are high, much more than to men. When women widely disapprove of anything, it soon disappears from our midst."The blame lies with the men to the cure of the drink evil".

There are two good reasons why we should oppose the use of strong drink. First: Sir Wilfred Grenfell, the "Hero of the Labrador Coast", said, "Alcohol has wrecked more homes, murdered more children and starved more children, than any other single factor". The statement has never been challenged. It is a challenge to us.

Second: Alcohol is classed in the Federal Government as an narcotic drug and labeled poison. Science says alcohol, not changed by digestion, directly affects the brain, where it enters in its raw state. It affects first, the area of the brain, that controls the highest in nature, the will, judgment, conscience and the most lofty in us — worship, adoration, love, prayer. It numbs these cells — puts them to sleep, so they do not function. So we know the truth in this statement, "The first glass, silences the voice of God". What a condemnation! could anything be more sad?

Let us ponder these statements and recall the words of the Lord Himself, "Woe unto Capitalli statesman. "All that is necessary for evil to triumph is for good people to do nothing".

Mrs. E. Farnsworth.

"How that business has slowed down, I wondered if you'd had time to think about giving me that raise?"

The duck artillery thundered its first salvos along bay, marsh and lake yesterday morning as the official hunting season opened under spring-like conditions. If noise of the early morning 'barrage' can be judged a criterion, there were plenty of nimrods out for the opening season ceremonies. Some ardent duck hunters were noted in the city yesterday, one party bringing with them a duck-boat camouflaged in a pattern that would do credit to the Royal Navy.

Mystery surrounds the finding of three bags of grain on North Front Street here on Monday night. The grain, weighing about three hundred weight in all, was found lying on the street pavement by Constables Arnott and Wright who were patrolling that part of the city during the midnight. The grain is being held at the police station pending report of such fodder being reported missing.

Miss Trenton comes the story of a 300-pound school bell being stolen from the belfry of York Road schoolhouse on Sunday night. Fred Ryon, caretaker of the school, reported to the police stating that he traced where the bell had been rolled down from the belfry across the roof and dropped to the ground where it made quite an impression in the earth. It was then dragged along the hedge way for about a mile and a half to the farm of Fred Tye Little, where apparently the thieves were tired, and there the bell still is.

Survival Rests on Man's Moral Growth

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend in from Washington was telling me about our complex and elaborate defense system, with its computerized, intricate lines of communication and our enormously ingenious means of anticipating an enemy attack.

I told me nothing secret, of course, and nothing in detail that the general outlines of the program, and the technical ramifications. As I listened, I became more and more glum.

His story did not make me feel safe, but worry. The contrast was so appallingly great — between our technical ingenuity and our lack of machinery for keeping and holding the peace.

If one-fiftieth of the brains and money and time and energy the nation has put into arms went to devising a world system for peace, we would be well on our way toward a solution of present international difficulties.

Why should so much of our intelligence and cunning and resources go toward preparing a war apparatus, and so little toward the enormous problems that face the human race; food and shelter and disease and population explosions and economic justice?

It is not enough to blame the Russians for this impasse; long before Communism was ever heard, nations behaved in exactly the same manner.

The difference today — the dismal and depressing difference — is that now we have the means, with technical ability to provide a decent habitation, and subsistence, for most of the world. Imagine what a fraction of billions spent for armaments could mean in term of productivity in every corner of the globe.

The problem extends far beyond politics; it is the central moral problem of our society, of survival itself. Are we to perish wholly, because we mobilize all our resources for annihilation, and not for creation? Is it the final irony of the human race that we deliberately use our wealth and skill for destruction?

And this problem cannot be solved at the political level, the diplomatic level, the ideological level; it can be only solved at the moral and spiritual level, only when enough people stand up as individuals to protest against this lunatic betrayal of the human race.

How can we prevent such magnificent machines, devised with brilliant ingenuity, from cooperate in such scientific ventures — and yet fail to use any of our God-given reason to construct a world order that is based on reason and civilized? Our means are miracles of ingenuity, our ends are barbarous remnants of primitive times. We are living in the most exciting century of history; and it may be the last one.

After the warning bell announced that it was time for the Louvre to close for the afternoon, we heard one old museum guard grumbling loudly to another as they shepherded the crowds out: "Every day for the last 20 years it's been the same. There's always somebody who's the last to leave."!

To Your Good Health

Must Use Right Approach, Stop Children Smoking

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter will be eight years old in a few months and I am having a smoking problem with her. At the tender age of two she wanted to smoke so I finally let her take a deep drag and she choked.

"Then she let me alone about cigarettes until a year ago when she started pestering again. A week ago I got some cheap cigars and told her to smoke, thinking she would get sick and not want them any more.

"Well, sir, she smoked a whole cigar and then a cigarette. While smoking she drank a quart and a half of water. She didn't get sick and she was inhaling.

"Then I had her purple mouth wash, thinking she might swallow some and it would churn her insides. Will try anything I tried worked.

"Next morning I hurried her to the bathroom, telling her the doctor told me her throat would clear up. She would have to make a long cut in her neck so she could breathe if she ever smoked any more, and to stop it, I would have to swab it good.

"Over her protests I painted her throat with antiseptic three times that day. I guess by now I think I have frightened her. She says she doesn't want to smoke anymore.

"She does have what the doctor calls chronic tonsilitis. She knows what a sore throat really is like. Have you ever heard of anything like this and how would you solve the problem?" — Mrs. A.

No, and I hope I never do hear of anything like it. (Some people wonder about many parental letters I receive — this is a prize example.)

I'm sure you know by now, but mostly for the little girl, all children want to do everything they are grownups do. This includes smoking. The answer is just, "No". Not until you are much older," or that's that. No arguments. No fancy tricks.

That's what your monkey-business with the cigars and the dirty trick, and it certainly bewildered.

I'd guess that she was just as stubborn as you were, once you set down together for discussion.

When none of your other tricks aimed at making her sick succeeded, you tried to scare the daylights out of her with that story about the "doctor". Shame on you!

And I wonder what her "tonsilitis" really is. Could it be partly psychosomatic — the result of her imagination, based on your scare story? Such physical reactions to mental suggestions are far from unknown. The slap, the brutal swabbing of the child's throat.

Now Sir Walter Scott wisely wrote: "Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive."

Maybe the smoking problem is solved. But you've substituted some worse things, like fear, and deception. I'd let the whole thing drop now and try to.

Note to Mrs. S.: When a person flagrantly refuses to keep clean, or even wash before sitting down to eat, I suppose it would be justifiable to refuse to serve meals until he has had a bath, shower or tub and water on himself.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Either the TV and radio commercials are getting longer and more frequent, or else they are just too long and loud when they have to say. Maybe it is just that we are getting away from TV and radio all summer and have forgotten how many interval how tedious the commercials are. Possibly we will get used to them again, but we have got to come in off the porch, and somebody always runs the thing down. In the last few weeks, we are going to be very irritable with the poor guys who have to write the commercials.

The art of the punch line appears to be on the wane in advertising world. Instead of punch, the boys appear to rely on repition. Repetition has always been a basic dogma in the advertising profession; but it you had to find a punch line to repeat. What many of the commercials are doing this fall is repeat words with no punch at all in it as if they believed that repetition is the key to the secret of selling.

The art of a program of which it may be said that if they hired a duck to make the commercials, and if it a duck just went "quack, quack, quack" it would be exactly the same results as they are obtaining now. Perhaps more, because the duck would at least be attentive to what the duck was trying to say.

tion remained in doubt at the end of Monday's sitting. The Liberal party's legal battery wished more time to prepare for cross-examining him, but apparently a series of private conferences during the day failed to settle the matter.

Meanwhile, R. J. Cudney, deputy provincial secretary, was to open today's evidence.

FELLS OF TROUPS

Before the minister testified Monday, the commission heard from an unemployed steelworker, Carmelo Troupes, who said he was convicted burglar from Buffalo, N.Y., that he had been in two Canadian gambling clubs in the Niagara area when they received advance tipoffs on police raids.

George Hochvert also said of the two clubs:

1. The Canadian Navy Merchant Veteran Club was operated by Felix Borelli, Niagara Falls, Ont., businessman and gambler, and Ben Nicoletti of Niagara Falls, N.Y., gambler, said reported Mafia member.

2. The Ramsey Club was run by Nicoletti and by Joseph Mastel of Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Both clubs now are closed. Hochvert placed the date several months time before 1957, although he was not sure of the year. He also appeared uncertain of the location of each club, sometimes answering the location of the Ramsey and Veterans Club, which were respectively in Niagara Falls, Ont., and nearby Bertie Township.

Hochvert told the inquiry he had been in each club two or three times when warnings of police raids were received in time for crapshooting paraphernalia to be removed and gamblers settle down to shooting pool and billiards.

In each case, he said, the warning had been received before police appeared outside the club.

APPEARS VOLUNTARILY

Hochvert appeared voluntarily — commission counsel Lorne Shipley does not extend to the United States. His appearance surprised even Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, who said he was initially surprised.

Hochvert's only explanation was that he had promised it some time ago to Sgt. John Anderson of Ontario provincial Police anti - gambling squad, whom he met several years ago and who brought him from Buffalo this morning.

The Buffalo man said that in the Canadian Club he had seen Nicoletti and Borelli—who has denied gambling club financial connections — working the "Canadian Tables" several times.

The pair seemed to be in charge, he said under questioning by Mr. Wilson C. Rose, counsel for several of those mentioned as gamblers, and he had seen them on occasion bringing in new money before the start of the night's play.

Leo Falco, O'Neill of the Detroit police force told the commission that Vito (Billy) Giacalone of that city, reported to the commission as a bankroller of the now-closed Roseland Club near Windsor, was "a big man in Detroit gambling but not the top."

His brother Tony was reputed to be head of "the syndicate" in gambling organization—for the Detroit area.

The officer said he knows of no present connections of Detroit gamblers in Windsor and thought that Billy Giacalone's activities there occurred around 1951-52. He did not know of Harry Glassman, a Detroiter reported to have visited the nightly bankroll to and from the Roseland.

New Addition To Collegiate Will Start Soon

PICTON — More than one million dollars is to be spent on the technical wing at the Prince Edward Collegiate in Picton.

Government approval has been received for the expenditure of $676,881 on construction of the wing. Other costs involved are $174,800 for technical equipment, $34,922 architects' fees. The sum of $11,999 for sales tax is not included in the total since it is rebatable.

Delay in construction is, in part, due to the fact that there were no tenders received in July when the first bids were called, the plans being viewed by contractors as too complicated for their prices. New tenders were called for after a revision of plans. There were six tenders received in August and the lowest—that of the Foundation Company of Canada Ltd., Ottawa, was accepted subject to the approval of the Federal-Provincial governments as to increased costs —all tenders being above the estimate set aside—and the architects. This low-cost tender was for $876,881.00.

Chairman of the Collegiate board, Gordon L. Bell, said work will start immediately and the wing is expected to be completed in September, 1963.

The board met Monday night with further plans.

In spite of the austery program of the Federal government, Douglas Aikenbrack, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox, succeeded in obtaining the board's request for a higher grant than was first approved. The original estimate of cost was $702,000 for the building and $174,800 for equipment, plus the architects fees.

Cost of construction and equipment is shared completely by the Ottawa (50 per cent) and provincial governments (25 per cent). Board members praised Mr. Aikenbrack on his efforts.

NEW APPROVAL GIVEN

The amount for equipment had previously been approved, but due to increased estimates, new government approval had to be secured.

Thus approved expenditures on the wing are now $876,-881 for construction; $174,-800 for equipment, and $34,992 for architects' fees. A total of $1,106,653.

Town Bid In Three Properties Offered in Sale

PICTON — There were no bids for three properties offered in a tax sale by the town treasurer, W. D. McArthur reported. As a result the town has title to the three properties, a house and lot on Bridge St. and two vacant lots with arrears of $1,363 and $1,283. Six properties were originally advertised for 13 weeks and before the first sale three owners paid tax arrears. No bids were made at the first sale on Sept. 26.

While the town loses taxes on these properties it can charge rent.

Voters Turn Down School In Township

PICTON — Sophiasburg township voters turned down a proposal which would have resulted in the building of a central school in Bloomfield village.

Vote by polls: No. 1, 41 for, 29 against; No. 2, 14 for, 85 against; No. 3, 12 for, 36 against; No. 4, 26 for, 47 against.

The total vote of three hundred is approximately one-

Prize-Winning Apples Given Prime Minister

Writing to the secretary of Prince Edward Agricultural Society, the Prime Minister said: "Mr. Aikenbrack very kindly brought me prize-winning box of McIntosh apples so thoughtfully presented by you on behalf of Prince Edward Agricultural Society for which I would like to thank you most warmly. You may be sure that these will be greatly enjoyed. Again expressing my appreciation to you and the members of the society."

Charles Creasy of Waupoos, who grew and exhibited the award winning apples, also received a personal letter from Mr. Diefenbaker, who wrote: "I have been asked to be the recipient of the box of prize winning apples from the Prince Edward Fair, which I am advised were grown and exhibited by you. May I congratulate you on your fine achievement and wish you continued success in the future. With all good wishes."

In the letter accompanying the gift the society secretary expressed appreciation to the government for the generous grants which helped make possible the erection of the agricultural and recreation centre at the fair grounds, and co-operation given by the Department of Agriculture.

Hydro Power At Collegiate Off Two Hours

PICTON — Hydro electric power at Prince Edward Collegiate was off for two hours one night last week when a huge underground cable burned out. One line had to be switched off and a second one used, and fortunately it proved adequate to carry the load. The lead-in to the collegiate, from a transformer near by, is second only to that of the cement plant for load. The line leads from the transformer pole to the ground with two 4-inch pipes carrying the inch-in-diameter wires. The big wire in the centre between the two others is 1¼ inches in diameter and not covered, and carries the overflow load back to the transformer. When phases 1, 2 and 3 blew, the power fed back to the transformer, blowing out the fuses there. The heavy cable was burned through, but since it is buried a foot beneath the surface, no one was injured, though the occurrence was reported by principal J. H. Syrett who was standing on the school steps at the time.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Genevieve J. — We want our children to learn how to handle telephone calls.

Norma T. — Here I sit with a long list of committee members to canvass about a protest meeting and I'm bottlenecked by Genevieve's Jeffie.

You dial that number any time before 9 at night and you get baby talk. "Hi, dis is Jeffie. J-E-F-F-R-E-E-Y. I'm 3. Are you 3, too?" That sort of thing. Call your mother, I say. Call your father. Call somebody else. What do I hear? "We have a new turtle. His name is Google."

I hope the council can impress Genevieve with the fact that the telephone isn't a plaything, that it's a vital tool with which adults communicate, and that I'm not carried away with Jeffie's cuteness or brilliance in picking up the receiver. Let him stick to his fingerpaints.

Genevieve J. — Norma has no children of her own and tends to be impatient with anyone under 18. But I've known her since I was a child and I admire her as a wonderful worker in the community. So I'm glad to explain why we encourage Jeffie to handle the telephone.

We want him to regard a telephone as a friend, and to feel at ease with it. He's only 3, and right now all I can work on is his attitude towards the instrument. Later on he can enjoy it. And he does! His face lights up when he hears the bell, and he races to answer it.

The Council: To Norma, and most of us, a telephone is a tool for talking to someone who isn't within earshot. But many individuals have their own views of what the clangorous box is for. The soil-social deem it a torture weapon, while the teenagers it's pure oxygen to sustain them! And to small Jeffie, it's a gadget from which adults make funny sounds and into which he can make funny sounds, too.

We're certainly with Genevieve in her campaign to give Jeffie into a very junior-grade operator. From time to time we read of a life being saved by a toddler, who knew how to toddle to the telephone and Dial O for Operator, or by a preschooler who'd been trained to give his name and address in an emergency to save the time required for tracing a call. But we agree with Norma that Genevieve has been lax in defining limits for Jeffie. After Hallo, his next words should be, "Please hold the wire." And then, back to his own affairs. Calls for his mother are none of his business.

In her new paperback volume, "How To Get Along with Your Child," Shirley Camper, a consultant to the Child Study Assn., offers some easy steps for achieving Genevieve's purpose — familiarity with the telephone for her son. She suggests getting two toy phones so that a child can get into a game of taking turns, first placing calls and then receiving them. Other ideas are: Have children call and specifically ask for Jeffie . . . Let him dial a few calls under supervision . . . Start his own directory for him, indicating special numbers (Grandma's, his best friend's, Dad's) with colored diagrams . . . Allow him to call "neutral" destinations, such as Weather and Time, just for the important feeling this gives him.

But as Norma rightly says, tests, most important is the unbusinesslike pickup of the receiver. Jeffie's too young to be naturally businesslike, and Genevieve hasn't trained him to answer a call correctly. We urge the latter to answer the phone herself or, if she permits Jeffie to do so, that she brief him carefully and . . . if he survives fast, praise him lavishly afterwards.

U.C.W. Meetings

WHITE'S UNITED CHURCH

WHITE'S DISTRICT —Mrs. William Waterman opened her home for the September meeting of the U.C.W. on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. T. F. Townsend presiding over a fine meeting.

The devotional was taken by Mrs. W. Jones. All joined in singing "Work for the Night is Coming." Mrs. Yateman read Psalm 8. Mrs. W. Jones closed with prayer.

An invitation was received from Mrs. Tennant of Stone United Church to attend their bazaar on October 31st.

October meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Arnold Hutchinson with Mrs. C. Stickle as devotional leader. The thank offering will be received at that meeting.

Mrs. W. Jeffery was to make arrangements for having the church stoves cleaned. Mrs. Jeffery offered to donate a quart of paint for the entrance floor and Mr. W. Jones offered to paint the floor.

Mrs. Townsend read a letter from Mrs. Weatherhead regarding the conference of United Church Women. Mrs. Yeteman read the story of "O God Our Help In Ages Past" and three verses of this hymn were sung.

Mrs. Townsend read from the Study Book "Into the Sunset." The United Church now has 18 homes for Senior Citizens. Frank Edwards married a teacher named Alicia and there were three children. The two boys died and daughter Alicia married and moved to India. Alicia died and Frank was left alone. He attended church as long as he was able. Later a member of the church board and of the W.A. called on him and asked him to accept a room in a Senior Citizens' home. In pleasant surroundings he enjoyed life again.

Japanese Ambassador's Wife Enjoys Entertaining Guests in Her Own Home

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—The wife of the Japanese ambassador to Canada enjoys the North American custom of entertaining guests at home.

"It's much better because you can bring guests into the family atmosphere," says Mrs. Nobuhiko Ushiba, explaining that in Tokyo guests usually are taken to restaurants.

Japanese dishes are served at lunch time but breakfast and dinner are typically Western style. The food is prepared by a Japanese cook who was trained in the traditional French style.

Since coming to Canada last October, Mrs. Ushiba has been studying English. An interpreter was present for the interview in the spacious embassy in suburban Rockcliffe but she answered most questions without his help.

Her favorite pastime is doing tray landscapes, an ancient art form peculiar to Japan. Scenes are done by sifting sand onto black lacquered trays. A third dimension is added by pieces of rock which serve as mountains, small pebbles and tiny figures. A feather is used to clear away any unwanted sand.

WEARS WESTERN CLOTHES

The trays are changed every week or two. Sometimes guests touch the trays without realizing the material is not fastened, and the scene is ruined. For special occasions, the ambassador's wife dons traditional Japanese clothing. But normally she wears Western dresses and high-heeled shoes.

Mrs. Ushiba had an old-fashioned upbringing in Kyoto, Japan's cultural centre. She plays the koto, a 12-string Japanese harp. Before her marriage, she learned the traditional tea ceremony, flower arranging, cooking and sewing.

The quiet of the embassy is periodically shattered by the Ushibas' 15-year-old daughter, Reiko, and her friends. Since coming to Canada she has become adept at baseball and swimming, and frequently arrives home with a troop of young friends.

A son, Akihiko, 22, is attending university in Tokyo. Two other daughters are married and each has one child.

This is the first time Mrs. Ushiba has accompanied her husband to a foreign country. She stayed in Japan with their son and three daughters when he was in Burma, England and Germany. For the four years prior to his Canadian posting the ambassador was director of economics for the foreign affairs bureau in Tokyo.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

With the party season well under way, many guests might well ask themselves the following questions to see if they're behaving as well as they should:

1. How soon after the receipt of an invitation should it be answered?

2. Is it always necessary to respond to an invitation, even if there's no R.S.V.P.?

3. How long is a guest expected to remain at a tea party?

4. Must a guest wait until introduced by his hostess before talking with others at a party?

5. Is it permissible to discuss controversial subjects, such as politics, at a party?

6. As long as the conversation is stimulating and not argumentative.

7. He may, if the host or hostess requests help, or if they accept an offer of assistance when it's volunteered.

8. If there's a guest of honor, guests usually wait until he leaves. If not, then guests may start to depart about a half-hour after dinner, if no additional entertainment is planned.

9. Very close friends might, but other guests generally depart with the main group.

10. The hostess should be thanked, but if the host is getting coats or busy taking care of guests, it'd not necessary to track him down to say goodnight if it will inconvenience anyone.

Life of Diplomat's Wife Hectic But Satisfying

HALIFAX (CP)—The life of a wife of the Australian high diplomat's wife is strenuous and hectic at times, but "no satisfying," says Lady R. G. Casey, wife of the Australian high commissioner to Canada.

Despite frequent travelling and heavy entertaining obligations, Mrs. Casey says the rewarding feature is the people she encounters.

"I love meeting all kinds of people. This, to me, is the most interesting aspect of my life."

During a holiday visit to Halifax, the high commissioner and Mrs. Hay and their 12-year-old son, Alan, were guests of Lieutenant-Governor E. C. Plow and Mrs. Plow. Another son Andrew, 17, is in Australia attending school.

"I find living in Ottawa very similar to living in Canberra. The Canadian way of life is similar to that in Australia but the climate is slightly different."

Mrs. Hay said Australian women are style - conscious. Their tastes are close to those of their Canadian counterparts.

"However, I think we do wear more woollens and sports attire."

Mrs. Hay is enthusiastic from a woman's viewpoint about advances in the Australian textile industry. She says woollen fabrics that need no pressing have been developed, also a pure cotton material that is given and blocked like silk and doesn't crush, "a boon to women's styles."

Mother's Helper

RUNNING A SMALL, informal play group for not more than four toddlers can be a rewarding summer project for your young daughter. This implies, of course, that you have sufficient yard and house space and that you are willing to be at home to keep an eye on things. A couple of morning hours should be enough, with a break for juice and crackers.

Lunches at Home

by Mary Moore

Last week I gave you a list of home lunch suggestions and a recipe for a Canadian Pork Pie which I recommended for home lunches. Then I promised more lunch ideas today.

I have for you a recipe for Spanish Noodle Lunch which lends itself to variations. Its prime virtue for me is that you may utilize and extend a small amount of leftover meat in it. Tomato Pilaf is another not dish particularly suited to home lunches. If you are not familiar with Pilaf you will welcome it as a new vegetable item for your dinner menus too.

TUESDAY

Corned Beef Brisket; Horseradish Sauce; Baked Beets Julienne (see Monday); Boiled Potatoes in Parsley Butter; Shredded Carrot and Celery Salad with Mayonnaise; Plum Cobbler; Lemon - Nutmeg Sauce; Tea.

SPANISH NOODLE LUNCH:

4 ounces wide noodles, 2 medium onions sliced, ½ cup bacon drippings or salad oil, ½ pound ground beef or leftover cooked meat such as beef, ham, veal, pork or chicken, 1 20-oz. can tomatoes, ¾ teaspoon chili powder (optional), 1½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Sauté the onions in bacon drippings or oil. When golden brown remove onions and fry the dry noodles and beef in the drippings until browned. You must stir constantly. Add excess fat. Add onions, green pepper, tomatoes, chili powder, if used, salt and peppery. Cover and simmer until noodles are tender. Stir occasionally. Season to taste.

TOMATO PILAF:

2 tablespoons shortening, 2-3 cup uncooked rice, 1 cup onion, finely chopped, 4 cups cooked tomatoes, 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery, (or more), 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, (1 cup cooked meat may be added).

Put shortening in frying pan. When hot, add rice and stir until rice is light brown in color. Add onions and tomatoes. Season with salt and pepper. Cover. When mixture reaches steaming point, reduce heat to simmer and cook until rice is soft, covered. If you find it necessary to stir mixture, better use a fork so you won't mash the rice. If meat is used, add with tomatoes and onions.

Also see July 25/62 column for Summer Cottage Luncheon Dishes where you will find recipes for Potato-Meat Patties (calling for instant potato and canned luncheon meat) and 5-1-1/2-5 Lunch Dish, calling for macaroni and hamburg meat and cheese.

'Building Tomorrow's Hospital Today' Topic at W.C. Club

"Give people the challenge and they will rise to the occasion", so stated Mr. Gordon A. Friesen, one time administrator of the Belleville General Hospital, as he addressed a large gathering of the Women's Canadian Club at their first meeting of the season held in Queen Alexandra School, last evening. His topic was "Building the Hospital of Tomorrow, Today".

Mr. Friesen, who was introduced by the new president, Mrs. J. Forrester, is now an internationally known consultant on every hospital function. He ventures at the graduate schools of the University of Western Ontario, St. Louis University, George Washington University and the Catholic University, Washington, D.C. He served three years with the RCAF as Squadron Leader and is a consultant to the United States Air Force, and locally has been appointed consultant to the Belleville General Hospital Board.

The president welcomed everyone back for the new season and also expressed her appreciation to the various committees and their chairman, which she named for the fine ground work which has been done. She announced that the annual dinner meeting will be held on November 8 at the Hotel Quinte and that tickets are now available.

Prior to the introduction of the guest speaker, Mrs. D. J. MacKinnon, on behalf of the members presenting Mrs. R. D. Arnott, with a past president's pin in appreciation of her splendid leadership during the past two years.

In his opening remarks the speaker stated that his four and one half years stay in Belleville was one of the most interesting experiences in his hospital career. He based his talk on hospitals in general and not any one in particular and described the average hospital being 20 years old when the doors are officially opened. In a brief outline of administration statistics he stated that Canadian hospitals vary little from others with 2.4 employees per hospital bed and that 70 cents of every dollar spent, goes into the payroll.

The speaker stressed the need for efficient service and that only through a retraining program could this be accomplished. "Most things are not new but merely a new application", he said.

Mr. Friesen felt that hospital administration should follow along the line of industry and maintained that a hospital should be designed so that the professional staff have what they need when they want it, with the physical mental and spiritual aspect of the patient more in mind. With this new form of automation and production line principle the nurse would be able to give 100 per-cent of her time to patient care.

Through illustrated colored slides the speaker gave a general concept of what this new system is accomplishing. Colored slides of various hospitals were shown and these were located in Fernando; El Paso, Texas; Washington, D.C.; Denver, Colorado; St. Louis, Missouri; and St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton; where this new assembly line policy was in effect. There was some opposition by the staff at first owing to the insecurity at the change. Through the showing of the slides the speaker pointed out that everything is pre-packaged and everything is standardized with one area where all supplies are sent to any of the floors. These are all sent out by automation and there is a basic complement of supplies for every diagnosis. The patients' rooms are on either side of these central despatch centres. The nurses work in teams so that they can care for their patients more efficiently.

Mr. Friesen also showed colored slides of the primitive hospitals in Costa Rica, where he conducted an overall survey of hospital conditions in that country.

In his closing remarks, the speaker stated that every hospital should have a constant preventive maintenance system for the most efficient service, after which a most enlightening question and answer period followed.

Mrs. M. F. L. Jones expressed thanks to the speaker and on behalf of the members presented him with a little token of appreciation.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Technology Grads Hold Dinner-Dance

Last Saturday evening a formal dinner-dance was held in the charmingly floral bedecked Plantation Room at Hotel Quinte, under the sponsorship of the graduating class of the medical laboratory technologists, with approximately 85 present.

Mrs. Olive Nicholson, of Trenton, who is shortly leaving Ontario for Winnipeg, Manitoba, was the hostess-convener. During the evening a gift of books, on behalf of the school was presented to Dr. Rots, by Mrs. Eileen Cook, class president, also gifts of appreciation were presented to Miss Mac-Kinnon, chief instructor of the school, and to Mrs. Loukes, past instructress by the graduates, Misses Dianne Kross of St. Catharines, and Miss Betty Lou Brickman, of Trenton.

Entertainment was in the form of two solos provided by Miss Glenna Sprague, of Trenton, and a buffet dinner under the expert guidance of Mr. J. Hogan, Maitre d' Hotel Quinte and his highly efficient staff.

Among those present were: Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Rots; Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Ross; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Dieckhaus, administrator of Belleville General Hospital; Dr. and Mrs. D. Cook, chief of staff at Belleville General Hospital and others.

The delightful floral arrangement of white, bronze and yellow mums, which added greatly to the evening's enjoyment was presented by Mrs. Charles Taylor of Belleville R. R. No. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Allen David Jaynes are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Margaret Ruth Rowbotham, daughter of Mr. Harry Wallbridge of Belleville, and the late Mrs. Wallbridge. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jaynes, of Newburgh, Ontario.

JAYNES — ROWBOTHAM

A lovely double-ring wedding took place recently in the church parlors of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, when Margaret Ruth Rowbotham, Belleville, daughter of Mr. Harry Wallbridge and the late Mrs. Ethel Wallbridge became the bride of Roy Allen David Jaynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jaynes, of Newburgh, Ontario.

The bride was charming in pink organza over taffeta with flowered hat and white accessories. She carried a nosegay of mauve and white 'mums.

Mrs. Ruth Plane as matron of honor was charming in beige organza over taffeta, with yellow and white accessories. She carried a nosegay of yellow and white 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Clarence Jaynes of Foxboro.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the dining room of Johnny's restaurant at the Shopping Plaza. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in turquoise and white with white accessories, and corsage of white carnations. The bride's aunt wore flowered turquoise with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Old Cookbook Leans Heavily On Teacup

VERNON RIVER, P.E.I. (CP) — Edward Baker, whose hobby is cooking, found an old cookbook recently while 'repairing' his 100-year-old home, tried some of the recipes and says his family found the dishes delicious.

The old cookbook calls for few accurate measurements, leaning heavily on the teacup as a kitchen utensil. It specifies that you beat egg yolks in teacups, mix yeast in teacups and chop nuts and fruit in teacups.

The author apparently figured housewives of the middle 1800s would usually have big families. For example, a recipe for fricasseed eggs for breakfast stipulates a dozen eggs.

Here are several of the recipes:

Tomato Pie—Peel and slice enough green tomatoes to fill one pie, add four tablespoonsful of vinegar, butter and sugar, flavor with nutmeg and bake slowly with two crusts. You may stew the tomatoes first to prevent the pie from being too juicy.

Fried Bananas—Peel and slice bananas, sprinkle with salt, dip in thin batter and fry in butter. Serve as soon as it is done.

Indian Bread—Two cups of Indian meal, one half cup each of rye meal and wheat flour, two-thirds of a cup of molasses, one pint of sour cream, cooking soda and salt.

Every year it gets harder to improve this car.

It isn't surprising.

After all, we started with a sound idea, and we've been improving it for eleven years. So far we've made nearly 3,000 changes to make the Volkswagen a better automobile.

How can we make so many improvements and still have a car that looks the same year after year?

Simple.

We never change the Volkswagen to make it different, only to make it work better and last longer.

And it's interesting, after eleven years, to see some other car makers starting to do things our way.

The reason?

Many people have decided that depreciation, caused by new models and style changes, is getting too expensive. And they've noticed (with envy) that a Volkswagen never goes out of fashion.

If you want to see the small, but important, changes we've made for '63, visit your Volkswagen dealer. (If you prefer something completely new and exciting, he also has the Volkswagen 1500.)

Child Bride Advises Others

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—Having read the letter from "Worried," I felt I should advise him not to marry a girl so much younger than himself for the following reasons:

1. She might have several children by the time she was twenty and turn into a household drudge.

2. They may think alike now, but as she grows older she will develop a mind of her own and her ideas then may be far apart from his.

3. He admires her now for her youth and innocence, but once his passion is satisfied he'll wonder why he married a doll baby and will berate her when she acts childish.

4. When he is old enough for a pension, she will not be old enough to receive one but would be too old to work, and besides she could not get a position because she has had no training for making a living.

5. He will be angry if she is not a good manager and he will resent it if she has to call on Mama for advice in running the house.

6. If he gets ill and out of work, she will not be prepared to lift the burden in any way from his shoulders.

I could go on with many more reasons why he should give her up for her sake as well as his, for you see I too was once a CHILD BRIDE.

DEAR CHILD BRIDE—The Voice of Experience speaks! Are you listening Mr. "Worried"? Your girl is 16, you are 28—a tremendous gap in ages!

DEAR DORIS—1. What should a person do who goes to the city without knowing anyone. How should she get acquainted with people, make friends, etc?

2. Should a girl seventeen years old, nearly eighteen, be allowed to go her own way?—INDEPENDENT.

DEAR INDEPENDENT—1. Be a joiner—until you find your niche. The Y, your church, a sports club—not all, but some.

2. Depends on what "her own way" is. Some girls seventeen are ready, others not. Dates needs some controls, limits on time and place. Limits on the where's and when's of two-somes.

(Don't just muddle along. Do something! A letter to Doris will get you a new idea. Remember that stamped envelope!

Observe 13th Anniversary Of Red China

PEKING (Reuters) — More than 400,000 people marched through downtown Peking Monday in a traditional parade marking the 13th anniversary of the founding of Communist China.

The parade was held on a grey, chilly morning but the adverse weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the celebrations. Before the parade, Foreign Minister Marshal Chen Yi made a rare appearance in full army uniform to give a 20-minute keynote speech.

He made the usual attacks on "U.S. imperialism" and three times referred to Yugoslav "modern revisionists" as the main danger to the international Communist movement.

Unemployment Running High In United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment has been running higher per capita in the United States than in any other industrial nation of the free world except Canada, a panel of economists reported to President Kennedy Saturday.

The finding in a book-length report issued by the presidential committee named 10 months ago to judge the reliability and usefulness of the U.S. government's monthly statistics on employment and joblessness.

The report by the six-man team of professionals, including labor and industry economists, also said:

The composite unemployment rate of seven major foreign countries in 1960 averaged only 2.1 per cent of the labor force, the report said. The U.S. rate was 5.5 per cent.

Newly-Elected President Of UN General Assembly Loves to Travel, Meet People

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The newly elected president of the United Nations General Assembly is a sprightly young man of 60 who has his feet planted solidly in both the oriental and the occidental worlds.

Muhammad Zafrulla Khan can and does quote with equal facility the Koran in Persian or Arabic and English law precedents in English. In friendly conversation he can quip and banter with a mind like a steel trap. He moves about spryly. Early morning two-mile walks are his favorite recreation. He loves to travel and meet people.

A Moslem, he preaches the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man, and tolerance to those of other religions. He wound up his policy statement to the General Assembly last year with such a plea in Persian. His statement after election contained an Arabic prayer and voiced a hope that God would guide him.

Zafrulla Khan is a veteran of both the old League of Nations and of the United Nations.

WAS INDIAN

He is unique in that he is the only delegate in the United Nations who has held high posts in two important governments. those of India and of Pakistan. He headed the Indian delegation to the League of Nations in 1939 and has headed Pakistan delegations here since 1947. He was Pakistan's foreign minister from 1947 to 1954.

And he has recently been a justice on the World Court, the only delegate now sitting here who has held that post.

Britain made him a Knight Companion of the Star of India in the early 1930s for his work as a lawyer in the Indian subcontinent. Zafrulla Khan did renounce the title after Pakistan became independent. But he does not generally use it. The blue book, where delegates and titles are listed, doesn't use the "Sir."

His gray hair and beard are cropped close. He speaks — bluntly and often at record length—in an accented English and with the singing tone characteristic of those who learned the language in the schools of old British India.

DEVOUT FAMILY

He was born Feb. 6, 1893, in the Sialkot district of the Punjab, the son of a lawyer and Moslem scholar so devout that he later retired from the law for a life of piety.

Then he went on to the University of London where he graduated in law with honors, was called to the bar and was elected an honorary bencher at Lincoln's Inn and an honorary fellow of King's College. In 1937 Cambridge made him an honorary law doctor.

He has been married twice. His first wife now lives in Pakistan. In 1956 he married a Lebanese woman who was a refugee from the Israeli-Arab wars in Palestine.

What every adult should know about "cash values"

The "Cash Value" of permanent personal life insurance has proved a life-saver to many people in times of emergency or "tight money".

When you own permanent personal life insurance policies you combine protection in event of death with steadily increasing cash values—all in one constant premium.

And, when you live through to retirement the accumulated cash values can be converted into an income you cannot outlive!

If you are young or middle-aged you should invest in "Cash Value" insurance while still in good health and while the rates are relatively low. You'll never regret having ample life insurance (the most successful of all long range saving plans) which you own and control.

The Excelsior Life representative in your community has been carefully selected and especially trained to help you plan a "Blueprint for Security" that includes a growing estate for yourself as well as your family. Why not talk to him about it—real soon?

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

This is the week that more grandmothers become ill, dead, broke, missing, or break arms or legs than any other seven-day period of the year.

Executives sleep in; business men have sudden rush calls to certain metropolitan areas; clerks, secretaries, and others contract viruses; those with no grandparents have aunts and uncles who have little time to live—and a few honest ones ask for time out.

It is world series week, an annual sports fever that hits rich and poor, misers and millionaires, housewives and hobos, debutantes and derelicts, in fact everybody with a drop of baseball blood in their veins.

I do not know how many lucky thousands will see the series "live" in New York and on the Pacific coast but it is estimated that some 28 millions will view the games from the living room with Ole Private Eye doing the honors.

There'll be tall, cool ones accompanying hot flat dinners loked in from the kitchens. Pool tickets will grow hot and cold in wallet and pocket. There'll be arguments, discussions and leaves of long green lettuce laid on respective favorites.

If you want to pose as a baseball expert and create a lot of fun with the TV gang, bet 'em that the winner of the second game usually wins the series. Ever since 1922 when they put the series on a seven-game basis the team that won the second game failed to take the series only seven times. That makes it 31 out of 38 times the second-game winner took the series grravy.

Wager that if the score is a shutout the score is most likely to be 3-0 (19 times) or 2-0 (15 times.) But among the 37 other shutouts (total 71) there's never been a 6-0 score. Of the eight series that ended in four games, six were swept by the Yankees, the others by the 1914 Braves and 1954 Giants.

Stick out the chest and tell them that a team that gets behind three games to one usually is up the creek without a peddle. The only teams ever to overcome such a handicap were the 1925 Pirates and the 1958 Yankees. The Pirates won the title even after Washington won the first, third and fourth games. Three years ago the Yankees bounced back after the Braves won the first, second and fourth games.

If "How About That?" tells you the game is all tied up at the end of the ninth, spring this one on the gang. If the game goes 10 or 11 innings the visiting team usually wins. But—if it goes more than 11 innings the home team usually is triumphant. Of the 21 games that have gone into extra innings, 13 have been won by the visitors. Of the six games that have gone 13 or more innings, five have been won by the home team.

Lean back, look wise and observe that more world series games are won before the fifth inning than after the fifth (not counting overtime games.) In all games that have finished in nine innings, the winning run (that is the winning team's fourth run in a 5-3 game, etc.) was scored 142 times before the fifth inning, 41 times before the fifth inning and 117 times in the last four innings. Winningest inning, the fourth (49 times.)

But be very careful with this one particularly if the Dodgers and Maury Wills are in there. It has yet to happen in a world series, a player stealing home with the winning run in the ninth.

But players have stolen home ten times, the last being Jackie Robinson against Tommy Byrne and Yogi Berra in the 1955 series. The other was Monty Irvin sliding under Berra on Allie Reynolds' high delivery in 1951.

Giant Power Explodes Under Dodgers

JUBILANT PAIR—Giants centrefielder Willie Mays, left, and pitcher Billy Pierce are happy pair in Giants dressing room at Candlestick Park yesterday after Pierce pitched San Francisco to a three-hit, 8-0 shutout over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Mays hammered out two homers, his 48th and 49th to take major league home run championship. (AP Wirephoto).

Two Homers, Single, Stolen Base

*Twas A Great Day For "Say-Hey"

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — His boyish grin is still present. So is his high-pitched laughter, his bubbling enthusiasm and that ever wondrous play at bat and afield.

Otherwise, there is little resemblance between the 1962 version of Willie Mays, perhaps baseball's greatest modern star, and the wide-eyed youth who played in the last playoff between the Giants and Dodgers in 1951.

"I'm older and wiser and tireder," observed Willie Monday, as he pondered the years since he joined the Giants in May, 1951, as a frightened fledgling of 20, only two years out of high school.

It wasn't more than an hour after Willie had given one of his greatest performances, in San Francisco Giants' 8-0 triumph over Los Angeles Dodgers that gave San Francisco the first game of the best-of-three series for the National League championship.

HITS TWO HOMERS

Two home runs and a single boomed off Willie's bat. He scored three runs, drove in three and capped the day with a stolen base.

"I think I'm a better ball player now," he said modestly. "But I find I need an occasional rest now."

Willie's complaint about being tired is not new. Manager Alvin Dark had to give him a day off early last month and later he missed three games after collapsing in Cincinnati.

"Willie is under a tremendous strain all the time," says Dark.

"He can't go out in public. He's always in demand. Kids are always after him for autographs. Grownups are always calling him on the telephone. He has to eat in his room. He can't go to a movie or a theatre. He's physically and mentally exhausted."

"I'm worn out but it's not for those reasons," said Willie. "I don't mind the crowds. When people like you so much, it's a privilege to talk with them and shake their hand.

BOUND TO TIRE

"I get tired more from playing every day. I don't care how old you are. Age is no factor. Playing in so many games, and playing day and night, is bound to tire you out.

"People have asked me if I'm so tired why do I play so hard, take batting and outfield practice every day, come out to the park so early. I can't answer that except to say, that's me, I just like to play, I guess."

Despite his troubles—including marital problems last year—Mays has been able to hit over .300, drive in more runs than ever before (140) and hit more runs that any player in the majors this year. His second homer Monday boosted his season total to 49.

He's not-so now, but even the fact he had wrested the major league home run batting championship from Harmon Killebrew of the Minnesota Twins didn't seem to cheer him up.

"All I want to do is win this and win the series," he said.

Mays, Pierce Pace 8-0 Win

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Not Mays, Pierce Pace 8-0 Win By JOE REICHLER LOS ANGELES (AP) — Not Mays, It was the Giants' seventh victory in the last eight meetings with the Dodgers.

If Alston's job is in jeopardy he doesn't show it. He still talks in terms of winning, still insisting that his starters are due to break out of their horrendous batting slump. For the second time this season, Alston named Stan Williams, a mediocre right-hander with a 13-12 record to match Jack Sanford, the Giants' 24-game winner. But he admitted he might switch to Don Drysdale, his 25-game ace.

SCOFFS AT NOTION

The Dodgers brass scoffs at the idea that Alston's job is on the line. Not long ago, Buzzie Bavasi, the team general manager, said: "Winning or losing will have no bearing on whether Alston stays or not." The vote of confidence, it must be duly recorded, was given to Alston before the collapse.

Since then, it has been rumored that given Walter O'Malley, the club head, has become disenchanted with Alston's kid-glove handling of the slumping players.

"If it was a veteran club," said Alston, "I could see where kicking them in the behind and giving them hell might do some good. But with this club, I don't think you ought to scare the kids any worse than they are. I think there's enough pressure without adding to it."

Firemen, PUC Play Third Tie in Five

It was unrelishly reported today that the Fire Department and Utilities softball teams have reserved the CNRA Park for New Year's Eve.

Not for the usual celebration but to settle the Interdepartmental Softball League championship.

And at the rate they're coming up with tied games in the current championship playoff series, they might need the December 31st date.

Last night they played to a seven-all stalemate, the third in the series. Both teams boast a victory in the five games played to date.

They tangle in the sixth hassle this evening at the CNRA Park, starting 5.30.

Last night's game was a seesaw battle with the score tied three times before the clubs decided to call it even-stephen for the evening.

Lyle Wannamaker was the big gun for the Firemen with a triple, with Sine doing likewise for his club.

Boxer Still In Coma

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Argentine heavyweight Alejandro Lavorante is in the 11th day of a coma that followed his knockout by Johnny Riggins of San Francisco, but there are indications he may regain consciousness.

Dr. Dewitt Fox, neurosurgeon in charge of Lavorante's case, said the 25-year-old boxer's pupils are beginning to react slightly, whereas previously they were fixed. He said this is an indication that the pressure on the mid-brain area is reducing.

"Nothing Make Me Happier"

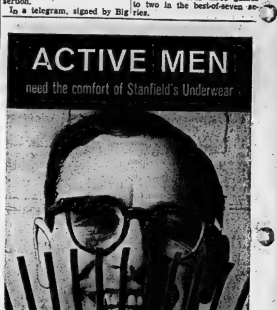
Liston Would Help Kids

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big Brothers of Washington area asked heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston Monday to stage his second match with Floyd Patterson here and give some of the proceeds to help fight juvenile delinquency.

Liston, an ex-convict who first got into trouble as a youngster, replied from Philadelphia, "nothing can make me happier than to accept this offer."

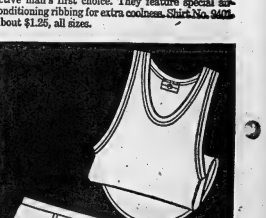
But he said the contract giving Patterson a return bout also gives Patterson the right to set the time and place of the fight. The Big Brothers specialize in "man-to-boy" help for youngsters who lack a father, either because of death, divorce or desertion.

In a telegram, signed by Big Brothers President Drew Pearson, the organization noted Liston's expressed desire to be a "worthy" champion.



Rain Halts Little Series

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Little World Series will be decided tonight, in one game or two.



The sixth game between Louisville Colonels and Atlanta Crackers was called off because of rain Monday night after one inning. Then the Little World Series committee decided to end it tonight with a doubleheader if necessary.

Louisville leads three games to two in the best-of-seven series.

Argos Stun Stamps With Upset Win

CALGARY (CP) — Toronto Argonauts rebelled against the obscurity of last place Monday night with a stunning 36-33 upset victory over Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League interlocking game before 16,000 fans.

Argonauts led all the way to win their second game of the season and end a Calgary winning streak at five games.

The victory boosted Toronto to within two points of Montreal Alouettes, now holders of the third and last playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Calgary remains in second place in the Western Conference, three points behind Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Gerry McDougall drove short distances for two of the Argonaut touchdowns while Aubrey Lilone and Dick Shatto got one each. Quarterback Tobin Rote's passing helped set up all the touchdowns.

Toronto's other points came on three converts, a field goal and a single by Bill Mitchell and a booming 80-yard single by Dave Dunn.

Quarterback Eagle Day, Lovell Coleman and Pete Manning did the Calgary touchdowns. Barry Robinson kicked two converts and a field goal.

ARGOS START EARLY

Argonauts started rolling right after the opening-game kickoff, moving 65 yards for a touchdown. The drive featured a 31-yard Rote to Lilone pass and McDougall's one - yard plunge for the score.

Calgary swept back on the rushing of 250 Buchanan, fullman and Earl Lunsford, moving 81 yards to the Toronto 16. Here the Stampeders faltered and Robinson booted a 21-yard field goal to make it 8-6 in Toronto's favor.

Rote and McDougall combined for a 36-yard pass and run play to the Calgary 15 early in the second quarter. On the next play Rote hit Lilone with a touchdown pass. Mitchell converted and Toronto led 15-3.

Dunn kicked his long single after five minutes left in the first quarter and Mitchell followed in the last minute with a single on a wide field goal attempt to make it 15-3 for Toronto at half time.

Early in the second half a short punt by Calgary gave Argonauts possession on their Stampeders 46. Rushes by Ron-nie Morris and Shatto moved them to the Calgary 10, from where McDougall bulled over for the touchdown. Mitchell converted and it was 23-3 for Argonauts.

Joe Hernandez fumbled a Calgary punt on his own 27 and Dale Parsons recovered for Stamps. Day threw a 34-yard third-down pass to Manning for the touchdown, which Robinson converted, to narrow the margin to 23-10.

COME RIGHT BACK

A 23-yard pass and run play from Day to Buchanan and a 36-yard pullup by Lunsford brought Calgary to the five. Two plays later, Day went over from the one for the touchdown. Robinson missed the convert to make the score 29-16.

In the fourth quarter, Shatto plunged two yards for the touchdown, which Mitchell converted to put Toronto ahead 35-16.

Stampeders' last touchdown, converted by Robinson, came in the last minute of play on a 39-yard pass from Day to Coleman.

Argonauts piled up 461 yards amazingly during the game, passing and 156 rushing, for 27 first downs. Calgary had 333 total yards, 201 of them passing, for 21 first downs.

Rote completed 16 of 25 passes and Shatto was good on the one he threw. Calgary intercepted one. Day was good on 15 of 26 throws.

Calgary meets the Eskimos in Edmonton Saturday, in the next WFC action, and British Columbia Lions visit the Blue Bombers in Winnipeg.

City Teams Will Sign 18 Players

The Belleville City Hockey Corporation will announce the season wrinkles ironed out at the meeting held in the Recreation Centre last night.

Indications pointed to the league settling for a four-team circuit with the playing night set for Wednesday.

Financial details with referees and arena were discussed and these will be further taken up by the executive.

President Sonny Belch appointed a committee to interview arena commission Alderman Bill Loewen with regard to rental arrangements for the arena.

The teams endorsed a motion that each club sign 18 players and draw from there plus a goalie at each game.

A list of players will be submitted at the executive meeting scheduled for Wednesday, October 10th.

It was reported that ten former senior players have expressed their willingness to play this season. These with the new age junior form the league draft and will be distributed among the clubs.

It was decided that each club will receive six players from the draft.

Belanger Reported Better

TORONTO (CP) — Albert (Frenchy) Belanger, former goalkeeper with the Toronto Maple Leafs in 1937 and 1938 and a member of the Stanley Cup championship team of 1942, is reported in satisfactory condition in hospital here Monday.

Belanger—who took the title to England's Duke of York in 1937 and lost it a year later to Frankie Genaro of New York—suffered a stroke four weeks ago and was left partially paralyzed.

His 33-year-old wife, Ivy, died at his bedside in St. Michael's Hospital Saturday night.

Belanger, who retired in 1939 after three years in the professional, now has a spot in Canada's Sports Hall of Fame at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds here.

'KILLED' BY POISON

MANITOVA, Italy (AP)—Doctors said Monday that Francesco Piazza, 73, a farmer, died of fear that he had been poisoned. He took a bottle from the medicine chest and poured out a spoonful as soon as he put it to his mouth he realized he had taken rat poison. He spat it out and relatives took him to a hospital. He died on the way. Doctors said he swallowed none of the poison but died of a heart attack.

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jean Beliveau, with memories of a nightmarish season still fresh in his mind, gave notice Monday night that he's still the big gun the Montreal National Hockey League used to know.

Beliveau scored the tying and winning goals at Ottawa as Montreal Canadiens came from behind twice to whip Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional League 5-2.

Beliveau scored only 18 goals and 23 assists last season when he failed to recover from a bout with injuries.

For a lesser player, a 61-point season would be satisfying—but not for Le Gros Bill, as Montreal hockey fans call Beliveau.

In the 1960-61 season, he scored 90 points including a record 58 assists. Last season's total was his lowest since the season he broke into the NHL 10 years ago.

STILL TALK TRADE

The defending Stanley Cup champions Toronto Maple Leafs still smarting after their 5-1 loss to Portland Buckaroos Sunday night, are talking trade.

Manager - coach George (Punch) Imlach, said Monday at Calgary that he is contemplating a player trade. Imlach wouldn't talk, but speculators say two or three Leafs are expendable.

Leafs dropped winger Jim Pappin after the Portland game. Pappin will join Rochester Americans of the American League.

Portland opened their arms to rugged Jack Bionda who decided to forget retirement plans after talking to Buckaroos officials Harry Glickman, managing director, said Bionda, who led New Westminster to the Western Hockey Cup this year, will report today.

Suns Place Five on All-Stars

NEW YORK AP—Jacksonville's pennant - winning Suns captured five places, including the meaningful berth, on the International League's all-star team announced Monday.

The team, headed by manager Bee Group of Jacksonville, was selected by baseball writers of the International League.

The team:

Bailey, Martinez and Davalillo, all first year IL players, were the unanimous choices of the 24 voting writers.

Bailey, not yet 20, earlier was named Rookie of the Year. Martinez, 21, was the league's most valuable player, and Davillilo, 22, was the IL batters with a .347 mark.

Cesare Goes to Spokane

MONTREAL (CP) — Ken Reardon, vice - president of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, announced Monday that goalie Cesare Maniago has been assigned to Spokane Comets of the Western Hockey League.

Maniago was drafted from Toronto Maple Leafs at the June, 1962, annual meeting. Last season he played 68 games for Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern professional Hockey League and has a goals-against average of 2.67 —best in the minor pro leagues.

GETS TWO YEARS

TORONTO (CP)—Calude Wilson Shadwell, 21, was sentenced Monday to two years less a day on a charge of assault in connection with the razor-wounding last Sept. 7 of George Mineault. Mineault suffered a fractured skull, nose and cheekbone. Sixty stitches were required to close his slash wounds.

Lions Get Ron Howell

Schreider Goes to Tigers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats picked up a flying start for their defensive team Monday and British Columbia Lions, although they had to dip into their bank account have a Tiger by the tail.

The teams swapped two of the best Canadian-born players in the Canadian football league Monday—Ron Howell and Gary Schreider.

Neither player has any beef about the move, but Schreider is understandably more pleased than Howell, a native of Hamilton who has spent nine seasons with Ticats.

The deal was exactly what Schreider wanted. He played only seven games with Lions this season then quit to continue his law studies at Toronto's Osgoode Hall.

WOULD LIKE TO STAY

He admits, though, that he would have preferred to stay in Schreider's service as partner in a family fur business.

Schreider's law studies were the reason Eastern Conference champ saw this year. They didn't like the idea of him commuting between Toronto and Ottawa during football season.

Toronto Argonauts tried to make a deal with Lions for Schreider's services but were turned down. Lions offered to loan Schreider to Toronto for the balance of the season in exchange for Argos' first draft choice next year.

Argos didn't go for it.

Schreider has been attending classes at Toronto and hasn't practiced since Sept. 8, the day he left Lions after a game at Toronto. He's been expecting to be traded.

But, the trading of Howell surprised many people—especially Howell.

Coach Jim Trimble called him aside when he arrived at practice Monday night and told him he was to leave for Vancouver this morning. Schreider knew of the deal earlier and was at practice with Hamilton Monday night.

DIDN'T ASK

"I didn't ask for an explanation," said Howell, "nor did Trimble offer one."

Trimble didn't mention Howell, when speaking of the trade.

"I'm happy to be back in football," said Schreider. He plans to play Saturday night at Toronto against Argonauts.

Living in Vancouver will not be a new experience for Howell. He played for Vancouver Canucks in the Western Hockey League in 1959. And, he may play for Canucks again.

Alouettes Write off Two More

MONTREAL (CP)—Offensive end Paul Fedor has quit football and interior linebacker Dick Schnell has entered hospital with suspected appendicitis, it was announced Monday night by Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

A club spokesman also said the Als have placed defensive halfback Tom Rodgers on waivers. Rodgers was claimed by the Als from Ottawa Rough Riders under the waiver process. He did not play in any games with Montreal.

Fedor, 26, decided to resume studies, said the spokesman. He was used sparingly by Coach Perry Moss as a back-up man after spending the early part of the season on the club's injury reserve list with a broken rib.

Schnell's ailment could be a severe setback to Moss' defensive plans. The two-year man from the University of Wyoming has done a magnificent job of shoring up the middle of the line.

Sports Snapshots

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VANCOUVER (CP)—One of the backbones of minor hockey in Greater Vancouver is Tommy McCaffery—Mrs. Tommy McCaffery, that is.

Tommy — it's doubtful that many of the men she deals with in hockey know she was christened Audrey—is a vivacious, red-haired mother of two girls, a former Navy truck driver and line-line hockey player.

She admits to spending hours each day on minor hockey but still manages to keep a neat home and bring up her daughters—who are more interested in figure-skating than hockey.

Mrs. McCaffery is critical of parents who "put kids into sports because it's a good place for somebody to baby-sit for them while they go somewhere else."

If a kid scores a goal he generally looks up to the stands to see if his father saw it, she says. Too often he looks to empty stands.

Her husband, who works as a marine engineer on a tug and is away every other day, finds time on his days ashore to be with his skating daughters.

MANAGES PUP TEAM

Tommy, who says she loves hockey and likes helping boys, manages a pup team—six to 10 years and does work for a senior club in suburban Burnaby.

She was recently elected a delegate to the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association, one of the rare occasions when a woman has been given such a role.

Tommy's interest in hockey goes back to the days when her father, a butcher in Battleford, Sask., was trainer for Sunrise Millers, a senior club that toured Japan in the 1930s. She played collegiate hockey with Battleford in the '30s as a centre and on defence.

During the Second World War she served in the navy as a driver. She was discharged here and five years ago joined the winter club. Since then the 39-year-old Mrs. McCaffery has been taking an increasingly large part in minor hockey.

One of her jobs is keeping statistics for the 2,800 players on more than 100 teams. Another is teaching her pups to skate and stickhandle, and she occasionally supervises other teams when their coaches are ill.

While she devotes considerable time to minor hockey, she is less enamored with pro hockey. In one game she went to, between Victoria and New Westminster of the Western League, she almost got into a fight with a woman spectator sitting in front of her.

"A little forward dipped and swerved beautifully through the other team to the goal and shot. It was beautiful. The woman in front yelled 'kill him!'

"I asked her if she knew anything about hockey. She replied, 'I don't know anything about hockey; who cares, just kill him.'"

Tommy was so angry her husband took her home before the end of the game and vowed never to take her to another.

Not that minor hockey is above criticism. "Everybody has to have a winning team," she says. "They don't worry about the little guy who can be taught. That's the great failing out here."

All in Sport

"Have fun bowling, dear. I'll amuse myself polishing your golf clubs, untangling fishing lines and so on."

Studio of King of Comedy, Hal Roach, Up for Auction

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A lot of memories will go on the block Oct. 19 when the Hal Roach Studio is auctioned off to the highest bidder.

More than 40 years the Roach studio has been a landmark of comedy in Culver City. Now it is to be auctioned off in the United States court in Scranton, Pa.

The ads appeared in the Hollywood trade papers and other journals recently. They spoke glowingly of a 14½-acre studio with 33 buildings down to and including a blacksmith shop. All this would go to the highest bidder, minimum bid $1,500,000.

Hal Roach had been a trucker in Alaska and Seattle, then landed in Los Angeles and started working as a cowboy in Universal movies at $25 a week. He figured he'd have better luck making movies than punching cows and soon started with a kid named Harold Lloyd in a series of comedies called Lonesome Luke.

They were a success and soon Roach had enough capital to put up a studio in nearby Culver City in 1919.

Harold Lloyd left Lonesome Luke behind for greatness on his own but Roach survived. He developed a mischievous bunch of youngsters called Our Gang. He hired a New York director and made him into a comedian named Charlie Chase.

GREATEST ACHIEVEMENT

Roach's greatest achievement was teaming two comedians, Laurel and Hardy.

His movies ranged from excellent (Topper with Cary Grant and Constance Bennett) to awful (One Million B.C. with Victor Mature).

A reserve officer, Roach was called into the service during the Second World War. So was his studio. It was turned into a base for production of training films.

After the war, Roach worked fitfully at turning out small features. That didn't work and in 1948 he took a look at the future and 'competed to television. He was the first studio owner to convert entirely to the new medium.

With Hal Jr. in charge, the studio turned out more film than it ever had—such series as My Little Margie, Life of Riley, Blondie, Topper, Duffy's Tavern and Amos 'n' Andy.

Then young Hal made a deal with bigtime operator Alexander Guterma, whose financial empire collapsed like a house of cards. With it went the Hal Roach studio. Four years ago, the creditors turned off the lights.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Crafty Lace drew away from the rest of the field in an easy five-length victory in the Parklane Purse at the New Woodbine Monday.

A crowd of 7,000 watched a struggle for second place that resulted in Country Guy finishing a head in front of Court Royal.

The Parklane Purse, run over a mile and a sixteenth on the turf, had a $6,000 purse.

The quinella of Crafty Lace and Country Guy returned $37.80.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ken Galbraith, the veteran coverdriver from Chelsea, Ont., drove his horse Adios Hanover to an easy victory in the fourth race at London's Western Fair Raceway Monday night.

Galbraith sleered in fine style as the five-year-old romped to an easy win in the D Class pace. It returned $12.80, $4.00 and $3.10 across the board.

One of the highlights of the nine-race programs came in the third when Aileen Chips came from behind a bad start. Driven by Ronnie Barnes of Aylmer, she trotted the mile in 2:17 3-5 and returned $9.20.

Fred Roloson, a Michigan racer, set up a $156.10 daily double when he won the first race with Thomas M at $14.00. Victor Lind, owned and driven by Alfred Graham of St. Marys, took the second dash at $13.80.

The fastest time of the night was turned in by Patchen Bars, owned by A.C. Knight of Clinton. The four-year-old gelding was driven by Ronnie McGee and was clocked at 2:11 4-5 for the mile. Patchen Bars returned $3.90.

Lucille and Vivian Back In Another Funny Series

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A winner and still champion, Lucille Ball romped back into weekly television Monday night, a comedienne without peer.

CBS' Lucy Show brings back the same old trouble-prone Miss Ball, who really took her new series off the ground by bouncing around on a trampoline. She is a little more mature, as befits her new television status as the widowed mother of a 14-year-old.

Vivian Vance, who used to be Ethel, Lucy's neighbor in the I Love Lucy days has undergone a greater change: She's more chic, as befits a divorcee, but her dry manner added to Lucy's vigorous clowning and mugging make a happy combination.

Stoney Burke, ABC's new adventure series about a bronc-busting rodeo cowboy doesn't have guns and chases but there's a strong western flavor and plenty of violence, particularly when the riders come out of the chutes on bucks and steers.

Jack Lord, in the title role, is a convincing character—perfectly grim and determined. People who enjoy western adventure dramas will undoubtedly like the show.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I was the victim of speculation, inflation, and a wife with 27 charge accounts."

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — ...ey is willingness to make ...sic changes. Good for travel, ...variety, versatility. Fine, also ...or pursuing heart's desire. ...Speak up. Put across point of ...iew. Avoid one who sees only ...ark side.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Fortunate for pleasing friends, those in authority. Not a good for pressing financial demands. You gain more by being patient. Superior could be impressed by reasonable attitude.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Absolute independence not practical. Know this and stop fighting those who really seek to help. Spiritual growth encouraged. Remember lessons taught by wise man. They could help lift you over obstacles.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) —Measure actions with care. Otherwise, you could take on more than is practical. Ambition highlighted. So is desire for financial security. But remember, "Rome wasn't built in a day!"

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Good for completing projects. No time to keep putting things off. Stop saving every scrap of paper or magazine. You have tendency to accumulate trash. Start "streamlining" possessions.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) —Move with confidence. Check facts, figures, details. Knowing you possess knowledge, refuse to be "bullied" by sales claims. You could make new contacts which favorably affect your life.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) —Let combination of caution and diplomacy shine as guide. Best to apply "light touch". Surprise visits, communications highlight day. Stay away from "sure thing". It could fizzle.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Pleasant news received concerning financial potential. Pay heed. Ignoring possibility could mean that real opportunity falls into another's hands. Advice offered by martial partner proves sound.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Cycle up. Means you can combine flair for the romantics with need for practical results. Day to clear away emotional debris. Stop being so sorry for "friend" that you neglect your own welfare. Begin anew!

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You accomplish much if you relax. Pressing constantly results in tension. In turn, this causes efforts which are not your best. Regain perspective. Strive for inner peace.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Reaction to what others may be thinking takes up much time. Avoid this emotional waste. Do what must be done. Let others think what they will. Be strong in convictions. This way you win allies, gain admiration.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) —Result of recent accomplishment sparks opportunity for further growth. Continue to look to future. Much gain indicated if you keep vision clear. Don't be sidetracked by quick - profit man.

If today is your birthday ... you are completing period which saw you bogged down with details. Now, opportunity for greater freedom of thought, action. Make major move if question arises. Marriage indicated if you are single.

General Tendencies — Fortunate day for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. But most persons exhibit tendency toward impatience. All signs should stress moderation.

Justice Served With Subpoena To Tell of Deal

TORONTO (CP)—The name of Mr. Justice L. A. Lamek of the Supreme Court of Ontario is contained in subpoenas being served on members of the 1956 Sudbury city council that awarded the franchise for natural gas distribution in that area to Northern Ontario Natural Gas Limited.

Mr. Justice Landerkin was mayor of Sudbury in 1956.

The subpoenas, signed by R. S. Fray, senior solicitor of the Ontario Securities Commission, commands the appearance of the aldermen to tell what they know about the activities of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company Limited.

The subpoenas empower the commission to investigate any matter relating to trading in the company's securities "by or on behalf of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company Limited, Continental Investment Corporation Limited, Cervera and Company, John McGraw, Ralph C. Farris, the Honorable Leo Albert Landreville, G. Kelly McLean . . ." Dates for the appearance of the subpoenaed individuals are Oct. 10, 11 and 12.

NOT YET SERVED

Mr. Justice Landreville said Monday night he has not been served with a subpoena but expects he "will find out about it later."

The government investigation into circumstances surrounding the granting of municipal gas franchises in Northern Ontario was reopened on an order from Attorney-General Kelso Roberts following conversations he had with the British Columbia government.

The John McGraw named in the subpoena is the president of Convesto and Company, a Vancouver investment firm which recently gave evidence on subpoena in Toronto, is president of McGraw, H. H. Jr., is a nephew of former mines minister Harry Nixon, held shares in the company.

Securities commission investigators have been in Sudbury area for several weeks. Several of the city's former and present municipal files dealing with the natural gas controversy.

CONFIDENT SUBPOENAED

Those who have been subpoenaed and have confirmed the fact to Controller Clarence Hartman; Controller W. R. Edgar, who was mayor in 1960-61; Ald. Alphage Theriault, and James Cormack, a member of the 1955 and 1956 councils.

Joseph Kelly, assistant city solicitor of Kitchener and the 1956 city solicitor of Sudbury, said he has not been subpoenaed but added: "I understand the matter is very hot again though."

Former Alderman A. V. Whalen and Judge Harry Walsberg, county judge of York County, another former member of the 1956 council, could not be reached for comment.

Joseph Pabbro, who succeeded Mr. Justice Landreville as mayor, said he has not been served a subpoena and former alderman Ralph Conner declined to confirm or deny service of a subpoena.

Girls Expelled From Ceylon Had No Permits

COLOMBO (AP)—An Alberta girl who complained she was molested by Ceylonese "wolves" has been asked to leave because she had worked without a permit and was not in violation of her stay, the government said today.

Miss Ann Vloo, an attractive 23-year - old from Bow River, Alta., charged she was asked to leave the country after being pestered by the amorous advances of married men. The government, government officials and businessmen said she was persuaded to board a ship for Hong Kong today.

A government communique today said Miss de Vloo did not obtain a work permit, necessary for any non - Ceylonese seeking employment.

Miss de Vloo came to Ceylon last Aug. on a vacation trip with Alice Cowan, also 23, of Biche, Alta. Both are school-teachers.

A stir arose around the two teachers after Miss de Vloo's visa was revoked. The reason given for the cancellation was a routine police report.

There were no accusations against Miss Sorochan but it was reported that both Canadians were ordered to leave Ceylon within a week.

Three Killed In Collision At Tillsonburg

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP)—Three men were killed Monday night in a head-on collision on Highway 19 a mile south of here.

The dead were identified as Vincent Gobla, 73, of Eton, Ont., Ross Cowan, 50, of Downsville, Ont., and Jack Sutherland of Port Burwell, Ont.

Police say two of the men were in one car and the third was alone in another. The collision occurred on a straight stretch of highway.

MAY RENEW PACT

REGINA (CP)—The Leader-Post says in a Moscow dispatch that the Soviet Union will likely agree toward renewal of the current Russian-Canadian trade agreement. Canada's wheat will likely figure in a renewal of the agreement, the report says.

Former U.S. Commander At Little Rock Now Leading Students Against the Govt.

EDITORS NOTE: Reiman Merith of the Associated Press was a second Pulitzer Prize this his coverage of the 1957 Little Rock, Ark., desegregation crisis. At that time, Mal-Gen. Edwin A. Walker was in charge of federal troops enforcing federal court orders. Walker, who has since resigned from the U.S. Army, was in the midst of rioting at the University of Mississippi Sunday night—like times trying to defend the state's position against the federal government. Merith compares the Walker of 1957 with the Walker of 1962 and the two different situations.

By RELMAN MORIN

The riots just five years ago in the capital of Arkansas were bad and dangerous. In Oxford, the ugliness and violence have amplified to a gigantic scale.

And one of the ironies of the situation here is that the former major-general Edwin A. Walker, who commanded the federal troops that took over Little Rock, is on the opposite side of the fence here.

Walker whipped up the students and others at the campus of the University of Mississippi Sunday night, when it became known that James H. Meredith, a Negro, was on the campus.

After the Little Rock crisis, Walker said that he thought his duty there distasteful.

However, at the time, he was the crisp and professional soldier who gave no sign of his feelings. He set up the command post at the corner of Central High School—the object of the riots.

CONTRAST IN SIZE

The contrast is most marked by the size of the operations here. In Little Rock, it was largely quiet if you stayed a few hour blocks from the school. In Oxford, there is little quiet anywhere. On the contrary, there is a brooding sense of disaster.

Several days ago, Walker said he planned to lead "tens of thousands" of volunteers to aid the cause of Mississippi's Governor Ross Barnett.

But his only troops Sunday night were a band of students and other persons who had been in a charge on the positions of the federal marshals.

They got within 100 feet but the tear gas fumes repelled them.

Later, Walker was giving defense counsel advice on how to counteract the tear gas fumes.

Walker appeared on the Oxford town square during the latter disturbances. He marched ahead of a file of soldiers although he were their inspecting officer.

Finally, an army officer asked Walker to leave. He refused. The officer ordered several soldiers carrying rifles with bayonets to straighten Walker.

The soldiers held their bayonets within inches of the former general, but did not touch him. The officer said something to Walker and he walked off through the crowd.

Negro Passes Uneventful Day At University

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James F. Meredith passed an uneventful day as he attended his first classes on the strife-torn University of Mississippi campus Monday.

There were no incidents and nothing unusual, said Chief U.S. Marshal James McShane, who with other marshals accompanied the 29-year-old Negro to class.

Asked if there was any reaction from the students, McShane said: "No. They looked at him and he looked at them."

McShane said Meredith went to class in colonial history after he was registered.

"About 12 to 15 other students were in the room," he said. "The instructor gave Meredith some papers and then began to lecture."

Meredith went to another class at 1 p.m.

CLASS CANCELLED

A third class was cancelled because of the heavy concentration of tear gas still in the air from Sunday night's rioting.

Registrar Robert B. Ellis told Meredith he would need three semesters to graduate. Meredith transferred from Jackson State College for Negroes, where he was a junior needing only six credits to graduate.

Meredith is majoring in political science.

University officials would not disclose how many students had left the campus. A source close to the university housing office said, however, that more than half of the students had checked out of their rooms.

Mrs. Alene Holt Becomes Mayor Of Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Mrs. Alene Holt Monday night became Peterborough's first woman mayor.

Mrs. Holt, an alderman for the last nine years, was elected by council to succeed Stanley McBride, who becomes sheriff of Peterborough County Oct. 1.

She will remain in office until December, when municipal elections are scheduled.

Mrs. Holt and her husband, manager of a finance company, came to Peterborough about 20 years ago from Windsor. They have a 16-year-old son.

Whole Trip Could Have Been Wild Goose Chase If Plans Had Not Changed

EDITOR'S NOTE: The cat - and - mouse game was over. Stephen Dinka and the pretty sister-in-law he had spirited from a Hungarian dance troupe on tour in Paris were on a plane bound for the United States. But there still were surprises in store. Here is the concluding chapter of the story, made available exclusively to The Associated Press through the co-operation of the Detroit Free Press and the Knight Newspapers, which masterminded and financed the rescue.

The Detroit Free Press

He and Mary Goodfellow of the Detroit Free Press had succeeded in snatching Emese Sikelenky, 20-year-old Hungarian dancer, and his sister-in-law, from the Communists who had been chaperoning her troupe's tour of France.

The strain of the search for Emese in Paris, of finding her in a student dormitory, of slipping her to freedom on the pretext of getting a cup of coffee —all this was behind them. But there still was one shock left.

Half-dozing in the seat (of their U.S.-bound plane Friday, Sept. 21), Emese turned to Dinka and said:

"We were lucky."

WROTE LETTER

He nodded agreement. They had been lucky.

"That's not what I mean," she said. Then she explained that the troupes as to have had a three-day vacation in Paris. Those were the dates she had given her sister in a letter to Ann Arbor, Mich., which had started the whole intriguing story.

"But they cancelled it," she said. "We were to have left two days earlier. I had no opportunity to write again. But then our plane reservations got mixed up and they decided to let us stay after all."

Dinka felt weak. For the first time he realized that, although he had no way of knowing it, the whole expedition might well have been one long wild goose chase.

I met them at New York's Idlewild Airport. Dinka showing his fatigue but looking happy and proud, Emese calm and somewhat bewildered.

At noon Saturday (Sept. 22) our jet touched down at Detroit and within moments Emese, crying and laughing, was in the arms of her sister, Mrs. Marguerite Dinka.

At the modest Dinka home in Ann Arbor, enjoying Mrs. Dinka's chicken paprikash, the conversation was light and gay. But somehow, the Berlin wall was mentioned.

To everyone's astonishment, Emese said:

"What is that?"

She explained that in Hungary, nothing is known of the Berlin wall, only that U.S. troops are "massed" on the border.

DISCUSS FUTURE

Sunday was quiet. In the evening, Emese's future was discussed. Given a free choice (she had little in Hungary), she said she had little interest in continuing her dancing.

"It is nice, but not so important," she said. "Life must be happy, but there must be work —worthwhile work—to make it so. Although not possible, I would have liked to study mathematics and chemistry at a university."

She said that in Hungary, she was not qualified for university because her father had been a doctor, "only working class are admitted," she said.

When the story of the successful sortie was revealed in The Free Press, the Dinkas' life became exciting. The telephone rang almost continuously.

Dinka, who turned aside offers of money, said: "The Free Press took care of my expenses and I'm deeply grateful. But their help here and in Paris was more important. Even though we know there are parts of this story that can never be told, I hope it gives Hungarians and all people hope and belief in the rightness of freedom."

Children Get More Attention In Red China

By ADAM KELLETT-LONG

PEKING (Reuters) — Children are still the No. 1 target in Communist China's continuing campaign to safeguard and improve the health of its people.

Large sums of money have been allocated by the government in the last 10 years for the struggle against such things as tuberculosis, polio, skin diseases and tooth decay, as well as the usual children's ailments such as measles and whooping cough.

In recurrent food shortages after three years of bad harvests, officially blamed on natural calamities, efforts are being made to see that children get extra rations of essential commodities and suffer less than others from the possible effects of malnutrition.

In Peking, one large and four small special children's hospitals have been built since 1952 and special pediatrik clinics are attached to almost all the capital's general hospitals.

FIGHT PREJUDICE

Rough-and-ready clinics have been set up in nearly every main street and groups of health workers tour houses lecturing adults on health and sanitation, trying to break down the prejudice found among some Chinese women against taking their children to hospitals.

Much of the same situation exists in other large cities. While most hospitals in medium size towns have pediatric clinics, travelling clinics tour rural areas, treat children on the spot for minor ailments and try to get them to the nearest hospital if they are seriously ill.

Airy, light and generally well-planned, the hospital, providing 600 beds and facilities for treatment of 1,000 outpatients a day, was built on a plot of wasteland in a western suburb between 1952 and 1958.

More than 120 doctors, about a quarter of whom are trained in traditional Chinese medicine and the rest in Western methods, as well as 400 nurses, care for the patients, who range from newborn babies to 14-year-olds.

Woo, who has worked in this field of medicine for more than 25 years, said there are altogether about 2,000 hospital beds in the capital set aside especially for children.

He added that this contrasted with pre - Communist times when, he declared, Peking had no special children's hospitals, about 50 beds for children in general hospitals and virtually no special children's outpatient facilities.

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-ton satellite tracking camera operated by the RCAF, in northeastern Alberta is playing a major role in Canada's contribution to the world's space exploration program.

The Baker-Nunn camera has been installed at the RCAF's Primrose Lake evaluation range 25 miles from the air force's Cold Lake station.

It originally was on loan to the RCAF from the United States government but now has been turned over to the air force for manning and maintenance.

The $120,000 camera for tracking satellites is one of a number of such instruments located around the world by the Smithsonian Institution's space tracking program under a contract with the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Others are in Argentina, Australia, California, Curacao, Florida, Hawaii, India, Japan, New Mexico, Norway, Peru, South Africa and Spain.

The Baker-Nunn camera was designed for tracking satellites during the first geophysical year program in 1957-58. It was remarkably successful and the information it obtained provided a basis on which to define satellite orbits.

PICTURE A SECOND

The huge camera is supported by a special mount which allows adjustment in three planes. It is housed in a special building with walls and a roof that slide back on tracks to expose the camera for use.

The Schmidt optical system used in the camera has a focal length of 20 inches. This component is valued at $30,000 and employs spherical mirrors rather than the parabolic type used in most optical systems.

These mirrors—the largest is 32 inches in diameter—are so sensitive that they cannot be touched. A low-pressure vacuum system is used to clean them.

The electronically controlled camera is capable of taking pictures as rapidly as one every second or as slowly as one every 32 seconds. Its exposure ranges from two-tenths of a second to 2.3 seconds.

Ability of the cameras to detect faintly visible objects in space is measured in terms of visible magnitude. The unaided human eye can detect an object with a visible magnitude of five, but the camera operates up to a visible magnitude of 14.

Photographs obtained by the 14 cameras now stationed around the world are sent to the Smithsonian Institution's astrophysical laboratory for interpretation. The information obtained through their use is disseminated by NASA's Goddard Space Flight agency and contributes greatly to man's knowledge of the universe.

Things have changed in 17 years and so has Esso oil heat

It's been 17 years since John last wore his uniform. It was around the same time that thousands of Canadians were able to install new, carefree oil heating equipment in their homes. Some of these faithful furnaces are now beginning to show signs of age. Time works both ways however, and many important improvements have been added to both heating equipment and fuel quality.

It costs very little to modernize your home heating plant. Maybe all you need is a new burner for your present furnace. Even a complete new oil heating unit costs much less than you might think. Everything you need is available on easy budget terms with the low interest Esso Heating Equipment Finance Plan.

If you are considering modernizing your equipment, investigate all the angles. Discuss your problems with us and let us help you to continue to enjoy the safety, convenience and economy of Esso oil heat with modern heating equipment.

PC Govt. Easily Survives First Vote In House

Liberals, NDP Combine To Defeat Socreds

OTTAWA (CP)—A full-House vote, possibly unprecedented in Canadian parliamentary history, easily sustained the minority Progressive Conservative government Tuesday night in its first non-confidence test.

Progressive Conservatives, Liberals and New Democrats made strange bedfellows as they combined to cast 223 votes against a non-confidence motion proposed and backed only by the 30 Social Credit MPs.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, by citing government "failure" to support Social Credit principles, made his motion unacceptable to the Liberals and New Democrats, who could have brought down the government by voting for it. Liberals made it plain that only the call for Social Credit doctrine in the motion would send them to vote against it.

The vote, technically the first test of the House's confidence in the government since the April election, may have been the first since Confederation of such size all supporting votes, except the Speaker's, were cast in the House.

MEMBER ABSENT

Only once before in recent decades has there been so nearly a full turnout of members to vote. In 1926, there were 260 votes cast on a non-confidence motion in a 245-member House. The Speaker, who votes only in case of a tie, did not vote and one member was absent.

In Tuesday night's voting a 204th vote was not cast because a vacancy in British Columbia's Burnaby-Coquitlam constituency where a by-election has been called for Oct. 29.

The vote itself was anti-climactic.

Liberal Leader Pearson had launched the throne speech debate Monday with a lengthy indictment of the government in foreign affairs but the non-confidence motion which comes up for a vote Thursday night.

The pattern of criticism of the government was followed Tuesday by Douglas Thompson, Liberal Real Caouette, R. W. Herridge, Progressive Conservative leader; and Colin Cameron, Liberal MP for Leeds.

But the Liberals and New Democratic speakers also took pains to make it clear that their policy differences were not plants against the Liberals would support a Liberal government to form a solid front against the Conservatives.

ENSURED DIVISION

Mr. Thompson ensured a divisive opposition by stating in his motion that the government did not possess the House's confidence because it failed to pursue economic and financial policies based on Social Credit principles dealing with "a planned balanced economy and relieve the burden of taxation on goods, public debt charges, thus assuring

Child Ordered Into Wardship For Transfusions

KINGSTON (CP) — The five-day-old son of a Jehovah Witness couple was in satisfactory condition in hospital today after blood transfusions given him when he was made a ward of the Children's Aid Society Saturday.

But Toronto lawyer Glen How, general counsel for Jehovah Witnesses in Canada, called the move "a judicial kidnapping".

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Forsyth was ordered into wardship at the society at an emergency hearing of the family and juvenile court by Judge James Garvin. The hearing was held shortly before midnight Saturday when hospital officials advised CAS officials that the baby may need blood transfusions.

The baby was born with an RH blood factor.

5 OTHER CHILDREN

The father of five other children ranging in age from two to 12 years said he did not recognize the special meeting and claimed he was given no advance notice of hearing that was to be held. He said he had been brought to Kingston Saturday on the pretext of attending a "discussion."

"They just took the boy away from us," he said, "I have never been allowed to see him up to this day."

Alex Manchester, congregation minister of the family, said: "The Bible says not to take blood under any circumstances. We believe this to be God's divine word."

Judge Garvin said medical evidence supplied to him by Dr. D. J. Delahey indicated blood transfusions might be necessary to preserve the life of the child. He said when the parents refused to allow the transfusions he interpreted their refusal as neglect within the meaning of the Child Welfare Act and made the baby a ward of the CAS for a month.

Parliament At a Glance

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tuesday, Oct. 2, 1962

In a perhaps unprecedented full-House vote, the Commons defeated a Social Credit non-confidence motion 223 to 30, Liberals and NDP siding with Conservatives.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker denied Opposition Leader Pearson's charge that he had concealed Canada's financial crisis during the election campaign.

Social Credit Leader Thompson described the throne speech as "window dressing" but urged the Commons to forget partisan considerations "for a few months."

Deputy Social Credit Leader Caouette forecast the current Parliament would last "not for one year but for several sessions."

RESTRICTED LIST MATERIAL SEIZED ON CUBAN SHIP

Machine Parts Part of Cargo

MONTREAL (CP)—A quantity of materials and literature has been seized by Canadian authorities from the Cuban freighter Bahia de Siguanea.

The items were said to be on a restricted list dealing with Canadian exports to Cuba.

RCMP and customs officers boarded the ship Tuesday just before she was scheduled to sail for home.

One source said among the items confiscated were machine parts.

The officers also took custody of a number of books and 1,000 bags of a chemical designated "Perlmore," a quantity of zinc stearates and 166 cartons of pamphlets issued by the Jehovah Witnesses religious sect.

Canadian trade regulations limit exports to Cuba to foodstuffs, medical supplies, a range of agricultural products and livestock.

The sources said it is believed machine parts were smuggled to Cuba from Montreal earlier this year and Saturday night the parts were said to have been covered with religious pamphlets such as those seized Tuesday.

The ship is currently known when the ship would clear port.

She arrived Monday from Halifax and among her cargo was 1,000 tons of cement for an unidentified consignee.

Meanwhile a trade department official in Ottawa said Tuesday night federal authorities keep close watch on shipping in Canada to prevent United States exporters from moving goods to Cuba through Canada.

The U.S. has an embargo on Cuban trade.

Two Men, One With Broken Leg, Walk Days After Plane Crashes

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Two men, a salesman and a lumberjack, were alive today after surviving a plane crash and walking and crawling their way through mountainous country trying to reach civilization.

Their friend, Jean Laroche, was apparently burned to death in the crash of the single-engined aircraft on Saturday in mountains north of here.

The survivors are Paul-Emile Bellemarre, a Shawinigan travelling salesman, and Joseph Laroche, a Mauricie area butcher, turned up Tuesday night at Lac Sand, about 60 miles from here.

They had been walking since early Monday, both in pain, through rugged country.

Bellemarre, his leg broken and with a severely injured back, was flown to Lac Sand to hospital in Grand'mere by privately-owned Bel-Air Services.

Laroche, his face badly cut but with apparently no other serious injuries, drove on a bush tractor five miles to a highway where he was taken by car to hospital in Louiseville.

They told their story to rescuers.

After the plane crashed into a mountainside in fog, the two survivors stumbled free and began walking to do anything for two days but sleep through the night on moss and oranges." They slept under the wing of the crashed plane.

Bellemarre told Gilles Chalou, guay, pilot of the Bel-Air plane that airlifted him to hospital, that he remembers at one point seeing the body of Sensafcon lying at my feet."

Finally, the two men made their way down the side of the mountain—the range is about 700 feet high in the area—and followed a creek to the lumber

Former OPP Crime Squad Member Suspected a Leak

TORONTO (CP) — A former officer of the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad said Tuesday he came to the conclusion in 1953 that there were leaks in the squad.

Staff Sgt. Clifford vou Zuben told the royal commission on crime he had "odd hints here and there" previously and was eventually forced to the conclusion by a "solid instance" in that year.

This came about after the squad had planted two men in the Alpha Club, where gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley were running a crap game. The officers were secreted in a garret overlooking the gaming tables but were flushed out by a searcher before the game started.

Tom Zuben also told the inquiry of a strange police raid in 1952 which tied in with an earlier story by Dominic Simone of Toronto that McDermott and Feeley, while purporting to provide police protection for his crap game, had doppelganged him into jail and stolen his customers.

The former anti - gambling squad officer said he got an anonymous telephone call that a game was under way at Simone's Riverdale Club and, when he left a short time later, promptly had the outer door unlocked for him and reached the gaming table through two unlocked doors.

Vatican Council Decision Will Affect All Christendom

The future of Christendom will be deeply influenced at the decisions which come from the Vatican ecumenical council, which begins this month next week in Rome—the first in 92 years, the first since the days of the apostles. This is the first of three articles by an Associated Press writer who will cover the meetings.

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Pivotal changes apparently are in the offing for the Roman Catholic Church.

Just what form they will take, and the extent to which they will go, no one can say for sure. But on the Second Vatican Ecumenical Council, opening Oct. 11 in Rome—the largest gathering of ecclesiastical authorities in the church's 2,000-year history—

Its decisions will affect, directly or indirectly, the whole of Christendom.

The aim is a general renovation in the life and internal structure of the church.

The coming council will affect a real reform in the church, said Most Rev. Lorenz Jaeger, Archbishop of Paderborn, Germany.

It doesn't imply any changes in basic beliefs, but Archbishop Jaeger says it does mean clarification and better interpretation of certain doctrines, as well as a reshaping of many policies and practices.

The council is the first in 92

MILITARY FORCE MOVES QUICKLY TO QUELL RIOT

Students Set Fire To Meredith Effigy

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — A deafening military force moved in quickly today to quell a demonstration that broke out in front of the dormitory where the University of Mississippi's Negro student was quartered.

Between 35 and 50 students gathered in front of Baxter Hall, set fire to an effigy of James H. Meredith and exploded fireworks.

Armed soldiers scattered the crowd quickly. There were no arrests.

Attendance at the university dropped after the enrolment of Meredith, 29, a Negro ex-serviceman. Many students had returned to their homes after the desegregation which they resented.

University Chancellor J. D. Williams appealed to the students to return, contending he had been assured that "the Ole Miss campus is now secure, and that a return of peace will be assured of the complete withdrawal of federal marshals. There were no demonstrations.

CURFEW DELAY

In another development over Mississippi's defiance of federal court orders to enrol Meredith, Governor Ross Barnett received a 10-day delay from federal efforts to punish him.

A U.S. Appeals Court in New Orleans gave Barnett a form of probating until Oct. 12 on the contempt citation against him. This apparently was a delaying tactic signed to test Barnett's willingness to abide by Meredith's entry into the university.

Barnett, who was not in court, had no comment on the court action. He could be subject to $10,000 fine and imprisonment.

Army authorities announced a cut in the 12,000-man federal force Tuesday night. Lt.-Col. Roger Whitley, deputy information officer for the army field command in Georgia, said two battle groups—about 2,400 men—of Oxford-for Memphis while a third of 1,200 will be returned to Columbus, Miss. All were from the 82nd Airborne Division.

Whitley described the move as "regrouping" and said that Memphis is not far from Oxford—50 miles.

Meredith has met mixed reactions in classes. One girl turned away from the classroom, when told Meredith was inside, and said: "I guess I'll have to stay out."

"Hell scared," claimed "Hey my class, too. I don't care if he's in there."

Barnett worked in his private office in Jackson with hordes of state police patrolmen outside. Telegrams and letters poured into his office and one source said 90 per cent of them supported the 66-year-old governor.

Another principal in the Mississippi situation, former Maj.

Revolt Against Religious Father Blamed by Boyd for His Crimes

TORONTO (CP) — Newly-confessed killer Steven Boyd, whose three - year career in crime yielded him a life sentence and a new robbery charge, all he wants now is "to be an ordinary person."

Boyd, 48, was paroled Monday after 10 years in Kingston penitentiary. Tuesday he met reporters for the first time since "that father was a bum."

He blamed his apparent lapse into crime on his childhood environment and other problems.

Boyd said he rarely went to church during his term of imprisonment but that he knew he would be founded on biblical principles.

The former military police-man and commando member was convicted of his earlier career in 1949 and in a three - year period stole $115,000 from banks and other concerns that $36,000 was recovered. He twice escaped from Toronto's Don Jail and as a result of subsequent imprisonment at Kingston will be on parole for the rest of his life.

Boyd hasn't seen his wife since his release although he telephoned her Tuesday.

"He said 'Hello,'" said the 42-year-old Mrs. Boyd, "but I didn't know his voice and at

Shirra Shoved Well Through 'Keyhole In Sky'

Reports All Systems In Capsule 'in Green'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Performing as if he were right at home in the weightless world of space, astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. completed two orbits of the earth today and described his flight as "real, real thrill."

He was in complete command of his Sigma 7 spacecraft as he passed over Cape Canaveral at 11:45 a.m. EST at the end of the second orbit and swung into the final one. There was all evidence that pilot and spacecraft were in condition to complete the full, six-orbit mission.

His exuberant description of the flight came down from the sky a few minutes earlier in a radio relay from astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., monitoring the flight at Pleasanton, Calif., tracking station.

"It's hard to describe things up here," Schirra told the man who had pioneered U.S. orbital flight a year ago this year.

SHUTS OFF CONTROLS

As Schirra zipped above Cape Canaveral to begin the third orbit, he completely shut off the flight for the first time. He shut off all controls and electrical power and allowed the craft to move freely on its roll, pitch and yaw axes.

In this phase, the vehicle rotates slowly, making about one revolution every 30 minutes if it control is not re-established by the pilot.

Purpose of the drifting is to determine control fuel and electrical power. Just how well Schirra did this was important to an 18-orbit, 34-hour flight the next U.S. man-in-space shot set for 1963.

Schirra's flight, if it went six orbits, would nearly double the time spent by astronauts Glenn and Scott Malcolm Carpenter in their first U.S. manned space so far short of Russia's manned orbital flight time.

TROUBLE FLIGHT

Early in the flight, Schirra literally sweat out a problem with his automatic temperature-control system. But as he neared the end of the second orbit, he said the problem had diminished to a point where it was no longer troublesome.

About the end of the second orbit, Schirra flipped 90 per cent of his fuel supply remaining and Mercury control reserves, and he followed with the remaining 10 per cent.

Schirra and Carpenter both ran dangerously low on fuel during their three-orbit flights. Both, in fact, had to override the re-entry. Mismanagement of the 'Wing' Convention Approves Nuclear Warheads for Forces

Two hundred and fifty delegates, representing the 12,000 member association of air-force veterans across Canada, assembled at the Lord Nelson hotel, in Halifax, last Thursday, for the 12th annual RCAF Association convention. The meeting was opened with ceremony followed by an address of welcome by the Commodore W. I. Clements, air officer commanding Maritime Air Command and a key-note speech by Mr. Leonard Bidcock, National President of the association. Mr. Baldock reaffirmed the prime objective of the association as being "the support of the R.C.A.F. and all its components" and called for a nation wide aero-space education program.

Highlight of the first day of the convention included the presentation of a new banner to the association by Lt. Gov-ernor E. C. Plow who said it was the first time that a national veterans' organization had been so honored by the monarch. Following dedication service for the new colors, delegates and associate members paraded to the Cenotaph where wreaths were laid to commemorate fallen comrades.

On Friday a resolution was read by president-elect Phillip Connell calling on the government to provide Canada's armed forces with nuclear warheads in their defensive weapons . During discussion of the resolution delegates said that nuclear weapons were required to destroy nuclear weapons and that Canada's armed forces should not be required to defend the country if they did not have the proper weapons. The resolution was moved by Air Marshall W. A. Curtis and Air Marshall Dunlap, Chief of the Air Staff, who stated that conventional warheads on defensive weapons could cripple atomic army enemy rockets but would not prevent their exploding at a pre-determined height or upon contact with the ground. "Atomic warheads were needed" he said, "to neutralize the missile heads in the air". Following a second reading of the resolutions passed unanimously by the 250 delegates present. Other resolutions passed included the setting up of an association foundation for education, the continuing sponsorship of Air Cadet squadrons by wings of the association and the adoption of a national project which would provide sports activities for handicapped youth.

Welcoming addresses on behalf of the city of Halifax and the province were made and awards were presented at luncheon by Mayor John Lloyd and The Hon. Robert E. Stanfield. The host committee, Air Marshall Curtis and staff, outlined the role of R.C.A.F. squadrons in Europe. He said that present air defence squadrons in France and Germany would be replaced by the 1st strike - reconnaisance squadrons. Air Marshall Dunlap spoke of the unrecalled record of the R.C.A.F. in Europe and also paid tribute to General Lauris Norstad retired supreme NATO commander.

New officers of the association installed at the convention included President Phillip F. Connell, last past president Air Marshall W. A. Curtis and Air Marshall Dunlap, C. G. Wait. Mr. H. M. Bell of Winnipeg won the "Member of the Year" award, while Toronto (Edmonton) Wing was voted best wing two threes and the other two fours, and Const. Sheldon said he did not think it probable that such crudely crooked dice would be introduced into a game of experienced players.

Another former associate of McDermott and Feeley - Toronto gambler and mining stock promoter Norman Sinclair Hayhurst - told he estimated his 1961 net worth for the income tax department at $170,000, helped by a $100,000 killing in a mining stock several years ago.

Midgley said he knew nothing of payment for police tipoffs for the McDermott-Feeley Cookeville club or Toronto's Jordan Club, in both of which he had been a partner, Both are closed now.

Midgley said he had never paid money to anyone--police or government officials -- for tipoffs.

"Who looked after security at the Cookeville Club?" commission counsel Roland F. Wilson asked him.

"From my point of view, it was strong doors, he replied. He said Feeley "looked after security".

He said, under questioning, that no American owned any part of the Cookville club.

Midgley's testimony concluded a two-month sentence for a betting conviction, was asked about alleged payments found on him with figures adding up to $208,000 and which he himself interpreted as payoff records. He said it was his understanding that the police had added the income and outgo figures instead of subtracting them. The subject was not pursued.

During Midgley's appearance, Mr. Wilson produced exhibits before his trial in June sometone had added the commissioner saying that Midgley wanted to see him.

"You can rest assured it wasn't me--I wouldn't have the nerve for that," the witness said.

The commission takes a recess today, and will resume Thursday is scheduled to be On-tario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver, whose allegations in a speech last November touched off the investigation.

He is expected to be followed by a group of government officials including Attorney-General Kelso Roberts.

Ralph Graham New President of Kiwanis Club

It was announced yesterday that Ralph Graham, local lawyer, was elected President of the Bellville Kiwanis Club for the forthcoming year. Mr. Graham has served as vice-president in 1961 and 1962 year. The announcement was made at the close of the initial voting for Kiwanis Club officials yesterday and was made by past president Wm. Wishart, who is lieutenant-governor-elect for Kiwanis district in this area..

Public Meeting Not Municipal Board Hearing

The public meeting being called for October 11th to discuss the city's proposed "official plan" is not-a municipal board hearing as was indicated in yesterday's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer.

City Planning Engineer, Charles Mott, said the meeting was being called so that suggestions or comment might be received on the land use plan.

The Ontario Municipal Board hearing will come later," he said.

Foremen Hear Talk on Human Relations

Recently ninety members and guests of Quinte Chapter Industrial Management Clubs of Canada heard an inspiring address by Mr. William Gail of the Metcalf-Johnson Institute, Evansville, Indiana, on the subject "Human Relations, its Place in Management." He made the point that, during the last 25 years the original concept of human relations has undergone a drastic change. No longer is it enough to keep the employees happy, but let the human element of "staying in business" die, human relations was a means by which the employee utilized goal, to the exclusion of making a profit and remaining competitive. "We have big problems in industry today," said the speaker. "We should use the correct tools of supervision, straight dealing, acceptance of responsibility and practice the art of being human."

"These qualities alone will produce results, to improve the climate. We must educate, inform and train personnel in the principles of management," he said. "Events in the industrial field are changing so rapidly that supervisory personnel have some misgivings as to their ability to keep up. Up - to - the-minute training is the answer to this problem."

Mr. Gail has been conducting a training seminar at the Bellville plant of Mead-Johnson of Canada Ltd. for the past week. He addressed the Quinte Chapter program at extremely short notice, as the advertised speaker had to cancel his appointment, due to a sudden summons from Pacific coast. Notwithstanding this, the speaker drew a capacity audience. He was an once humorous, serious, critical and a master of his topic.

PARTICULARS GIVEN

Doug McLean, delegate to Canadian Council, gave particulars and brochures on the 1962 conference to be held in Toronto, Oct. 26th and 27th. Members were asked to contact their company management heads for support in releasing them in order to attend this important affair.

Frank Greenstone, vice-president National Council Public Relations, spoke on a program of job methods of training to be given under the tutelage of H. J. Rivest of the Northern Electric Co. It is hoped that all club members will be given the chance to support it deserves.

Chairman William Gander presented life member certificates to Robert Baverstock, Walter Bell and H. Glynne-Jones and a past president's gold pin to G. A. Norval.

Almost twenty new members and guests were welcomed by Vice-President Ken Wishart, who the attendance augured well for 1962-63. The club has a very capable executive committee. He asked for the support of all to make sure that the aims of the Quinte Chapter would be realized.

An excellent supper was served by the ladies of the Mountain View Women's Institute under the direction of Mrs. Clifford Barber. The entertainment and singsong were provided by Cliff Miller. An enjoyable evening was had by all. The next meeting meeting is Tuesday, Oct. 23rd.

French Group Starts Course At Library

The conversational French group at the County Public Library will have 26 members this year, according to Miss Olive Delaney, Chief Librarian. The group, more like a club than a class, has no minimum educational requirements, and no set fees. Will Mr. J. A. Berube, a French speaking Canadian now living in Bellville, they meet once weekly to speak French. They follow no text book, but do have a general plan of the course to be covered.

Fifteen persons attended the organizational meeting of the group, in the library last night. During the meeting they decided on Tuesday night as the best evening to hold their meetings, from 7.30 to 9 p.m. The question who attended last night's meeting agreed that 25c each would be a fair contribution per meeting, in order to defray costs and give the group a working fund. Miss Delaney emphasized, however, that there is no charge for attendance, and that the amount and any contributions were purely voluntary.

This is the fourth year the course has been held in Bellville. The original group, formed several years ago, broke up after their second year of operation. This is the second year for the second group.

More and More Blind People Being Hired in Open Industry

Many people in the past have been inclined to regard the blind as unfortunates deserving of pity and charity but in recent times, fortunately, more and more people are recognizing that the blind should be given equal opportunity in life with sighted men. There is a school not only school for the blind on the African continent, but back home in Canada yesterday afternoon at the Kiwanis Centre.

Mr. Pauw, a native of Rhodesia, who has taught for a number of years in South Africa, has recently taken up his position and is now on a world tour of institutions for the blind to find out what the latest methods of instruction and training are.

During his trip he has observed that more and more blind people are being employed in open industry rather than closed jobs, the speaker said. He also pointed to the fact that more and more employers are realizing that the blind are a better than evident rate than the sighted fellow workers and that they are more inclined to remain with a firm for a longer period.

The ultimate goal for a school for the blind is to have its students enter into sighted society as self-supporting citizens and the basic goal is to have its graduates able to support themselves through light in sheltered industry or workshops especially designed for the blind, Mr. Pauw said.

BLIND MAKE GOOD

The speaker noted that many blind people have succeeded in such vocations as secretary, piano technician and teachers. Some have even made good as lawyers, musicians and writers and in his school there is a course for stenographers. The number of which appears to be ideally suited to blind people, and which draws a large number of foreign students to his school, Mr. Pauw revealed.

It is necessary to be careful not to provide the blind individual with an education which will lead to frustration by heading him for a goal which is beyond his personal capacity. On the other hand every opportunity for him to be educated and receive training should be available, he said.

Mr. Pauw described the school for the blind in Rhodesia, his school, which has close to 220 students, now compared its features with some of those he had noticed in North America and Europe. He was surprised that there was "no training received in physiotherapy for the blind on this continent and noted that the same trend in physiotherapy sized in Canada and the United States was a feature that could be developed further in South Africa.

In concluding Mr. Pauw stated that the interest of the public in the problems of the blind was the greatest incentive factor in that people should know just what the blind can do so that they could then intelligently help the blind to help themselves.

He was introduced by his long-time friend, Kiwanian Fredi Bellefeld.

Two new members, Keith Allison and Robert Bell, both of whom appear to have been obtained from the city's shopping centre, were elected by past-president Lorne McDougall. They were introduced by Kiwanians Dr. Bob Brain and Murray Cole respectively.

It was announced that the club's last fund raising project for 1962, the sponsorship of the Auto Dere Devils, was to be held at the Bellerville Fair Grounds this Thursday evening.

Club 39 Will Be Formed In This City

The Bellerville Recreation Committee will hold an organizational meeting to form a Club 39 for residents of the city. The meeting is planned for Thursday, October 11, at 8.00 p.m., at the Recreation Centre.

To date, two meetings have been held as well as a trip to Kingston as guest of the Rideau Club which has upwards of 300 members.

The purpose of Club 39 is to provide entertainment and new friends for unattached adults over the age of 39 and 65. Persons wishing membership must be single, widowed, divorced or separated. Kingston is the first in this district to form a Club 39 with Peterborough and Bellerville following.

New Art Centre To Open At Queen's

"A festival of art and music will be held at Queen's University, Kingston, from October 25 to the 30th to mark the opening of a recently completed addition to the Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

"Features of the festival will be an exhibition of paintings drawing and sculptures loaned from private collections, media and private collectors, and three concerts by the New York Pro Musica ensemble. The Art collection will present selected examples of British art of the 19th and 20th century and will be highlighted by an illustrated lecture on British art by Dr. W. G. Constable of London, former director of the Courtauld Institute of the University of London, on opening day of the festival.

"The new addition, at a cost of $1,000,000 was made possible the Centre to bring to Kingston larger exhibitions of the great treasures and contemporary collections such as are now shown at the National Gallery, Ottawa.

"The first presentation by the New York Pro Musica will take place on the 26th at 8.00 p.m., the second on the night of the 27th, and the final concert, on the 30th, at 8.30 p.m.

"Tickets are free and may be obtained by request through the University department of extension in Kingston or by mail request.

"The two folk purpose of the Art Centre is to enrich the life of the community by the presentation of the best in art existing, and to enlarge the facilities for teaching of art at Queen's".

IN MEMORIAM

McQUAID — In loving memory of my dear daughter and mother Edmund McQuaid, who passed away October 3rd, 1953.

We think of him in silence,
His name we will not say,
There is nothing left to answer,
But a picture on the wall.
Sadly missed by mother Ethel, brother Edward, Sheila and family.

McQUAID — In memory of a dear son Edmund Robert McQuaid who left us suddenly October 3rd, 1953.
When God called home our dear Edmund,
It was so sudden we were not prepared,
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We loved him dearly but God loved him better,
Just to hear him laugh, to see him smile,
He was with us such a little while,
We never thought we'd see sober,
We were proud to call him son.
Sadly missed by Mother and the family.

EATON — In loving memory of our dear daughter Janet Marie, who passed away October 3, 1959.

God knew best when He took her,
And the hills were hard to climb,
But He left us with memories sweet,
And whispered "Peace Be Thine".
Away in the beautiful city of God,
By the valley of peace so fair,
Where the flowers bloom and memories meet,
We will meet our Rhona there.
Sadly missed by mother, father, sisters by Mummy, Daddy, Champ, Charlene and Sharron.

McQUAID — In loving memory of a dear son Edmund Robert McQuaid who passed away October 3, 1953.

To write how much we miss you,
But it will take the rest of our lives.
To forget the day we lost you,
If all the world were ours to give,
We would give it gladly,
To have you live again.
Come smiling through the door,
Sincerely remembered by sister Rita, husband and family.

SHIRRA

the time he passed over Cape Canaveral at the end of the first orbit, he said the temperature was drooping.

Minutes later he told the Kano station that he had the problem "under control."

The two-ton capsule, travelling 17,545 miles an hour, swept high above Cape Canaveral at 9:40 a.m. EDT at the completion of the first orbit and swung into the second. The flight plan called for six orbits lasting nine hours, 21 minutes — which is nearly double the time spent in space by any previous American astronaut.

It was the last for what Russians have accomplished.

If all six orbits were completed, Schirra's capsule would parachute to a landing in the Pacific about 275 miles northeast of Midway Island. Approximate impact time would be 5:26 p.m. EDT.

CONFERS BY RADIO

As Sigma 7 passed more than 100 miles above the Cape at the end of the first pass, Schirra conferred by radio with fellow astronaut Donald K. Slayton, stationed at the Mercury control centre. The 39-year-old U.S. navy commander told Slayton that all systems in the capsule were working perfectly and that he was feeling "very good."

He said a suit temperature which had crept gently upward throughout most of the first orbit apparently was being licked.

He still felt a little warm, but the suit temperature had dropped gradually from a 90 degree reading over Kano, Nigeria, to 76 degrees above the Cape.

Slayton suggested, because of the suit temperature problem, that he change the reading on his valve control. But Schirra answered that he "felt a little cooler" and preferred to maintain the status quo.

Minutes earlier, Schirra had held a follow session with Malcolm Scott Carpenter, who was the capsule communicator at the Cape, Mission Control.

Using astronaut lingo, "chimp configuration." Translated, this means that the capsule was on automatic control and that a chimpanzee would be able to do well at this time as an astronaut.

SEES BRIGHT PARTICLES

Schirra also reported seeing "some of Colonel John's friends."

He referred to the "fireflies" which Glenn saw outside his capsule at sunrise on each of his orbits. These bright particles remained pretty much a mystery until Carpenter went aloft last May.

Scientists theorized that the objects, which Carpenter described as snowflakes, were pieces of frost jarring loose from the capsule. They are illuminated when the rays of the rising sun strike them.

Millions of television viewers, including President Kennedy, saw the astronaut's blast - off from this space centre.

Schirra blasted off from Cape Canaveral at 8:15 a.m. on the nose of a powerful Atlas booster. The blasting rocket performed with drill-like precision and rammed Sigma 7 into near-perfect orbit ranging from about 100 to 176 miles above the earth.

DIDN'T MENTION VIEW

During the first orbit, Schirra didn't mention the view, which previous U.S. astronauts had described in glowing terms.

During much of the initial orbit, the craft was on automatic controls. But Schirra made checks of the manual steering and the fly - by - wire system, which is a combination of manual and automatic controls.

Five minutes after liftoff the Project Mercury control centre on the Cape reported in news paper men that Schirra's Sigma 7 spacecraft had settled into the intended orbital path more than 100 miles above the earth.

At 8:53 a.m., 36 minutes after launching, the US Telstar communications satellite, zipped high above Cape Canaveral and a film of the launch preparations and the launching was relayed from the Cape to the satellite and down to a receiving station in France. From there it was sent to 17 European countries via the Eurovision network. It also was piped to nine Eastern European countries as part of the Soviet Union through a connection with the Intervision network.

SPINS CAPSULE

Immediately after attaining orbit, Schirra used his fly-by-wire controls—a combination of automatic and manual—to spin his capsule 180 degrees on its yaw axis so that he was flying upright and backward through space.

He reported his craft was "flying beautifully."

The manoeuvre performed with the same precision that other Mercury astronauts did earlier this year in propelling astronauts John Glenn and Malcolm Scott Carpenter on three-orbit journeys.

The silver-skinned projectile shoved Schirra's Sigma 7 through a "keyhole in the sky" at the proper speed and angle. If it had missed this spot by miles high and 500 miles slant range from Cape Canaveral, a midnight and ticked steadily tracking station at Bermuda would have completed another orbit back to earth immediately.

During the five minutes of powered flight before the craft has kicked the spacecraft into orbit Schirra was busy monitoring his capsule system.

ENGINES SEPARATE

The report described burnout and separation of the two Atlas booster engines, jettisoning of an emergency rocket escape tower and cutoff of the main sustainer engine.

His reports were crisp and clear, then control centre reported, despite a few extremes of rocket acceleration forces kept rising until the pull of gravity pressed him against his couch.

But the pressure vanished swiftly as the capsule was injected into orbit and Schirra entered the strange world of weightlessness. He was to remain in this state until re-entry through the atmosphere at the end of his flight.

Schirra reported as he neared the first orbit that he was in excellent condition.

At all went right Schirra would land in the Pacific ocean 275 miles northeast of Midway Island at the completion of his six-orbit orbit. Based on the launch time of 8:16 a.m., expected impact time would be 5:27 p.m.

Schirra's flight was designed to nearly double the time spent in space by Glenn and Carpenter. Its main purpose was to lay the groundwork for the next step in the U.S. man in space program. This is an 18-orbit, 34-hour mission scheduled next year.

The 18-orbit flight will use essentially the same spacecraft as the earlier Mercury flights, and Schirra's job was to determine the best means of conserving vital fuel, electrical power and water. The water is pumped through cooling devices to maintain comfortable cabin temperatures, which soared during the first orbit.

To hold down consumption of these valuable ingredients, Schirra was to spend considerable time in drifting flight during the fourth and fifth orbits. In this cruise mode, he shuts off power and control systems, allowing the capsule to move freely on its roll, pitch and yaw axes, coasting slowly.

Before blastoff Schirra sat calmly in Sigma 7, atop the big booster, as trouble with the radar equipment at the Canary Island tracking station stopped the countdown. The delay was brief.

At 7:05 a.m. the gantry was moved away, leaving the Atlas standing alone, outlined against the brightening sunrise.

Tropical storm Daisy at 6 a.m. was located about 310 miles north of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and in the area planned for a landing for Schirra if his flight had to be terminated after only six orbits.

Because of this, recovery vessels in the area were moved 100 miles east-southeast during the night and were in an area of calmer seas and good weather. The capsule could be landed in the more easterly area by delaying firing of the retro rockets.

The final countdown began at

The council, says Archbishop Karl J. Alter of Cincinnati, will "review every phase of church life—doctrine, liturgy, law, missions, training of the clergy, sacramental revision of the liturgical books."

Judging from preliminary reports by the preparatory commissions and comments of bishops and observers, here are some of the notable moves that may be in store:

1. A decentralizing of church authority, with fewer decisions vested in Rome and more in more latitude to local bishops.

2. A restatement of the concept of papal infallibility or doctrinal matters, emphasizing that it is based on the character of any pope, but on Christ himself and his promises to guide His church.

3. Action placing the church clearly on record in favor of religious liberty in all countries, and upholding the right of all men to practise their religion.

4. A firm, positive recognition that all validly baptized persons, whatever their denomination, are within the Christian fold of salvation at least potentially and, in a sense, part of the church, though not nominally Roman Catholics.

5. Readjustments to out more stress on the responsibility of laymen in the church, both in the world and work in the world.

6. A review of liturgical practices, permitting wherever advisable of vernacular—the language of the people—in the mass, and other steps to promote greater congregational participation.

7. A statement on the permissable authority of biblical revelation, in relation to church traditions—with possible measures to promote fuller study and use of the Bible, now largely out-of-print in Catholicism.

8. Possible authorization to ordain married men as deacons to aid in the work of priests, such as in baptisms, preaching at Sunday mass, distributing of communion to the sick and in missions.

9. A reduction in the index of forbidden books, now including about 3,000 titles, many of them of little contemporary interest.

10. Clarification of the Catholic position on the Virgin Mary, including possible measures to soften dogmatic status to "co-redemptrix" (a function co-operated with God in bringing Christ to the world) faces strong opposition.

Debate on some of the issues is expected to be sharp and long.

White Cane Club Holds Games' Night

The October game's night of the White Cane Club at the Kiwanis Centre proved most interesting.

"Scouting for Names" was won by Harvey Cragg; the "Newspaper Race" by Allie Wright; and "Clothes Pin Clothes Peg Race", by Alice Smith and Sara O'Shea for the ladies and Jim Hamilton and John Tonner for the men.

Helen Wardman, vice-president, was in the chair in the absence of the president, Pat Hamilton, who is on holidays.

Regret was expressed that Vi Waite had met with an accident, also associate member, Mrs. Mildred Sidon, and Bertha Lott is a patient in Kingston General Hospital.

Arlie Scott gave the birthdays for October and the anniversaries. Those who had Doris Lloyd, Charlie Dolan, Sara O'Shea and Cliff Howe.

The members all joined in a sing-song with Maude Rollins at the piano. Mrs. Rollins read a letter from A. D. Askew of the Canadian Home and Hospital of Purulia, West Bengal, India, was read. This letter was of appreciation for the gift of the bandage project for leprosariums.

Mr. Askew stated that there are patients in their care who have been blind, crippled, and it is an inspiration to know that such bandages were knitted by people who have sight.

This is the largest leprosy home run by a Christian Mission in India and at the moment, there are 500 in-patients as well as giving treatment to 6,000 out-patients.

MODERN HOSPITAL

This home has a modern hospital to care for these patients who are needing reconstructive surgery as well as those who need medical treatment. Most of the patients live a normal life in this village, go to work several hours a day in one of the industries — e. g. brick-making, tile-making, pottery weaving, teaching in the school or nursing.

Mr. Askew says such parcels are most welcome and useful. Fellow Coleman and her Kiwanis ladies served delightful refreshments which were thanked by Dick Phillbin, who also expressed thanks to the Lion's Club for transportation.

Charges for Fire-Fighting In Murray Twp. Discussed

TRENTON — To pay or not to pay—that was the question confronting members of Murray Township Council and Trenton Fire Department, by representatives of property owners when they met last night to discuss a by-law calling on a bill for $2,2000 sent by Trenton to Murray for fire-fighting in the township last year. Most members present in opposition to paying, claim the township was charged for only ten of 21 fires fought by the Trenton fire department last year. Based on a cost of $150 per fire for the first hour and $50 for each additional hour, this worked out at $2,200. Murray has so far paid only $1,000. Last night's meeting was called in an effort to decide the question of the other $1,200. No decision was made.

Murray's main 'objection is that Trenton billed the township for more fires than the town had not been officially requested to fight. Trenton's answer is that it's not always possible to get official requests right at the fire and, in the words of Ross Burtt, chairman of the committee, "the chief (Fire Chief Cecil Ellis) is not responsible for somebody's error. You've got to live together," he added, "and we've got to work together as much as possible."

Most members agreed that the responsibility for deciding which fires should be fought in the township is a Murray one. But were also sympathetic to the fact that fire-fighting is a costly business, and that if Murray wanted fire protection from Trenton, they somehow would have to pay for it.

Said Mr. Burtt: "If you want to pass a bylaw, we'll co-operate with you 100 per cent." He suggested that grass fires in the township be outlawed and that a permit be high fine for breaking the law.

Clerk-comptroller O. W. Carry of Trenton commented: "If the present agreement is not practical, we must have an agreement whereby we can serve you. There should be a procedure whereby the present contract can be terminated. This costs us money, and we're out of pocket through it."

Mr. Burtt said: "Whatever the agreement you decide, it's your responsibility for anything unusual that occurs in the township when fire calls are not called from Trenton. And we can get permission to fight a fire only through the reeve or deputy reeve."

One supporter was a Murray councillor, that a map be drawn up showing which areas of Murray Township should be protected by Trenton Fire Department, may be implemented.

This prompted Mr. Burtt to remark: "Drat your map. I would make it that in case of emergency, you can request the Trenton Fire Department to go to help. It's up to you to see that people don't call the fire department unnecessarily — by imposing high fines if necessary."

Reeve Douglas McMaster of Murray Township said he thought it would be a good idea if the protection to persons and property committee met more often with the surrounding municipalities so that, in his words, "you can tell them what's involved in this fire-fighting business".

Mr. Carry was to step further. He said he believed the township's ambulance is a case for an area fire department taking in Trenton, Murray township, Ameliasburg Township and Brighton.

Others present at the meeting were Councillor Claude Graham and Duncan McDonald of Murray and deputy reeve Fred Bruyea of Murray township, and councillors Ronald Webb, Norman Filndall and Leo MacCulley.

Fire Probably Set Says Fire Chief

TRENTON — A fire, discovered in the basement of Captain Joe's Marina in Trenton last night, was probably intentionally, according to Chief Cecil Ellis, of the Trenton Fire Department.

The fire, built against the north end of one shed, was not noticed for a short while, but would have been if it had not been spotted early.

The fire, from the Times Square Restaurant, across the river, spotted it about 12:30 a.m. and called the fire department. One pumper was sent to the scene, and the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Three Adults Injured as Car Hits Pole

TRENTON — Three adults were injured, and three children were uninjured, in a two-car collision in Trenton this morning. Mrs. Audrey Gauthier, of 171 Marmora Street, Trenton, was driving south on Marmora street, when one of the children in the back seat distracted her. She turned to see the cause of the trouble, and the car ran into a hydro pole, according to Trenton police.

Injured were Mrs. Verona Hamilton, and Carol Hamilton, 16, of 18 Victoria Street, Trenton, and Mrs. Audrey Gauthier. Mrs. Gauthier suffered a bruised knee, and Carol Hamilton suffered a grazed left leg. Mrs. Hamilton, now in Trenton hospital, may be there for several days. She suffered deep facial lacerations and a concussion. Dr. Weaver is attending.

The two Hamilton children, Ray and the one Gauthier child, all less than four years old, were unhurt in the back seat of the car. Damage to the car, registered to Frank Gauthier of 171 Marmora Street, was estimated at $200.

FIND FIFTH BODY

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — The body of a fifth person drowned when a car plunged over a bank into Otonabee River Monday night was recovered Tuesday by a skindiver. The victim was identified as Charles R. Curtin, 46, of Peterborough. The other bodies were recovered earlier.

Gen. Edwin A. Walker, the commandant of troops during the school integration crisis at Little Rock, Ark., in 1957, was ordered to undergo psychiatric examination for his part in the weekend riots.

Walker, 53, took charge of a group of 1,000 students Sunday night and threw the entire cloud of tear gas toward federal marshals at the university's registration building.

Walker was arrested and charged, among other things, with inciting insurrection. He was taken to the federal prison at Springfield, Mo., and a psychiatric examination was ordered.

U.S. District Attorney F. Russell Millin said at Mitau City the examination would require from 60 to 90 days and means that Walker cannot obtain his release by posting the $100,000 bond set by the court.

The number of prisoners held here for federal officers dropped to five. They were jailed in a special stockade near the tiny University airport. Mitau City arrests for taking part in the riots or for carrying weapons.

Other developments on the scene:

Allasette Bracy, 21, a Negro girl from Raymond, near the state capital of Jackson, applied for admittance to Ole Miss. She had been enrolled at Jackson State College for Negroes. Her application was said to be under consideration by the board.

She said she believes white and Negro students will get along well together in southern schools "but when it will happen I don't know."

In Washington, Welfare Secretary Anthony J. Celebrezze said money his department, formally would make available to the university is being withheld. The funds he said, would be held back until the situation "is clarified."

Sad Story at Ole Miss

Nobody has any cause for celebration over recent events at Oxford, Mississippi.

It is difficult to see how any real advantage can accrue immediately to Negroes from the registration of James H. Meredith as a student at the University of Mississippi. That does not mean that he and his backers were ill advised to force the showdown which has led to bloodshed. The integration of schools ordered by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1954 has been proceeding at such a slow pace that Negroes deserve praise for their patience, rather than criticism for their insistence on continual extension of the hard-won privileges so slowly and so grudgingly accorded them.

Nor could President John Kennedy of the U.S. have taken any other action if he wished to uphold the law of the country. To permit court orders to be flouted by state politicians would have been to surrender all claim to rule by law, rather than by the mob.

Still, one cannot help wondering whether some alternative method of winning equality for Negroes would not have been more effective and less likelihood of resulting in bloodshed and deep racial bitterness, had it been adopted earlier.

Concern has been shown by students at Ole Miss over the possibility of recognition of the university being withdrawn by educational authorities if state officials continue to interfere in its affairs. That is highly significant and suggests one form of pressure which, if adopted earlier, might have brought results. This would have been particularly true had the federal authorities employed similar tactics in filling all federal jobs—recognizing only degrees granted by completely desegregated universities and accepting scholastic standards only of desegregated schools. It is worthy of note some of the students at Ole Miss who have had Negro classmates at other schools have indicated they have no personal objections to the mixing of the races in classrooms. That one may doubt whether this tolerant attitude will find a suitable climate for growth after forcible desegregation. It would, one would think, be more likely to flourish if desegregation had been the result of economic pressures.

All this, though, is hindsight. The U.S. Supreme Court having decided eight years ago that segregated schools were illegal, the time when the Federal Government could attempt to promote desegregation by economic pressures has long since passed.

The outlook is not a happy one—and nothing could more graphically emphasize the dangers inherent in the situation than the fact that a former major general of the U.S. Army, Edwin Walker, led students in two charges against U.S. marshals. It is frightening to think that a man of this type recently held a highly responsible command in Europe.

Toy Boats in Real Life

Gretel is going home, without the America's Cup. The Australian syndicate backing the attempt has spent about one million dollars, in an effort to get hold of less than a thousand dollars' worth of silverware.

They have a boat for their money, of course, but that boat, large and expensive as it is, is not fit to make it back home to Australia. There are smaller and cheaper boats that can do that anywhere in any weather, but Gretel is useless except as an expensive toy, to be used for short trips on sheltered waters. She must travel back home, as she came, on a real ship.

The owners of the Newfoundland jack-boats that sailed their race on Lake Ontario this summer are looked down on by the International set, and the "12 meter" yachtsmen. Jack-boats, which have usually completed a ten or twenty year working lifetime by the time they are bought up by amateurs, cost very little. And the buyer of a boat of this sort has the freedom of the seas, with no worries about a flyspeck on the hull slowing it down.

Sailing can be a wonderful sport, but any sport is in danger if it is taken too seriously. When a group of businessmen band together to build and operate, at a total cost of more than a million dollars, a toy that is typically unable to be other than a toy, it makes a poor impression among the peoples of the world who have a better use for that much money.

The European Common Market nations, totalling 170,000,000 people share a total land area of 450,000 square miles. One is relieved to hear that at last, after all these centuries of strife they are willing to share it.

Some Wasted Efforts

Montreal Gazette

When Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen was the British Ambassador in Persia he foresaw that his mission was doomed to failure. It was the sort of situation in which the answer should appear to come directly from Whitehall, and that his Government should not be involved at all. But he had to be secretly informed by his Government what he ought to say.

The Foreign Office quite understood. It sent him a long telegram covering all possible points. The trouble was that the telegram was so long that Sir Hughe did not feel sure that he could have it at his command unless he made the effort to learn the whole of it by heart. He had to be ready, for he could never tell at what moment he might be called upon to give his answer.

"It was therefore necessary," he said, "not only to learn it by heart but to keep it fresh in my mind for an indefinite time. I propped it each day by my looking-glass and studied it every morning while shaving."

Altogether, being ready to speak accurately at a moment's notice became a wearing and sustained effort. But the irony of the whole matter was that the question was never asked at all.

As life can never be predictable, many a time a special effort must be made with no practical result to show for it. And while sometimes the labor lost has to be accepted with a weary resignatia, the useless effort has about it something peculiarly indirected and, in the long run, seed oil and sold for 39 cents a un?

We plan to mull this vexing question at noon today over a light coffee and a salami sandwich.

Needs Poets As Diplomats

Baltimore Sun

Not since Dante Alighieri undertook a special governmental mission from Florence to San Gimignano in 1300 has there been such a poetic diplomatic courier than Robert Frost.

But back from Moscow Frost is coming, in his poet's memory a personal message from Premier Khrushchev to President Kennedy carefully tucked away.

Like any poet worthy of the name, Mr. Khrushchev, Mr. Frost does not gossip about the tidings he bears.

"Very good high stuff," he says.

But he gave what he called a "trump poet's" view of "a mighty monarch," Khrushchev who by his talked.

For an hour or two the poet faced the Premier and the talk was candid and tough.

"I knew he was that kind of a ruthless, tough man," the fellow. All ready for a fight. He's not a coward. He's not afraid of us and we're not afraid of him."

Robert Frost is the kind of American the Russians probably see and envy, the cultured man of honesty and reason and zest and soul, one whom every Khrushchev would like to meet.

We should send Moscow more men like him, except that where does one find another Dante, or another Frost?

New Front In Cold War

Wall Street Journal

A story in this newspaper the other day reported that Americans are spending hundreds of millions a year on such unusual delicacies as reindeer steak, chocolate - covered insects and smoked sparrow.

Well, innocent though we be of these table delights, their increasing popularity produces an uneasy feeling in the breast, and we don't mean heartburn. Consider, for example, the headline that popped up in already - being worked out by Francis "Starved Rock" Parkman (Cans Eat Birds and Bees" or "U.S. Kids Face Bleak Christmas Diet" follows Prancer Into Pot Roast."

But beyond the propaganda possibilities, the trend toward more exotic foods raises some political questions about our relations with Russia. Are we now faced with a gourmet gap? How, for instance, does gray caviar from the Caspian Sea and canned crayfish from Lake Galilee stack up against American sparrow that's been smoked, dipped in chocolate and covered

The junior ministers were left nodding to themselves.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 3rd, 1942

Just when the majority of householders have started covering up their plants as protection against frost at night — yesterday Mr. Fred Faulkner, Holloway farmer residing in the ninth concession of Sidney township, displayed at Hamilton's Store in Foxboro a box of strawberries picked that afternoon from his garden. The berries were perfectly ripe and of a size and quality that would defy their equal in a June's picking.

It was just 20 years ago that the old Grand Trunks and Petes squared off in Oshawa. However, let Fred Craig, the Petes' manager, describe the game story. Belleville were first to bat and they opened right up on Heckman. Wicky Ross started with a single to left and Verne Weir followed that pitch to score him; the rout was on. The Bay of Quinte team scored two more runs in the first, got three in the third and another trio in the fifth. Heckman's attention was drawn to the fact that by that time Peterboro automobiles were beginning to pull out for home, and Jake Gaudaur fervently, "if with we could go with them". Anyway, it wound up 12 to 0 for Belleville. Heckman who had been carrying the pitching burden all season, had experienced under the strain, and the Petes had gone easy on him. He allowed 16 hits, with Harry Mills getting four, and the Peterborough boys made ten errors.

The price has been set at $18. per ton for hard coal. The quantities are under the supervision of fuel controller Thos. Wills. While price is 50 cents per ton higher than it is in Toronto, it is explained that the freight rate is 60 cents higher to Belleville than to Toronto and an additional charge for weighing at the market scales here. Strictly Personal

Due Tribute Not Paid to Own Artists

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A labor dispute is generally regarded as an "economic" issue — a matter of dollars and cents, of pensions and fringe benefits, but this is only where labor disputes end. It is not where they begin.

They begin, almost invariably, with bad communications. They begin in the area of the psychological, and then degenerate into bitter economic wrangles, much like a divorce, which ends in court with a fight over money, when money was not the real issue at all, to begin with.

During the recent battle, for instance, between the players in the Chicago Symphony Orchestra Association, I could not accept the statement that it was a "bread-and-butter" dispute because the financial facts. Certainly, there were monetary issues involved; but the musicians' demands were so large if there had not already been a breakdown in communication.

This is true of dock workers or truck drivers; it is even truer of artists. The men who play in symphony orchestras are highly trained specialists; they expect to be, and should get upon as a hired hand of little individual consequence. It is this general attitude that breeds resentment on his part — the "we're not getting enough" trouble."

Moreover, the dominant businessman mentality of our time considers the artist as little more than a frivolous, irresponsible, unworldly. Ironically enough, the very fact that the serious artist is willing to make economic sacrifices in his art, and ignore him in the eyes of the more "practical" of the U.S. is proof, why isn't he making more?

It was symptomatic of this attitude that when President Eisenhower appointed 15 trustees from the people for the National Centre a few years ago, they were all businessmen, lawyers, diplomats and social leaders. There were no writers, artists or musicians on the list. The management and operation of cultural institutions in this country is very much a closed club, to the detriment of all, in the long run.

To most of us, an artist is important only if he has achieved the dubious distinction of being a "celebrity," which puts a commercial value on a cultural product, and debases the whole nature of the artistic pursuit. A conductor is worth $50,000 a year, but a piccolo player scarcely rates a locker of his own.

To Your Good Health

There Are Many Different Kinds of Skin Tests

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there more than one type of skin test? If so what are the purposes, I know of one case in which. Mrs. P. L. P."

Yes, there are many kinds. In the one you describe, the test was made to determine whether the patient is sensitive to penicillin.

Valuable as penicillin is for treating infections in most of us, some people can be severely and occasionally even dangerously sensitive to this drug. If there is any suspicion of such sensitivity, the wise thing is to test first, instead of giving the drug and finding out afterward that it makes the patient itch or swell, or even find himself unable to breathe.

There are a wide variety of sensitivity tests. The patient may fever and other allergy tests are frequently used, either to find out what things the patient should avoid, or determine what desensitization treatments may be given.

For diagnosis there are such tests as the Schick test (for diphtheria immunity), tuberculin to show whether the patient has been exposed actively to TB), histoplasmin (for histoplasmosis, a lung infection), mumps antigen to learn whether a person has had the mumps in the past, a test for trichinosis, and a good many others.

Horse serum desensitization and other materials are used for certain tests.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to stop bed-wetting in older children? We have a grandson, 5, who wets the bed almost every night. We see ads that claim to stop this embarrassing habit but are reluctant to send for them as I get all the impression that there is nothing to be done except be patient. Mrs. H."

There's a lot that can be done besides "boiling patient". And I can't agree that 5 years is "an older child." After, I agree, than the usual age for having learned to stay dry, but still young compared to some bedwetters in the early teens, and I've known of cases that went to the age of being drafted for the armed forces. Those extreme cases reach that age.

If it's just "exasperating habit," some of the advertised methods work effectively. But if there is some physical problem involved, treatment is required, not just a change in habits.

The difficulty, from various causes, is so frequent that I've stopped trying to discuss it fully in the column, but have written a booklet on the subject for people who need help. It is "Enuresis — Ten Ways to Stop Bed Wetting." (Copies are available to anyone, in return for 20 cents for printing and handling costs, plus a self-addressed unstamped envelope. Send requests to Dr. Molner, in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 196, Dundee, Ill.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had ilitis media but now is better. However he has severe headaches. Could these migraine headaches be a result? Mrs. J. W."

Otitis media is an infection of the middle ear. If, after treatment, hearing should no longer has pain in the ear or drainage from it, I'd doubt that the ailment would have to do with the present headaches.

"Don't Quit Because of Arthritis" is the title of a leaflet designed to help all who suffer the aches and pains of arthritis. For a copy write to Dr. Molner, in care of The Chicago-Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Far Streets Look Bright

Fort William Times-Journal

An exhibition of pictures and drawings by children of the community, recently opened in the German city of Bremerhaven, brings out a contrast. The children who grow up in cities like the motifs from rural life very much like those city children who live in the countryside choose entirely select subjects of city life.

As children are, so adults become. We have an illustration of this close to home. Numbers of young people who have grown up in the wide-open spaces of Northwestern Ontario have become used by glimpses of big city life, and some of them leave their home in time to try their wings in larger centres.

And who, among adults, become the most ardent admirers of life in Northwestern Ontario? Those who have had generous taste of living in crowded big cities.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

I know a gentleman who goes Communism on a 5 to 1 ratio. He thinks it is the only workable system for human society.

He points out that the highest peaks reached in the history of civilization were those, like the Egyptian, Greek and Roman, achieved by societies founded and edited by rulers who combined such a s the Spanish, French and British, reached their highest peaks when their economic and social structures were in fact if not in name based on democracy.

He adds that it is absurd of us to pretend that there is no republic in our own western setup. There are vast areas of life like New York London, Paris and Tokyo, not acres but square miles in extent, where the people of the slaves. Land of Julius Caesar or Thomas Jefferson dwell in much the same conditions. We exaggerate, he says, the similarities of the rivalry in bygone times. Masters, in all ages, who welfare to a degree at least at good care of their slaves as they did of their prize cattle or beloved horses. Take a ride at five p.m. in a New York subway he suggests and decide whether the condition of the men and women there approached the cruelty that of free men or of slaves.

Russia, he says, is a despotic example. Pharaoh built the pyramids, Khrushchev launches rockets. But when you listen to Commies with shining faces singing the Internationale, you are hearing the echoes of the voices in the Mississippi bayous singing of Beulah the cotton.

Poppy Fund Committee Holds Meet

The Belleville Poppy Fund Committee held its regular meeting on Sunday afternoon. Many items of business were discussed, including the sale of wreaths and poppies for Remembrance Day.

Chairman Les Digby pointed out to the committee the importance of getting the orders for wreaths in as early as possible. This would avoid the last minute rush and delay. The members are taking orders and would appreciate any co-operation given them.

After debate at morning, afternoon and evening sittings went on in a crowded House and before official, diplomatic and public galleries crowded to the doors as they have been since Parliament opened last Thursday.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker spoke for more than three hours, appealing for a further lease on life for his ministry to present legislation to meet current problems.

He denied Mr. Pearson's charge, made on Monday, that the government had concocted a foreign exchange crisis from the public during the June 18 election campaign.

The prime minister called Mr. Pearson's charge "unprincipled" and maintained the national economy was on the "up and up" during the campaign and still is "on the upsurge."

He compared the June foreign exchange crisis, during which Canada's reserves of gold and foreign currencies dipped sharply, to that of 1947 when the Liberals acted "illegally" to counteract with measures employed legally by the Conservatives this summer.

The foreign exchange fund had expended $128,000,000 in gold and United States dollars to support the Canadian dollar between June 1 and 14. Between June 15 and 22 another $270,000,000 was needed and a further $115,000,000 between June 25 and June 29.

The immediate reaction of the drain on the fund had not started until after his June 14 broadcast, Mr. Diefenbaker added. This was the broadcast Mr. Pearson had criticized for painting a rosy economic picture while hiding the foreign exchange emergency.

Mr. Thompson, whose non-confidence motion was greeted by derisive laughter from the other three parties, called on the parties to forget "partisan consideration" in parliamentary deliberations in the next few months.

But he criticized the government's outline of legislative plans as "window-dressing" and laid at its door conservative and Liberal governments the country's social, economic and financial ills.

He also indicated clearly his group will not support Mr. Pearson's non-confidence motion on Diefenbaker's words.

Mr. Herridge scored a lack of constructive measures in the government's plans and called its belt - tightening "austerity "dangerous and misleading nonsense."

He urged measures for democratic economic planning which would provide, under Parliament's control, action toward economic goals based on what the people want and what the economy should produce.

Associate Defence Minister Sevigny termed the government's program one of "progress and advancement" and the Liberal proposals a step backward to bankruptcy and ruin.

Mr. Caouette, speaking in rapid-fire French that was especially applauded by the 25 other Quebec Ralliement Creditiste MPs, argued that the real problem in Canada was lack of money not planning.

The monetary system was at fault and the Bank of Canada should be used to create money and credit to match production. He belited the Liberals on adopting as Liberal policy Social Credit suggestion to extend family allowances to age 21 for students and urged that old age pensions be raised to account for increased living costs.

He also criticized clearly his for this Parliament—"we're not here for one year but for several sessions."

199 Persons Accepted as Blood Donors

PICTON — A total of 220 persons registered at the Red Cross Blood Donors' Clinic held in Picton armouries on Monday. Of these, 199 were accepted as donors.

"It was a splendid response and one of which Pwince Edward can be proud," said Mrs. M. W. Hagerman.

"It is an unusually busy season and unlike the last clinic, we did not have the men attending the survival course. At that time, they made it possible to accept 233 donors and that is the record to date.

"It was a very pleasing response to all concerned."

Mrs. Harry Slavin, general convener of the clinic on behalf of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, is in Hotel Dieu Hospital at Kingston and was missed. Many ladies, doctors and nurses assisted the Red Cross officials and everything ran off very smoothly."

Golf, Country Club Enjoys Splendid Year

PICTON — Picton Golf and Country Club enjoyed one of the most successful seasons in its history, its members learned at the annual banquet and meeting. Membership included 118 men, 30 ladies and 8 juniors.

Excess of receipts over expenditures was $1,263.45. Many improvements had been made during the year.

Directors elected for next year were K. P. Mayhew, Lou Garrison, Fred Smith, Bob Drew, Stuart Allan, Joe Skratt.

In presentation of trophies, no ambitions were given. Instead, wall plaques at the club house will record the yearly winners.

The club had triple winners in both the ladies' and men's divisions this year. Patricia Culhane won the Ruth Leavens' Cup and Mayhew Golf Cup, emblematic of match play, with or without handicap. She also won the Teasel Trophy for player showing the most progress in the silver division.

Lee St. Dennis won three men's events, the Allison Cup for handicap, Bowl for low gross, D'Eterre Trophy, and in partnership with Doug Norton, the men's two - ball tournament. Pierce Jones was runner-up in the former two competitions.

Ladies' section winners were Currie Hogg Cup, Mrs. Robert Watt with Pat Taylor as runner-up; Patricia Culhane Trophy for ladies' ladies' championship, Jane Walmsley with Karen Davies as runner-up; flags tournament, Mrs. Willard Smith, ringer score, Dila Adams.

In mixed events, Vincent Trophy for Mr. and Mrs. tournament went to Mr. and Mrs. Lou Garrison; Colliver Trophy for mixed two-ball, to Chris Cronk and Mary Cooks.

Club championship, Bristol Trophy, was won for the third year by John Lloyd Lipson, with Lou Garrison as runner-up.

Junior mens' champion, Drew Trophy, was Carl Stacey.

George Cooper won the E. A. Pearce Trophy, player with 24 handicap and over showing most progress. Hugh Folkard won the Carter Trophy and Roy Adams the player with handicap over 24 showing the most progress.

The Club's senior member, H. B. Dilly, recalled that Picton Golf and Country Club has started 55 years ago with the late H. B. Bristol as president.

The actual site of the crash is still undetermined. The survivors were in "too great shock" to help questioners Tuesday night.

A rescue party was to enter the area today on foot to try to reach the wreckage.

The search for the three men began Sunday.

More than 16,000 square miles of bush were searched from the air by a fleet of 12 planes, including some from the RCAF. The plane's colour—red and silver—made it almost impossible to spot among the bright autumn foliage.

first I didn't answer. Then he said 'This is Eddie. Eddie, darling' and I couldn't say anything for a few minutes."

Parole Board arrangements for his release were so secret that Mr. Boyd learned of his parole from news reports.

R. B. Beames, an official of the National Parole Board said Boyd had been kept out of contact with his family until "a few things" in the family situation had been cleared up.

Mr. Boyd is needed a breather before the roof of public life falls in on him," explained Mr. Beames.

During his press conference Boyd thanked reporters for the publicity. He said he wouldn't have got out of the penitentiary two days early otherwise.

Mrs. Boyd talked excitedly about their plans for living together "as a family" in her modest apartment and said she felt like the British war bride who had once before waited for a husband to come home.

"It was easier then because the times got leave. I haven't even kissed him for two years. After this happened 10 years ago I talked about moving anywhere and changing my name. But why should we? It's a good name and we're not ashamed of it."

The Experts Say

Moist Heat Is Best Way To Cook Some Beef Cuts

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—The homemaker who steers clear of cheaper cuts of meat because she's afraid they'll turn out tough may be missing a bet, especially if she's looking for ways to save on the food budget.

Home economists at the Ontario agriculture department say the less - expensive cuts, especially beef, can be cooked to tenderness with moist heat. All it takes is a little study to learn the proper way to do it.

The most common methods of employing moist heat are pot roasting, braising, stewing and simmering. All involve cooking with liquid in a covered pan.

Recommended for less-tender beef cuts such as blade, shoulder and square rump roasts and the cross rib is pot roasting. Meat should first be browned in floor and fat, then roasted in the oven with a small amount of liquid. Sour cream or tomato juice will fill the bill.

Braising is recommended for flank steak (the cheapest and least tender of all beef cuts) and short ribs. Essentially it's the same as pot roasting except that it's done on top of the stove. Again, sour cream, tomato juice and occasionally water may be used.

Shank and corned beef should be simmered in water only and on top of the stove.

The economists emphasize the meats simmered on the stove should never be boiled. Otherwise they become stringy. And to get tenderness in the cheaper cuts they should be cooked until they're well done.

Meat can also be tenderized before cooking by pounding it with the edge of a saucer or mallet or by scoring it—that is, cutting it diagonally across its surface with a knife.

For tenderizing, meat may also be marinated for several hours before cooking in an acid liquid such as vinegar and oil, sour cream or tomato juice.

In veal, lamb and pork the difference between tough and tender cuts isn't as noticeable as in beef. Most veal and lamb, except the neck, flank and shank, can be roasted without liquid at 300-325 degrees.

All cuts of pork, even the more expensive, should be cooked until they are well done at temperatures of 305-350. This is to eliminate danger of trichinosis, a parasitic infection in muscles and intestinal tract.

The home economists recommend use of a meat thermometer when roasting any kind of meat. Internal temperature of a beef pot roast should be 170 while pork roast should be moderately tender cut, such as ada good).

Medical Soc. Aux. Discusses Future Projects

The Women's Auxiliary to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society held their fall meeting on September 27th at the home of Dr. L. Matheson, 1 Catherine St.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. J. Nelles. The treasurer, Mrs. F. Ross, reported sending $150. to the Salvation Army during the summer for the children's camp.

Mrs. B. Nugent reported a donation to the Trenton Memorial Hospital, Children's Ward, to be used for books and toys.

Mrs. Nelles introduced and welcomed Mrs. Maurice Schryer, a newcomer to Belleville.

Projects for the coming year were suggested and discussed.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess.

A money-saver is minced beef but it doesn't always have to turn up as hamburger. A minced - beef preparation containing eggs and rice, for example, can be shaped into pyramid croquettes, dipped in egg and rolled in bread crumbs, then fried.

Seasons that are excellent for beef include allspice, mace, basil, thyme, oregano, savory, garlic, Horseradish, mustard, ketchup, onion, Worchestershire sauce and tabasco.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

TIPS FOR BOOK-BORROWERS

Maybe, as the saying goes, you can't tell a book by its cover, but, judging by the acts many books carry, it's often possible to tell what type of people have been reading them.

There, fingerprints, dogears, pencil marks, ink blots and sometimes a few crumbs that have no relation to wisdom frequently turn up in books returned to public and private libraries. All are sure signs that they have been woefully mistreated by careless readers.

At this time of year, when evenings are longer and nippier, nothing brings as much contentment as curling up with a good book - and nothing can be more frustrating than turning to a page that is blurred beyond reading or half torn out.

Since there are many book-borrowers who take such a frivolous attitude about how they care for books and how long they keep them, it might be well to point out a few of the obligations involved, whether a book is borrowed from the local library or from the shelves of a friend.

Most as anything else that is borrowed, a book should be returned in as good condition as when it was loaned. Readers can best do this by remembering to use a flat book mark to hold a place instead of turning down the corner of a page. Leaving an open book turned face-down for any length of time is another way to shorten its life, since this puts strain on the binding and, eventually, something's got to give.

Ideally, a well-mannered reader uses a plastic or even a plain paper dust jacket to protect the cover of a book while it's on loan. Another way to help it retain its original appearance for subsequent borrowers is to treat it, if not with kid gloves, then at least with clean hands - so the type doesn't get smeared with greasy fingerprints.

Books that are on loan should also be kept out of reach of very small children and pets, both of whom have a way of tearing through pages as if they were blocks. Much of this type of accidental damage can be avoided by keeping borrowed books on a shelf high enough to discourage handling.

Aside from taking proper care of books, borrowers also have a serious obligation to return them on time. This is particularly important when a book is on loan from a public library. Others may be waiting to read it. Often, when a book is in short supply, there's a waiting list. Librarians then have to send out reminder postcards. This can be time consuming and costly when there's an epidemic of forgetfulness among readers. The few cents a day paid for overtime is slight repayment for the inconvenience such thoughtlessness causes others.

Hillcrest H-S Holds First Term Meeting

The Hillcrest Home and School Association recently held its first meeting for the new school term in the school auditorium.

The president, Mrs. Betty Way, welcomed the many parents and teachers, and Mrs. O. Williams presided at the piano. The treasurer's reports was read by Mrs. D. Hudgins and the books audited and approved by Mrs. Cowan and Mrs. McFarlane.

Mrs. Way introduced the executive.

Mrs. Dryden and Mrs. McPeake were appointed social conveners for the coming year.

The room count was taken and Mrs. Chapman (kindergarten) and Mrs. Emerson's classes will share the banner for the coming month.

Arrangements have been made with Mrs. Watson to have a film on U.N.I.C.E.F. for the October meeting. It is the hope of the executive that all parents plan to attend this meeting which should prove to be of interest to all.

Mr. Marner was called on to introduce his staff and to extend a few words.

It had been previously planned that this meeting was to be used for renewing old friendships and to get acquainted with the new.

Refreshments were served by the executive and an enjoyable hour was had by all.

Cooper-Remington W.I. Marks 65th Year by Old Time Skit

The September meeting of the Cooper-Remington W.I. was held in Cooper School on the afternoon of September 26th. This meeting, which was in charge of the public relations committee, was to celebrate the 65th anniversary of Women's Institutes.

The school was appropriately decorated for the occasion. Institute colors, blue and yellow. The blackboard contained interesting sketches including the homestead of Adelaide Hoodless, the work being that of a local young artist, Lloyd Holmes. On the walls were many floral decorations made by Mrs. Fred Moorcroft and in the windows antique dishes were on display, on one wall were all the Institute programs of Cooper-Remington from its organization in 1926 until the present time, the collection belonging to Mrs. Arthur Parks.

The meeting was opened by singing "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and "The Hymn of All Nations." The president, Mrs. George Graham, welcomed the guests, members of Madoc and Queensboro Women's Institutes.

After a short business period, the meeting was turned over to the public relations officer, Mrs. Maurice Reynolds. As the program consisted of an anniversary skit, Mrs. George Harris, first president of Cooper-Remington W.I. was called upon to give the prologue. Dressed in a beautiful costume of long ago days, complete with bustle and hoop, Mrs. Harris told of the first Womens' Institute to be organized at Stoney Creek by Adelaide Hoodless, 65 years ago, and of the organization of Cooper-Remington in 1926 and some of the work accomplished in the ensuing years.

She introduced the cast of 13 members. Some of these were the older charter members. Others were younger members, who took the names of charter members. All were dressed in old-fashioned costumes.

The cast included: Mrs. George Harris, Mrs. George Graham, Miss Mary Taylor, Mrs. Dennis Chapman, Mrs. Frank Reynolds, Mrs. Maurice Reynolds, Mrs. Leonard Graham, Mrs. Lynn McCoy, Mrs. Ken Rollins, Mrs. Gordon Holmes, Mrs. Will Rollins, Mrs. Stanley Rollins and Mrs. Durwood McCoy.

OCTOBER 1928 SCENE

The scene was the home of Mrs. George Harris in October, 1928. The skit took the form of an Institute meeting, opening by singing "The Maple Leaf." A business period followed with Mrs. George Graham acting as president and Miss Mary Taylor as secretary.

A program followed, interspersed with humorous dialogue. Mrs. Frank Reynolds gave a paper on Current Events, telling of items of interest in the fall of '28.

Mrs. Dennis Chapman read an amusing poem on taxes, Mrs. Stanley Rollins gave an instrumental: a recitation, "Somebody's Mother" was given by Mrs. Durwood McCoy.

Mrs. Maurice Reynolds gave the topic, "The Ideal Farm Home" and Mrs. Will Rollins sang "Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party."

A "question box" containing such problems as butter making and the proper method of scalding pigs, was dealt with.

Mrs. Harris read the list of charter members and asked those present to stand.

After the meeting closed lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. K. F. — Suddenly he wants to try a solo vacation in Lakewood.

Mr. K. F. — Others do it. I'd like to experiment, just once.

Mrs. K. F. — We've been married 37 years and whenever we went anywhere it was always together. Now my husband comes up with the bright idea of trying out a week in Lakewood alone. He says he just wants to see how it feels. about this and tell him to do what he wants. I'd be sure.

Ordinarily I'd keep quiet about this and tell him to do what he wants. I'd be sure he'd miss me after the first two days. But there's a new arrival in our apartment house, a bleached-blonde widow, and my husband has been walking her to the subway in the morning, and carrying her groceries in the evening. I have an uneasy feeling that she'd planning a week in Lakewood, too. If she is, then my place would be right along at my husband's side, as in the past 37 years.

His sudden insistence on going alone this time makes me wonder what's up.

Mr. K. F. — This is a free country and I can't tell our lady neighbor when and where to spend her free time. If she should wind up in Lakewood at the same time I'm there, I can't help it. Bertha should accept it as a coincidence.

* * *

From my point of view, my idea of going alone is to find out just how dependent I am on Bertha and whether I can pack, unpack, eat right, make friends and find things to do, on my own. I've seen other happily married men spend a week at a resort alone while their wives were elsewhere — on long trips to Europe or visiting relatives. After all these years of leaning on Bertha, I'm curious to see whether I can navigate alone.

Her suspicions are ridiculous. I love Bertha dearly, and she knows it.

The Council: Since it's a free country for this free-wheeling widow, it's a free country for Mr. F., too. Free enough for him to quietly change his plans and either go to Lakewood before or after the lady, or somewhere else. It's asking a lot of a wife of 37 years, but only to stay home and be equanimical about a husband alone at a resort at which an attractive lady-friend on the loose has checked in at the same time.

Separate vacations in the course of a long, solid marriage, are often a good idea. For some couples they constitute the pause that refreshes. A few days apart and they can see each other with new and eager eyes. Conversely, a marriage is in a bad way when one or both stays close to the other because of distrust. Sorry indeed is a vacation where Mr. F. comes along, not because she likes the garden-spot destination, not because of the swimming and the cuisine, but to keep an eye on Mr. F. The single best test of the separate vacation is, of course, complete faith in each other.

Here we have an instance of incomplete faith, possibly with good cause. And even if Mr. F can allay his wife's misgivings as to his attitude toward the female neighbor living alone, he can't quiet her suspicions as to the latter's motives if she turns up at the same Lakewood hotel during the same week as Mr. F.

In the long run, Mr. F. will be smart to keep his separate vacation truly separate. That means separate from the widow, too. There are plenty of alternate resorts, hundreds of them, where he can try his experiment on how it feels to be away on one's own. And he can keep his destination secret. Time enough to resume his escort service for the lady when they both return.

Her eligibility clouds the present plan with smoke. And you know, Mr. F., what they say about where there's smoke. It could be from dry ice instead of fire, but it's damaging.

WEDDINGS

MASTERS — MUIRHEAD

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville was the setting on Friday, September 7, for a lovely candlelight wedding when Frances Jean Muirhead of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Muirhead, became the bride of William Donald Masters, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Masters, of Belleville. The Reverend N. Hutchinson, of St. Colombe Presbyterian Church, Belleville, officiated before a background of tall white standards of white gladioli and chrysanthemums. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. Buyak, church organist, provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Alex Cunningham in his rendition of "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony, and the "Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

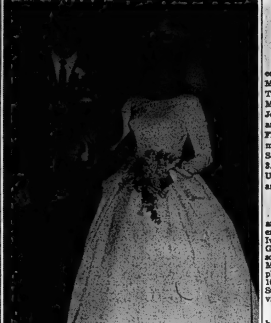
The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiantly lovely in her traditional bridal gown of parchment white peau de faille, featuring a fitted bodice with scooped neckline etched in seed pearls and crystals, and long tapering sleeves emphasizing the curved waistline. The graceful skirt of unpressed pleats cascaded into a chapel train. She wore a shoulder-length veil of illusion silk tulle in four tiers of bouffant style held by a silk rose surrounded by tulle leaves, and carried a purple-throated white orchid surrounded by white stephanotis and ivy.

The matron of honor, Mrs. M. Roland, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. W. Muirhead of Toronto, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. J. McDonald and Miss Loretta Greer, of Belleville were all gowned alike in topex chiffon over matching taffeta, designed with detachable overblouses; matching headdresses and shoes. They carried crescent-shaped bouquets of bronze 'mums mingled with ivy.

The little flower girl, four-year-old Anne Garvin, niece of the bridegroom was dainty and sweet in her short white silk organza frock with topaz cummerbund and floral headpiece of white 'mums. She carried a basket of bronze and white 'mums.

Mr. Robert L. Brown of Toronto attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Stuart Muirhead, brother of the bride, of Belleville; Mr. Wayne Muirhead of Toronto, also brother of the bride, and Mr. John Garvin of Belleville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, ushered the guests.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's mother, wearing a bronze silk brocade sheath styled with jacket, gold feathered hat, matching shoes and gold 'mum corsage, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, in a peau de soie sheath of claret red, with hat of pink and red in graduating tones, with white gloves, matching shoes and white 'mum corsage.



The bridal table was appointed in the nuptial accent with white linen and three-tier wedding cake topped with lily-of-the-valley and misted about the cake with white tulle. Tall candelabra and the bridal bouquets completed the attractive setting.

For the honeymoon to Haliburton, the bride chose a three-piece knitted ensemble of deep turquoise and black accessories, and corsage of deep pink roses.

Guests attended from Winnipeg, Man., Toronto, London, Ont., Trenton, Maynooth, Madoc, Melrose and Belleville.

The bride, prior to her marriage, was the honored guest at a linen shower given by her classmates of Belleville General Hospital, at the home of Miss Loretta Greer, with Mrs. M. Roland as co-hostess; at a party in honor of the bride and bridegroom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Keel, Belleville R. 1, when they were presented with a coffee table; at a presentation by the co-workers at the Canadian Red Cross Society, Toronto, of a tray, and at a rehearsal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Master, Bridge Street, Belleville.

The happy couple are residing in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. William Donald Masters are shown following their marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Frances Jean Muirhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Christ Church W. A. Holds Tea, Bazaar

On September 27th a lovely autumn tea and bake sale sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary, Afternoon Branch, of Christ Church, was held at the charming home of Mrs. S. Godden, 194 Charles Street.

Guests were warmly welcomed by Mrs. Godden and Mrs. H. Pitt, president of the Afternoon Branch. Attractive flowers in multi-autumn shades adorned the various rooms and added extra brightness to the day.

The tea table also reflected the autumn color scheme and was centred with brilliant gold-en 'mums and tall brown candles.

Pouring tea were Mrs. C. Fuzzen and Mrs. G. Livingston.

A highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of a farewell gift by the president to Mrs. J. B. Creegan, honorary member of the Afternoon Branch.

Appreciation is extended to Mrs. R. Godden for graciously opening her home for the occasion and to all the members for their generous and splendid assistance, resulting in a pleasant, friendly afternoon.

Winnipeg Girl Directs And Acts in Own Plays

She became her own director recently when the new Venture Theatre here staged her one act comedy Birthday Blues.

Miss De Graff, who says she has been doing creative things since she was 10, tried to earn her living by writing during one year, but found the going rather rough. She now confines her writing to two or three evenings a week.

She currently is working on a novel and a three - act play, neither of which she is prepared to discuss because "talking about them takes the bloom off when I sit down to write."

Among her efforts have been radio plays for the CBC's Prairie Playhouse and Halifax Theatre, as well as a number of poems and short stories.

Perhaps the highlight of her young career was in 1955 when one of her stories won the annual prize of the Winnipeg branch of the Canadian Authors' Association.

Her stories, which with her other writing she most definitely does not consider a hobby, generally are character studies of ordinary people and events she either has experienced or heard of.

Miss De Graff, who finds acting the best way to find out what the actors and audience require in a well-rounded play, currently is the only writer in the Venture Theatre project, but she is looking beyond that.

"BUSY WRITER

Rosemary De Graff, a Winnipeg department store advertising copy writer, spends much of her time after work doing creative writing. She writes plays for radio and television and recently wrote and directed her own one-act play Birthday Blues. She won an annual prize in 1955 from the Winnipeg branch, of the Canadian Authors' Association. (CP Photo).

Bethel-Zion W.I. Marks Anniversary

Another milestone of progress has been reached this year in the Bethel-Zion Women's Institute as it celebrates its 50th anniversary.

To mark the occasion a banquet was held on September 28th in the community hall, and in spite of a much needed rain and terrific wind storm, about 125 loyal past members from far and near were present.

Special invitations had been sent to families of all charter members as well as to all past members of the organization. Even the elements contributed to the atmosphere of the occasion, when, because of the storm, the hydro failed and candles and old time oil lamps brought back many memories of early days. However, prompt action on the part of hydro officials soon restored the original lighting.

Institute colors of blue and gold were carried throughout in the color scheme. The head table was centred by a beautiful anniversary cake decorated by Mrs. Percy Ray, and lighted by two yellow candles in triple candelabra.

A toast to the Queen was followed by grace, said by the Rev. J. Nicholls. The head table guests were introduced by the president, Mrs. Percy Sills.

The history of the branch was arranged by Mrs. Ralph Sills (convener of historical research) was brought to attention the fact that the W.I. was also celebrating the 50th anniversary of the beginning of Institute work and that this group belonged to a group of six and a half million workers of 32 countries of the world.

She told an interesting story of the birth, growth and activities of the local branch down through the 50 years, an account of the first meeting and a list of the charter members were also read.

Greetings were brought from the area by Mrs. Reid, from the district by Mrs. Kelly and from the Department of Agriculture by Mr. S. Mc-Donald.

A toast to the Institute was proposed by Mrs. Don Sills and responded to by Mrs. Elmer Tufts.

A highlight of the evening was the two solos presented by Mrs. Nelson Wells, who chose as her numbers, "Memories" and "My Mother's Eyes." Mrs. Welsh's mother, (the late Mrs. Billa Ketcheson) was a charter member.

The only surviving charter member is Mrs. Walter Townsend, of Belleville and the W.I. regret that she was not present because of illness.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Don MacKinnon, whose pen name is "Dorothy Batchelor," chose as her subject, "It Started With Eve." She recalled the changes which have transpired in the past 50 years and now the W.I. has come to the stage where outer space is the limit and advances will be many in the next generation.

Speaking on foods and the need of study and interest in this line, she mentioned the fact that 20 per cent of students go to school every day without breakfast, which meal is so essential to each one regardless of his or her activities. Some years ago one-third of the foods which appear on supermarket shelves today were unheard of. Psychologists are making a study of the effects of advertising, packaging and the placing of foods before women and one must become aware of the ways which serve one's family best.

In closing, Mrs. MacKinnon said: "In accepting the challenge of the future I find most fitting these words from Rudyard Kipling, 'We are standing at the opening verse, of the opening page, of the chapter of endless possibilities'."

Mrs. Roscoe Robson thanked all who had helped to make the evening an outstanding event.

WEDDING

DUTCHBURN — SMITH

A lovely wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 29th, at 3.00 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Lennox Smith, of Bellleville, by the Reverend Alexander McDowall, pastor of Eastminster United Church Belleville, when their daughter, Kathryn Ann Smith, became the bride of Leslie George Dutchburn of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Dutchburn. White and bronze chrysanthemums, spring gladioli, red rain and terrific wind storm, about 125 loyal past members from far and near were present.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiantly lovely bride wore a white peau de soie bridal gown with self bolero embroidered with white lace. The graceful skirt was in cocktail length. She wore a floral headdress with short veil, and carried a cascade of white orchids and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Donald Masters (nee Jean Muirhead), of Toronto, as bridesmaid, was in rust-colored faille in tunic style, with matching shoes, close-fitting flower hat and carrying an arm bouquet of long-stemmed commercial chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom is employed by Georgetown, Paris, Ont.; Toronto, Niagara Falls, Ont., and Niagara Falls N.Y. Gasperelli.

Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, wore a grey dress with self matching jacket, black accessories and white orchid corsage.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was entertained as a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. W. Holway of Belleville; at a presentation at the home of Mrs. C. Taylor, and at a presentation at the home of Mrs. D. Boyd, both of Toronto. A party honoring the bride and bridegroom was given by Mr. and Mrs. F. Yelland, at the Pinkstone home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dutchburn will reside at 76 Rosehill Avenue, Toronto.

70 Attend University W.C. Tea

The University Women's Club held a most successful "get-acquainted" tea on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Bateman, 155 Bleecker Avenue.

Seventy members and prospective members were welcomed at the door by the hostess and the president, Mrs. J. E. Pugh. At this time all were asked to sign the guest book, which was in charge of Miss Mary Doyle, while Mrs. M. Morton presented each guest with a name tag.

Mrs. R. B. Collins and Mrs. R. G. Walsh invited the guests to the tea room, which was decorated with bowls of pink asters and white 'mums. The table was appointed with a hand-made lace cloth of Chinese origin and two beautiful Val St. Lambert candlesticks with rose candles and a centrepiece of pink and white 'mums.

Presiding at the silver services were Mrs. C. Aiton, Mrs. E. E. Boyle, Mrs. W. L. Simmons and Mrs. A. S. Lewis. Serving at the tea tables were R. W. Cannon, Mrs. G. Bailey, Mrs. E. M. Parker, Mrs. R. E. Leonard, Mrs. H. W. Dana and Mrs. J. E. Nelles.

The kitchen staff who replenished the trays of tempting sandwiches and dainty cakes was composed of Mrs. J. Hale, Mrs. J. D. Rae, Miss M. Evans, Mrs. R. Burtt, Mrs. M. McDonald and Mrs. W. H. Hurst.

Membership renewals were attended to by Miss J. Boyd.

After finishing tea many guests enjoyed a social hour in the living room where Mrs. D. G. Burr and Miss J. Tickell acted as assistant hostesses.

The conveners of the tea, Mrs. W. N. Hurst, Mrs. P. T. Seibert and Mrs. J. Hall would like to thank all those who contributed to the success of the tea, with special thanks to Mrs. J. H. Bateman, who so graciously opened her home for the event.

The club will hold its first monthly meeting on October 18 and eligible members who were unable to attend the tea on Saturday are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

The special speaker for the October meeting will be Mrs. R. McCreary of Arnprior, Ont., Provincial director of the University Women's Clubs.

STUDY HOURS

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — The local chamber of commerce has launched an investigation into shopping hours with a view to a possible half-hour cut on each Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Stores would close at 5:30 p.m. instead of 6 p.m.

New Chiffon Pumpkin Pie For Thanksgiving

by Mary Moore

An oft-repeated question asked me whenever I meet readers for the first time is "How do you get time to do all the things you have to do?"

Yesterday, secretly I asked me that question and the outdated answer was "I don't!"

I wanted to treat this week of the year like the week before Christmas and give you detailed ways of preparing your complete Thanksgiving Dinner.

What I have managed is a few titillating vegetable recipes (Monday) to add to your repertory. Today I will give you a new pumpkin pie to try which must be made in advance, thank goodness. Tomorrow I will give you a Thanksgiving Dinner menu to mull over.

The "Calypso" part of this title means it calls for a new cocoanut crust.

Dinner Menu

WEDNESDAY

CALYPSO CHIFFON PUMPKIN PIE

Crust—2 tablespoons soft butter; 1½ cups flaked cocoanut (shredded will do); 1 teaspoon grated orange rind;

Filling—1 envelope (1 tablespoon) unflavored gelatin; 3 tablespoons cold water; 1½ cups cooked or canned pumpkin; ½ cup packed brown sugar; 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten; ¼ cup milk; 1 tablespoon molasses; ½ teaspoon cinnamon; ¼ teaspoon ginger; ¼ teaspoon nutmeg; ¼ teaspoon salt; 3 egg whites; 2 tablespoons granulated sugar; 1 teaspoon rum flavoring.

Spread the 2 tablespoons butter evenly on bottom and sides of a 9" pie plate. Mix together the cocoanut and orange rind and sprinkle evenly over butter, patting down gently, making edge high, uniform and neat. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. until golden brown, 20 to 25 minutes. Turn around once while baking to brown it evenly.

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water. Let stand 5 minutes to soften. Combine in top of double boiler the pumpkin, brown sugar, beaten egg yolks, milk, molasses, spices and salt. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until hot and thickened. Remove from heat. Add softened gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Chill until softly set, standing pan in ice water if you are in a hurry. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry; beat in granulated sugar and rum flavoring. Fold into slightly set pumpkin mixture. Pour into prepared pie shell, piling as high as possible. Chill until set. Garnish with whipped cream and crescents of orange, or orange candy slices.

MUSICAL WOMEN

There are about 20 local symphony orchestras in Canada, most of which depend on women's committees for economic assistance.

Rebekahs Conduct Initiation

STIRLING — Mrs. Hilda Rose, Noble Grand, opened Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 213, Stirling, in the usual manner and welcomed the large number of guests from Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 133 Belleville. Later they conducted the Initiation Service and the Rebekah degree was conferred on three candidates, one from Belleville and two from Stirling.

Sister Alice Adams directed the team, Sister Dorothy Webber was soloist and Sister Clara Ironside was pianist. The Belleville ladies presented a most impressive service and were thanked for their efforts by the Noble Grand. Each of the new candidates spoke briefly at the close of the ceremony.

Refreshments were served by Sister Bailey and her committee.

TRAVELLING NURSE

HAMILTON (CP)—Mrs. Gordon Sweatman, en route to Lebanon from Israel, revealed where she has resided for several years, stopped off here to attend the 10th annual reunion of the 1620 graduating class of the Hamilton General Hospital School of Nursing.

Edna Jaques Said to Be Canada's Poet Laureate

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Edna Jaques of Toronto, who recently attended the 50th anniversary of her nearby hometown district, is often referred to as Canada's poet laureate of the home.

In the 55 years since her poems were first published in the Moose Jaw Times, her work has appeared in almost every newspaper—and magazine in Canada, as well as many in the United States.

Nine collections of her poems have been published and she estimates she still has about 3,000 unpublished poems.

Unconcerned about personal fame, Mrs. Jaques is a bustling little woman who explains her five-foot height by saying she was too busy in her youth to spend time growing.

The late Nellie McClung, Canadian freelance writer and novelist, said of Mrs. Jaques: "When poems are cut out of newspapers and pinned above the sink and committed to memory by busy women in house dresses as they peel potatoes or wash dishes . . . has not such a poet achieved fame?"

Born in Strathroy, Ont., Mrs. Jaques homesteaded with her parents in the Briercrest district in 1902, later moving to a little log house in northern Saskatchewan, 35 miles from the nearest railroad.

Over the years she has worked in hospital and hotel kitchens, stores, offices and homes and as a newspaper woman.

STALE BREAD

Bread for stuffing should be three or four days old if fine, fluffy crumbs are desired.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—What does a woman do when she not only feels neglected but is? When we go to a party I never see my husband all evening. He never brings me even a small present. We have been married fifteen years. —DEPRESSED.

DEAR DEPRESSED — And life is deadly dull?

Better take inventory. Compare yourself with the girl he married. Repair the ravages with good cosmetics, a new hair-do, a new dress, perfume.

Flirt with him—even if you feel foolish. Smile, laugh, serve his favorite dish. Rekindle that spark of love.

It's his fault too; but an agreeable surprise will bring out the best in him.

DEAR DORIS—My husband gives me $10 a week for groceries. I'm forever crossing things off my list, as I simply don't have enough to buy everything I need. There are three of us (one child two years old).

Now the lady next door, also three in the family, spends $20.00 a week and says she just manages nicely. I've twisted and turned it every way I can, and I'm getting desperate.

My husband is as tight as a drum, except when he wants something. Then he simply buys it, and I'm supposed to think it's real great!

Since he calls me stupid, I'll sign my name that way.—STUPID.

DEAR STUPID—What does he plan to do, take it with him?

Stinginess, insults, unreasonable demands: Who did you say was stupid?

Even provincial relief allowances (which have to be minimums) amount to around $60 a month for a family of three! Feed him beans every meal until he comes to.

TO WEDDING GUEST—Black shoes are O.K., but not black gloves. There are fashion co-ordinators at the larger department stores who can help you solve the problem of accessories.

• • •

(Doris can guide you about what's the thing to do. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Safety Expert Says Women Better Drivers

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—Are women in the driver's seat timid, emotional, mechanically ignorant and generally incapable?

"Women," snapped Mrs. Ethel McLellan, a safety expert from Toronto, "drive like men but get blamed for it."

Mrs. McLellan, director of women's activities in the safety division of the Ontario transport department, thus summed up her answer to leading questions by two male panelists on the capability of women at the wheel.

Panelist J. B. Humphrey, vice-president of the All-Canada Insurance Federation, and S. E. Swallow, a Ford Motor Company of Canada executive, tossed the questions at Mrs. McLellan, Senator Josie Quart of Quebec City, Constable Jessie Meiklejohn of the Hamilton, Ont., police department, and Neil Siemens, director of women's activities on the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

The panel discussion got the Canadian Good Roads Association Conference here off to a light, snappy start. About 500 delegates heard Mr. Swallow lead off by suggesting that women are "temperamentally incapable" and don't understand the mechanical operation of cars.

"A woman," said Senator Quart airily, "can do a lot with a hairpin while a man is talking about what he'd do with his tools if he had them with him."

"I think there are very few men in the audience who know more about the mechanics of a car than women," said Miss Siemens. "I own a European car and a few days ago, a garageman I went to didn't even know where the motor was."

"And when I have a flat tire, I just get out and mend there. It always gets fixed."

Mr. Swallow tried again. Women, he said, haven't the reflexes for rush-hour traffic.

"I find that the attitude of women (in heavy traffic) is so much better than that of men," replied Const. Meiklejohn. "They try harder."

Get-Acquainted Party Held By King George H-S

King George School Auditorium was the setting for a "Get Acquainted Party" held Monday evening, September 24th by the Home and School Association. Present were the parents of the kindergarten children, and also parents of Grade VII and VIII pupils who have been transferred from Hillcrest and Prince of Wales Schools.

Everyone was warmly welcomed by president, Mrs. C. Culkin, who outlined the functions of the King George Home and School Association and told the audience how important their presence is at all meetings. Mrs. Culkin also introduced the school principal, Mr. R. Moorcroft, who extended his welcome to the parents, and gave a short address.

The program was turned over to Mrs. Helen McKibbon, program convener, who supervised a social hour with the playing of games much enjoyed by everyone present.

A pleasant evening closed with lunch being served by social conveners, Mrs. B. Dowbyuk and Mrs. M. Wood, assisted by executive members.

U.C.W Meetings

WELLINGTON U.C.W.

WELLINGTON — On the evening of September 20th, the September meeting of Unit 3 of the Wellington U.C.W. met in the centennial parlor of the church.

Mrs. K. Lane, unit leader, presided and opened the meeting with a poem, "Let Us Be Still." A word of welcome was extended to everyone.

The devotional was given by Miss Lunn, accompanied by Mrs. B. Cronk at the piano. The theme chosen was "Praise Ye the Lord for His Universality." Regardless of their station in life, their nationality, the color of their skin, or the language they speak they shall stand in that great company of triumphant Christians on the day of the Lord. Scripture was from Acts 17:22-28.

Roll call was answered by eight members. There were eight hospital and seven home calls made.

The thank-offering envelopes handed out are to be returned at the October meeting.

BAZAAR

The fall bazaar was brought to attention. It is being held November 20th. It was decided to cater to the A.O.T.S. supper meeting in October, if possible.

Mrs. W. Barrie was in charge of the program and showed movies of different places in the county. Two shots which proved almost identical were of Timber Island, taken off the shores at Point Traverse, and Emerson Island, taken off the shores at Huycks Point. Movies were also shown of her trip home to Iowa, where her parents live on a farm specializing in beef.

A social half hour followed with lunch served.

The following ladies are responsible for the October meeting and are in charge of devotional, program and lunch: Mrs. B. Young, Mrs. H. Stewart, Mrs. W. Jeffery and Mrs. G. Harris.

COUNTESS IS PRESIDENT

LONDON (CP)—An organization called Friends of Covent Garden has been launched to raise funds for promoting opera and ballet at the famous opera house. The Countess of Harewood is the organization's president.

LAST LAUGH

UPTON, England (CP)—The landlady of a Nottinghamshire pub hung a canvas covered with paint smudges in a charity art exhibition "just for a joke." To her surprise, it was acclaimed a fine abstract work and was the first picture sold.

PARISIENNE CONVERTIBLE
This is where the '63 Pontiac really steps out. As racy and cool in the summer as it is warm and snug in the winter, the Parisienne convertible also offers you bucket seats as an extra cost option.

PARISIENNE SPORT COUPE
Crisply new for '63 all the way from its distinctive new grille to the smooth rear fender line, the Parisienne shows how Pontiac sets the pace for '63.

Here's what the other '63's wish they looked like!

LAURENTIAN FOUR DOOR SEDAN
Here's a most popular Pontiac that you'll like even more in '63. You'll ride in complete family luxury. And this unanimous popularity makes it a full-value winner from purchase to trade-in.

Pampers your pride...
Performs with a plus!

This is the car that couldn't be mistaken for any other. There's a handsome new grille accentuated by Pontiac's more efficient over-and-under headlight arrangement. There's crisp, sweeping lines to put Pontiac way ahead in styling. And a tastefully-designed rear deck. In all, there are 33 stylish models in 9 series.

You can pick your power team from one of the Pontiac's seven energy-brimming engines, and five smooth transmissions.

The ride's relaxing with big, generous full coil springs and double-action shocks. The luxury? After you're through admiring the Body by Fisher design, all those items you see are standard.

The ashtray, dual sunshades, foam-cushioned front seats and on and on.

And there are new economy features, too. Typical are new rust-resistant rocker panels and muffler, new self-adjusting brakes. See your Pontiac dealer. Then come UP with Pontiac.

Whitewall tires optional at extra cost.

Massive Expansion in Govt. Spending to Solve Jobless Question CLC Suggestion

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress has bolstered its demand for a "big, new massive push" for Canada's economy with a bright, breezy, research report on today's report for unemployment.

The report, prepared by Dr. Eugene Forsey and the CLC's research department, reiterates the CLC argument that a massive expansion in government spending is needed to solve unemployment and the country's economic ills.

Organized labor has made this view known to the government in recent months in repeated pleas for planned, long-term, sustained expansion — expansion "our social capital, of our public services, of investment in the development of our human capital."

The CLC—and its political ally, the New Democratic Party — have advocated deficit financing to finance this public investment in socially-useful projects and services.

WANTS BALANCED BUDGET

The government, in the throne speech last week, pledged itself to a balanced budget as an objective — without saying when this would be achieved.

The report, titled "Jobs and public Unease by the CLC, argues that there is a great and growing need for such public projects as housing, slum clearance, hospitals, schools, recreation facilities, streets, public transit, sewage and water facilities, and so on.

In present circumstances, with a growing under - employed economy, surplus plant and idle workers, the only way to achieve and sustain full employment is to adopt a consistent, sizable degree of deficit financing, that is, of planned budget deficits."

The report, which suggests the last five deficits of the federal government were more accidental than deliberate and planned, says deficits need not cause inflation.

"If the economy were going full blast, deficits would produce inflation because there would be no extra goods and services to satisfy the extra money demand created by the deficits. The extra money would simply bid up prices for the existing supply of goods and services.

"But the economy is not running full blast; far from it. So, the extra cash put into it by deficits would add men to work, it can produce the extra goods and services to meet the extra money demand created by the deficits.

"In short, there's a case of money chasing the same quantity of goods, but of more money chasing a market for the extra goods the economy is perfectly capable of producing. The new credit would put the idle resources to work."

The seven-page paper also spells out labor's general case for expansion of international trade and rationalization of small-time industry into larger mass production units.

"The nature of our economy and, inescapably, the increasing necessity of bargaining our way just as far and as fast as we can, call for the widest possible markets as we can. It absolutely calls for the strongest encouragement we can give ourselves in any economic European or American."

Class Assigned To Paint Scene Of Sunday Riots

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The pretty girl with the southern softness to her voice painted soldiers' lounge in the area where riots killed two persons on the University of Mississippi campus.

"I'll always see troops and tear gas whenever I look at this beautiful campus," she said. "Ole Miss will never be the same."

Kathy Jones of Vicksburg, Miss., was one of an entire art class assigned to paint the scenes of Sunday's riots. She reflected some of the somber mood of this place, a peaceful college town a few days ago.

Brilliant sunshine and crisp fall weather failed to clear away the gloom that settled down on the campus.

DISLIKE TROOPS

Students, faculty and people of the town still spoke ahead of their dislike for the federal government's move in sending troops and marshals into Oxford.

But classes went on. And traffic moved once again unhampered in the town square—held under control by 101 and Redneck Monday during a tense Sunday.

"I'm going to put that in too," Kathy said, gesturing toward the jagged concrete remains of a park bench.

Troops had policed the area for 24 hours. Only a few pieces of glass glinting in the sun remained on the streets. The truck-loads of bricks, rocks, boards and cans that had littered the area Monday had been hauled away.

RENOVE DEBRIS

Occasionally students who walked quietly to class would stop and pick up a broken bottle, tossing it in a trash receptacle.

They were silent.

The Lyceum, administration centre of the campus, was not filled with marshals by the contest it had been. Outside, even the soldiers seemed subdued. But security measures were as stringent as ever.

All persons and cars entering the campus were thoroughly searched, by police but firm troops.

In the downtown area, business was getting back to normal as the army men opened up the stores they'd closed Sunday before opening their doors.

Major Parties Take Rest But There Were Rumblings From Ranks of Minor Units

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's two major parties took a breather from the election campaign Tuesday night, but there were left rumblings from the ranks of the minor movements.

In Montreal, a group of dissidents from various political philosophies announced that it will try to persuade Mayor J. A. Marquis of Trois-Rivieres to take on the leadership of a new party, Social Credit in its leanings.

The provincial executive of the New Democratic Party decided to put up only token resistance in the Nov. 14 election.

A leader of Le Rassemblement Pour L'Independance Nationale, a separatist movement, announced approval of Premier Jean Lesage's intentions but not his methods.

The separatist group hasn't yet decided whether to enter the election as an organized political party, but has scheduled a convention Oct. 20-21 to sound out members views.

The Montreal group described itself at a meeting Tuesday night as made up of Social Credit supporters, former Liberals, former members of L'Action Liberale Nationale, and nationalists.

It telegraphed Mr. Mongrain that it wants him to lead a movement of national liberation.

WILL NOT TAKE PART

The Social Credit party of Quebec has decided not to enter the election officially.

The NDP executive decided at its meeting not to run more than 10 candidates. It said it is formulating a party policy that will be distinctly Socialist, and farther to the left than the Liberal party.

The party said nationalization of hydro might once have been considered a Socialistic move, but in 1962 when the majority of Canadian provinces have done so it cannot.

Nationalization alone was not a magic key to the solution of "the economic liberation of French-Canadians" but was an important step, the party said.

In economic policy, there was no difference between the Liberals and the Union Nationale and both were "servants" of big business that contributed to party coffers.

CRITICIZES LESAGE

In Quebec City, Andre d'Allemagne, founder of Le Rassemblement, told Laval University students that although the separatist movement's ownership of hydro expropriation should not have been made a political issue.

He said a government that knows what its people want should go ahead. To call an election would be an unfair way to burden the people with a responsibility the government had.

The Union Nationale have been the most acceptable way to solve the problem, he said.

Premier Lesage has made nationalization of hydro his main election plank.

The Union Nationale has said that it opposes nationalization unless two small private power companies and call a referendum to decide the fate of the others.

Huron-Bruce Byelection Choice of Personalities

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP)—About 15,650 voters in Huron-Bruce provincial riding Thursday in a byelection dead-heat will be a "choice of personalities" devoid of dominant issues.

Liberal Party and Progressive Conservatives have announced that the byelection is a significant test of Ontario's political strength but top brass of both parties have stumped across the riding.

Carrying the Progressive Conservative banner is John Sparkman Critcheco, 39, Bruce McKinney salesman with eight years municipal political experience in, and the job of Huron County warden.

Bailiffs will produce a successful Mr. Gaunt, 27, Mr. Hanna, 72, the silent but popular Wingham haberdasher who held the seat for the Tories for two PCs from 1943 until his death in 1959 with a majority of 1,306 votes.

Premier Robarts and Liberal Leader John Winter-spent the week-end campaigning for the votes of this riding on a campaign devoid of soapbox issues.

WON'T CHANGE MUCH

Their efforts, such as a 262-mile motorcade tour of 21 municipalities in 12½ hours by Mr. Winterwerp, will produce no major change in the provincial assembly standings. The Progressive Conservatives hold 78 seats, the Liberals 23, the New Democratic Party 5 and two others besides Huron-Bruce are vacant in the 98-seat house.

"It's a choice of personalities," said Mr. Winterwerp. He did not think the austerity program of the federal Conservative government would have any impact on the byelection.

Mr. Winterwerp does think a general feeling of dissatisfaction with PC policies will be reflected in the byelection.

Mr. Winterwerper returned to the riding Tuesday but Premier Robarts remained in the riding to attend a reception for Mr. Hanna in the Bruce County communities of Auburn, Dungannon and Lockcow earlier in the day.

RESUMES TESTING

HONOLULU (AP) — The United States resumed nuclear testing in the Pacific Tuesday after a two-month recess. The task force in charge of the tests said an "intermediate device" exploded in the air above Johnston Island after it was dropped from a plane. The device packed power equivalent to between 20,000 and 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Kennedy Makes Eloquent Appeal For Solidarity

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy was reported to have made an eloquent appeal to the foreign ministers of 19 Latin American countries Tuesday for hemispheric solidarity to quench the fire of communism in Cuba.

The president was described by Senator John Sparkman (Dem., Ala.) as those who attended a White House luncheon, as speaking at length and vigorously on the theme that the Soviet threat posed in Cuba is the responsibility of all—not only the United States.

While protocol ruled out any formal response by the ministers, some of them told members of Congress that surprising unity was developing in conferences by State Secretary Rusk to develop broader and more concentrated political and economic pressures against the Russian-backed government of Fidel Castro.

As an example, it was reported that Argentina had reversed its previous position and agreed, at a conference session with a strong statement supporting the U.S. position.

Rusk was reported to have assured the ministers that there will be no deal with Russia to end Soviet support of Cuba in exchange for concessions to Berlin or other trouble spots.

Hull Woman Savagely Beaten Stabbed to Death

HULL, Que. (CP)—A 48-year-old Hull housewife, discovered by police as a devout churchgoer, was stabbed to death and stabbed to death Tuesday and $30 was stolen from her modest west-end home.

The battered body of Mrs. Conrad Beauchamp, clad in underwear and a housecoat, was found sprawled in a pool of blood in an upstairs bedroom by her 15-year-old son, Claude, on his return from school shortly before noon.

A blood-spattered knife with a 10-inch blade was found near the body. The woman had been stabbed in the chest and struck on the head, apparently with a chair.

Police Chief Max Lavigne said police suspect theft was the motive and that the woman was not sexually attacked. The killer or killers escaped by a rear door.

Suggestions that the U.S. industry is dying as a result of natural competition are "bedeshah," he contended.

"The story of the Canadian production giants like Massey-Ferguson, Bell Telephone of Canada, a story they spell out in their annual report to stockholders, is evidence enough, that the profit and the jobs are still present in the 'anti-' industry. But the lumber industry today is in Canada."

Lumber Operator Says U.S. Industry Nearing Economic Grave Dug by Imports

WASHINGTON (CP) — The co-chairman of a U.S. lumbermen's survival committee said Tuesday the lumber industry has been "partially massacred" by imports from Canada and predicted that without restrictions, Canadians will take over one-half the American market in 10 years.

Supporting a proposed massive tariff-and-quota program to block imports, Robert Dwyer, a Portland, Ore., lumber operator argued before the tariff commission that the U.S. industry is nearing an economic grave dug by Canadian imports.

"We, as must other workers, roughly 30 cents more an hour, including fringe benefits, than the Canadians pay their workers," he said. "We must pay our government more than twice the slumpage costs of the Canadian government. We must operate with a full-value American dollar in paying out bills while the Canadian government, in nurseminding its lumber industry, has created a 92-cent dollar with which their industry can operate and pay its bills."

URGES RESTRICTIONS

Seeking "escape clause" action from U.S. tariff bargains, the American industry proposed that softwood imports from Canada, now supplying about 25 per cent of the American market, be restricted to 10 per cent and that the annual tariff, amounting to about one per cent of the import price, be jumped to about eight per cent.

In addition the industry, represented mainly by the U.S. national Lumber Manufacturers Association, asked the commission to recommend to the president that Canadian lumber be identified and marked to prevent "buy American" practices to be applied in purchases by government agencies.

Commission chairman Ben Dorfman predicted President Kennedy's new trade expansion bill will become the subject of a recent proceeding and that this would introduce changes in "escape clause" appeals. He urged both sides to argue in terms of the new bill as well as on existing law.

Robert Fleming, Washington lawyer appearing for the U.S. lumber industry, suggested that the argument against Liberty spirit of Kennedy's address to the Canadian Parliament last year was to be told Canada and the U.S. are allies, partners and friends and that "there's whom nature hath so joined together, let no man put asunder."

MILL 'OUTGUNNED'

Dwyer said U.S. producers simply cannot meet lower Canadian prices and that U.S. mills have been "outgunned" in the field.

Suggestions that the U.S. industry is dying as a result of natural competition are "bedeshah," he contended.

"The story of the Canadian production giants like Massey-Ferguson, Bell Telephone of Canada, a story they spell out in their annual report to stockholders, is evidence enough, that the profit and the jobs are still present in the 'anti-' industry. But the lumber industry today is in Canada."

Dwyer lashed out against U.S. lumber operators who oppose high tariffs, saying these are men "who have seen fit to invest such as Canadian investments or vast, lumber holdings or shipping interests."

17 Resolutions Turned Down By Trustees

SARNIA (CP) — The closing session of the Ontario Public School Trustees Association convention Tuesday rejected 17 resolutions, followed by nine others, including one for a royal commission on education.

About 500 delegates from across Ontario also voted down proposals that the federal government pay 50 per cent of teachers' salaries and allow personal income tax exemption for property tax levied for school purposes.

Saltfleet Township board's proposal for a royal commission to investigate the provincial educational organization of Roman Catholic separate schools provoked no comment and was defeated.

The resolution requesting that authorities take steps to have compulsory standardized was also defeated.

The Toronto board of education successfully sought support for a recommendation that an individual's municipal property tax levied for school purposes be deductible from personal income tax.

The convention passed a resolution requiring the Ontario department of education to make it mandatory that O Canada be sung daily in public schools.

TAVOR REVISIONS

Delegates voted in favor of revisions in religious education programs for public elementary and secondary schools.

The recommendation for revisions, brought before the session by outgoing president J. T. Tavor of Pembroke, will be sent to Ontario's education ministry.

Tavor told reporters: "It is quite evident," Mr. Tron said, "that religious education in our public schools does not conform to the Canadian Bill of Rights.

"While the present course of study was considered quite satisfactory when it was first instituted in 1944, the growth of various minority groups is such that the present course should be reviewed and revised."

Ken MacGray, chairman of the Arthur board of education, told the conference: "We doubt the effectiveness of the Canadian Public School Trustees Association of which the Ontario body is a member.

APPROVES UN LOAN

BERNE (Reuters) — The Swiss Parliament Tuesday approved a $1,500,000 loan to the United Nations—the first ever by the world body by a Switzerland, a non-member.

Pact to End Nuclear Tests Still a Dream

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Disarmament remains a dream but the "glimmer of hope" is provided by the possibility of an end to the nuclear tests, the 17th United Nations General Assembly was told Tuesday.

Foreign Minister Mohammed Fawzi of the United Arab Republic told the 110-member body: "Such an agreement, besides its own obvious great importance, would open the way to economic and political values, and would be a stepping stone to wider successes in disarmament in general and complete disarmament."

Fawzi noted the nuclear powers had agreed in principle to a Mexican proposal that a Latin-American be a target for nuclear bomb tests.

The Egyptian said he shares the expressed wish of External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada "that a nuclear test-free state could be earlier as it could provide the "gateway" for total disarmament.

And that is the general debate in which 51 countries now have made policy statements.

WANT INQUIRY

The U.S. and Canada, meanwhile, let it be known that they will refuse the authority per nuclear debate in the assembly's main political committee.

Spokesmen said that all countries have agreed that discussion of the Communist bloc, feel that it alone should be dealt with before such items as a Soviet call for condemnation of propaganda favoring war.

The negotiating committee, comprising Western, Communist and neutralist countries, met in Geneva from March 14 to Sept. 7. It has been ordered sent only a non-progress report to the assembly before recessing until Nov. 12.

DIES IN CRASH

Enrolment More for America Than It Is for Me -- Meredith

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith, sitting on an iron cot in a bare dormitory room, said Tuesday he considers his enrolment in the University of Mississippi to be "more for America than it is for me."

Meredith is the first Negro admitted officially as a student in the university's 114-year history.

In an interview, he showed no visible signs of nervousness or tenseness after the explosive riot that swept the university campus after his arrival Sunday night.

Meredith said quietly:

"I hope and pray the situation gets back to normal as soon as possible so that the students can continue their education. That's what I want more than anything else now."

This was his second day to attend classes. He was escorted to Political Science class by Paul Shane to the school at 8 a.m., CST. Shane is assistant to the class in American colonial history.

His second class was in political science.

FANTHER BACK

He took a seat toward the back of the room. Two other students sat a little farther back.

None of the seats directly adjoining his was occupied.

A crowd, estimated by Mr. Shaner to be between 300 and 400, stood in front of the building when Meredith emerged.

However, he said in the interview that in the classes a number of students have come up to him, saying "Hello," or "Good morning."

He added:

"I haven't seen any students in classes who seemed to be unfriendly."

Before his first day in classes Monday, McShane said there had been no reaction from white students.

But a reliable campus source said that a few students left classes and sprinted from the room weeping when Meredith entered.

"I can't stand it any more. I'm through. I am leaving," she shouted as she fled. Meredith indicated emphatically that he intends to remain in the university until he has finished.

There have been rumors that, having been enrolled at Mississippi, he would transfer to an institution where he has been offered a scholarship.

NEVER PLEASANT

"Change is never pleasant," Meredith has said, "but sometimes it helps me here, then it's no difficulty from being stopped officially."

In reply to a question as to why he had not left the campus, he received his degree, Meredith said:

"What I do when I finish school depends a lot on the outcome of this situation.

"It is a fact that Negroes are not looked on as first class citizens and are treated as something other than first class citizens in Mississippi.

"I have had detailed many of the rights that are basic to American democracy.

Justice Morris Main Questioner In Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — The three-day court martial appeal of Lt. Comdr. Harold Theodore Tucker began with a searching examination of the court martial of Lt. William Allan Platt convicted in connection with gold smuggling in Indochina.

The questioning—most of it by Mr. Justice C. J. Morris—was related mainly to a charge by R. K. Laishley, civilian counsel for Tucker, that the 25-year-old client was deprived of a fair trial.

Mr. Laishley's main protest was against the decision of the court martial to advocate general refusing Maj. Platt permission to call 15 witnesses from Indochina in the defence or to appoint a commission to collect their evidence.

Maj. D. H. Harrison, representing the judge-advocate general, said the advocate general made his request after the prosecution had closed its case against Maj. Platt. He also said that at no time did Mr. Laishley move for a new court martial be transferred to Indochina.

UNLIMITED WITNESSES

Mr. Justice Morris said defence counsel ordinarily are permitted to call all the witnesses they want and to ask any or all the questions they choose. Otherwise, he said, the defence would be impossible position and under the guilty of contempt.

He also said that Maj. Platt had six weeks to prepare a defence before the court martial last May. However, he made no request during this period to his commanding officer for interview witnesses in Indochina. Had he made such a request, it would have been granted, Mr. Platt was convicted of a breach of army discipline while serving last year with the International Control Supervisory Commission in Indochina. He was fined $500 and given a severe reprimand—notation on his service record that effects his opportunities for promotion.

HOUSING SUBSIDIES

The average annual cost of housing subsidies in the United Kingdom since 1954 has been more than $280,000,000.

Charles Goren Claims More People Play Bridge Under His System Than Any Other

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP)—The festive board of contract bridge is amply heaped with fame and fortune, but it is set for only one diner at a time.

That single feat is fiercely contested. Occupancy is worth a million dollars and more, with only crumbs for losers.

There have been two "kings" of the bridge hill in the short history of the game.

One was the late controversial Ely Culbertson. The current crown holder is Charles Goren, a 61-year-old Philadelphia bachelor who took up the game seriously because a girl friend showed him up at it some 40 years ago in Montreal.

Goren, who abandoned a weak law practice in the mid-30s to concentrate on playing cards, has become a millionaire and a friend of the high and mighty. He greatly enjoys both.

As for the challengers to the throne?

"They make a living," says Goren. "That's all."

And, he adds in his deceptively mild manner, he has no intention of moving over to share the wealth.

"COME AND GET ME"

"I'll stay on top until they clear me down."

Both Culbertson and Goren share one characteristic.

After constructing a highly profitable empire, neither was content to settle back and enjoy it peacefully. Instead, each was willing to continue to risk everything on his own ability at playing cards.

Goren says he has no intention of quitting the arena of tournament bridge.

"I like to be in action," he says.

As long as Goren is up, any one of the estimated 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 bridge players in the world can sit down with any three others of the tribe, in Tokyo, Tangiers or Tacoma, and announce simply: "I play the Goren system." He will be understood.

Goren says that 90 per cent of all bridge players in the world use his system of bidding and play.

This unanimity is the key both to the popularity of bridge and to the fact that only one man can get rich at it, at a time.

NEW INVENTION

Contract bridge is such a new development that the man who invented it, Harold Vanderbilt, is still an active and outstanding competitor. Vanderbilt devised the present rules on a cruise with some friends in 1925.

Contract bridge's immediate predecessor, auction bridge, had become something of a minor fad, having itself replaced the venerable game of whist.

After Vanderbilt invented contract, a slew of instruction books hit the market. Soon adherents of various systems were in open war.

Out of the jungle struggled Ely Culbertson, with a natural flair for both card playing and publicity. He ruled the roost until the end of the Second World War.

Goren attended McGill University in Montreal. There he once took a hand in a bridge game organized by the girl he was interested in, and, he says, "made an ass of myself."

LAST TIME

That never happened again. He got a book on bridge and memorized it from cover to cover. He began playing in tournaments, between law cases, and writing bridge books, which hit the market with almost audible thuds.

Meanwhile, he worked on his system. Basically, it assigns a point total to each face card and combination of cards, and allows players to arrive at their best contracts.

Goren's system—helped by a newspaper column and his playing reputation—suddenly caught on. In a few years it swept the bridge world.

Today, Goren has columns in two magazines and a string of newspapers. He has sold about 7,000,000 bridge books, and an uncounted number of gadgets, including 1,000,000 copies of a cardboard "bidding wheel." There are Goren highball glasses, to be served off Goren trays, Goren cocktail napkins. He has a weekly television show and runs bridge cruises.

Bad Weather, Poor Catch Plague Whaling Ships

(COAL HARBOR, B.C. (CP)—Austerity in Japan, bad weather and a disappointing catch have plagued whaling fleets that took to the Pacific this year for the first time since 1956.

The once-profitable enterprise was resurrected this spring with high hopes, but even the best skills and equipment available haven't changed a gloomy picture.

The first reversal for the Canadian company involved, B.C. Packers Ltd., came when its prime market in Japan disappeared.

A new cold storage plant had been installed at this port on Vancouver Island, ready to process the whale meat for human consumption. The Japanese had agreed to buy the entire fresh meat output but their government embarked on austerity. Currency controls were instituted and no funds were allotted for purchase of Canadian whale meat.

The frozen meat had to be exported to the United States as mink feed at much lower prices.

The catch itself declined in quality and quantity. From early spring to Aug. 30 the total catch was 606 whales, compared with 769 the same date in the last previous year of operation.

Of this total, 336 were of the small sei variety, compared with 233 last season. This brought the tonnage even further down, despite a late increase in the big blue whales.

Catches should have hit a peak in May and June but the weather was often unsuitable.

A pattern of woe isn't new to Canada's west coast whaling industry and the company hopes prospects will improve next year.

The predecessors of B.C. Packers, Western Whaling Corp., started in 1948 at this old RCAF base, and learned the hard way by losing money. B.C. Packers took over the assets, imported Norwegian experts, put on a new regulation size catcher boats and expanded operations.

Bad years still outnumbered good, and early in 1960 the roof fell in. World markets for whale oil, meat and fertilizers were dropping, labor costs were rising and the company could not come to an agreement with the United Fishermen's Union.

The Coal Harbor operation was suspended. At the same time, established British, Norwegian and Dutch companies in the Antarctic were selling their fleets to Japanese companies and the state - subsidized Russians.

B. C. Packers was able to resume work this year by running a joint operation with a Japanese firm under the name of Western Canada Whaling Company Ltd., and the new partners contributed three modern diesel whale catcher boats.

20 Antique Cars In Rally

WELLINGTON—The Ontario Jaguar Owners' Association held an antique motor car rally on September 30th. The cars, 20 in all left Lawrence Plaza, Toronto, at 10 a.m. and motored to Wellington where over 80 guests enjoyed a buffet luncheon at Mr. H. G. Patrick's home, with Dr. and Mrs. Allan Burnett, of Toronto, host and hostess.

All remarked on the beauty of Prince Edward County and would like to come again next year.

Mr. H. J. MacFarland sent his two entries Ford cars to the Paton Home where they were much admired by the guests and many pictures were taken of them.

This Prince Edward rally is the first event of this kind and is hoped to be held annually hereafter.

This rally is not a race, although they are fast sport cars. A certain speed is maintained with precision driving all the way. The first car left Toronto at 10.00 a.m. with the rest following at one minute intervals. They arrived in Wellington in the same way one minute behind each other. At certain spots on the way they were timed and if any car arrived before its exact time they lost points. All members are among the keenest motorists in observing safety and traffic regulations. These rallies require real skill and knowledge.

Awards for the overall driver and navigator went to Mr. and Mrs. McCurrie of Midland with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sinclair of Toronto, and Mr. Harry Rainbow, and his navigator, Mr. Foggett, of Toronto, tied for second place.

Among the many guests were: Mr. and Mrs. George Grant, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fergusson, Toronto; Mr. Midland; Mr. and Mrs. Peter and Mrs. George McCurrie, Strachen, Toronto; Mr. Peter Wolf, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freeman, Oakville; Mr. and Mrs. Pick, Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Barry Vlol, Toronto; Mr. Peter Donahue, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Lance Metbery and Mr. Bill Metbery, Pictou; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rainbow; Mr. and Mrs. Hogg and Mr. and Mrs. Bunning all of Toronto, and many others.

The driver of each car was presented with a package of various kinds of canned goods a gift from the Baxter Canning Company, Bloomfield.

Trustees Want Religious Traing Change

SARNIA (CP)—Delegates to the Ontario Public School Trustees Association convention Tuesday voted 108 to 39 in favor of a recommendation for revision of religious education programs in Ontario's public elementary and secondary schools.

The recommendation brought before the session by J. L. Tron of Pembroke, association president and chairman of an investigating committee set up last year—will be sent to Premier Robarts, also Ontario education minister.

Mr. Tron said before presenting the recommendation of the committee today: "It is quite evident that religious education in our public schools does not conform to the Canadian Bill of Rights."

While the present course of study was considered quite satisfactory when it was first instituted in 1944, the growth of the various minority groups is such that the present course should be reviewed and revised."

The Public Health Nurse And the Aged

By
MATTHEW B. DYMOND, M.D.
Health Minister for Ontario

Older people aren't different! Their needs are the same as those of everyone else, namely: the need for affection and approval, for companionship and security, independence and useful activity. The problem of the aged may be different, complicated by the death of a spouse, reduced income, some degree of invalidism, or inadequate nutrition.

The public health nurse can be of assistance in maintaining the physical, social and emotional well-being of the older person by offering advice on diet, budget and rest, under the direction of the family doctor. She may give nursing care in the home or teach a member of the family to give care, interpreting the doctor's orders and giving emotional support when there are anxieties and fears aroused by the threat of long-term illness.

The public health nurse knows all the other community agencies and resources whose services may be needed and can assist in finding living quarters — temporary or permanent, when the older person cannot care for himself.

Adequate nutrition is a major problem with many of our senior citizens. Two factors may be involved: reduced income and lack of knowledge. Inadequate and improper substitutes are often made for the more expensive protein foods such as meat. Older people living alone may skimp on the preparation of food because of lack of appetite or companionship. So often they may feel it's too much bother to prepare a good meal just for one. It may be that they lack energy to go out and buy food and prepare it. Frequently, "tea and toast" is the bill of fare, and as a result bad nutrition and often ill-health are inevitable. The public health nurse in your community will gladly show the older person how easy it is to buy and prepare tasty, nutritious meals on a small or restricted budget.

Your Department of Health believes the public health nurse is one of the important members of the health team and commends her services to you. We believe she can be most helpful in every aspect of health from the newborn to the aged, and particularly in those cases where health and social service appear to overlap. Get to know your public health nurse — she may be able to help you.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District Marks 121st Anniversary

WHITE'S DISTRICT — White's Church celebrated its 121st anniversary with a morning and evening service with the Rev. J. Payton of Grace Church, Trenton, officiating at both services.

The junior choir contributed "Little Feet Be Careful," while the senior choir gave two anthems, "I Will Sing the Wondrous Story" and "Come Just As You Are," accompanied by Mrs. W. Jeffery.

As his text Mr. Payton chose Philippians 2:14, "Do all things without murmurings and disputings." The church exists to be a means of grace by which the world is redeemed. There must be divine love and spiritual power to live nobly. He told a story of the Rev. Matthew Sand, a missionary in Southern England during World War II, who lost his wife, then received a telegram saying his son had been killed in action. He was grief stricken, then suddenly he changed and on the back of the telegram he wrote, "All that I am, all that I have, I give to God for His Glory." Later this was put in a bidding box as a bid on a church which was for sale instead of his intended bid. When the auctioneer opened the bids, he said, "There can be no higher bid than this."

For his evening service Mr. Payton spoke on "The Living Church." He said, "The church is a group of dedicated people, not just a building."

Centenary Church men's choir, assisted by the Rev. T. F. Townsend, contributed, "Remember Me" and "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," with Mrs. Townsend as accompanist. Mrs. George Bishop of White's Church contributed "You Will Know Him By the Nail Prints in His Hands."

Fall flowers added a touch of beauty to the service, which was well attended by friends from Centenary, Wesley, Trenton and the surrounding district.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Sgt. Carman Linn of Oakville and Sgt. John Linn of Cobourg were recent overnight guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Linn.

Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. W. Jeffery were Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ellis, Carolyn, Cathy and Janet, of Thurlow.

Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur had the misfortune to lose their large brick home on Friday by fire. They are staying for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fehr, who live nearby. Friends are gathering there on Saturday afternoon and evening with a shower of gifts and money to assist them in their loss.

Mrs. Lawrence Dafoe, Mrs. Earl Meyers and Mrs. W. Jeffery of White's Church attended Wesley Bazaar on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Smith and Margaret have returned from Toronto and are again residing at Bayside.

Mrs. Warren of Brechin is visiting her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Alex McDonald, and family.

Last Sunday callers of Mrs. James Sanderock were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dunn and Mr. Hart of Cobourg, Mrs. Lela Johnston of Belleville and Mrs. Eagleton of Wooler.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hogle and Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson of Trenton were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones.

Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg, Darlene and Vivian, of Bascroft, and Mr. and Mrs. Sid Coutroul and Michelle of Guelph, were last Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. R. McDonald and Kenny returned home on Thursday after spending a month's holiday with his parents in Saskatchewan, stopping enroute home with her relatives in Sudbury, Marathon and North Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Hunt and family were in Peterborough district on Sunday, due to the accidental death of Mrs. Hunt's sister's son, Ronald Edward.

The Misses Barbara and Helen Ketcheson attended a birthday party for Miss Cheryl Reid on Sunday afternoon, in Belleville.

Inventor Bubbles With Ideas But Has Not Hit Jackpot

TORONTO (CP)—Clair Kinsey, at 60, is an inventor bubbling with ideas and still hoping to hit the elusive jackpot.

Living on a $103-a-month pension in a bachelor apartment, he concentrates mostly on efforts to produce more efficient sporting equipment.

For example, he has invented a magnesium baseball bat "that won't break in a million years."

There is a hockey stick with a sisal and plastic combination blade and an ash handle which he says is equally durable.

He has a plexiglass face mask for goalkeepers, skiers, automobile line worker and welders.

And there is a magnesium tennis racket frame that won't warp.

He came up with the idea for a hockey puck with team colors and crest moulded into the rubber and has been peddling it around the National Hockey League for several years. So far he has sold only one order.

None of these is in production yet but he feels there are prospects for the baseball bat with the chances of an order for 300,000 from a Far East distributor.

FILLED WITH PLASTIC

The bat is regulation size and is filled with urethane foam plastic to eliminate the hollow sound it would otherwise make on contact with the ball.

Mr. Kinsey, who holds a bachelor of science degree from Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S. (class of 1912) and once was partner in a New York investment house, admits he has had many ideas that flopped.

There was a heated lunch he designed to keep a workingman's meal hot. The difficulty was it was too hot to hold.

And there was a chemical fire extinguisher he demonstrated. A fire was lit in the police garage and some of the chemical was poured on it. The fire flared to the ceiling and the fire department had to be called.

Mr. Kinsey is having organizational problems but feels they may have been solved by turning technical details over to experts in such field and sales to established distributors.

He says he started puttering around with sports equipment 15 years ago.

"I decided our athletes—including school boys—were paying through the nose for equipment and not getting real protection.

"A football player pays $450 for 46 pounds of equipment and is not as well protected from injury as a paratrooper carrying only 15 pounds."

ADMIRAL DIES

BODMIN, England (Reuters) Admiral Sir Bernard Rawlings, second in command of the British fleet in the closing stages of the Second World War, died here at 73. It was announced today. Rawlings was British naval attache in Tokyo from 1926 to 1932.

New Electoral System Will Be Used to Elect Mayor And Council in Montreal

By STRUAN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal, a city with a history of constant struggle between virtue and vice, will elect a civic government Sunday, Oct. 28 under a new electoral system.

Voters will choose a mayor and 45 city councillors. They will also decide two side issues.

Voters will indicate whether they want civic elections every four instead of every three years. They will also say whether they favor an identification card designed to curb fraudulent voting.

The 1960 civic election was considered the cleanest in Montreal's history, although 49 persons were arrested on suspicion of voting illegally.

Mayor Jean Drapeau and his Civic Party are seeking re-election, promising efficient government and a relentless fight against vice.

FACES A CHANGE

Senator Sarto Fournier, who lost to Mr. Drapeau in 1960 after holding him in 1957, is seeking the mayoralty with the backing of the Citizens' Party.

He called for an "open but honest Montreal." In 1953, a slogan of "honest Montreal" won control of the city.

Another contestant is Paul Lambert, a political novice-but well-known architect and planner. He is supported by the Civic Action League, a former power at city hall trying to make a comeback after failing to elect anybody in 1960.

Observers say the electoral system could have a significant bearing on the contest.

The multiple-vote privileges of property owners have been taken away. They now are on the same footing as qualified tenants. The latter can vote if they pay water taxes directly to the city.

From 1940 to 1960, Montreal elected 99 councillors and the mayor.

Property owners elected three of their own A class councillors out of the 11 districts in which they owned property.

They combined with qualified tenants to elect the mayor and three B class councillors in each district.

GROUPS SELECT

The remaining 33 C class councillors were appointed by business, labor, educational and other public groups.

The latter held the balance of power in council from 1954 to 1960 when "party form" Civic Action League controlled the property-owning category and the "old line" politicians were influential in the tenant-dominated class.

Each category selected two of its members to make up the powerful executive committee, or civic cabinet, which included the mayor.

Dissension in the committee's ranks led to demands for reform.

The Liberal government held a special session of provincial legislature a month before the 1960 election to start changing Montreal's government system which was being studied by a provincial royal commission.

It was decided to abolish the class system of selecting the executive committee and elect members by a ballot in city council.

BANNED COUNCILLORS

The province also decided to let Montreal by referendum whether it wanted to retain the appointed councillors. Voters got rid of them by a four-to-one majority.

Late in 1961, the legislature abolished the class system. Property owners and qualified tenants now vote on an equal basis for the mayor and three councillors in each of 15 new districts.

Mayor Drapeau has been an active mayor.

He broke with the Civic Action League shortly before the 1960 election after quarrelling with his previous ally, CAL President Pierre Desmarais. Mr. Drapeau was supported by 21 of the 33 CAL councillors.

WON '44 RACES

He promised to build a subway without increasing taxes.

Work started last May on a $150,000,000 subway designed to pay for itself. Politicians had talked about one ever since 1910.

The Civic Action League now wants to scrap the underground and build a combined monorail system and subway using existing railway lines instead.

The Citizens' Party wants suburban and senior government aid.

David Brinkley Exposes 'Graft' in Highway Work

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AT THE PARK — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Ride the High Country", opening Thursday as the Park Theatre, introduces Ron Starr and Mariette Hartley as the attractive new screen romantic team appearing with veteran stars Randolph Scott and Joel McCrea. Filmed in CinemaScope and color, the picture unfolds an adventure-filled story of California's gold-mining era. On the same program the second M.G.M. thriller "World In My Pocket", stars Rod Steiger. Both features are first Belleville and district showings.

NEW YORK (AP) — David Brinkley launched the second season of his NBC Journal Tuesday night with a roundup of stories about graft and corruption in the United States highway program, in which he named names and sometimes interviewed men who admitted accepting "gifts" and blinking at specifications.

The program was most interesting and rousing, however, when the cameras showed a road leading to a deadend in the middle of a meadow, a new highway already starting to crumble, and a new bridge with a surface so rough that pay loads of trucks bounced off.

In one case, concrete was mixed with sea water for a highway because it was more handy than fresh water.

Andy Williams has signed Mr. Ed, the horse star from another network, for guest star on his program next week—the first time a movie cowboy star since Roy Rogers used to turn up on variety shows with Trigger.

Newton N. Minow, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, is still prodding the networks about children's programming. Although in one recent speech he complimented one network (unidentified but obviously ABC) for planning a new kids' show in the late afternoon on weekdays, he scolded the other two (CBS and NBC) for scheduling their new shows at the same time on Saturday afternoon. One clear confirmation of rugged independence and arms-length autonomy."

MONTREAL (CP)—End Jim Reynolds, put on waivers by Ottawa Rough Riders two weeks ago, joined Montreal Alouettes Tuesday.

Reynolds has not been signed, a club spokesman said, but under Canadian Football League rules he is allowed to attend five practices before the Alouettes are forced to sign or release him.

At the same time, the club said inside linebacker Dick Schnell, taken to hospital Monday with suspected appendicitis, has been pronounced fit to play, but will return to practices tonight the club said.

Reynolds, a 23-year-old two-way player, showed up at the clubs front office Tuesday and asked to try.

The Alouettes were interested, since at that time there was doubt about Dick Schnell's condition.

RAISES PROBLEM

Schnell's return will raise another problem for the Alouettes. Linebacker Bill Hill, a recent acquisition from Edmonton Eskimos, had been placed on waivers Monday and claimed by the Alouettes Friday Schnell had been taken to hospital.

Hill was later hurriedly recalled for duty in the event that Schnell's condition was serious.

An Alouette official said Tuesday the team had no intention of releasing Hill back on waivers.

"He's a good ball player and we'll keep him around for a while, but we may make other moves," he said.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Finishing strongly under jockey Hugo Dittrich, G. B. Elliot's Credit Line was the featured Maple Leaf Pirate by 1¼ lengths Tuesday at Woodbine. Song of Erin finished second and Lustrous Hope third in the mile and 1-16 feature test for three-year-olds and up.

LAST DAY AT BELLE — Teenage idol Troy Donahue, Angie Dickinson, and new actress Suzanne Pleshette, in this scene from "Rome Adventure", the Warner Bros. romantic drama playing tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre. Rossano Brazzi is also starred in the new Technicolor production.

Stratford Festival Troupe Exposed to 262,000 Persons In 15 Weeks of Season

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — With the final performance Sept. 25 of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival's 15 - week season, 64 actors and actresses began streaming, out of this Western Ontario city for winter assignments in Toronto, Montreal, New York and other centres.

Their 23-week festival assignment, including eight weeks of rehearsal, toured the troupe to the a total audience of more than 262,000 in four plays, Cyrano de Bergerac, Macbeth, The Taming of the Shrew and The Tempest.

Leaving Stratford was like leaving a second home for many of the company who have cultivated a fond attachment to the town over the festival's 10-year existence.

With a total of 125 festival performances behind them, the cast now turns its attention to theatre and television.

Echoes of Stratford will perhaps echo the work of one group scheduled to repeat their roles shortly in the television adaptation of Cyrano. Christopher Plummer will repeat his lead role as Rostand's long-nosed hero, with William Hutt, John Colicos, Eric Christmas and John Horton in the supporting cast.

HEAD FOR BROADWAY

Performing in Moby Dick, which tries out in Toronto in November prior to its Broadway opening, will be Bruno Gerussi, William Needles, Hugh Webster, John Horton and Max Helpmann. Douglas Campbell, who had a long association with Stratford as both actor and director, will stage the production.

Kate Reid, one of the festival stars, will play the lead role in Edward Albee's What's Afraid of Virginia Woolf this fall on Broadway, while Toby Robins says she and her husband are working on "an exciting theatre project" to be announced shortly.

The majority of the festival company returned to Toronto winter headquarters for stage, television and film work. The first work ranges from a 'lead role for Mervyn Blain in CBC-TV's Festival series to a lead role for Leo Ciceri in Break Up to Play by Norwegian writer Helga Korg.

Off in Montreal is Martha Henry, scheduled for two appearances on Spotlight Theatre. Taylor is to the present Shakespearean scenes to Winnipeg student audiences, and later she performs in The Enchanted Grill at Toronto's Crest Theatre under the direction of Leon Major, who staged the festival production of Gilbert and Sullivan's The Gondoliers.

SOME RESTING

Some company members are taking a holiday. Pat Galloway returns to England, then tours Greece. Claude Bede is off to Jamaica, then returns to Canada for radio and television work.

American actor Anthony Zerbe is to be married in California, while Australia's Ted Hodgeman has signed for a Canadian Players tour.

Others will continue their theatrical studies, while some return to university. The seven young days in this season's productions return to school.

Jack Hutt, production stage manager, has signed for the Canadian Players tour, while Thomas Bohdanetsky, one of his assistants, will be stage manager for the Canadian Opera Company in Toronto and on tour.

Many will be returning for Stratford's 11th season.

The Trots

OTTAWA (CP)—Piper Boy, a six-year-old gelding owned by Burt MacQuarrie of Fergus, Ont., won the featured seventh race Tuesday night at Rideau Carleton raceway when he headed home a length ahead of Hematite, a Hull, Que., horse. Lynden Anne, of Brantford, was third.

Sports in Brief

BIRDS FIRE COACHES

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Orioles, who rehired baseball manager Billy Hitchcock after a seventh-place finish in the American League, fired coaches Cal Ermer and George Staller Tuesday.

Orioles President Lee MacPhail said the coaches were dismissed "to shake things up in an our disappointing season." Staller, 46, is expected to remain with the club in some capacity. Ermer, 37, will shop around before accepting another job. Coach Harry Brecheen, Baltimore pitching coach since 1954, will be signed again for next season.

PUT ON WAIVERS

HOUSTON (AP) — Buffalo Bills of the American Football League placed quarterback Al Dorow on waivers Tuesday after negotiations that would have sent him to San Diego Chargers fell through. Dorow, the league's fourth leading passer last season, was obtained by Buffalo in a winter trade that sent John Green, a quarterback, and Bill Atkins, defensive back, to New York Titans. Dorow played in Canada with Saskatchewan Roughriders, British Columbia Lions and Toronto Argonauts.

READY TO RACE

LONDON (AP)—British racing drivers Graham Hill and Jimmy Clark left by plane Tuesday for New York to fight out the world championship. Hill, leading the championship standings with 36 points from five races, can make sure of the title by driving his BRM to victory in the American Grand Prix at Watkins Glen, N.Y., next Sunday.

THEY WANT ALL OF IT

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Nova Scotia's coal miners want to see three periods of National Hockey League action on CBC television Saturday nights. A resolution was passed Tuesday at the annual meeting of District 26 of the United Mine Workers of America (Nfld.) calling on the CBC to broadcast all three periods, rather than the last 1½ periods as normally carried except at playoff time.

SIGNS FOR FIGHT

LONDON (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, former world middleweight boxing champion, signed Tuesday night to fight George Aldridge, 26, champion of southern England, in Manchester on Nov. 26. Robinson, 42, was outpointed by Britain's Terry Downes in London last week.

Yankee Entries Will Likely Win Oscars This Season

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The Oscar race for 1962 is now taking shape and one thing seems probable: Hollywood's highest honor will be brought back to Hollywood.

Last April the Academy voters, in an outburst of international goodwill, tossed golden statues to a pair of foreigners—Sophia Loren and Maximilian Schell.

That feat is not likely to be repeated next spring. As it appears now, the Oscar derby will be dominated by Yankee entries.

The majority of the major entries will hit the Los Angeles theatres just before the year-end deadline.

Most of the December entries haven't been previewed yet, so the forecasts must go on probability of quality. Will Mutiny on the Bounty be a class film or purely commercial? That remains to be seen. But if it possesses much artistic value at all, it is likely to be the leading contender among the films.

Another unknown quantity is Lawrence of Arabia. But judging from past performances of the producer, Sam Spiegel, On the Waterfront, Bridge on the River Kwai, the desert epic will also be among the front-runners.

DECEMBER GOOD MONTH

The Longest Day, which opens this week, may also be among the leaders. So may any of these December releases: Freud, Day of Wine and Roses, Gypsy, Jumbo, Taras Bulba, Two for the Seesaw and Long Day's Journey into Night.

Marlon Brando's work in Mutiny on the Bounty is still to be seen but he is always a top contender when in a good film. Burt Lancaster will no doubt be among the contenders for Birdman of Alcatraz. Yet to be seen is Day of Wine and Roses.

Two stars have already set a fast pace for the ladies—Anne Bancroft in The Miracle Worker and Geraldine Page in Sweet Bird of Youth. New competition may develop from Shirley MacLaine in "Two for the Seesaw," but how will Gypsy Rose Lee fool would try to predict at this early date. So I will: Mutiny, Lemmon, MacLaine.

DESERONTO

Council Refuses To Remove Tree

DESERONTO—The regular session of the town council was held in the town hall on Monday night. In the correspondence the Public Utilities Commission advised the council that the cost of installing a water main on Dundas West would be some four thousand dollars. They also advised that the water pressure to the Ideal Vendors plant was very poor and that a ten-inch main should be installed from Prince St. along Dundas St. to agreement and protect the water supply to the west end of the town.

The local Lions Club invited all members of the town council to their dinner on October 9th when Jr. Turnbull of the International Water Supply will address the meeting. All members of the council signified their intention of attending.

The Public Utilities Commission advised council that in future the Utilities will charge the town for the removal of trees requested by council and set the rate at $8.00 per hour for two men and equipment and ten dollars for three men and equipment. The letter was ordered filed after some discussion by council members. The streets committee reported to council that the problem at St. Vincent de Paul church could be alleviated by a drain similar to College St. but there was no provision in the estimates for such a drain to be installed. Council asked the committee to present an estimate of the cost at the next regular meeting.

Reeve Lott introduced Mrs. F. E. Brown to the council and advised them that Mrs. Brown had a drainage problem. Mrs. Brown stated that in 1956 she had requested the removal of a tree from the front of her property and the council of that year had refused because the tree was on town property. The tree was now plugging the drain from her home with its roots and the present committee refused to open the drain because it was her property and the stoppage was two feet within the sidewalk on town property.

After considerable discussion council moved the streets committee investigate the condition further and report. Councillor Howard objected because there was a motion on the minutes that the town was only responsible for the street drains and not the private drains.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — Wellington friends of Mrs. C. D. McCulloch of Sorrell Court 12, Willowdale, and formerly of Wellington, are pleased to hear that she is recovering from an illness which confined her to her home for several weeks.

Guests last Tuesday afternoon of Mrs. C. H. Greer were Mrs. Jack Patterson, Miss Emma MacLean, Miss Anna MacLean, Mrs. Hanley, all of Kingston, and their house guest, Mrs. Irvina MacLean Alexander of Lethbridge, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sprague, of Mountain View, and Mr. Gerald Way of Belleville, were Saturday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. James Way. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. David Rowe and Craig of Amelianburg, were guests at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bovay, Nancy, Denis and Jamie of Picton, were Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay.

Rev. R. Fleming Honored With Money Gifts

MARMORA — Last Friday evening the congregation of St. Paul's Church, Marmora; St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, and St. Thomas', Rawdon, gathered in the parish hall, Marmora, to express their appreciation for the services and many kindnesses rendered by the Rev. R. G. Fleming and Mrs. Fleming during the past six years, before their departure to Belleville, where Mr. Fleming has been appointed rector of Christ Church.

Mr. Leslie Rundle acted as chairman for the occasion and started the evening with a showing of colored slides by Mr. J. Rice of his recent visit to England, also scenes of Florida.

Following this a short session of community singing was enjoyed.

Mr. Rundle asked Mr. and Mrs. Fleming to take seats at the front of the hall, alongside a table on which several gifts has been placed, and read an address on behalf of the wardens and congregation of St. Paul's, Marmora, and at the conclusion presented Mr. Fleming with a sum of money.

The wardens of St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, and St. Thomas', Rawdon, were called on and after their expressions of appreciation also presented gifts of money, for which Mr. Fleming responded gratefully.

Gifts were also presented from the W.A. of St. Paul's, Marmora, and Deloro, and St. Mark's, Bonarlaw; also a gift of money from St. Paul's Sunday school.

A delightful lunch was served and a social time was spent.

The evening closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Charge Pilot Unavailable on Five Occasions

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — A U.S. federal hearing resumed Tuesday into charges that a St. Lawrence Seaway pilot was unavailable for duty on five occasions in the last six months.

Capt. J. A. Edwards, supervisor of pilots at Cornwall pilotage in the Kingston, Ont., District, testified that Capt. William Golden of Ogdensburg, was actually on duty a few hours before he was to report for another full work-day last May 7.

Golden has been charged with being unavailable for pilot duties on May 1, 2, 5, 31, and June 11. The Great Lakes Pilotage Administration has the power to suspend or revoke a pilot's working licence.

Edwards testified Tuesday that he had records to prove that Golden was on Lake Ontario headed for Port Weller, Ont., April 30 and arrived about midnight.

Golden is charged by the pilots' group with failing to answer a call at 11:55 p.m. to go to Cape Vincent, N.Y. He was available and another pilot took his place.

'63 MONTEREY is the biggest Mercury

The '63 Monterey is a big new approach to motoring—an imaginative car! Its name and money saving habits are borrowed from last year. But its roofline is new. Its power is new. Its very nature is new. You can equip your choice of fourteen new models as lavishly as any car in North America. Or you can buy one for little more than a compact. The price is your choice. The quality is ours. We choose to make Monterey say quality—and mean it! This is probably the best Mercury ever built—Monterey. Until you see your Mercury dealer, here are some of Monterey's fine features for '63.

Exciting new "Breezeway" roofline. Raked-back rear window keeps rear vision clear in all weather. New cantilever design increases rear seat headroom. Rear window can be lowered for straight through ventilation.

Polite new "Swing-Away" steering wheel. "Swing-Away" steering wheel moves out of your way at a touch for easy exit and entrance. Steering wheel automatically locks in position safely, when transmission is engaged.

Mighty new power choice. Choose a 220 hp, a 300 hp, or a 405 hp Marauder V-8, or an economy conscious Six for satisfying power. Engines feature advanced short stroke design for maximum economy, minimum wear, high performance.

Built-in long life. When Monterey says quality, it says it with such long life service features as: 36,000 miles between major chassis lubrications; oil changes 6,000 miles apart; brakes designed to adjust themselves automatically.

First with the 72,000 mile/12 month warranty. Ford of Canada 1963 products are WARRANTED FOR 24,000 MILES OR 2 YEARS, whichever comes first.

Certain features mentioned or illustrated are optional at extra cost. Mileage figures quoted are based on normal driving.

Dodgers Crash Coma, Nip Giants 8-7

Rally From 5-0 Deficit

By JOE REICHLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York Yankees were waiting in the wings today to see who they play in the World Series opening Thursday as San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers met in the decisive playoff game for the National League pennant.

Hanging on the ropes after an 8-0 beating in the first game in San Francisco Monday, the Dodgers rallied from a 5-0 deficit Tuesday and squared the best-of-three series with a dramatic 8-7 triumph.

Although they used up eight pitchers in a losing effort Tuesday, the Giants had ace Juan Marichal (18-11) ready for today's game, easily the most important of the year for both teams The Dodgers, burdened by an over - worked pitching staff, called on Johnny Podres (15-13).

The right - handed Marichal has beaten the Dodgers three times in four decisions this year. Podres has beaten the Giants twice in four outings this year but that was a 3-1 victory over Marichal.

FEELS ON MOVE

Dodger manager Walter Alston feels his club is finally on the move after snapping a string of 25 consecutive scoreless innings and a five-game losing streak.

Blanked by Jack Sanford on two hits through five innings, the Dodgers awoke in the sixth, crashing through for seven runs in an inning in which Giant manager Alvin Dark called out four pitchers

The Dodgers did most of their damage while right-hander Stu Miller and left-hander Billy O'Dell were on the mound. The big hit was a three-run double by pinch-hitter Lee Walls off O'Dell.

The Dodgers scored the winning run in the ninth, breaking a 7-7 tie. Bob Bolin, the fifth pitcher e m p l o y e d by Dark, walked lead-off batter Maury Wills. Dark brought in left-handed Dick Lemay and he walked Jim Gilliam, after throwing to first base eight times trying to keep Wills from stealing.

Dark then called for Gaylord Perry, a rookie right-hander, to face pinch hitter Daryl Spencer. Perry fielded the ex-Giant's bunt back to the mound and had an easy force play on Wills at third. Instead, he threw to first while the runners advanced.

WILLS SCORES ©

Mike M c C o r m i c k, a left-hander, took over and walked Tommy D a v i s intentionally. Ron Fairly then hit a sacrifice fly to Willie Mays in shallow centre. Willie's hurried throw was to the left of the plate and the flashing Wills slid past catcher Johnny Orsino.

Stan W i l l i a m s, the fifth Dodger pitcher, was credited with the victory. The strapping right-hander quelled a Giant uprising in the eighth and then retired the side in the ninth, striking out the last two.

Williams (14-12) was originally announced as the starter for the second game but was passed up when Alston decided to go with Don Drysdale, his 25-game winner.

A major league record for a nine-inning game was set when the teams struggled through four hours and 18 minutes. A total of 42 players were used. The Giants' e i g h t pitchers equalled a National League record.

Although only 25,321 paying customers s h o w e d up, they helped set a major league attendance record of 2,709,491 for the Dodger season.

Crackers Take Pair, Win Series

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Atlanta Crackers took the Junior World Series by storm in an unprecedented doubleheader by identical scores of 2-1 over Louisville C o l o n e l s Tuesday night.

Harry Fanok was the winning pitcher in the championship game as he left his reputation for wildness in Atlanta. Fanok walked only two men in 7 2-3 innings, allowing the only Colonel run on a homer by Fritz Brickell in the eighth.

Atlanta, taking the series four games to three, scored in the fourth when Angel Scull doubled, moved to third on a fly and scored on a single by John Glenn. In the sixth, Fanok singled and scored on a sacrifice fly by Doug Clemens.

Atlanta won Tuesday night's opener on a home run by shortstop Daryl Robertson in the seventh that broke a 1-1 tie. The Crackers of the International League, counted earlier on doubles by Tim McCarver and Phil Gagliano while Louisville, of the American Association, tallied on a walk, wild pitch and Pepper Thomas' single.

Letty Ray Sadecki outdueled Chi Chi Olivo for the victory. A rainout Monday night necessitated Tuesday night's doubleheader.

JOINS BUFFALO

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Titans of the American Football League announced T u e s d a y they had acquired Jim Torczon, a defensive end, from Buffalo Bills for a 1963 draft choice. The 235-pound, six-foot-two former University of Nebraska player is in his fourth year in professional football.

THEY DIDN'T LIKE THE CALL —Centrefielder Willie Mays, right, and coach Whitey Lockman of the San Francisco Giants get into a heated argument with Umpire Jocko Conlan in the eighth inning in Los Angeles yesterday after Conlan called Willie out on a close play at third. Conlan wouldn't budge on the decision. (AP Wirephoto).

"Don't Care Which One"

Yankees Not Fussy Over Foemen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— Manager Ralph Houk brought his New Yorkers into San Francisco Tuesday night but shed no light on his World Series plans.

The American League champions will face either San Francisco Giants or Los Angeles Dodgers beginning T h u r s d a y but must await today's final (a. tional League playoff game in Los Angeles to find out who they will play.

"I don't care which one we play," said Houk, and most of his players chimed in with the same opinion.

Houk saw no advantage for his Yankees in the Giant-Dodger playoff going the full three games.

"They can carry right on through, but we've had too much rest." The Yankees last played Sunday.

The Yankees came to San Francisco instead of Los Angeles so they could work out at unfamiliar Candlestock Park in case the Giants win the playoff. The Yankees played nine times in Los Angeles' Dodger Stadium this year against the Angels.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sonny Liston's shocking first - round knockout of Floyd Patterson earned the new heavyweight champion the Fighter of the Month award in Ring magazine today.

Patterson was made the No. 1 contender, Liston's former position. Ranked behind Patterson in order were Eddie Machen of Portland, Ore.; Zora Folley, Chandler, Ariz.; Ingemar Johansson of S w e d e n; Archie Moore of San Diego, Calif.; Cleveland Williams of Houston, Tex.; Cassius Clay, Louisville, Ky.; Henry Cooper, England; Robert Cleroux, Montreal; and Mike DeJohn, Syracuse, N.Y.

CHANGES MIND

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Former world junior welterweight boxing champion Duilio Loi of Italy changed his mind Tuesday and said he would try to take back the title from Eddie Perkins of Chicago. Perkins won the crown by outpointing Loi in 15 rounds here Sept. 14. Loi earlier said he had given up the hope of regaining the 140-pound division title because of weight difficulties.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A funereal pall hung over Brooklyn for several dark dismal days. Tear drops splashed into foam-topped schpers in the bistros and taverns. Bedford Avenue, bouncing ground of many a Dodger home-run ball was in mourning. Greenpernt was in the doldrums.

The Dodger faithful, and there are thousands who still gush tears when they survey the apartmental monstrosity that has replaced their beloved Ebbet's Field, plummeted from the heights to inferno depths in the short space of a week.

Adding to their agony were the muffled cheers that echoed across the river from Coorsn's Bluff, former home of the hated "Jynis" who in a belated May Day fiesta could be the murderers of Dodger flag hopes.

The stouthearted Flatbush burghers are maintaining that if the season had ended a week earlier their beloved expatriate "Bums" would have marched into Yankee Stadium solid favorites to deflate the ego and whomp the hell out of the hated ex-Slangeiese.

Proudly they rode on the crest of a four-game lead. They were the best team in baseball. They had the power, the depth, the speed, the pitching and were headed for the glory.

They had the incomparable Dryadale, a 25-game winner. They had Koufax, rounding back into shape with his strikeout wizardry. They had a Robin Hood. Raffles and the Blink mob rolled into one in the biggest base thief of all time, Maury Wills. They had the Davis boys, Wally Moon, Junior Gilliam and John Rosebore. Who could ask for anything more?

They looked over their shoulder. Their ancient foemen, the ex-Polo Grounds parasites, the Dark desperados from Candlestick Park were gathering momentum. The Dodgers barked their derision. Four lengths in front and a short, sharp gallop to the wire.

Then it happened. The coast to the wire ended abruptly. It became a tough uphill grind. They faltered. They slumped. They stopped.

Behind them the Giants swept down the stretch, picking up momentum like a runaway freight car on a downhill grade. The lightning of the Dodgers flickered almost out against the rumbling thunder of the Giants storm to the finish line.

The brilliancy of Willie Mays, dimmed in the preceding month, flashed with a new comeback light. Cepeda, Felipe Alou, Willie McCovey, Harvey Kuenn, Ed Bailey caught fire. Billy Pierce, Jack Sanford, Juan Marichal and others of the Giant mound corps found a new freshness in their arms.

This was the power that should have propelled the Giants to the flag for the past few years. It had failed due to untimely slumps and other hazards that always seemed to hit the club at crucial periods.

Perhaps the Dodgers figured on this possibility and in the figuring forgot their own vulnerability. They were not immune. The virus struck and stuck.

The Giants now in full stride closed in. The magic bludgeon of Willie Mays smashed, out game-winning homers. Their pitching was airtight. They faltered momentarily and dropped a big one to the Houston Colts.

But the Cards were dealing in a playoff showdown to the Dodgers. They trumped the Dodger aces twice in a row and the judges' stand flashed the "Dead Heat" signal.

The Giants rolled on. They turned the knife in the wound in the first playdown game with an 8-0 shutout. It appeared to be all over.

Then it happened. Yesterday the Dodger corpse, ready it seemed for interment, suddenly flashed to life. In the sixth inning the dormant dynamite exploded. Seven runs stunned the Giants and loosened their grasp on the flag.

Then in a tense dramatic finish the Dodgers hurled back the Giants' dying bid and squeezed out an 8-7 victory.

Today everything's OK in L.A. and Brooklyn.. The "Bums" came through and where there's life there's hope. The big one is now being played. Yesterday's victory could be the spark to the awakened Dodgers.

Go take a look.

Pretty Gals To Manage Soccer Club

TORONTO (CP)—The University of Toronto soccer team isn't accepting an intercollegiate title, but it does boast the best looking managers in the league.

Mary Bertolis and Kathleen O'Sullivan, two 20 - year - old young ladies, have been picked from among four applicants as Blues managers.

The girls answered an advertisement in The Varsity, the student newspaper, which read: "Female wanted to handle managerial duties for men.

Members of the team made the selection and decided on two managers instead of one after viewing the applicants.

Mary comes by her knowledge of soccer honestly. She is the sister of Bruno Bertolis, former Varsity player rated now one of Canada's best professional players. Kathleen, born in Sorino, became a soccer fan last year when she dated a member of the team.

"Carry Back," US Hope

PARIS (AP)—Can the little giant killer Carry Back become the first United States-bred colt to win Europe's prestige handicap—the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe?

That was the question Tuesday before continental racing fans as the horses went through final workouts for the tough 1½-mile test over Longchamp's uneven grass course Sunday.

Carry Back, 1961 Kentucky Derby winner and three-year-old champion, will be ridden by Scobie Breasley, an Australian jockey.

Sixty - seven thoroughbreds from Europe's top stables were nominated for the Arc de Triomphe and about 23 are expected to start.

Owners can withdraw their horses any time up to noon Saturday.

However, almost certain starters are such swift stars as these French entries: Match, who won the Grand Prix de Saint-Cloud and in England the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes at Ascot; Bounteous, surprise of the racing year, who won the recent Grand Prix de Deauville; and the three - year - old Armistice, who took the Grand Prix of Paris last June.

The Italians have a strong contender in Bardi and Mexico and the Britain's main hope is Aurelius.

The theme "Carry Back against Europe" has captured the imagination of the French racing fan. About 100,000 are expected to turn out Sunday at the grassy track near the River Seine.

Liston Said Linked With Racketeer

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York state athletic commission meets today to decide whether to recognize Sonny Liston as heavyweight champion.

Liston, who won the title by knocking out Floyd Patterson in 2:06 of the first round eight days ago, is not licensed to box in New York state. Nor is he recognized as champion.

Indications are that the commission will recognize him as the heavyweight champion. However, after Tuesday's public hearing by the New York state joint legislative committee on crime, it probably will continue to deny him a license.

New York has refused Liston a license because of his past record, which included prison terms.

Tuesday, Cortez Stewart, a 28-year-old heavyweight linked to Liston with racketeer Frank (Blinky) Palermo. Stewart testified that Palermo was one of the men who helped to hire Liston as sparring partner for Liston while the latter was preparing for the Patterson fight.

Liston has steadfastly maintained that he has purged himself of all underworld affiliations. The committee invited Liston and his adviser, Jack Nilon, to appear at its next session on Oct. 15.

"We want to find out what's going on here and accept the invitation," said Nilon in Philadelphia.

"I want to find out who Cortez is. He wasn't a sparring partner of ours. I don't know who he is. I guarantee I never offered him anything. And I never met Palermo."

He added that he thinks Stewart is seeking publicity. He pointed out that all Liston's sparring partners for the Patterson fight were from Illinois.

Requests Receivership

Mosport Track 'Hard Up'

TORONTO (CP) — President Paul Sullivan said Tuesday night that Mosport Limited, the track that brought big . time sports car racing to Canada, is in financial difficulty.

Sullivan said, however, it isn't as serious as some people think.

The National Trust Company Limited filed a writ against Mosport Tuesday asking it be appointed as receiver and manager of the Mosport property.

"But it was at our request," said Sullivan. "We just wanted more time to draft up a payment plan for our creditors."

Sullivan said Mosport has been making as much money as ever since when it was built two years ago. The difficulties had arisen from the fact that too much money was spent on the track when it was built.

"Too many frills—or maybe should say there are some things we could have done without temporarily, he said. "But that's why it's a closed as North America's best track."

Money for the property was raised by 30 Canadian sports car clubs, whose members bought 1100 debentures.

The trust company represents the debenture owners and Sullivan says the directors of the track asked them to take over the receivership.

Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, champions of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, have won one game and earned two ties against NHL teams in preseason games.

Tuesday night the peaky Baby Habs tied Chicago Black Hawks' 2-2 at Pembroke to nap Hawks' eight-game winning streak.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who haven't been impressive so far, walloped Calgary Stampeders of the Western League 9-0 at Calgary. In another game Tuesday night, New York rapped the WHL Los Angeles Blades 7-5 at Saskatoon.

Montreal Canadiens, sponsors of Hull-Ottawa, romped to a 8-3 win over Kingston Frontenacs of the EPHL at Kingston.

Instead Durocher yelled: "First base, first base."

And Perry turned and threw to first.

Yelled 'First Base' It Worked

Rookie Rooked By 'Lip' Psychology

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Why did San Francisco pitcher Gaylord Perry throw to first base instead of third in the ninth inning, thereby putting Maury Wills in a position to score the winning run?

This was one of the big questions of the second playoff game for the National League championship that Los Angeles Dodgers won 8-7, making today's game the deciding one.

The answer lies in the shrewd psychology of Leo Durocher, Dodger third base coach and former manager of the Giants.

Wills and Jim Gilliam walked to start the ninth, Bob Bolin pinch-hit for first sod Dick Lemay the second. When Dave Spencer came up to pinch hit for Duke Snider, Gaylord Perry came in to pitch—third Giant pitcher of the inning.

Spencer laid down a pretty bunt to the box, as Jim Davenport charged in and Jose Pagan went from the first-sod position to cover third.

It appeared to many that Perry, a rookie who played most of the season at Tacoma in the Pacific Coast League, could have caught Wills in plenty of time at third.

GET READY FOR WINTER

Will Your Car Take Colder Weather In Its Stride?

One thing sure: It's going to get colder . . . soon. Equally sure: your car needs a complete check-up and winterizing service, if it is to perform dependably under rugged conditions.

Nancy McCredie, Brampton, Newest Star in Shot Put On Canada's Track Horizon

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)—Perhaps butterfly collecting isn't the right hobby for a girl with ambitions to represent Canada in the discus and shot put in international competition. Nancy McCredie wonders.

"I got 'em in my stomach at the wrong time," says the well-proportioned 165-pound Nancy, who is something of a freak in track circles. She throws left-handed.

Nancy, who chases butterflies and collects birds and assorted small animals as a hobby, muffed her first big test in the British Empire Games track and field trials at Toronto two months ago. A good showing would have meant a trip to Australia and the track team for the Nov. 22-Dec. 7 Games at Perth.

But the five - foot - 10 - inch schoolgirl, who had taken up discus throwing just five months earlier, didn't let it get her down. Since then, though, she has become the new star on Canada's track horizon.

ADMITS SHE FROZE

"I froze," she candidly confessed in an interview the other day. "I was scared and the butterflies were bopping up and down in my stomach. I kept telling myself not to be scared in the other track meets I really didn't care whether I won or lost. I wanted to win this one, and I failed."

The records bear her out. Her best discus throw was only 108 feet, 5½ inches, and Pat Dobie of Africa after years of action in Algeria.

Some 3,700 members of the elite French military group were transferred here in June when France gave up abandonment its attempts to keep Algeria. They were welcomed by cheering, flag-waving crowds and for a time all appeared to go well.

But after a few months, discontent began to pall for the Europeans. They also became homesick as they came in contact with tourists from their own countries. The nationalists of Elba and Sardinia provided added complications to those seeking an escape route.

French military authorities are reluctant to release the detailed estimates here put the number of deserters or attempted desertions at between 150 and 200 in three months. Many are quickly recaptured but at least 32 are known to have escaped.

Tough Soldiers Of Foreign Legion Deserting

By BASIL CHAPMAN

BASTIA, Corsica (Reuters)—Tough soldiers of the French Foreign Legion are deserting by the dozens from the quiet life of Corsica after years of action in Algeria.

Some 3,700 members of the elite French military group were transferred here in June when France gave up abandonment its attempts to keep Algeria. They were welcomed by cheering, flag-waving crowds and for a time all appeared to go well.

But after a few months discontent life began to pall for the Europeans. They also became homesick as they came in contact with tourists from their own countries. The nationalists of Elba and Sardinia provided added complications to those seeking an escape route.

French military authorities are reluctant to release the detailed estimates here put the number of deserters or attempted desertions at between 150 and 200 in three months. Many are quickly recaptured but at least 32 are known to have escaped.

Former Missionary Returns To North Early Next Year As Suffragan Arctic Bishop

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — A onetime toolmaker and former northern missionary returns to the Northwest Territories early next year as the Anglican Church's suffragan bishop of the Arctic.

"It's always been my dream to go back as a missionary," Bishop Henry George Cook said in an interview.

"Of course, I never dreamed I would go back as a bishop." he beamed as he settled in for conversation in his tiny office where he has been superintendent of Anglican Indian and Eskimo residential schools for the last 14 years.

"My mother told me to stay away from cigarettes so I took up a pipe," he said as he filled a bowl.

Bishop Cook, 56-year-old native of London, England, was elected to the post over three other nominees earlier this month by the electoral college of the church province of Rupert's Land to act as assistant to Bishop F. B. Marsh.

He will be consecrated in January and leave that month to divide duties with Bishop Marsh in the church's diocese of the Arctic, covering 1,500,000 square miles of the Northwest Territories and Northern Quebec.

1935 BIG YEAR

There are 22 mission stations scattered across this huge land mass with 10,000 church members, most of them Eskimo.

The typical mission station, says Bishop Cook, is made up of a church, a residence, dog corrals, odd outbuildings and sometimes a school.

He served in such posts when in 1935 he graduated in theology from the University of Western Ontario, London, and was posted to the Northwest Territories at Fort Smith for two months and then to Fort Simpson, on the great, snaking Mackenzie River, for eight years.

"The year 1935 was a big year for me. I graduated and became a married man."

The Cooks have three children, David, 25, is an Ottawa school teacher, Peter, 21, works in a residential school at Inuvik in the territories. Barbara, 18, is a Grade 13 student here.

"They say that having once drank Mackenzie River water you will go back. And it's true."

The Cooks came south so the children could be educated and have wanted to return for years.

WIDELY TRAVELLED

The trim, square-set clergyman settled his family in Ottawa, but travelled continually across Canada and into the northland — covering 60,000 miles some years—as superintendent of the church's 15 residential schools and their 3,000 students.

"I believe in the personal touch."

Bishop Cook says you either despise the north or you love it. "I'm afraid I love it."

It is bleak and austere, he admits, "but to some people this bleakness has a fascination . . . a certain awesomeness makes you conscious of the Creator. Others have a job and feel a certain zeal to do it."

Bishop Cook's main responsibility will be in the Mackenzie District, most vibrant area of the territories and already in the process of being made into a separate territory.

This, he feels, is an area that has been neglected by the church.

"I don't believe the native should become a white man, but he should reconcile himself to the fact that the white man's way of life has penetrated his country. He should seek education and adapt himself to the new trend."

GUIDE ESKIMOS

The Eskimos should be "assisted to help themselves," but not spoiled and made too dependent on the whites. "One of the dangers that has to be guarded against is too much paternalism."

Bishop Cook's family settled in Woodstock in 1912 and later in Ingersoll, where he met his wife graduated a year ahead of me."

"Like all teen-agers I thought I was smarter than my parents and I left to go to the United States." He "knocked around" in the southern states for a time with another young man and then returned to Ingersoll where he became apprentice toolmaker.

He served five years as an apprentice and worked at the trade for two years before deciding he wanted to enter the ministry, "I had to study for a year at home."

He was 24 when he entered university and it was five years later before he graduated. "My James Bay, before taking over as schools superintendent in 1948.

Bishop Cook has also served as curate at St. Paul's Church, Toronto, and at South Porcupine in Northern Ontario. He later was archdeacon of James Bay and principal of an Indian school at Moose Factory, on

O.F.U. 171 Discusses Milk Marketing

BONARLAW — The September meeting of Local 171 of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wilson, Bonarlaw.

Murney Bateman was chairman and opened the meeting.

A letter from head office was read thanking the local for a donation of $50. They also asked if the locals could obtain some advertisements for the convention hand book.

Joanne Williams reported that the County annual meeting would be held at Roslin, on September 27th.

Considerable time was spent discussing "milk marketing".

It was decided to hold next meeting at the hall in Springbrook. There will be a potluck supper. A committee of Edna Bateman, Elda Bateman and Shirley Reid, was appointed to arrange the supper.

Entertainment will be arrangeo. George Williams moved a vote of thanks to the Wilsons for the use of their home.

The ladies served lunch and a social time was spent.

Orbiting Earth So Much Fun He Did Not Eat

Schirra Happy as a Lark After His Space Trip

U.S.S. KEARSARGE (AP)—Astronaut Walter M. Schirra turned in early Wednesday night following his six - orbit world flight.

Unharmed and in his own words "happy as a lark," Schirra and his spacecraft were hoisted aboard Wednesday after splashing into the Pacific 286 miles northeast of Midway Island.

After a 2½-hour medical examination, two doctors reported Schirra apparently suffered no ill effects.

Chief Space Agency physician, Dr. Richard Pollard, said Schirra ate little except containers of fruit and some liquids, but no chunks of solid food.

"When you've been that much fun you just don't get hungry," Pollard quoted Schirra.

LOSES FOUR POUNDS

A navy doctor, Lt.-Cmdr. Max Truumbull, told a press conference Schirra lost a few pounds—but you'd lose more than playing a game of football."

Pollard said Schirra ate a hearty dinner before going to bed: Two minute steaks, grapefruit juice, a baked potato, iced tea and a strawberry sundae.

Today the Sigma 7 spacecraft was to be placed on a tug to be taken to Midway where it will be transferred to a C-130 Hercules plane for delivery to Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The Kearsarge is due in Pearl Harbor this morning.

A full day of technical talk about the operation of his spacecraft faces Schirra today.

Much of it will be shop talk with flight engineers John Glenn, Virgil Grissom, Scott Carpenter and Donald Slayton, who manned tracking stations around the world Wednesday.

Today, after Schirra, completely relaxed in the admiral's cabin, the aircraft carrier Kearsarge, completes his uninterrupted dicapbonce accounting. Scientists will examine him for possible after-effects. Two doctors aboard the Kearsarge already have reported he apparently suffered no ill-effects.

An older American has spent so much time—more than nine consecutive hours—and is orbit. But from first appearances, the human had been no greater than after a jet-speed ride on a commuter plane.

Schirra's launch from the Kearsarge frowned Schirra—dry and comfortable in his Sigma 7 spacecraft—after splashdown waters less than three miles off the carrier's bow.

Schirra blasted off at 8:15 a.m. in the spacecraft parachuted into the ocean 285 miles northeast of Midway Island at 3:29 p.m. He was picked up by a helicopter and transported to land in the Pacific.

FIRST PAPAL RAILROAD RIDE IN 99 YEARS

Pope John Makes Trip Across Italy

ROME (AP)—Pope John today made a pilgrimage across Italy to pray for the success of the Roman Catholic ecumenical council.

The 80-year-old pontiff could hardly wait for the two locomotives to pull his nine - car train out of the Vatican's own railway station on the closest thing to a whistle-stop tour the modern papacy has seen.

"It seems you always have to wait," said the 80-year-old ruler of the Roman Catholic Church as he looked eagerly out from an open window wondering when the train would start.

Then a trainman at the rear yelled "Pronto." The engineer at the other end sighed, nailed he had heard, and the train was off on the first papal railroad ride in 99 years.

The Pope may die back in the Vatican before midnight after a trip 418 "miles across Italy to Loreto, a shrine to the Virgin Mary, and back to Rome via Assisi, birthplace of St. Francis.

Thousands gathered at 53 stations en route to cheer the pontiff as he passed.

ENJOYS EXPERIENCE

It was Pope John's first trip in something other than an automobile or hand-carried portable throne since he became pontiff in 1958. He appeared to be enjoying every minute of it.

After the 15-minute ride to Rome's Ostiense Station he took pick up Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani, Pope John told reporters:

"I hope it won't be another 100 years before a Pope makes this journey. I don't think it will, because I hope to travel some more myself.

"I will be seeing a lot more of you gentlemen."

Reporters on the platform asked for his blessing and he gave it smilingly, adding: "You need it, always. I think of you every day."

The Pope said Wednesday he would pray at Loreto "in honor of the Madonna in the name of all Christianity." The world-wide ecumenical council opens next week.

Enraged Gunman Shoots Four, Wounds Fifth

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An enraged gunman shot four persons to death and wounded a fifth Wednesday and then vanished in the darkness, hunted by scores of police.

The shootings occurred at a small hotel in West Los Angeles. They came after a caller complained to police of a loud radio in the hotel.

"See the manager about it," he was told.

Moments later a volley of pistol shots rocked the Colonel Hall Hotel.

When the first officer reached the scene the gunman was gone, the hotel was silent, and the only ones there were dead, dying, or wounded. Among those slain was the woman who managed the hotel.

'It Was Long Wait But Worth Every Minute' Says Mrs. Schirra

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—"The flight was perfect," Mrs. Walter Schirra Jr., said with a big smile Wednesday after her astronaut - husband completed his historic six-orbit flight.

"It was a long wait but worth every minute of it," she said.

Mrs. Schirra, accompanied by her son, Marty, 12, and daughter Suzanne, 8, met with reporters a bit remaining secluded in her suburban home throughout the flight of more than nine hours.

"I told Wally when I talked with him by telephone early this morning I was sure everything would be successful," she said.

"He said he was comfortable, calm and all ready to go."

Mrs. Schirra said he would like to be an astronaut.

"I would like to be one very much," said the freckled youngster. "It sounds very exciting."

Suzanne, a bashful strawhaired blonde, said nothing.

Mrs. Schirra said she was not particularly concerned at any time during the flight.

"I was not apprehensive at any time," she said. "I wasn't apprehensive at all."

Mrs. Schirra said her family has no special plans for a celebration when Schirra returns to Houston for a ticker tape parade of downtown Houston.

"I'll cook him a steak," she said. "That's his favorite."

She does not plan to fly to Hawaii to join Schirra for the jet flight that will bring him to Houston, probably Sunday or Monday.

"I will not be in Hawaii long enough to make it worth while," she said.

Civil Service Group Opposes Political Choice

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Civil Service Association of Canada has advised Prime Minister Diefenbaker that it objects strongly to any political consideration entering into an appointment to fill a senior civil service post.

The objection was registered Wednesday night at the biennial convention of the 32,500-member CSAC, which was told that newspaper speculation has arisen that a candidate defeated in the June federal election might be appointed to the Civil Service Commission.

An extraordinary resolution passed unanimously and without debate said such an appointment would be a "direct negation" of the system of appointing federal government employees on the basis of individual merit.

The motion was one of many passed during nearly eight hours of business sessions at the second day of the four-day convention.

Among them was a vote against affiliation of the CSAC with the 1,000,000-member Canadian Labor Congress.

J. A. Norton of Ottawa-Hull, chairman of the affiliation committee, said later the major considerations of the committee were a fear that the CSAC would lose some of its own autonomy if it affiliated and that affiliation would interfere with attempts by the association, in common with other civil servant organizations.

REFUGEES ESCAPE

BERLIN (Reuters) — Four East German refugees escaped into West Berlin police reported today.

Prospects of Weekend Riots Now a Problem at Ole Miss

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—Governor Ross Barnett of Mississippi and Oxford clergymen made separate pleas today for obedience to law and order as federal marshals predicted new incidents at the University of Mississippi.

The fearful new violence in Atlanta were two men died in flames around the football game between Mississippi and the University of Houston. About 30,000 are expected for the game, the focal point of homecoming celebrations.

James H. Meredith, the first Negro knowingly admitted to the university, is not expected to be in Oxford this weekend. The 29-year-old Meredith, officials said, has plans which will take him off the campus.

University officials insisted the game was on.

Justice department officials were not so definite.

Edwin Guthman, the justice department's top agent on the scene, took this view:

"We realize how important this weekend is to the college and the community. On the other hand, we don't want any more riots or violence. We must make an assessment. There has been a huge disturbance here, two people killed, and numerous others injured."

Guthman conferred at McLean, Va., with Attorney-General Kennedy Wednesday night. Guthman said the game can be shifted to another site, "if the facts warrant it in the judgment of the military and department of justice."

Barnett, who defied the federal

19 Latin American Lands Agree Cuba Threat to Them

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign ministers of the United States and its 19 Latin American allies were unanimously agreed today that the massing of Soviet arms in Cuba threatens the security of the Western Hemisphere.

"The adoption of special measures, both individual and collective, is necessary to meet the growing danger, they said in a statement released after two days of consultation at the state department.

The declaration denounced the "Sino-Soviet intervention in Cuba as an attempt to convert the island into an armed base for Communist penetration of the Americas." It stressed the need "extra - ordinary solidarity on matters affecting the security and well-being of the hemispheric system" achieved at the meeting.

State Secretary Rusk, who served as chairman, was reported pressed with the unanimous agreement. Officials said it marks a forward step from the Punta del Este, Uruguay, foreign ministers conference last January when the 20 - nation group split on some key anti-Castro issues.

Armed with the new interAmerican call for economic and security measures against Cuba, the United States is planning a fresh drive among European North Atlantic Treaty powers to get them to curtail trade and shipping which benefits the Soviet-supported regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The agreement of the foreign ministers is not binding on their governments but it is known that they now are committed to take any specific actions.

The conference also appeared to leave no room for doubt that the ministers themselves believe the time for further action has come.

Malaya Charges Communism Unleashes New Imperialism

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Tiny Malaya charged Wednesday that Communism has unleashed a world-wide campaign of "new imperialism" designed to engulf many countries.

Ismail bin Dato Abdul Rahman, Malaysian internal security minister, told the 17th United Nations General Assembly Red China's suppression of Tibet—whose people he described as "desperate"—is only one example of the campaign.

"This same danger now is evident in South Viet Nam where outside forces are conducting subversive activities, and in some provinces even open aggression. This is part of a worldwide campaign, particularly evident in Southeast Asia, of subversion the objective of which is to overrun, dominate and ultimately bring the small countries under the subjugation of a new form of imperialism."

Malaya, which borders on Red China, had managed to check armed Communist aggression after years of struggle but "anti-national elements" now were continuing subversion.

TRADE MINISTER SAYS ECONOMY MOVING AHEAD

Third Round Of Debate Ends

OTTAWA (CP)—A Canadian drift toward socialism, abetted by some Crown corporations and particularly the CBC, must be halted, Social Credit whip Eric Macnaughton told the Commons Wednesday.

Canada has reached a limit in welfare payments "beyond which it is not safe or wise for us to proceed," said J. Chester MacRae (PC York-Sunbury), congratulating the government on omitting "handouts" from the throne speech.

Trade Minister Hees said the economy is "moving ahead very strongly indeed" and Walter Gordon (Toronto Davenport) said he isn't impressed by the "rosy optimism and misconception" statistics in the speech from the throne."

BUSINESS AS USUAL

In other words, it was parliamentary business as usual Wednesday as the 3rd round of the eight-day debate on the speech from the throne left all party affair due to end next Wednesday.

Today the Commons was voting on the Liberal motion of non-confidence in the government's Progressive Conservative government.

Gaston Marcoux, member for Speube Montmorency, said in the French language debate that in his young parliamentary career, this Canada has to halt "this drift toward socialism, toward an ideology that we oppose on the parliamentary floor and that we allow to spread on the battlefield scene."

There were certain Crown corporations—and he singled out the CBC—which, under the Social Credit speakers have attacked as socialist-inclined or encouraging to the infiltration of socialism in this country, he said.

Government spending and involvement in medical care plans also have infringed on individual freedom.

Mr. MacRae, calling the CBC "the most socialistic program that has been offered . . . in this country," also condemned the proposal for a national welfare council.

"I have never agreed with the principle that voters should be invited into welfare investments," said the New Brunswick back-bencher, first elected in 1953. "I think that this country now have reached the limit to which it is not safe or wise for us to proceed.

"I was pleased to see that in the speech from the throne there were no handouts."

Mr. Hees said the publication of the economy's health is an increase of 6.9 per cent for the first months in the gross national product—total of all goods and services produced.

He reviewed recent trade conferences bringing foreign buyers of Canada's manufactured products, plus plans for the second conference of trade commissioners. "Many, many thousands of additional jobs" would result.

Canadian businessmen had a new sense of confidence.

Hazen Argue, Assiniboia, the former CCF leader, Democratic Party House leader elected earlier this year to the CCF field organization policy in his first speech as an elected Liberal.

From his front-bench seat, the Saskatchewan farmer said west exports are trailing by 30 per cent although the Prairie harvest is "a record" and grow all the grain he could. The result was a wheat supply of 967,000,000 bushels with export sales declining.

One-Ton Boiler Rockets Through Busy Lunchroom

21 Dead, Hundred Hurt In 'Unbelievable' Blast

NEW YORK (AP)—A one-ton steam boiler blasted from its moorings in a telephone company building basement with incredible force Wednesday and rocketed into an adjoining lunchroom, killing at least 21 persons and injuring at least 100. Most of them were women.

An immediate investigation was launched to learn the cause of the disaster, described by one official as "unbelievable."

The explosion occurred at 12:07 p.m. EDT, when about 100 employees of the New York Telephone Company's uptown Manhattan building were crowded in the basement lunchroom.

Without warning, the boiler blew and catapulted into the room with the force of a warship shell. It smashed its way up through the ceiling to the first floor, bounced back into the basement and finally rocketed through an opposite wall. It destroyed or killed or maimed everything in its path.

BODIES FALL THROUGH

Overturned desks, cabinets and debris fell through the gaping hole left in the ceiling by the boiler's mad course as the basement, already filled with the deadly embrace of steam, smoke and flames.

For perhaps 30 seconds after the blast there was a stunned silence. Then a lonely cry, uttered in a tone of disbelief, pierced the choking stir: "My God, my God."

Area hospitals set up emergency facilities as doctors came from far and near to care for the injured.

Transit employees working nearby and others from every walk of life rushed to the scene of human suffering and aided police and firemen in rescue operations.

Clergymen of various faiths were on hand to assist in the task of ministering to the final needs of the dead and the dying. These littered the sidewalk in grotesque postures of death and pain. Many persons in the building area around the bulging at 1230 Sixth Avenue suddenly took like a wartorn battlefield.

Dazed survivors and relatives and friends of workers in the building stood by and waited for news of the fate of loved ones. Others moved to a makeshift morgue nearby, hoping against hope that they would not find what they most feared.

HAD BEEN CLEANED

The boiler that caused the disaster—one of three oil-burning boilers in the 23-story building—had been cleaned last week and placed back into service first thing Monday morning, the tragedy.

Engineer said the boiler room supervisor, Anthony McCann, 51, of Dumont, N.J., whose duties included the operation of the boilers, had left the basement in response to a telephone call to one of the boilers, had left only 10 minutes before the blast.

The city fire and building departments and the New York County district attorney's office launched investigations into the cause of the explosion.

The responsibility for safety checks of boilers in the city rests with the fire and building departments. The district attorney's office was looking into the pos-

American Negro Slowly Winning Battle Against Social Bondage

WASHINGTON (CP) — A combination of political skill, quiet determination and social action is slowly freeing the American Negro from social bondage in the deep south.

In many states—both north and south—the walls of racial outcast, snubbed in schools and restaurants, have been torn down and forced to live in colored ghettos.

But Negro leaders are encouraged, Ever since the 1954 U.S. Supreme Court ruling outlawing segregated public schools, attacks of northern resistance to integration have been slowly crumbling.

In fact, it is in the south only where tough citadels remain—Mississippi, South Carolina and Alabama. Mississippi now has been breached. While bayonets were required to transform

Closed Areas To Be Opened For Hunting

Two duck-hunting areas outside the city, closed and posted for illegal bathing, will be reopened for hunting on Saturday morning, RCMP Corporal J. Grainge announced today.

The areas are the Moira River and the Foxboro Swamp which were closed just prior to the opening of the season September 22nd.

Officers who inspected the areas after the closing time prescribed by regulations and found that no further bathing had occurred. Former bait evidence had disappeared.

It will be legal for hunters to shoot in these areas after sunrise Saturday, Corporal Grainge pointed out.

"The signs probably will not be removed until later in the morning," he said, "but hunters are advised they can go in the areas and shoot at the prescribed time."

The areas noted above are the only ones posted and closed in this immediate district. A few potholes in Prince Edward county were closed.

ORBITING EARTH

"so far as I am concerned, the mission was perfect."

Williams said that the next Mercury mission would be for 24 hours, and would be attempted in the summer.

Astronaut Donald K. Slayton, Apollo astronauts withdrawn for the mission, said: "We learned a lot of things—especially that we can fly the long with a small amount of fuel. Wally did an impressive job of handling the spacecraft and conserving fuel."

Eight of the nine newly-named Project Gemini-Project Apollo astronauts witnessed the launching. Slayton said they were "quite impressed."

A seat will be boarded the carrier, Schirra answered two Washington telephone calls from President Kennedy and Vice-President Johnson — and one from his wife, Josepha, in Houston.

President Kennedy told him he was delighted with the job his "wonderful job."

Schirra made a special impact on Europe, where millions on both sides of the Iron Curtain followed the flight on television, shortly after the launch, an impressive relayed by the Telstar communications satellite.

Moscow radio called Schirra "a courageous son of the American people."

The astronaut apparently felt no ill effects whatever from his working of weightlessness or from the acceleration to and deceleration from orbital speeds.

During the half hour in which he floated in the spacecraft while the carrier moved into position to pick him up, Schirra several times assured recovery personnel that he was all right.

He could see the ship picked up by helicopter almost instantly had he elected to leave the capsule. Instead, he preferred to remain dry, and thus to become the first astronaut to be retrieved, in his spacecraft, by a primary recovery vessel.

During orbit, Schirra reported he had "a delightful report for you from John Glenn. I have files."

The astronaut chuckled when he was told that he would hence forth be known as Venus because a tracking vessel in the Indian Ocean reported observing Sigma 7 for five minutes in the night sky and that the capsule resembled the bright planet. Sigma 7 was the first U.S. space vehicle to be spotted visually from the ground.

He also reported seeing the lights of Perth, Australia, and asked that the citizens there be given his thanks. He also saw flares sent up by two Western Australia, only as a luminous glow beneath the clouds.

Schirra will tell Project Mercury officials the details during the carrier trip to Honolulu. Then he will fly to the space flight centre at Houston to answer questions at a press conference Sunday...

Queen Victoria H-S Assoc. Lists Officers

The first general meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association was held recently when the parents had the opportunity of meeting the teachers. Following this the installation of the new officers and committee chairmen for the years took place.

President, Mrs. John Steinmetz; vice-presidents, Mrs. B. Stenson and Mrs. Lane; recording secretary, Mrs. Bell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Littletreasurer, Mr. H. B. Buskard; executive members, Mr. Bleeks-man, Mrs. Lebanon, Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. Hitchon, Mrs. J. Whiting; principal, H. E. Frink; program, Mr. J. Welch; membership, Mrs. Warner; social, Mrs. Wright; room representative, Mrs. Lyons; publications, Mrs. Coveney; bulletin, Mrs. Bagnoy; publicity, Mrs. Myles Morton; teachers' representative, Mrs. Miller.

Plans were made for the annual Tea Meeting to be held later in October.

Christ Church Parish Bids Rector Farewell

On Sunday, the people of Christ Church bid farewell to Archdeacon, the Venerable, H. B. Creeggan, who for the past 12 years has been rector of the parish. The church was filled to capacity for the services at 9.30 a.m., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The church was decorated for the annual Harvest Thanksgiving services and the choirs present at all three services sang exceptionally well. Their rendering of Charles Stanford's setting of the "Te Deum," a favorite of Archdeacon Creeggan's, was outstanding; and the Thanksgiving Anthem, "Praise thou the Lord, O My Soul" by Statham, was well done.

Archdeacon Creeggan preached at all three services. He thanked the congregation for the wonderful support that they had given him and asked them to continue their support for the new rector, the Rev. R. G. Fleming.

After the evening service, the Parish Guild served refreshments in the parish hall while Archdeacon and Mrs. Creeggan said goodbye to the many friends they had made in Christ Church. At 9.15 time Mr. Douglas McLean, the people's warden, presented and remembered the accomplishments of the parish during the Archdeacon's rectorship, and wished the Archdeacon every blessing in his new parish. Mr. McLean and Mr. J. S. Fletcher, the rector's warden, presented Archdeacon and Mrs. Creeggan with a gift from the parish.

High School Notes

MOIRA SECONDARY SCHOOL

By PAULINE JANITCH

Wanted: one heavy set of durable armor, one sharp javelin. Purpose: so that I can slow through the 1,029 people in our halls (the word people is used rather weakly, for an hour-long period I am automatically turn into fee-codemaniac, chieftess of the well being of others around me.

At the moment, this writer is in a cloud of pure ecstasy. Moira has finally accepted the potential school spirit that has been buried for three years.

Thanks go to the technicolored boys who fired us all up with their enthusiasm during student-council elections, and also to the cheerleaders who worked with them to maintain this spirit until the game on Thursday, Sept. 27. The recording afterwards, a pep rally was held in the gymnatorium, featuring a mystery guest, a hockey team that labelled "school spirit" that expanded to include dances with the vivacity and loudness of the cheering crowd. Also, two unidentifiable dogs in weird costumes (presumably members of the cheerleading team) hopped around the bleachers collecting money toward new sweaters.

The obvious success of this pep rally was further instigated by the massive numbers that turned out at Quinte to support the Moira football teams. Although the seniors and juniors were defeated, they expect to take a fair share of football victories this year.

Besides the new enthusiasm for football games, Moira's spirit has permeated all aspects of school life.

WIN AWARDS

Five of our students have brought us academic honor by winning Dominion Provincial Awards. These are Len Trudeau, Ryerson; Arnold Dodds Gr. XIII; Geraldine Reid, Gr. XIII; William Reid, Gr. XIII; and Wayne Jordison Gr. XII (technical).

Also a wide variety of school clubs are now in existence. Each one is busily engineering and informative cercle to the ever-popular record club.

Since school has started, Moira has sponsored one Friday night dance, and one tea-dance. Both were overwhelming in attendance probably because of the ideal situation and size of our gym-hall and grounding-ium.

THINGS TO WATCH FOR :

An improvement in our Wednesday morning assemblies.

And, special notice to clock watchers, the right time on the clocks in the new wing.

MARK COUNCIL START

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John today gave permission for Roman Catholic priests through out the world to celebrate mass at night mass Oct. 10 to mark the start of the Vatican ecumenical council.

Red Cross Branch in City Provides Many Services

The Red Cross Society in Canada was organized in 1896 as the first overseas branch of the British Red Cross Society and the Canadian Red Cross was incorporated by an Act of our parliament in 1909.

The Ontario provincial committee of the Red Cross Society made up of the local or community branches within the province. In Ontario there are approximately two hundred branches.

At the branch or community level Red Cross is administered and organized by volunteers. The Belleville branch, under the chairmanship of Mr. Newton Thompson with the assistance of the executive and committee men carries out a Red Cross program geared to the needs of this community.

During the past year the Home Nursing Service has provided homemakers to approximately 200 homes which included nearly 600 children as well as several senior citizens. The Belleville branch also loans to these homes where help was required, the various types of equipment expressed by those who have been assisted speaks for itself.

The Loan Cupboard is a free service to Red Cross patients for equipment. This equipment includes such items as beds, wheelchairs, commodes, bedtables as well as canes, crutches, slings and all other articles necessary in the sick-room.

Through the untiring efforts of the Blood Donor Committee there has been a substantial increase in the number of bottles of blood given at the various clinics. Many people have had an occasion to make use of this gift and it is expected late the value of this service.

Each year the Bay of Quinte Water Safety Council holds a Water Safety Week. The Belleville branch of the Red Cross is one of the organizations sponsoring this activity.

EXAMINERS PROVIDED

Under the direction of Red Cross examiners demonstrations are given in the city swimming pool. Swimming awards or certificates are issued for grades of the elementary schools were given at the Y.M.C.A.

The women at the Work Room of the Red Cross are the most active. Over 200 articles of clothing are made quilts were made. These articles are given out locally when the need arises.

More demands are made each year for the Red Cross Outpost areas of the world, Assistance through the disaster committee of the Belleville branch is given to families who have lost all their belongings by fire or otherwise. Help is given to secure housing accomodation and bedding, bedding and clothing as well as placing children in foster homes until the mother fortunate can be rehabilitated.

Through the individual emergency aid program many persons are helped over an emergency. This aid may be for medical supplies, food, clothing, fuel or transportation.

The Red Cross promises each "dime" all to the Public Health Nurse for pre-school children.

Just how extensive these services are depend on the financial support received.

Funds for our Belleville Branch are raised through the efforts of the United Appeal. When the canvasser calls remember that the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society is one of the agencies that needs your support.

Child Suffers Skull Fracture, Hit by Truck

A seven-year-old Northbrook boy, Robert Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Wood of Northbrook, is in Belleville General Hospital today suffering a possible fracture skull and numerous lacerations he sustained after being struck by a truck in the village of Northbrook in the vicinity of his home.

Police said the young lad was playing by the side of the road when it is believed he ran into the side of a dump truck proceeding north on highway 41 through the village of Northbrook, driven by Joseph Sedore, 27, of Eskdar.

The boy was driven from the scene to Dra. Allan and Barry's office in Tweed, where he was attended by Dr. Ryan and was later taken to Belleville General Hospital.

The accident occurred about 6.45 p.m. Wednesday. Corporal W. Fitzsimmons of the Kaladar detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated the accident.

GUARD KILLED

SEOUL (AP)—A U.S. soldier, standing guard 12 miles behind the South Korean front-line was fatally shot and stabbed by "unidentified Koreans" who left behind shells of the type used in Russian burp guns, the U.S. Army announced today.

GORDON J. HARVEY

R. R. 2, Carrying Place

The funeral services of Gordon J. Harvey was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, on Monday, October 1st. The Rev. A. J. Semple officiated and interment was at Carrying Place Cemetery.

Bearers were Gary, Wayne and Glenn Harvey, Gary Wilson, Ed Kemp and Brian Irvine.

Mr. Harvey died at his residence on Friday, September 28th, in his 74th year. He had been in failing health for the past five years.

A farmer all his life and a lifelong resident of Murray township, Mr. Harvey was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey. He married the late Ethel Chatten, who died in 1950. He was a member of St. John's Church.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Robert (Doris) Shaw of Bufalo and Mrs. Clifford (Kathleen) Irvine of Carrying Place; three sons, Jack and William of Carrying Place and Ernest of Trenton; seven children and two great grandchildren. Mr. Harvey was predeceased by his sister, Mrs. Clara Pearce.

MRS. JOHN ARMSTRONG

Following a brief illness, Mrs. Martha Armstrong, 244 Parrott Drive, died Wednesday in Belleville General Hospital.

Born in Tamworth, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers and had lived in North Bay and Toronto before coming to Belleville 31 years ago.

She was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and was also a member of Minerva Chapter, No. 138, of the Order of the Eastern Star, and of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, No. 11, of Belleville. She was a past worthy priestess of the Belleville White Shrine, and was appointed District Deputy Grand Protective Officer for the Shrine.

She is survived by her husband, John Armstrong; two brothers, William Rogers of Kingston, and Gilbert Rogers of Tamworth, and three sisters, Mrs. Arthur (Mabel) Penwell, Deseronto; Mrs. Leland (Elizabeth) South of Roblin and Mrs. Christopher (Rachael) Athay of Toronto.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Gym and Swim Classes for Women Start

Gym and swim classes for women started this week at the YMCA. They are being held on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, a schedule which represents a 100 per cent increase in the time allotted for this group over past years' program.

The classes feature a "limnastics" set of exercises conducted to music, informal games, recreational and instructional swimming. For those wishing to learn to swim there is an hour class set aside specifically for this purpose.

The evening classes begin at 7:30 o'clock. Further information is available from the YMCA, one of the city's United Appeal agencies.

Picton Bloomfield Loses Series In 2 Straight

PICTON — Bloomfield Walts were eliminated from further OASA competition on Tuesday evening, as Merlin's Erie Canners scored a 5-1 victory to take the best of three semi-final "C" series, two games to none.

In the event the Walts had won the game Tuesday, they were scheduled to continue immediately with another game to decide the series. This may have been why Bloomfield went with Carl Stacey rather than Ken Demille. In any case, Stacey proved a very capable pitcher.

An error in the third after two were out, got him into trouble he never should have seen. It opened the gates for three runs, spoiling an otherwise close contest.

Though Carl's fast ball got away from him at times, he only walked four. He broke up three of these passes and four of Merlin's eight hits with seven force plays.

Merlin's number two pitcher, Gary Mifflin, got behind early but became invincible as the game progressed. His first pitch was hit for a single by Barry Turpin, who later scored on Weese's double. He gave up another hit, together with his first and only walk in the second inning.

RETIRED 21 IN ORDER

When Gary Stacey led off the third with a single, Merlin pro Glen Hyatt got up off the bench to warm up. The move was unnecessary as Mifflin proceeded to retire the next twenty-one men in a row, nine via the strikeout route. He singled off Merlin in the seventh but was out trying to stretch it into a double.

Pike, who guards first base for Bloomfield, was the hard-luck player of the evening. With two out in the third he dropped a routine throw to first from Carl Stacey, allowing Turpin to score. Ken MacDonald followed with a high bouncer to the right side that went off Pike's glove. The Chatham district's top hitter, Jimmy Gillespie, scored both with a base hit to right and George Nicholson scored Gillespie with a single through the box. Gillespie was thrown out trying to steal but the damage was done.

Merlin's Dale Bowers got the winners only earned run in the fourth, leading off with a home run over Ken DeMille in right field. They scored their last run in the fifth with two out. MacDonald was out bunting a third strike foul. Gillespie walked and was forced at second by Nicholson. A wild pitch and missed third strike catcher Marve Stacey let Nicholson advance to third. Bowers drove him home with his second hit of the night.

All Bloomfield could manage after that was some long outs. Carl Stacey tagged a pitch in the ninth for what looked like a home run but Jim Kincaid made a great catch on it by the light pole.

a slave, more than one-half the Negro children of Kentucky now attend white schools. In West Virginia about 85 percent of the Negro children are in integrated classrooms."

In other southern states, such as Florida, Arkansas, Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina, integration in schools has been, for the Negro, painfully slow, in each of these states less than one per cent of the Negro children attend integrated schools.

But the Negro is showing patience. Looking back over the decades he can count his advances. Population, income and the law have increased his political power. Instead of attempting to win by bloodshed, as advocated by the revengeful Muslim Negro faction, the bulk of the Negroes are putting their faith in the ballot box.

Bonner Opposes 'Mississippi' Type Decrees

HOPE, B.C. (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner said Wednesday he doesn't want to enforce "Mississippi - type legislation" unless the Supreme Court says it is good—and says it is advance.

Would a Kent municipal bylaw aimed at stopping Sons of Freedom Doukhobors from entering Agassiz, be said, have legality on the basis of reputation.

Mr. Bonner made the comments in Victoria after an Agassiz delegation asked him to reconsider an earlier decision not to enforce an emergency legislation passed by Kent that would prevent the Doukhobors from entering the area.

One councillor said later a village constabulary would not be formed, but some residents were talking of challenging the Doukhobors with pitchforks.

Agassiz village is within Kent municipality.

The Freedomites, mustering here for the 30 - mile trip to Agassiz, say they want to rejoin their brothers at Mountain Prison, where 63 Freedomite terrorists are jailed.

Two grade nine students in Belleville had their initial expenses paid by the Belleville branch of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, this year. The bursaries, worth $20 each, were awarded last night, by Bernard Wright, president of the Belleville branch of the federation.

Janet Downey, of 15 Jones Street, Belleville, and Austin Bartlett, of 18 Evans St., Belleville, won the awards this year on the basis of their scholastic proficiency, and of their citizenship.

The amount of the awards is based on the high school boards' estimate of the initial expenses of a student entering high school, and is raised by contributions of one dollar each from the teachers in the federation.

Pleads Guilty To 3 Charges, Remanded Week

A Lonsdale resident faced three charges in county magistrate's court here this morning. Clayton Robert Minaric pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving, driving while disqualified and for escaping the custody of an officer.

Constable J. E. McAllister told the court that on September 22, at about 9.10 p.m., he was proceeding east on No. 2 Highway and was intending to turn north on to county road No. 2. Constable McAllister said there was a car proceeding ahead of him that also turned on to County Road No. 2.

He told the court that this car suddenly picked up speed so he attempted to pursue it at speeds up to 80 miles per hour. He said the Minaric vehicle went over an elevated railway crossing and flew 40 feet in the air. The car landed on its wheels and continued to the next side road where the driver turned off.

The officer arrived just as the occupants of the car were getting out. He asked Minaric where the driver was, and he told the officer he had gone off into the bush.

Constable McAllister said he knew Minaric was the driver of the car so he took him back and placed him in the cruiser. After putting Minaric in the cruiser Constable McAllister said he went back to look for the others. He said he was only gone a second and when he came back Minaric had disappeared.

The case was remanded for sentence to October 11.

Senior Citizens Entertained By Dancers

The Senior Citizens' Club of Belleville and District held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening in the Recreation Centre.

The president, Mr. C. L. Hyde opened the meeting. The secretary, Mrs. J. Robinson read the minutes of the previous meetings. The treasurer's report was enthusiastically received.

Mrs. Glat reported for the Sick and Visiting Committee, and the president extended a very cordial welcome to several new members and visitors.

Mrs. Gail Chapman very graciously entertained with several dances rendered by pupils of her Dance Studio, as follows: Belleville Gayettes Majorettes by Ann Bennett and Elaine Stickler; Two Belles and Beau by Nancy Bannon, Joel Henricks and Mary Elizabeth Young; Twirlers, Vicki Hominuk, Peppermint Twist by Betty Bannon, Joel Henricks and Mary Elizabeth Young; Gayettes Majorettes by Elaine Stickle and Ann Bungeroy; Sweet and Saucy by Karen Donovan, Arabella by Betty Bannon and Twirler by Marie Merritt.

Mrs. Stafford, a visitor and member of the Brockville Senior Citizens' Club addressed the members of the club, explaining the activities of that club and wishing the Belleville members continued success.

The remainder of the evening was spent in euchre conducted by James Doyle and Mrs. Vickers. The winners were: Ladies, Mrs. Hatley, Mrs. Lloyd, Mrs. Alker and Mrs. Hyde. The door prize draw was made by Mrs. Stratford and was won by Mrs. McKinnanche.

The refreshments committee served the usual dainty refreshments.

Noted Air Squadron of War To Hold Toronto Reunion

OTTAWA (CP)—No. 418 (City of Edmonton) Squadron, which during the Second World War witnessed the opening of the space age, will hold a reunion in Toronto Nov. 3.

On Sept. 12, 1944, Sqdn. Ldr. Don Kemp and his navigator, FO Al Macintosh, patrolling in the Stuttgart area, saw a "large blob of light" which "climbed steeply until it disappeared." It was a "big Ben," code name for the German V2 rocket which climbed to an altitude of some 70 miles before falling on England.

Scientists still haven't figured out how to intercept such a rocket, predecessor of today's intercontinental Ballistic Missiles.

418, however, was not noted for being present at the dawn of the space era. It was—and still is — the highest-scoring squadron in RCAF history; 105 enemy aircraft destroyed in the air; 73 destroyed on the ground; nine "probables;" 109 damaged; 83 buzz-bombs destroyed in the air.

The late Air Chief Marshal L. S. Breadner, RCAF commander overseas, once wrote: "The record blazed across the skies of Europe by the gallant members of 418 is outstanding in the annals of air warfare."

418 had a unique role in the RCAF. It was the three's only night intruder squadron—that is, it harassed enemy airfields at night.

But it was unique in another way. Without prior approval from headquarters, it was permitted to run on "show" in daylight attacks. Onits own initiative, it could, and did, carry out daylight attacks anywhere on the European continent. It is doubtful if any other squadron in the history of aerial warfare has been given such carte-blanche.

Of the top five fighter aces in the RCAF during the Second World War, 418 had four of them: Bob Spicer of Kamloops, B.C., Russ Bannock and Don MacFadyen of Toronto and Johnny Caine of Edmonton. Bannock also shot down 19 buzz-bombs.

Canada's Top Space Scientists Return Home

OTTAWA (CP)—With one satellite in the sky and their heads full of thoughts about the possibility of bigger space attempts, Canada's top space scientists returned home Wednesday night after their debut in the outer space business.

After being at Vandenburg Air Force Base, Calif., since mid-August preparing for the launching of the Alouette last Saturday, 19 of the scientists and technicians were welcomed back by a crowd of about 100 relatives and fellow workers from Defence Research Telecommunications' Establishment.

Keith Brown, mission director, and the man responsible for controlling the sat' attempt, said he was "overjoyed" with the launching of the 320-pound satellite by a United States rocket.

ONE-TON BOILER

sibility of criminal negligence, a spokesman said.

Fire Commissioner Edward Thompson, who went to the scene, expressed the opinion that the boiler blew because it was superheated, due probably to a failure of the automatic devices which regulate the high and low water level "or failure to maintain a proper water level."

CAN'T BELIEVE IT

Deputy Buildings Commissioner William Kane, adding that the boiler was of a "low-pressure" type, commented that the accident was "unbelievable."

It seemed equally unbelievable—and yet all too true—to the 300 persons who work in the building, the telephone company's district accounting and commercial centre for uptown Manhattan.

Ironically, more people than usual ate their meals in the lunch-room Wednesday. It was the day the payday, and many of the budget-conscious employees had brought their own lunch.

When disaster struck, those still able to move stumbled past rubble, overturned tables, dead bodies and groped for exits. Blinded by smoke and steam and covered with dust and dirt, they formed human chains and led one another out of the shattered building.

LIKE ATOMIC BOMB

Mrs. Gloria Salour, 23, said: "We thought an atomic bomb had exploded. The walls cracked. Smoke came pouring through. We heard wild cries and the door jammed and we were unable to open it. I thought it was the end."

Diane Gerstel, 22, gave another vivid account: "It was like a hurricane. There was a terrific gush of steam. You couldn't see anything. People screamed — it was like 'My God, what has happened?'"

Interior brick walls were demolished.

Telephone records, account books and other papers littered the area for many yards around the building. They had been blown out windows along with employees from the accounting offices above the restaurant.

Schirra's Flight Shunted to Back Pages of Press

MOSCOW (AP)—Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr.'s six-orbit flight was shunted to back pages today as the Soviet press hailed this fifth anniversary of the first Russian Sputnik. There were hints new Soviet-manned space flights may be near.

A Moscow radio home service broadcast called Schirra "a courageous son of the American people" but stressed that the feat already had been eclipsed by three Soviet cosmonauts

Trenton's new Front St. trunk sewer is digging down on Dundas St. through a tunnel. There will be no ripping up of the street, and, it is hoped, no interruption of traffic. The sewer itself will be about 18 feet below the level of the street, and it may take five or six weeks to push the tunnel through. At present, the contractor is digging down on both sides of the road. When this excavation is complete, the tunneling will begin.

One of the problems of putting the sewer under Dundas St., is the water level. The river is about one foot above the bottom level of the sewer, and pumps are required to keep the hole dry. In the picture, Howard Ferrill, of Belleville and John Uitbeyerse, of Smithfield, are stopping a slow cave-in of the mud walls of the excavation on the south side of Dundas St. The soaked mud oozes into the pit, pushed by the river — just a few feet away.

Child Drowns In Swimming Pool at 6RD

TRENTON — A three-year-old boy drowned yesterday in the swimming pool at the RCAF Number Six Repair Depot. David R. Henderson was found floating face up in the pool about 12.30 p.m. by his father, LAC R. A. Henderson, of Middleton Park, Trenton.

LAC Henderson had been looking for the boy, and the airman's father told him he had been seen near the pool. Somehow, he had found his way inside the fence, and apparently fell in.

The station, Air Station Trenton hospital, and fire hall were both called. Personnel from the fire department applied mouth to mouth respiration, and continued it on the ride to Trenton Memorial Hospital. At the hospital the boy was pronounced dead.

Four children survive in the Henderson family. They are: Ronnie, 9 years old; Catherine, 6; Grace, 4½ years old, and Judith, 18 months.

The Air Force and Provincial Police are investigating the accident.

Trailer Turns Over Near 401

Ontario Provincial Police here are investigating for the driver of a tractor-trailer owned by Inter-City Freight Lines Limited of Toronto, which turned over on the approach to Highway 401 from Highway No. 14. The accident occurred about 11:00 last night.

Officials at the office of Inter-City in Toronto were not sure who was driving the truck at the time as there was two possible drivers. The rig was loaded to the extent of $700.

Trenton - Provincial Police Constable Howard Adamson is investigating.

Farmer Killed As Tractor Rolls Over

Francis John Wilce, of R.R. 1, Consecon, was killed Wednesday afternoon when his tractor rolled over on him. Wilce was hauling stone from an uneven field at the time, police reported.

Autumn Carousel Sponsored By Women's Auxiliary of Hospital Brilliant Event

PICTON — Warm and sunny weather favored the annual Autumn Carousel sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Wednesday afternoon. Picton armouries was en-fete for the occasion, the lovely autumn colors used in decorating the stage, windows and tables, acting as an effective backdrop for the lovely dresses and suits worn by some five hundred ladies. Smart hats and furs were also much in evidence.

The chrysanthemum has been chosen as the hospital flower and it set the theme for the decorations. There were huge yellow and bronze along with colorful autumn foliage along the ramp when the models paraded for the fashion show.

Smaller varieties in a variety of blending shades were used in vases, baskets and tall standards. The thrifty ladies added to their proceeds by selling them at the conclusion of the show. In the main entrance, corn and pumpkins carried out the autumn theme, while long tables with the array of home baking, sprons, fancy work, casseroles and preserves, and candy, were enhanced by streamers in pastel shades.

The "Old Curiosity Shoppe" which included many antiques donated by local collectors, was centred with a huge umbrella. Many organizations throughout town and county contributed to these booths, which were as popular as a "discount" store.

For the fashion show, Fraser's Grey Room presented many smart clothes for fall and winter, with Mrs. Merve Haight at commentator.

There were numerous draws. Winners of tea-dollar bills were Mrs. R. B. Hart, Miss K. Carson, Mrs. Charles VanDusen, Nancy Douglas, Joe Kitchen, Mrs. M. Meares, Mrs. E. Shipman of Plainfield, Mr. Hover of Belleville, Mrs. Lewis Duncan and Mrs. Jerry Bond.

Other winners were: basket of fruit, Mrs. Carl Vanskiver; Mrs. B. Thompson, casserole; Mrs. W. Horne, purse; Miss Lillian Wheeler, camera; Mrs. Harold Emory and Mrs. Woolmore Goodwin, candy; Mrs. Roy Crook, end stool; Mrs. K. Alexander and Mrs. E. Thesker, door prizes.

W.H.A. president Mrs. Andrew Clarke, Mrs. John Renaud, Mrs. Robert Norval and Mrs. Ern Ward, Mrs. Ken Carson, Mrs. Randolph Clapp, Mrs. R. B. Small, executive members, were general convenors. Convening the booths were Mrs. J. Arnaud Mrs. Richard Hart, Mrs. F. J. Webster, Mrs. Gerald Welsh, Mrs. Len Allan, Mrs. Arthur Moore, Mrs. W. D. Adam, Mrs. J. G. Hornsby, Mrs. W. C. Hicks convened the tea and Mrs. Lewis Duncan looked after the draws. The ladies expect to clear at least $1,000 on the event.

Appointments Made by Board Chairman

PICTON — H. J. McFarland chairman of the Board of Lake Ontario Portland Cement Company Limited, has announced the appointment of J. G. Pickard as President; R. D. MacLean as Executive Vice-President and General Manager; and J. A. Mullin, Q.C., as a director of the company.

Mr. Pickard who has had widespread experience in the construction industry throughout North America, will retain his present position as Projects Manager - for Denison Mines Limited.

Mr. MacLean is a graduate in chemical engineering from the University of Saskatchewan and was a vice-president of Inland Cement Company in that province.

Mr. Mullin is a senior partner with the firm of Fraser, Beatty, Tucker, McIntosh and Stewart.

Russel Mitchell Wins Large Bore Rifle Shoot

PICTON — The Prince Edward Rod and Gun Club's annual large bore rifle shoot was won by Russell Mitchell on Sunday afternoon. He receives the trophy donated by F. L. Ward, Q.C.

With very favorable weather conditions, and using the new running deer target for the first time, it was one of the most enjoyable shoots ever held, both for the shooters and spectators.

Firing three shots at each position, at 100 yds., 75 yds. and 50 yds. Russell had six hits on the deer for a score of 27 out of a possible 45. Gene Kearney who placed second had nine hits on the deer for a score of 16. Bernard Cole was third with 18.

Twenty shooters fired during the afternoon and everyone was surprised at the accuracy of the shooting. Not more than five shots missed the deer or background to which the running deer target was fastened.

A great deal of credit must be given to Ray Cutler for his ingenuity in designing the mechanism for driving the target. He has spent a lot of time and material in his effort to turn out a first class moving target and it was agreed by all that, it was a real success. It is hoped that a location can be found where the equipment can be erected permanently.

This is the second win for Russell and with two of his sons tying with identical scores well up in the top half of the scores, it is going to be difficult to get the trophy out of the Mitchell family. Their private shooting range is paying off in good marksmanship. It is nice to see young members taking part in these events and it is hoped to encourage more to join.

The trophies for this event and the club championship trap shoot will be presented to the winners at the annual banquet to be held in the Cherry Valley hall, Wed., 17 October.

by other means, Ismail said.

Ismail condemned Portugal's policies in African Angola and South Africa's policies toward its black population, but said oppression had to be understood in its "national" context.

"We feel it our duty to alert the United Nations to this fact, so that in dealing with colonialism and other forms of human oppression, it should not concern itself exclusively with the traditional and more easily recognizable form of colonialism, but it should also be aware of the dangers of a new and more subtle form of imperialism."

Foreign Minister Jean-Faustin Belayene of Cameroon, former French colony, said it is difficult to exclude Red China, a country of 650,000,000 people, from UN membership but it "does not seem ready to abide by the principles of the UN charter."

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter and first prices were reported unchanged today. The egg market was firm to firm with offerings barely adequate for a fair demand.

Dealers are quoted by the Canada marketing service on Canada grade eggs, delivered Toronto, in fire: A large 35; A medium 47; A small 37; B large 30 cents per dozen.

Butter prices: Canada first grade: Ontario tenderable 51-52; non-tenderable 51, in light trading; western 50½ (nominal).

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Ruth V. — She's making her children too fearful.

Freda N. — Better safe than sorry, I say.

Ruth V. — My sister's instructions to her children have reached a point of ridiculousness. When I called on the family the other day, accompanied by three foreign-exchange students I was escorting around the city, I asked the youngsters to shake hands with the visitors. To my embarrassment, my 9-year-old niece replied, "We're not allowed to talk to strangers'.

I want Freda to see what she's doing. She's shutting up her children inside a narrow cave or safety's sake. I'm sure she can teach them to be cautious, but at the same time to trust a few people, like their own aunt, for instance! She's getting them all mixed up.

Freda N. — We have 3 little ones, a daughter of 9, and two sons, 8 and 5. I'd rather have them on their guard, than ready to oblige or accompany anyone who talks to them.

The chills go through me when I read about the perverts who prey upon sweet, trusting little children. I'd rather err on the side of caution than have my youngsters get too close to the wrong person. I admit that Lorraine went a bit too far, forgetting that her Aunt Ruth stood between her and the strangers. But I'm glad to know how careful she is.

While the kids are so young, they're better off not trusting their own judgment and checking with me before every move they make.

The Council — Too much of anything — even sunny weather (as any farmer can testify) — is harmful, and Freda is ramming too much cautiousness into her young children, without balancing it with a healthful measure of optimism. Her kids are growing up with walls in front of their eyes which will not only shut other people out, but will block themselves in.

With each normal and sensible admonition, Freda should also hand out a "lift" an escape hatch! "Don't take things from strangers", "Don't answer strangers who try to strike up a conversation with you", "Don't accept candy, ice cream, toys, or rides from strangers", — these are all common-sense warnings. But at the same time Freda must emphasize the fact that most people, even strangers, are kind and friendly, and that basically this is a good and wonderful world we live in. Her "scaretalk" is merely to place them on guard against the tiny fringe of sick people who are at large. She hopes (she must get across to them) that as they grow older and their judgment grows keener, they can allow their warm impulses toward people more free play. Her present holdback counsel is specifically aimed at protecting them hostility. Freda's children are on route to viewing anyone new, who hasn't been okayed by their mother, as a saboteur. She'd do better to keep them viewing such people as, at least, question marks!

There's a free leaflet, offered by the Police Dept. of N.Y. City, which can guide parents like Freda. Entitled, "A Message to Women", it suggests nine precautions families can take against child molesters.

From Ruth's description, we gather that Freda has been taking nine times nine precautions, which are adding up to more than is necessary and to a distorted view of the world for Freda's children.

West Picture of Happy Jap Couple Has Gone Bit Awry in Modern Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—The popular Western picture of the happy Japanese couple—loving husband and submissive, adoring wife—has gone a little awry in modern Japan.

The husband may be just as lovely and demanding as ever, but his wife is less submissive and considerably less adoring. A recent survey by the psychological department of Tokyo women' university showed Japanese women have three major complaints about their husbands:

1. They refuse to turn over their weekly pay cheques.
2. They refuse to take their wives on vacation and stay in the house themselves during their holidays doing nothing.
3. They have affairs.

MONEY PROBLEMS

The survey showed 30 per cent of the husbands questioned opened their pay envelopes before they got home and that the longer a man had been married, the more he was inclined to "borrow" money from his pay before his wife got her hands on it.

But, on the subject of money, the husbands had some complaints, too. Fifty-three per cent of those polled get only 150 yen —about 42 cents—a day for spending money and only 3,000 yen—about $8.40—a month for the first seven years of their married life.

What was more, only 17 per cent of the wives surveyed thought husbands needed more pocket money and 51 per cent thought 3,000 yen was enough for any man.

Twenty-nine per cent of the wives complained that husbands came home late—with the same excuse used in the West, "delayed by business."

FEW OUTINGS

Most wives went out with their husbands at least once a month, but usually just to do some shopping downtown or to the movies. A minority had regular vacations to visit relatives, picnic or go to amusement parks.

On the question of extra-marital affairs, 45 per cent of the wives trusted their husbands, 33 per cent had doubts about their mates' fidelity and two per cent had no doubts—they were sure their husbands were cheating.

Fifty-eight per cent of the wives said they were opposed to married women having affairs but 29 per cent of those questioned who had been married for from three to seven years hinted that they had had affairs.

Buick is a new breed of beauty for 1963. From its bold new grille to the sleekly handsome rear deck, there's a new, longer silhouette that's distinctively Buick . . . beautifully Buick. But styling is not the only area of Buick advancement. You'll find luxurious new interiors, with new fabrics and trim, elegantly catering to your comfort. There are newly designed instrument panels, too, that further accentuate Buick's interior refinement. And just as Buick has set a new standard in styling, Buick's engineering has also gone to greater heights. There are new and mighty Wildcat V8 engines. Unmatched smoothness with exclusive Turbine Drive (standard on most full-size Buicks). Advanced Thrust engineering gives you the maximum car control whether on curves or in crosswinds. Holy Rosary C.W.L. Holds Harvest Tea and Bazaar

'Neath bright sunny skies and an equally cheery atmosphere within, the ladies of Holy Rosary Catholic Women's League held a most delightful Harvest Tea and Bazaar yesterday afternoon in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Front Street.

Warmly welcoming the guests at the door were League president Mrs. J. Darlington, assisted by the convener of the bazaar, Mrs. J. A. Ellard, and the co-convener, Mrs. M. J. Waller. Mrs. A. Bradden was in charge of ticket sales at the door.

In keeping with the fall theme and harvest, the hall was appropriately decorated in brown and orange color scheme with colorful maple leaves predominating. A white arbor encircled with multi-colored leaves acentuated the entrance to the tea room where Mrs. W. Smith was hostess.

ATTRACTIVE TEA TABLE

Here, the tea table was most attractive with ecru lace cloth centred with an artistic arrangement of bronze and golden yellow 'mums interspersed with golden sprayed greenery. Tapering brown and orange candles in tri-branch silver candelabra arising from lacey white collars and the silver tea services added to this pretty setting. The numerous guest tables were equally attractive with their snow-white luncheon cloths centred with bronze containers of bright yellow blooms.

The ladies who poured tea (coffee was also available), were Mrs. A. Horchreiter, Mrs. V. Muldoon, Mrs. R. Huffman, Mrs. V. O'Neill, Mrs. J. Gallagher and Mrs. V. Baker. Those who served the tasty goodies were Mrs. D. Adams, Mrs. L. Boyd, Mrs. K. Aikens, Mrs. W. Whalen, Mrs. C. Doyle, Mrs. F. Geegan Mrs. C. Cronin, Mrs. H. Taylor and Mrs. R. Ruttan. The convener of the replenishing was Mrs. D. Windsor and she was assisted by Mrs. P. Halloran, Mrs. K. Fox, Mrs. J. Golden, Mrs. J. Lye, Mrs. Allin and Mrs. W. Mullin.

The various booths arranged around the three sides of the auditorium were all appropriately decorated with fefity brown and orange streamers. In the centre of the room were displayed the numerous draw prizes.

The religious articles booth, convened by Mrs. P. Schrieder and Mrs. P. Brennan, was filled with religious items of all kinds, including bracelets, pearl rosaries, wall plaques, prayer books religious coloring books, all occasion cards, prayer caps, little shrines and statues of the saints.

The knitting booth, with Mrs. E. McGuigan and Mrs. A. Kerry in charge, had a grand assortment of knitted goods including three-piece baby sets, slippers, mittens, pullovers and socks in all sizes, colors and patterns.

DELICIOUS SWEETIES

The candy table drew a host of patrons with its cellophane-covered boxes of mixed creams and fudges, peanut brittle, divinity fudge and sponge taffy, with smaller amounts in little cups, and was in charge of Mrs. E. Schrieder, Mrs. L. Boyd and Mrs. A. Hochreiter.

A fine array of tasty delicacies was on sale at the home-cooking table which as usual was thronged with patrons and here were pumpkin, apple and berry pies; butter, cherry and berry tarts; cup cakes, butter buns; date loaves; fluffy iced square and layer cakes and a beautifully decorated birthday cake. This booth was convened by Mrs. F. Daley, Mrs. J. O'Grady and Mrs. A. Blasetle.

PRETTY APRONS

The aprons in charge of Mrs. E. Reed and Mrs. F. Bedard included many types of materials in plain and a combination of colors. There were some especially for teenagers, mother and daughter sets, and one fancy crocheted cocktail apron.

A fine variety of doll clothing was on display including coat and hat sets, pyjamas, every-day and party dresses, little knit bonnets as well as two frilly

U.C.W. Meetings

PLAINFIELD U.C.W.

The United Church Women of Plainfield held their September meeting at the home of Mrs. Clayton Hall.

The devotional part was taken by Mrs. Charlie Treverton with Mrs. Skelly reading the Scripture lesson, Acts 17: 22-28.

It was decided to hold the bazaar later in October.

Mrs. Fred Sills had charge of the program on "Christian Education." She pointed out what the United Church is doing and said there is a place for every age group in the church.

An account of the curriculum that is to be introduced into the United Church, was given.

Mrs. Willie Sills sang a solo, "How Great Thou Art," accompanied by Miss Janet Sills.

The story from the "Story Book" was read by Blanche Emerson. It told how a boy left his parents' home and God to work in a lumber camp. But after living that life for a while came back, returned to his studies and became a preacher.

A reading was given by Mrs. Frank Hodgen, "Take Time Today."

Lunch was served by Mrs. Sills' group.

bannisettes, rag dolls and stuffed animals, in charge were Mrs. T. G. Doran and Mrs. J. McCreary.

Mrs. J. Hogan and Mrs. J. Fobert were in charge of the nearly new and novelties booth which was filled with a number of miscellaneous items including costume jewellery, children's wear and many home novelties.

Surprise packages in all shapes and sizes, all prettily wrapped, were for sale at the touch and take table where Mrs. J. Snider and Mrs. N. Guay were in charge.

FINE SEWING

At the sewing table there was a fine display of home-sewn items such as embroidered pillow slips and luncheon cloths, dollie sets, flannelette pyjamas, red felt Christmas stockings, little girl blouses and dresses, satin bound crib blankets, and one eye-catching crib quilt depicting the story of "Goldilocks and the Three Bears". Convening this table were Mrs. A. Eves and Mrs. R. Huffman.

The convener for the main draw was Mrs. Mulvihill, while Mrs. T. Morrison was in charge of ticket sales for the special draw prize.

Those winning prizes were as follows: special draw — a deluxe hair dryer, Mr. Phil Drumm, 132 Ann Street; door prizes — floral arrangement — Mrs. F. Hodge, 80 Wallbridge Road; basket of apples — Mrs. T. G. Doran, North Front St., a pillow — Mrs. V. Muldoon, 14 First Street, and a dry cleaning certificate — Miss C. Hogan, 18 Olive Street. The winners of the pay-what-you-pull tickets were: Mrs. C. McKeown, 48 Prince of Wales Drive —a transistor radio; Miss Gale Ryan, 51 St. Charles Street —a steam Iron; and Ann Horn of 34A Brandon Court, 377 Brandon Avenue Winnipeg, Manitoba won the pop-up toaster.

St. Michael's WCL Sponsors Dessert Bridge

A delightful dessert bridge was held recently by the Women's Catholic League executive of St. Michael's Parish in the Academy Auditorium.

The two long tables were prettily appointed with silver rose bowls containing roses shading from cream to graduated deep pink, and flanked by tall dusty-rose toned candles in silver holders. Around this attractive centre were arranged the assorted desserts of many kinds and colors, jellos, pastries and tempting cakes.

BRIDGE WINNERS

Following the dessert repast, bridge was played at the quartet tables with the prizes going to the following ladies: Mrs. Frank Mulvihill, Miss Stella Ford: consolation, Mrs. M. Bateman. Men's: Frank Noble, Jack Ryan, consolation George Whalen. First door prize to Mrs. R. B. McDougall; 2nd Mrs. E. Pollock, and hidden score, to Mrs. J. Belanger.

Appreciative thanks are tendered to Mrs. J. Gallagher, president of the C.W.L.; to Mrs. George O'Brien, social convener and co-convener Mrs. F. R. Rose; and to Mrs. G. Donoghue and Mrs. H. Trepanier, for a most enjoyable evening.

WEDDING

MOFFAT—JOHNSTON

Baskets of mixed chrysanthemums in shades of yellow, gold and bronze formed a lovely setting in Knox College Chapel, University of Toronto, last Saturday, September 8th, at 2.00 p.m., when Barbara Jean Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne M. Johnston, Belleville, was united in marriage to David Bryce Boorman Moffat, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce F. Moffat, Midland, Ontario. Dr. A. B. B. Moore, president of Victoria University, officiated at the ceremony.

Dr. Rosevear of Knox College played the traditional wedding music when the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin and "Jesu—Joy of Man's Desiring" by Bach were played before the ceremony and "Where'er You Walk" by Handel during the signing of the register and also the "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, Mr. Lorne Johnston, was radiantly lovely in her floor-length bridal gown of white satin peau de soie featuring a portrait neckline, long lily-point sleeves enhanced with a bouffant back with flat bow which accented the shaped train. Her finger-tip veil fell from a corset shaped headdress of white petals. She carried a white Bible crested with white orchids. Her only ornament a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Joan Lay of Leaside, as maid of honor and Miss Janet Johnston, Harold, cousin of the bride as bridesmaid, and Miss Sheila Johnston, Belleville, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, were gowned identically in dresses of frosted green georgette over taffeta. These were highlighted with bell skirts accented at the back with flat bows and featured scoop neck-lines. Each wore a matching headpiece accented with veils and matching shoes. They carried cascade bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums.

The groomsman was Mr. Paul Sievers, of Toronto, Mr. Lynn Johnston of Kingston, brother of the bride, and Mr. Tony Moffat, Midland, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. David Bryce Boorman Moffat are pictured following their marriage in Knox College Chapel, University of Toronto. The bride is the former Miss Barbara Jean Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne M. Johnston, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce F. Moffat, of Midland, Ontario.

The reception following the ceremony was held at the Windsor Arms Hotel, Toronto, where the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a brown figured silk sheath, chocolate brown accessories and a corsage of tawny chrysanthemums. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who wore a liberty silk dress in soft green with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

For the wedding trip to Muskoka the bride chose a forest green knitted suit, lemon yellow hat and gloves, brown shoes and purse, and a corsage of bronze orchids.

Guests were present from: Hanover, Midland, Toronto, Stirling, Kingston, Brighton, Montreal, Carleton Place and Toronto.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored as a miscellaneous shower by former classmates of Victoria College; at a miscellaneous shower by her held at the home of Mrs. Dobbie in Oakville; at a miscellaneous shower at the summer home of Mrs. E. Larmer at Round Lake, near Havelock, at which time her daughter Mrs. Ron Simpkin was hostess, and also at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the maid of honor, Miss Joan Lay.

Mr. and Mrs. Moffatt will reside in Toronto.

St. Joseph's C.W.L. Plans Fall Bazaar

The October meeting of St. Joseph's C.W.L. was opened with prayer by the president, Mrs. V. Muldoon.

The membership convener, Mrs. Murphy asked all the ladies to try to get in touch with any new families moving into the parish and to welcome the women to the League.

Mrs. Hilbig reported on the talk given by Father Baum at St. Michael's Auditorium. His subject was "The Coming Ecumenical Council" to be held in Rome.

Members wishing to donate children's used clothing to be given to needy families should call Mrs. Labelle, who will pick them up.

The "Talent Money" scheme adopted by the members last June, was termed a success by Mrs. Carn-Rotard who was convener of this project. Serving, baking, bake-sticking, aftershions, were some of the ways that the members used to earn their talent money.

The bazaar convener, Mrs. Beltran, reported on the progress of the bazaar to be held later in October.

"Norum Novarum" the first part of the record "Mater and Magistra" was presented by Mrs. Hilbig. It was written by Pope Leo 13th and it pertained to labor rights, duties and unions and also the different economic situations of the worker and the rights and principles associated with private property.

A discussion followed the playing of this record and the various interesting points were discussed.

A delicious tea was served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. Nichol, Mrs. Hardy and Mrs. Beehler.

RETARDED CHILDREN

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Association for Retarded Children of British Columbia has set $125,000 as the provincial goal for its 1962 fund-raising campaign. It plans to establish an institute for handicapped children at the University of British Columbia.

Courage, Hope, Secrecy Played Part in Story

WINNIPEG (CP) — Courage, hope and secrecy have played a part in the story of Juliette Fournier of Thetford Mines, Que.

A widow, Mrs. Fournier is only now recovering from a near-fatal accident 2½ years ago on the streets of Winnipeg.

Until last July her family didn't know of her brush with death. They thought she was pursuing her modelling career with a Winnipeg clothing firm.

On March 31, 1960, the attractive 35-year-old woman was knocked down while crossing the street. When she regained consciousness a week later her right shoulder, arm and leg were in a cast and her head was bandaged.

Doctors didn't tell her then her chances for survival were slim or that the possibility of ever walking again was negligible.

Mrs. Fournier confounded medical experts, however, and if she had not broken her injured ankle a second time in July she now would be walking.

FIRM HELPED OUT

When she realized shortly after her accident how bad it was she decided not to tell her family. Her mother has a heart condition and Mrs. Fournier didn't want to worry her. Until July, when her father, Emil Vallee, came west to visit her, none of them knew.

To help Mrs. Fournier keep her secret the company she worked for mailed letters home, often from other than Winnipeg addresses to indicate that she was travelling about.

She also invented an appendix attack and a broken arm as excuses for not returning home.

Mrs. Fournier now knows she can never return to her modelling career but she remains optimistic about the future and is looking forward to going home to see her nine-year-old son.

It may not be some months before this is possible. "Right now," she says, "I'm just concentrating on getting better."

CHILD LABOR

British legislation forbids the employment of children under 13 in any industrial undertaking.

KEPT INJURY SECRET

Juliette Fournier, not expected to walk again after a near-fatal accident in Winnipeg 2½ years ago, kept her injuries secret from her family at Thetford Mines, Que., until July of this year. Mrs. Fournier, 35, a widow, is unable to return to her modelling job, but expects to be walking soon. (CP Photo).

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Sam Goldwater of Montreal, is this year's winner of the medal awarded annually by the Paris bar for outstanding marks in civil law in Quebec, almost didn't write the exams. She felt unprepared, she said, since a death in the family delayed her studies. Friends persuaded her to try anyway.

ARREST MURDER SUSPECT

PERIGUEUX, France (Reuters) — Police said Wednesday they have arrested a 22-year-old pharmaceutical dispenser, Jean-Louis Dumond, accused of having murdered Gen. Philippe Gieseler last June 14. Police allege Dumond shot the general as he visited an Oran hospital to pay his last respects to an army colonel who had been killed in an earlier attack on Giesetet.

WEDDINGS

WIRSIG — McQUEEN

PICTON — In a setting of standards of ferns, gladioli and chrysanthemums, a pretty autumn wedding was solemnized in Bloomfield United Church, on Saturday, September 22nd, 1962, when Dr. H. F. Swann officiated at the double-ring ceremony, uniting in marriage Kathryn Eleanor McQueen, and Ralph Carl Wirsig. The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Edward McQueen of Bloomfield, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wirsig of Gray Creek, B.C.

Mrs. Harold Cleaves of Bloomfield, organist, played the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Edward Fyffe of Picton, who sang "The Wedding Prayer", by Dorsey, and "Because" by Sardelot.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's full-length gown of silk faille was styled with a bateau neckline; full-length lily - pointed sleeves, each outlined with imported Guipure lace and a back bow which flowed into an artfully draped chapel train. A deep tiered scalloped silk illusion veil was caught by a double crown of lily seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The bride carried a bouquet of red roses, stephanotis, ivy and a sprig of heather.

Mrs. Douglas McQueen of Toronto, was her sister-in-law's matron of honor, while Mrs. Albert J. Patterson of Kingston, and Miss Sieglinde Wirsig, of Grey Creek, B.C., were bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of red silk faille; the fitted bodices featured scooped necklines and three-quarter length sleeves. Two self roses at the side of the waistline provided interest to the full gathered skirts. Their headpieces consisted of a small self rose with matching veil. Each of her attendants carried bouquets of white shastas and ivy.

Mr. Albert J. Patterson of Kingston was groomsman. Ushers were, Mr. Douglas McQueen and Mr. Claus Wirsig both of Toronto.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Royal Hotel in Picton.

The mother of the bride received the guests in a turquoise peau de soie sheath with embroidered sequins and seed pearls on the side of the bodice. The sheath skirt featured a drifting side panel. Her hat was of the same material as the dress with matching accessories and she wore a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother chose a champagne-beige brocaded sheath; the skirt featured a controlled side panel. She carried a handbag of the same material as her dress and wore pale blue accessories. Her corsage was pink Sweetheart roses.

Following the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to Cape Cod and New York City. For travelling, the bride chose a charcoal worsted suit with a short semi-fitted jacket, red hat and matching accessories. Her corsage was red Sweetheart roses. The young couple will reside at 11 Mack Street in Kingston, Ontario.

Guests at the wedding were from Gray Creek, B.C.; Innisfail, Alberta; Niagara Falls; Toronto; Belleville; Kingston; Odessa; Brockville; Ottawa and Picton.

COCHRAN—GILLESPIE

CAMPBELLFORD — Dr. J. H. Faught of Toronto, assisted by the Rev. L. M. Hornby, of Campbellford, performed the wedding ceremony on Saturday when Lorna Gillespie and H. Stuart Cochran, both of Toronto, were united in marriage.

The bride is the daughter of J. Erle Gillespie of Campbellford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Cochran of Toronto.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of peau de soie with handmade embroidery with sequins and seed pearls around the neckline and waist, and full skirt. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a crown of seed pearls and she carried a cascade of Bettertime red roses with white net.

Miss Ethel Gillespie of Campbellford the bride's sister, was maid of honor in a gown of yellow silk organza over taffeta with a matching headpiece. Her accessories were white and she carried a cascade of white 'mums.

The groomsman was John Cochran of Almonte, Ont., a cousin of the bridegroom. The ushers were Messrs. Cyril W. Ward and Harvey J. Moore of Toronto.

Miss Elma Barber of Toronto was the soloist; the wedding music was played by Mr. Donald Young of Campbellford.

For a wedding trip to the Laurentians, the bride chose a red wool suit with white accessories.

On their return the bride and bridegroom will reside in Toronto.

JOYCE—WRIGHT

MARMORA—A pretty autumn wedding was held in St. Andrew's United Church, on Saturday, September 22nd, when Phyllis Christina Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roy Wright, Marmora, was united in marriage to Russell Bruce Joyce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce V. Joyce of Deseronto by the Reverend J. M. D. McLeod.

Mrs. McLeod provided the traditional wedding music and Miss Linda Mahlejohn was soloist, singing "The Lord's Prayer" previous to the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" as the register was being signed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in a floor-length dress of white Tyron lace and tulle over satin, designed with a fitted bodice, lily - point sleeves and square neckline outlined in pearls and opalescent sequins. The full bouffant skirt was worn over net and satin underskirts. Her headdress was a crown encrusted with pearls catching the shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade of red roses and ferns.

Mrs. Donald Davis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Ruth Provost was bridesmaid. Both wore dresses of sapphire blue peau de soie fashioned with fitted bodices, round necks and three-quarter sleeves. The bouffant skirts carried several bows of self material. Sapphire blue open pillboxes with rose veils completed their costumes. They carried nosegays of white and blue tinted 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Roy Brandt of Deseronto and the ushers were Mr. Donald Davis, Peterborough, and Mr. Edwin Courtney of Picton, both brothers-in-law of the bride.

The reception was held in St. Andrew's Upper Room where Mrs. Wright received the guests wearing a cocoa-beige brocaded dress with beige and brown accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue figured silk and duster with black accessories. They wore corsages of yellow and pink carnations.

The bride wore, on her honeymoon, a powder blue brocade sheath and jacket with white accessories with corsage of pink carnations.

Telegrams of best wishes and congratulations were received from Santa Monica, Calif., St. Louis, Mo., Gloversville N.Y., and Rod Webb, M.P.

Out-of-town guests were present from Belleville, Bensaville, Apsley, Deseronto, Peterborough, Picton and Toronto.

Prior to her marriage a miscellaneous shower was tendered the bride by Miss Ruth Provost and assistant hostesses Mrs. Don Davis and Mrs. Edwin Courtney. The shower was held at the bride's home.

Parents Visit B.C.I.V.S, Sample School-Day Routine

It was back to school for many parents of BCIVS on Monday night. Sampling a little of each class, of what their children do every day in the school year; it was tiring; many parents will be more sympathetic with the "kids," but there was satisfaction, too. Meeting the teachers and listening to the remarks each had concerning the subjects they teach no doubt will give them a better picture of the school and what it is endeavoring to do to teach and train young people to become better citizens of tomorrow.

The meeting assembled in the auditorium where the principal, Mr. E. A. Orr, welcomed all to the school, explaining they were to participate in a regular Wednesday morning school assembly.

Opening with "O Canada," accompanied by Mr. Templer at the organ, followed by vice-principal Mr. Stirling reading the Scripture and leading in prayer, then all joined in the singing of a hymn.

At this point, Mr. Orr explained it is the responsibility of one of the organizations in the school to provide a program; however, the Home and School was taking charge tonight and he called on the president, Mrs. Wynne, who expressed the appreciation of the Home and School to the large audience and welcomed them on behalf of the association, inviting them to come in future meetings.

Several announcements of interest to the Home and School, especially the rummage sale of early November to be held in the Moose Hall. The president asked for donations to help make this a success to provide money for the Association's bursaries and to help finance the Home and School.

Next meeting will be November 5 at BCIVS gym.

Mr. Orr instructed all on the remainder of the schedule. With a perfect as their guide, each Grade 9 and 10 class was sent off to its first class for five minutes.

At noon they had 30 minutes for lunch, when coffee was served by the Home and School in the cafeteria, and then on to the four afternoon periods. The parents of grades 11, 12 and 13 were on their own and visited with these teachers who had no classes in that period.

HOME BAKING

To help finance its group, the Girls' Athletic Society had a home baking table outside the auditorium with the usual supply of delicious wares. However, the parents were instructed not to buy anything during school but wait until "after four."

Through the splendid co-operation of the principal and staff of BCIVS, the Home and School was able to provide its parents with a chance to feel a part of the school, much of the success of the evening was due to their efforts and the parents of the Home and School Association express their sincere "thanks."

Bayside H-S Assoc. to Have Projector

The Bayside Home and School Association held its first meeting for the Fall season on September 27th.

It was decided a movie projector should be purchased out of H-S funds for the use of Bayside, Quinte View and Bellcrest Schools. Film strips will be awarded each month to the class having most parents in attendance.

HOSPITAL BIRTHS

An average of 97 per cent of all babies born in Canada now are delivered in hospitals.

Friends Honor Bride-to-Be

A delightful bridal shower was held last evening at the home of Mrs. John Mossman, Belleville R.R. 7, with Mrs. Gerald Greening as co-hostess, in honor of Miss Verna Flagler, bride-to-be of this month, with about 25 friends in attendance.

Upon arrival, Verna was escorted to a seat of honor. A bride's book was made, and advice was written in by each one for the bride-to-be. Several games and contests were enjoyed.

The guest of honor opened her gifts and expressed sincere appreciation to her hostesses and for all the lovely gifts.

Following this a tempting buffet lunch was served by Mrs. Mossman and Mrs. Greening.

Neighbors' Aid Views North Travelogue

2nd THURLOW — Mrs. Manley Mitchell entertained about 30 members and visitors of the Neighbors' Aid on Wednesday for its regular September meeting. The president, Mrs. B. Portt, presided, calling the meeting to order, and extended a welcome to all.

The secretary, Mrs. M. Dent read the minutes and thank-you notes from T. McGrath for quilt and various help from the Aid at the time of their fire; also from Mr. and Mrs. F. Reid at the time of the death of the former's mother, and from G. Stratton, Mrs. Lloyd Greatrix at the time of her father's death. A vote of thanks was also given to Mr. Archie Greatrix for erecting Neighbors' Aid sign at the hall and window screens in the summer. Treasurer, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell gave the financial report to date.

It was decided to start the euchres again with Mrs. A. Mitchell, Mrs. H. Grills as hostesses for the first, and on Oct. 19th, Mrs. Gene Stratton, Mrs. B. Portt on Nov. 7th, and Mrs. M. Mitchell and Mrs. Robert Atkins on Nov. 30th.

Bakers for the October meeting will be Mesdames Kent, Dent, Stratton and Howard. The meeting to be held at night with Mrs. S. May as hostess. Mrs. H. Thompson is to arrange the program and try to get a film and speaker.

Mrs. A. Mitchell conducted the following program and opened with community singing, with Mrs. M. Mitchell at the piano. "The More We Get Together" and the "Old Grey Mare" were sung.

The guest speaker, Mr. Bennett of the Ontario Hydro, was introduced by Mrs. Eric Leeming. Mr. Bennett stressed the importance of great precautions on the use of household appliances, frayed cords, extension cords hidden under rugs, especially around washing machines, bath tubs and sinks. So many accidents causing deaths and serious injury are caused by bare wires in the barns as well as in the house.

A question period proved interesting with Mr. Bennett giving many helpful and instructive answers.

Mrs. D. Leeming moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Bennett for his instructive talk.

Mrs. E. Leeming took charge of the rest of the program which included readings: "The Snoring Husband," Mrs. F. Doxtator; "Thanksgiving Thoughts," and one by Mrs. Robert Atkins.

Mrs. George Tucker, Mrs. Archie Greatrix gave a travelogue talk on their recent trip to Mazinaw, Sudbury, and saw some of their high schools; to Elliot Lake, Sault Ste. Marie, Lake Superior, and Fort William, and told many interesting happenings en-route, covering some 2,000 miles. They also called on Mrs. Fairfield, near Cobalt.

Accordion music, "Gold Dream," by Mrs. M. Mitchell.

Mrs. Portt moved a vote of thanks to all who took part in the program and to Mrs. A. Mitchell for arranging the interesting afternoon entertainment.

Lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. M. Mitchell, and Mesdames H. Grills, R. Atkins, A. Greatrix and E. Leeming.

MORE INDEPENDENT

MONTREAL (CP)—Lilian Using, a young dentistry student from Denmark who worked in a summer camp in the United States this year, says North American children are more independent. "But I think it's a good thing. They will be much more individualistic when they grow up."

Thanksgiving Dinner

by Mary Moore

Fruit Juice Cocktail; Roast Turkey; Celery Stuffing (see below); Giblet Gravy (see below); Tomato Marmalade; Glazed Carrot Chunks (see below); Green Beans with Almonds (see Monday, October 1st); Lettuce Endive and Spinach Salad with French Dressing; Calypso Chiffon Pumpkin Pie (see Wednesday); or Assorted Perfect Fresh Fall Fruits with Assorted Cheeses and Crackers; Coffee.

I have given you the method for roasting turkey so often that I hope you can find one in your recipe file when you come to roast your bird for Thanksgiving. So now I am giving you a recipe for —

CELERY STUFFING
(Amount to fill a 15-lb bird)

Gently saute in 1-2 cup melted butter or margarine 2 cups finely chopped tinney celery stalks and leaves and 1-2 finely chopped mild onion, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley and 1 teaspoon (or more) herb seasoning. (The seasoning may be sage or rosemary or thyme or marjoram or a mixture of all or poultry seasoning). Have ready in a large bowl fine bread crumbs from 1 loaf day-old bread. Blend sauteed vegetables into it. Add 1 1-2 teaspoons salt. Now taste to see if you would like more salt and seasonings. It is ready to stuff loosely into prepared bird.

GIBLET GRAVY

Simmer the turkey gizzard and heart in 2 1-2 cups water, covered, until tender — about 2 hours. Five minutes before time to make gravy add the liver to cook it until it is just firm. Remove giblets and chop them finely, trimming away fat and gristle. Remove turkey to serving platter (preheated). From roasting pan pour off all but 4 tablespoons fat, leaving brown sediment in pan. Add 4 tablespoons flour and stir over low heat patiently to loosen brown sediment. When blended add giblet broth. (There should be 2 cups. If not make it up with water. Stir until thick. Serve boiling hot.

GLAZED CARROTS

Allow 1 1-2 medium carrots for each person to be served. Cut these into 1 1-2" chunks and parboil in a small amount of salted water until barely tender. Drain. (Try to gauge the amount of water added so that you have very little or none to drain off). Now for every 6 carrots you have used add 2 tablespoons sugar and 3 tablespoons butter. Keep carefully turning over low heat until each carrot piece is glazed. These make a spectacular garnish in a border around the turkey if your platter is large enough.

SHOPPING HOURS

The increase in the number of working women in Canada is a factor in the trend toward more stores remaining open in the evenings.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Braised Lamb Shoulder; Corn Relish; Baked Sweet Potatoes; Shredded Green Cabbage Cooked in Milk; Tomato and Cucumber Salad; Strawberry Parfait; Tea.

SUNDAY

Baked Breaded Pork Chops (see Monday, September 24th); Apple Jelly; Egg Plant Creole; Buttered Fresh Limas; Tossed Salad with Italian French Dressing; Grape Charlotte; Vanilla Wafers; Coffee.

TURKEY THAW

When thawing a turkey in the refrigerator allow five hours per pound, then cook within 24 to 36 hours.

FAMILY ALLOWANCE

Family allowance cheques are mailed each month to more than 2,500,000 Canadian families.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

A Career Above the Clouds

DORIS CLARK

To Student, Ambitious, Just Fifteen and others:

Yes, airlines in Canada are always on the watch for stewardesses.

You need to be over 20 and under 27, single, in good health, have high school education or equivalent, fluency in English. If you want to fly to Europe, fluency in French.

Recently I crossed Canada by plane, putting down at several cities on the way. I cornered every stewardess I could and asked each one the same question: "What do you like best about your job?"

The answers were surprisingly varied. Here they are:

1. I like the job because I'm always meeting different people. There are no two people the same.

2. You get new ideas about what goes on in the world. I think it's a better education than going to college.

3. For the first time I learned how to talk to people and how to listen. Before I was just tongue-tied.

4. I often take complete charge of babies and I love this. We heat formulae, have disposable diapers, a carrycot; and supply other little helps to a mother when she is travelling with a tiny baby.

5. Before this job I was a harum-scarum. Now I'm well organized. I learned efficiency through the tasks of getting up equipment, keeping up supplies, checking emergency chutes and all the details of my job.

And how this for a plus value:

6. When I'm married (which I will be next year), and my husband brings home a visiting businessman for dinner, I'll be able to talk to him intelligently because of having talked with people like him on my job.

Besides all these things, the air stewardesses learn good manners, good grooming, patience, self-control. When the air is bumpy, their dispositions stay smooth. They exude confidence and good cheer. After a year of service an attractive fringe benefit is a free vacation pass over a company route.

Think you'd like to take flight?

DEAR DORIS—I met a sailor downtown the other day who was quite nice to me. He took me for something to eat and I enjoyed myself very much. He asked me to write to him.

I'm not loopy over him, but it would be nice to correspond with him. I'm only scared that he might pester me for a date when he returns here or show up at my house.—NOT-IN-LOVE.

DEAR NOT-IN-LOVE—If you want to be Not-in-trouble, don't pick up with a pick-up. There are better ways to meet boys—the kind you will be proud to take home.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—We have a problem like many other girls have, I suppose. We would like to know how to gain weight and improve our figure.—STRAIGHT AS BOARDS.

DEAR STRAIGHT—If you will send me your name and address on an envelope, plus a stamp, I'll send you an article on this subject. It's too long to print here.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO TOOTS—He's not mad. But he's not unconscious. He knows you go out of your way to run into him. So now he's running too; out of your life, if you don't call a halt.

Historical Soc. Meets At Library

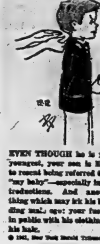
STIRLING — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. E. C. Hay-Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Beatty, Mr. Charles Pearce, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Chard, Mr. and Mrs. George Heasman, Mrs. Roy Irwin, Mrs. Roy Bush and Mrs. Glenn Bush of the River Valley community attended the first fall meeting of Hastings County Historical Society in the auditorium of the County Public Library, Belleville.

Miss Jean Minhinnick of Prince Edward County gave the special address, at which time she outlined the outstanding achievement of preparing Upper Canada Village, as a lasting tribute to the pioneers of yesteryears and told of many problems that were encountered and explained how they were solved. The speaker stressed the value of antiques and hoped that the people in this area would either loan or donate their valuable articles and heirlooms to the museum.

She also gave a glimpse of the historic wall paintings around the mantels and chandeliers which were done by an itinerant painter from Boston, Mass., who traveled this community around Belleville in the early years of 1800. His name was Moses Eaton and there is no doubt that his art has been covered by wallpaper or relegated to the attic.

Following her address the speaker gave a silhuetted educational film showing old buildings dismantled and then moved and set up in their new location.

The speaker had a most important part in the furnishing of Upper Canada Village and she has written several items of interest in various magazines.



The River Valley group in attendance was most appreciative of this splendid historical evening.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I plan to take a trip soon and would like to look up some old friends in various cities. I wonder, though, if it would appear that I am seeking hospitality, and expect them to entertain me when I get there. I'm travelling by car with another woman, and our time in each city will be brief. Would it be proper for me to write in advance that I'll be in town and would like to see them?

Mrs. D. F., Newark, N.J.

Answer: A letter or note saying you're coming to town, for how long and where you will be staying, may be sent to friends in advance. If they want to extend hospitality, they will then know where and when to reach you should they want to take the initiative and offer an invitation to get together.

Question: When passing one's dinner plate for a second helping of food, should the knife and fork be left on the plate or placed on the table until the plate is returned?

I. A. F., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Answer: The knife and fork are left on the plate when it is passed.

Question: I'm seventeen, and have been going out quite steadily with a boy who is two years older. He's invited me to his home a few times for Sunday dinner to meet his parents, but I've begged off because I feel the invitation should come from his mother. Am I correct in this attitude? He's been to my home a number of times for dinner, but my mother has always asked him in advance when he came to call for me on a date.

B.L., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: As hostess, correctly the young man's mother should issue any dinner invitation, especially the first time. While she may feel he's old enough to make his own arrangements, it still would be more gracious on her part to call to second the invitation, so everyone would feel at ease.

Circle of Authority in R.C. Church Appears to Converge Of Historic Expansion

Will Rome's tight grip on the ecclesiastical affairs of the world be relaxed in the Vatican council session beginning next week? There are some indications that it will be. Here is the second article of three on the meeting, by an Associated Press writer who will attend.

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The circle of authority in the Roman Catholic Church has alternately widened or narrowed through the centuries.

Today, it appears on the verge of a potential historic expansion.

Although its centre is Rome, see of the chief apostle Peter, it also includes the far-spread ecclesiastical heritage of the other apostles, and those perpetuating it around the world.

It is their inclusion within the circumference of a supreme church government that is highlighted by the second Vatican council, starting Oct. 11 in Rome, which may widen church authority.

COULD BRIDGE CHASM

Such action would help bridge the main chasm between Roman Catholicism and other branches of Christianity which dispute Rome's full jurisdiction.

The extent to which power is centralized in the church is capable of change from one age to another," says Auxiliary Bishop Thomas Riley, of Boston. "It is quite possible that, in our own day, the tendency toward centralization may be reversed."

This would not mean diminishing the primacy of the Pope, but would involve fuller specific recognition that his authority is shared by the whole church leadership.

The fact of Pope John's calling of the council implies as much.

Nevertheless, proposals for definitive developments along this line seem likely to encounter controversy. Some Latin and Oriental bishops, as well as some of the curia, the Vatican's governmental body, fear administrative staff, are strongly protective about Rome's authority.

However, many European, French and North American bishops see room for a more inclusive interpretation.

FIRST SINCE 1870

The council is the first since another Vatican council 88 years ago, which defined the doctrine of papal infallibility on matters of faith and morals.

The listing of that dogma in 1870 culminated a trend toward church centralization. It began with the Council of Trent in 1545-1563, called to counter the breakings caused by the Protestant Reformation.

After papal infallibility was defined, some thought no more councils would be needed, or held. The dogma epitomized the consolidation movement.

When it was proclaimed, the intentions were to expand on it, with fuller interpretation, but this was prevented when the First Vatican Council's work was prematurely halted the war council.

The 1869-70 Vatican council, notes Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston, defined the position and powers of the supreme pontiff. The second Vatican council must now do the same thing in delineating with new insight the position, and authority of the bishops."

There also are possibilities that laymen may be accorded more influence in church affairs. A return to the early Christian system of electing bishops has been suggested, with choices subject to papal approval.

Merchant Ships Bound for Cuba Now Inspected

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — Merchant ships bound for Cuba now are inspected by customs officers as a matter of routine before being permitted to clear Canadian ports, It became known Wednesday.

The disclosure came in the wake of a move by customs agents in Montreal Tuesday night detaining a consignment of goods stowed on the Cuban freighter Bahia de Siguanea, about to sail for Cuba.

Officials here said the action illustrated the extra care Canada is taking to see that this country is not used as a back door for Iron-curtain-made goods whose export to Cuba is banned by the United States government.

There include all commodities except a limited range of medicine and foodstuffs.

MANIFESTS CHECKED

Reports from Montreal said the goods held back included machine parts, steel rod bolts, and cartons of a chemical named "permatron."

The shipment was detained, said an informed source here, because it was at least some of the goods consigned to Cuba originated in the United States. Customs officers were looking something that looks suspicious," he said. The discovery was made during a "normal" inspection of the freighter's cargo.

Other informants intimated that the inspection procedure had been in effect for some time, and resulted from previous attempts to evade Canadian export regulations on shipments to Cuba.

At least one such attempt evidently was successful. Port sources in Montreal said machine parts were smuggled to the Caribbean island earlier this year, under cover of obliging pamphlets, in a vessel out of Montreal.

In addition to banning the "bootlegging of American goods through Canada, the Canadian government maintains its own rigid embargo on export of strategic materials to Cuba.

The index of Canadian farm prices rose in August to 282.1, up 7.3 per cent from the corresponding month a year ago. The index is based on 125-29 prices equalling 100.

Jury Told Man Was Driving On Wrong Side

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury was told Wednesday night that Charles Zippel, 36, was driving on the wrong side of the road at about 60 miles an hour when his car collided with another, causing five deaths.

Zippel, who came from Hanover, was killed in the Aug. 18 accident on a development road just south of this Grey County town.

Also killed were Mr. and Mrs. Radi Blagdon of Kitchener and two sons, Randy, 9, and Rory, 4. A third son, Ricky, 6, survived and now is living with an uncle in Ottawa.

The jury, inquiring into the cause of Zippel's death, ruled he died as a result of the impact of the cars.

Pathologist E. L. Barton of Guelph said Zippel's blood showed an alcohol count of 3.2 parts per thousand.

Crown Attorney Charles Middleboro of Owen Sound said a person is normally considered impaired if the count is 1.5 parts per thousand.

William Kennedy and George Klemmer of Hanover district testified Zippel was driving at 60 m.p.h. on the wrong side of the road. Both testified they had to drive their cars into a ditch to avoid an accident.

The inquest was delayed an hour by the late arrival of Mr. Middlebro, who was involved in an accident with a horse near Hillsburg. The Crown attorney he was uninjured. The horse was killed.

Appeal Court Will Give Decision Later

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — The three-member court martial appeal court reserved judgment Wednesday on an appeal by Maj. William Alan Platt against a court martial conviction in connection with gold smuggling in Indochina.

At the close of a three-day hearing, Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron, court president, said judgment will be reserved until reasons can be written because "the case has raised matters of considerable importance."

For the second consecutive day, the court, especially Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, subjected Maj. D. H. Harrison, counsel for the judge-advocate general, to close questioning on events that preceded Maj. Platt's court martial in May and events at the trial.

Maj. Platt was convicted of a breach of army discipline while serving last year with the international truce supervisory commission, in Indochina. He received a $500 fine and was given a severe reprimand—a notation on his service record that affects his opportunities for promotion.

DENIES CHARGES

Maj. Harrison denied charges by R. E. Jeffery, Ottawa counsel for Maj. Platt, that his statement to the court was prepared in fair trial and that pre-trial procedures were wrong in law.

The appellant, Maj. Platt himself, said, tried to paint the blackest possible picture of pre-trial and trial procedures. However, the record showed that Maj. Platt suffered no injuries.

Mr. Lalshey argued that Maj. Platt's commanding officer did not consider the major's previous good record and good conduct when it was decided that a court martial prosecution should take place.

He said that good conduct and good service in cases involving service discipline are in themselves sufficient grounds on which commanding officers may decide not to press charges.

Maj. Harrison said a commanding officer is not obliged to consider a man's good conduct and previous record. All he required was a valid charge and a prima facie evidence.

Mr. Justice Norris asked how could a commanding officer make a proper investigation if he had no record of the man before him. One of the factors the commanding officer should consider was a man's record.

Sudbury Union Certification Left to Board

TORONTO (CP) — The Supreme Court of Ontario Wednesday cleared the way for a final decision by the Ontario Labor Relations Board on the long-fought issue of which union will represent 3,000 employees of International Nickel Company of Canada employees in the Sudbury area.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant delivered—pending a final decision from the board—hearing on an application by the national office of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) for an order nullifying the certification vote taken by the board last winter.

The rival United Steelworkers of America (CLC) won a narrow majority in the vote, but the board has not yet issued an order on the certification, still held by Mine-Mill, which alleges irregularities in the ballot and fraud by the Steel union in getting membership cards.

The court left Mine-Mill's newest move to the board Wednesday after hearing from A. S. Pattillo, counsel for the Labor Relations Board, that the board is expected to issue final judgment shortly, perhaps in the next three or four days.

ARGUES PREMATURE

The board's counsel and John Osler of the Steelworkers joined in arguing that the Mine-Mill application was premature and that the court should not move to quash what there is effective interim board actions leading up to a final decision.

Mine-Mill counsel urged that the application was not premature since the board already has had a decision—that of holding the vote—which substantially affects the rights of the parties involved.

Had it a declaration been granted, the issue would have been placed back where it was before the board order was granted, with the Steelworkers compelled to start certification proceedings all over again.

In deferring a hearing on the Mine-Mill application, Mr. Justice Grant ruled that the question could be resolved when he sits on three days' notice after the board hands down decision.

Tourist Assoc. Hears Pleas For Research

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Tourist Association convention here was told Wednesday with pleas for more industry research and a "hard look" at ways to attract travellers.

Wilfrid Sanders, a Toronto advertising executive, told the 250 delegates "you have not mastered consumer research."

Mr. Sanders, vice-president and general manager of Cockfield Brown and Company, said there areas many blank spots in the knowledge of tourist industry.

Despite the lack of information on the subject, Mr. Sanders said there are as many blank patches in the knowledge of Canadian tourists.

"What is so," he said, "it obviously might mean that expenditures on advertising or promotion on a mass basis is wasteful."

Peter Bennett of Toronto, public relations director for Canadian Pacific Airlines, urged more gimmicks to lure travellers to Canada.

Cities needed are "specialized and exciting kinds of vacation packages, such as a summer festival tour aimed at taking groups of tourists to the Calgary Stampede, the Stratford Shakespearean Festival and similar attractions, or the Montreal's four of Quebec, with a bus-boat-train package in restaurants famous for their cooking.

Charles Lazarus, Montreal Star travel writer, said the Canadian tourist industry must do a better selling job overseas.

In some European countries, and Commonwealth countries, said Quebec, "there is just no Canadian image, not even a bad one."

Lance Clemery, director of the Greater Toronto Hotel Association, said the motel business could expand only at the drifting away from the original sound economic basis of operation.

Motels are following the pattern of the interceavage, the hotels, which began on the principle of providing economy accommodation.

Prospects of Defeating Govt. During Debate on Throne Speech Are Fading

OTTAWA (CP) — With the prospect of defeating the minority government during the Conmons throne speech debate fading rapidly, the Liberals already are casting about for an issue on which to try again to achieve an early election.

All three opposition parties have blasted the government in the throne speech debate, in which their combined votes are a non-confidence motion could topple the government.

But in the first non-confidence test Tuesday night, Social Credit indicated clearly it feels stronger about the undesirability of an early election than about the shortcomings of the Conservative government.

The key moving non-confidence Tuesday, the 30 Social Credit MPs used the old parliamentary device of hanging their objections to government policy on their own party doctrine, which made the motion completely unacceptable to either the 100 Liberals or 95 Conservatives.

Thus the 116-member government easily survived the vote, only Social Creditors backing their own motion as it went down to defeat 223 to 30.

TO VOTE TONIGHT

The main non-confidence motion of the throne speech debate, that moved Monday by Liberal Leader Pearson, comes up for a vote in the House tonight. But pleres on that date.

Contention of U.S. Lumber Industry Witness Challenged By the Tariff Commissioner

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — The chairman of the U.S. tariff commission challenged Wednesday the contention of a U.S. lumber industry witness that the plight of the U.S. lumbering can be traced to a 1947 tariff concession to Canada.

Chairman Ben Dorfman questioned that there seems to be a question of which straw is really involved in the camel's back.

"I dare say there never was a straw that broke the camel's back. It was the straw and what was on before."

DELAYS ADMISSION

Dorfman also drew an admission from Kreager that imposition of countervailing duties on Canadian softwood will lead to an increase in prices to U.S. softwood consumers.

"The effect," suggested Dorfman, "would be to raise prices definitely."

"Yes," replied Kreager.

The exchange took place as the commission continued hearings on the industry's demands for tariff-quota curbs on Canadian softwood.

Herbert Fierst, counsel for British Columbia lumber exporters, objected to testimony of firms were closed because of a "conspiracy" to prevent the sale of U.S. lumber to Japan and cut - throat competition from Canadian producers.

WILL HOLD MEETING

Meanwhile it was learned another meeting has been arranged, being planned, to study the lumber market fight behind closed doors.

Following President Kennedy's calls for decision to seek "negotiations" with Canada on the export problem, the initial Canada-U.S. exploratory meeting was held in Ottawa Aug. 29. No negotiations were undertaken.

Another meeting is to be held in about three weeks, probably again at Ottawa.

United States Appears Settled on Cuban Policy

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

After months of feverish debate, the United States appears to be working out a consistent, two-part policy with regard to Cuba.

Simply, the aim is to contain Communist influence within Cuba, further isolating it from the hemisphere, and at the same time quietly to work for the overthrow of the Fidel Castro regime.

This would be done with cooperation of the other hemisphere nations wherever possible. Failing that, it would be done by the United States alone.

These points were reported to have been pulled out by President Kennedy before the 20-nation inter-American Conference in Cuba in Washington this week.

They also form two of the three points of the recently issued congressional declaration on Cuba.

'COULD ACT ALONE'

The third point declared U.S. determination to block a military buildup of Cuba which might threaten U.S. security. President Kennedy also has declared that the U.S. would act alone against a clear threat to U.S. security, although he has ruled out military action in present circumstances.

Congress did not spell out exactly how the U.S. should go about blocking a Cuban military buildup. Some senators say the far right have called for a blockade—a policy that clearly would be an act of war—but which has received little practical support.

Neither Congress nor administration has spelled out precisely what would be considered a threat to U.S. security sufficient to warrant unilateral intervention. Nor have they made clear exactly how they would actually justify such action.

The congressional resolution invoked the Monroe Doctrine and the Rio Treaty of 1948—both rather tenuous bases for a one attack.

WORK TWO WAYS

The Monroe Doctrine, as put forward by President James Monroe in 1823, warned European nations that any attempt to extend their power in the Western Hemisphere would be regarded as "dangerous to our peace and safety."

It also contained a less-often quoted corollary renouncing any U.S. interest in European conflicts.

Even the U.S. administration, recognizing that the doctrine has no status as an international treaty, has been careful not to base its case too heavily on it.

No Authority To Intervene Says P.M.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Wednesday his government has no authority to intervene in Shell Oil Company's proposed sale of Canadian Oil Companies to Standard.

He told the Commons that while Canadians may want Canadian companies to remain in Canadian hands, direct intervention by the government would be beyond its jurisdiction.

Mr. Diefenbaker was replying to Mr. W. Herridge, New Democratic Party House leader, who asked the government to urge the directors of Canadian Oil Companies to "put Canada first."

After rejecting a Shell offer earlier this year, Canadian Oil directors have now accommended that the company shareholders accept a new Shell offer to buy Canadian Oil stock at $22.50 a share.

Later, Colin Cameron (NDP—Nanaimo, Cowichan) and the leader of the Social Credit Party combines investigation branch will be asked to investigate the "takeover" of two Canadian loan companies by an American loan company.

Mr. Cameron referred to this as "amalgamation of foreign and domestic sharks."

Justice Minister Fleming said the section in the matter could be left to the branch itself.

DIES AFTER OPERATION

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Mary Jane Needham, who spent 13 years in an iron lung after being stricken by polio, died Tuesday of complications following a gall bladder operation. In 1959 the 39-year-old mother collaborated on a book, "Looking up," relating a good-humored account of her experience.

Two Charges Are Dismissed, One Withdrawn

SUDBURY (CP)—Magistrate Anthony Paliotta disposed Wednesday of the last three cases out of 14 charges arising from demonstrations at a June 4 Progressive Conservative rally at nearby Chelmsford.

The court dismissed two of the charges and the third was withdrawn.

Stanley McLean of Falconbridge was acquitted on a charge of causing a disturbance by shouting and swearing in the only case where evidence was heard.

The single Crown witness, Malcolm McDonald, also of Falconbridge, said McLean was in a large group of men shouting outside a union hall as Prime Minister Diefenbaker completed remarks in French inside the hall.

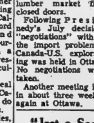
McLean was using rough language, but not any worse than the rest, McDonald said.

Mr. Paliotta dismissed a trial of seven charges and withdrew a charge against a man who was fined for assaulting Don Gillis—former president of the Falconbridge local of International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) and a Conservative candidate in Nickel Belt riding, who was with Mr. Diefenbaker—and one who was fined for causing a disturbance by fighting and swearing.

Bush Contractor Sentenced to Hang Jan. 10

COCHRANE, Ont. (CP)—Conrad Lachance, 36, was sentenced Wednesday to be hanged Jan. 10 for the capital murder of his wife.

The Supreme Court Jury deliberated for about three hours before bringing in the verdict before Mr. Justice W. R. Parker.



Lachance, a bush contractor from Ansonville, went on trial Monday for the March 24 knife-slaying of his wife, who was killed in the Ansonville apartment of her husband.

Lachance testified that on the night of the murder he entered his apartment and found his brother standing over the dead body of his wife-in-law.

Six small children, four of them Wilfred's, were in the apartment, one lying beside a blood-soaked mattress.

The court was told Mrs. Lachance and her children had lived with the Wilfred Lachance family on several occasions when she left her husband after quarrels.

Mr. and Mrs. Wally Jackson, Allison and Valerie, Oshawa, were weekend guests of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Petherick. Mrs. Jackson remained for a few days with her sister Mrs. Roly Jackson and girls, at Springbrook.

Two American Women Guilty Of Fraud

HAMILTON (CP)—Two American women were fined $1,000 Tuesday of an attempt to defraud a 94-year-old Hamilton housewife of $1,000.

They are Sharon Holmes, 40, of Detroit and Jane Morris, 30, of Chicago. Both had pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Frances Larco, told Judge John S. Latchford last week that Holmes offered her $1,000 if she could first produce some money of her own.

Judge Latchford described the accused's version of the evidence as a fantastic, incredulous story.

"First they say they found the money on the street," he said.

"Then turning it over for safekeeping to a complete stranger is even more fantastic."

Acting Crown Attorney David Duncan said the accused's story was a complete and utter fabrication.

"Somebody is telling a pack of lies," he told the all - male jury.

Defense Counsel William Morris said there was no evidence of how the accused, were going to get the money from Mrs. Larco.

Pageant Which Is Dover

By PITT CLARK

If all the great men whose names have been linked with Dover were to meet together what a party there would be!

Julius Caesar and Sir Winston Churchill with heads together, fingers stabbing in lively discussion on some point of military strategy.

Almost every crowned head in the English history book—the crusading Richard I, for instance, and Napoleon's nephew II, fat Henry VIII and his daughter Queen Elizabeth — would be rubbing shoulders with such moderns as Captain Matthew Webb, who started the fashion of Channel swimming, and Monsieur Louis Blériot, the first man to fly from France to England, who came down plonk in his crazy monoplane in a meadow behind Dover Castle.

There would be those two great sailors Lord Mountevans and Lord Keyes of World War One fame alongside the Hon. Charles S. Rolls, the first man to make a return flight across the Channel.

They would all toast the city of Dover, for all historical purposes, really began in B.C. 55 when Julius Caesar's eighty transport galleys attempted to land on the beach, only to be met by a fierce barrage of flint-headed javelins and boulders hurled by an army of wood-bedaubed Britons.

So furious was the local "Home Guard" defence that Caesar's seaborne legions had to draw off and land on flatter shores further east along the coast.

The historians tell the story of how the Romans were met by scythe-wheeled war-chariots, driven with headlong speed into their ranks.

Even the well-disciplined Roman soldiers wavered, but they rallied and went on to gain their first foothold in Britain—and to establish a Roman camp where Dover's Norman castle now stands dominating the town from the cliffs to the east.

The town of Dover, standing at the "Gateway to England" between the twin sentinels of the castle and Shakespeare's beetling cliffs, has inevitably been associated with great events of British history. Here Richard I assembled a fleet of one hundred and eighty vessels to transport his soldiers for the Holy Land.

In 1216 the Dauphin of France mounted a desperate, but vain, seige of the castle.

We unfold one section of the Dover tapestry of 2,000 years to see the Spanish Armada closing down the Channel with the British fleet in full chase.

Charles II is given a tremendous and joyous ovation as, with the eclipse of Cromwell, he comes back to England from France to reclaim his father's crown.

Comes Napoleon and Dover is thrown into a turmoil of preparation against the threat of invasion, reinforcing the castle to withstand artillery and building vast earthworks and casemats on the cliffs opposite the castle across the valley of the River Dour.

The tapestry unfolds again to the dark days of the First World War, when the first bombs were dropped on Dover until that never-to-be-forgotten St. George's Day in 1918, when Admiral Sir Roger Keyes led the historic raid on Zeebrugge, on the Belgian coast, and bottled up the German fleet.

From 1939 to 1945 Dover—"Hellfire Corner," as it was known—was once again in the front line of world conflict, emerging bomb-battered and shell wrecked to lick its wounds and commence development into a fine, modern seaside resort.

Last year nearly 11,000 visitors climbed the hill to see Dover's showpiece, the castle, with its Roman pharos, tow-

Family Covered 18,000 Miles at Cost of $1,200

VANCOUVER (CP)—Looking for outdoors adventure? Exotic foods? A holiday challenge on a reasonable budget?

Talk to Fred Vonsicken of Vancouver. He recommends a family excursion through Central America.

Mr. and Mrs. Vonsicken and four children from six months to seven years of age, made such an expedition during the summer, covering 18,000 westbound miles for $1,200—or about seven cents a mile.

It meant they had to "rough it" all the way. They did without meat and eggs for six months and washed diapers and family clothes in rivers and lakes. During one stop they assisted a missionary doctor with the amputation of an Indian's gangrenous toe.

But problems were only hardships until the travellers found a solution. They followed Mexico's Pan-American highway to British Honduras and Guatemala, and returned up the east coast to Mexico over roads barely passible in places.

AYE MOSTLY FRUIT

Their 1962 model panel truck started the trip with 138,000 miles on the speedometer and made the tour without a major breakdown. Gasoline in some places cost 95 cents a gallon.

The family "went native," shopping in local markets and living on a diet composed mainly of fruit recommended by the natives.

"We had meat only once in the six months," says Mrs. Vonsicken, "in a restaurant in Guatemala, where we paid $1.50 for a supper for the whole family."

After viewing some unsanitary Mexican farms, the family avoided eggs as well, getting their only protein from powdered milk, mixed with boiled water, which they purchased in five-gallon jugs.

Because fruits such as bananas and mangoes cost only four cents a pound, the Vonsickens were able to feed their entire family for less than $2.50 a day.

They were provided with the native preventatives for snakebite bites. Fortunately, they had no use for the latter.

For faster, cleaner, more economical washes—

Look at all you get from the sturdy FRIGIDAIRE

The Frigidaire washer was designed from the very beginning to be an automatic—not just a made-over wringer washer. Only Frigidaire has this 3-Ring Agitator, which gives you:

■ Gentle cleaning with all-new "Somersault" washing action—without blades or beating—thanks to Frigidaire's patented 3-Ring Agitator. So superior to the old-fashioned push-pull method which drags the clothes through the water weakening the fibres and shortening the garments' normal life. ■ Faster, cleaner wash cycle than other makes. Rinses extra clean in fresh running water. Spins clothes driest of all. ■ Economical because you use less water, less detergent, less electricity.

ONLY FRIGIDAIRE WASHERS OFFER A CHOICE OF ALL THESE SERVICES

2 Washing Speeds—Regular and Delicate. Handwashing is gone!

Easy way to wash dispers, grimy play clothes, work clothes—and the only way to wash wool safely and automatically—thanks to Frigidaire's special "Fully Automatic Soak Cycle."

Durability of rust-resistant porcelain wherever water touches the washer.

Loading convenience of full-width top opening with side-opening lid, recessed toe space and recessed spill guard top.

Circulator Ring keeps suds working and clothes moving freely.

Detergent Dispenser distributes any type of detergent under water automatically, uniformly, at just the right time.

Energy Ring pumps sudsy water through every fold without beating.

PROOF OF THE STURDY FRIGIDAIRE WASHER'S DEPENDABILITY

15-Year Lifetime Test—In Frigidaire's 15-Year Lifetime Test, washers were run day and night to equal 15 years of home use. JOHN XXIII: THE PEASANT WHO BECAME A POPE

When Cardinal Roncalli was elected Pope, many Vatican officials sensed a change in the air. And they were right!

Unlike his predecessors, Pope John has traveled freely throughout Rome. Struck up chatty conversations with palace workmen. And even visited a Roman jail—to say mass for his prisoners.

In this week's Post, you'll read about the Pope's rise from a humble village to the throne of St. Peter. Learn why he chose to reign under the name of John—instead of Pius. How his cheerful disregard of red tape and protocol has raised the eyebrows of Italian aristocrats. And how his delightful sense of humor has endeared him to Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics This Week: News of some Soviet scientific leftovers, and a look at a giant eye on the sun.

SPUTNIK LEFTOVERS

Out of the sky, Sept. 5, came a 20-pound chunk of charred metal. It landed in a street in the middle of Milltowne, Wis.

Scientists took a look, decided it was probably part of the Soviet Sputnik IV which was launched in May of 1960, and most of which was likely destroyed in its plunge to earth.

A 14 - pound chunk was sawed off and sent to Los Alamos scientific laboratory to check its radioactivity.

Scientists determined it was decidedly from space and that it was less radioactive than a freshly fallen iron meteorite. The leftovers from Sputnik IV will be valuable because its history is known. It began on earth and spent some 60 days in orbit.

EYE ON THE SUN

The sun is some 93,000,000 miles from an Arizona mountain called Kitt Peak. But atop the mountain is a solar telescope. It is named for Dr. Robert R. McMath, University of Michigan professor and long-time solar astronomer, who died last January.

The McMath telescope has an eye 100 feet above the mountain top which follows and catches the sun's image. The light is reflected to a 60-inch parabolic mirror 400 feet away into a shaft down deep in the mountain. Then it is reflected 280 feet to a 48-inch mirror which reflects and focuses the sun's image into an underground observation station. Here scientists can photograph the 24-inch diameter image of the sun, or study the spectrum of the sun's light.

Yankees 17-10 Choice Over Giants

Lefties Start In Opener

By JOE EICHLER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The 58th World Series opens at Candlestick Park today in a battle of left-handers between New York's Whitey Ford and San Francisco's Billy O'Dell.

San Francisco's joyous citizens appear unmindful of odds which make the Yankees 7-5 favorites to win the opener and 17-10 choice to win the series. All that mattered was that the Giants had whipped arch-rival Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4 Wednesday in the final playoff game and brought this city its first National League championship.

One reason the Yankees are such prohibitive favorites is their long tradition of series supremacy. The Yankees have won 19 of 26 fall classics—including four of six from the Giants, who haven't beaten them since 1922.

Another reason is the Yankees are well rested after having clinched the American League pennant Sept. 25. The Giants had a hard pull, needing three playoff games to win the National League pennant after trailing the Dodgers since July 8.

Manager Alvin Dark of the Giants did not appear worried over the Yankees' physical and statistical edge.

"The Yankees' rest doesn't make too much of a difference, I don't think," Dark said. "I'm more concerned about my pitching staff. I would have liked for my starting pitchers to have had more rest."

Dark said he plans to use the same line-up that defeated the Dodgers Wednesday.

"If O'Dell says he feels all right, he's my opening pitcher," Dark said. "I want to open with him, then follow with Jack Sanford (a right-hander) here Friday and have Billy Pierce (a left-hander) ready for the third game in Yankee Stadium Sunday."

Dark was asked how many games he expects the World Series to go.

"Well, when we had nine games left in the regular season and we were trailing the Dodgers by four games," answered Dark, "I jokingly told the players we had 19 more games to play . . . nine in the regular schedule, three in the playoffs and seven in the World Series.

"If that's the way it ends, it's okay with me."

The Yankees worked out at San Francisco's Candlestick Park for the first time and reported no problems about the wind or the slow infield—both trouble points for other teams.

Manager Ralph Houk said he out would go with his usual line-up.

Tony Kubek leads off, Tommy Tresh bats third behind Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle is the clean-up hitter followed by Roger Maris. Then comes Elston Howard, Bill Skowron, Clete Boyer and Ford.

Ford enters the game with a record 32 consecutive scoreless innings in World Series play. He has won nine series games, another record, including two in last year's rout of Cincinnati Reds.

Weep In Dressing Room

Dodgers Shocked By Loss

By JIM BECKER

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles Dodger manager Walter Alston was outwardly calm and courteous, but his face wore the look of a man who hadn't known the gun was loaded.

"Of course, you're not supposed to walk anybody with the bases loaded," he said.

He might have added, especially in the ninth inning of the third game of the playoff for the National League pennant, with the score tied.

Stan Williams walked Jim Davenport of San Francisco Giants in just that situation, and the Giants won the pennant Wednesday.

Alston fished in his back pocket, removed a sad-looking handkerchief from a crumpled pack, forgot to light it, and said:

"No, I don't think I made any decisions out there today that I would have changed if I had them to make over again. We got close—that's all."

He sighed — quite a strong emotional display for the mild-30-year-man who may have lost his job along with the pennant, and said:

"But everybody on the club gave everything they possibly had."

Then he stood up and padded down the hallway in his stocking feet to the Giants' dressing room.

"I want to talk to (Giant manager Alvin) Dark," he said.

KEEP DOOR LOCKED

He waded into the champagne-swilling melee there, said a few words and walked back to his own dressing room—where the door was still locked against reporters and photographers.

"The boys don't want to talk to anybody," he said, "but I'll have a word with them and see if they'll let you in. It's their clubhouse."

He disappeared inside. But it was almost an hour after the game before reporters were allowed in.

The floor was littered with discarded uniforms that looked as if they had been ripped off by the players.

There was no champagne—just shock. Players were drowning their memories with sodas, beers or whisky, tossed down neat from the bottle, depending on one's taste.

The eyes of Johnny Podres, the starting pitcher, were swollen from weeping.

Williams sat on the floor, stripped to his shorts, muttering one curse word after another.

Alston's eyes were red-rimmed, too. He had just received a phone call from owner O'Malley.

"He said it was tough luck," Alston said. "It was a very nice call."

Harvey Kuenn Says

"Tough, But We'll Win"

This is the first of a series of daily stories on the World Series written exclusively for The Associated Press by the Giants' veteran outfielder-infielder, Harvey Kuenn. Kuenn's comments will be carried each day during the series.

By HARVEY KUENN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Look for a very tough World Series with New York Yankees but I think we will win.

It may take the full seven games, of course, because the Yankees are always of championship calibre. Then, too, our pitching staff is tired.

I have been asked if I thought the momentum and the enthusiasm we generated in winning the playoff series with the Los Angeles Dodgers will be maintained.

Yes, I definitely think it will, and that final win in Los Angeles was a great boost for our spirits and morale.

There is a contrast between the Yankees who go all out and into the playoff games, and the Yankees, who have been able to relax all week after they clinched their pennant. They have problems, too.

When you sit around for days, with nothing much to do, you are liable to lose your edge. I think it's better to have played every day, even if it has been a long tough season and the strain and tension of these past few days has been immense.

The Yankees' strong points are power and their defence. Everyone knows about their power, and their defense must have been good all year.

But I think our defence is equal to any ball club in baseball. Jose Pagan is one of the best if not the best shortstop in the league, and Willie Mays—well, everyone knows about Mays. He's just out of this world.

BEATS CHOMEDEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Verdun Shamgats crushed Chomedey Vikings 33-0 Wednesday night in Quebec Rugby Football Union senior division game. It meant little to the powerful Verdun squad which has already wrapped up the ORFU regular schedule championship.

Commission Says Liston

Must Earn The Right To Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Sonny Liston may be the heavyweight champion of the world, including New York, but he must "earn the right" to fight in this state.

That was the ruling of the New York Athletic Commission Wednesday after hearing testimony concerning Liston, his associations and the state of boxing in general.

The commission denied Liston a licence on April 27, ruling that connecting Liston with underworld characters. The action forced Liston's title fight in Chicago, where he knocked out Floyd Patterson in the first round and won the world championship.

"a pattern of suspicion" existed

The commission, in a formal statement Wednesday, said it recognizes "the fact that Sonny Liston defeated the world heavyweight titleholder at Chicago and, having won the heavyweight Cortez Stewart in championship in the ring testimony before the New York we recognize him as the world commission Tuesday.

titleholder."

The statement did not specify what steps Liston must take to gain the good graces of the New York group, but it hinted that he must again apply for a state licence—which Liston has not done—and then clarify himself with the commission and a legislative group investigating the sport in New York.

Liston, who has a prison record, was linked with racketeer Frank (Blinky) Palermo, by

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Yankees, the story said, raced through a fiery batting practice drill against first-line pitching in a simulated baseball game before taking off for San Francisco where they worked out yesterday in Candlestick Park yesterday.

And you can bet the Houksters from the Bronx had their optics glued on the clubhouse magic lantern as the Dodgers and Giants went through their death or glory thriller up there in Frisco's O'Malley Grand Canyon.

Not that the proud Yankees went to San Francisco because at the moment it looked like the Giants would blast the Dodgers half-way to Hawaii.

No sirree! Just in case the Giants won they wanted to familiarize themselves with Candlestick Park. Houk gave the Bombers the workout works with the exception of Whitey Ford, who was his choice to start the series, and Ralph Terry, another mound tophand.

And the Bronx champs won't have any injury excuses this year. They are reported to be in "100 per cent physical shape," rested and rarin' to go. And they don't give a tinker's dam what club faces them. A Dodger or Giant shirt is just another stumbling block to the world championship and the accompanying loot.

Most of the Yankees, it is stated, hope the Dodgers will grab the National League flag and glory. Not because of any ex-intra-Gotham love but the "Bums" park is larger, thereby increasing the players' share of the gate. Besides they're familiar with the Ravine, the home of the American League Angels.

And here's a tip to you National League buffs. Regardless of what the odds are on the current world series, statistics show that they are 4-1 that a team that's a runaway winner in its own league sweeping up in the world series with an opponent that has had a tough way to go, will keep right on running away with the honors.

The advantage of going into the baseball classic well rested apparently overcomes the disadvantage of any physical and psychological letdown that might set in during the interlude between an early pennant clinching and the series opener.

The records show that the inherent strength of a team that won its flag going away usually is more than sufficient to stand off the momentum of an inspired challenger that has just come through a grueling down-to-the-wire dogfight in its own league.

Some fourteen big-margin winners have taken the field well-rested and faced opponents who had to go down to the last week, the last day or so and to playoffs series to gain the right to meet them.

And of these fourteen teams all but three went right on through to the world title. The three that didn't were the 1946 Chicago Cubs, the 1918 Cubs and the 1947 Boston Red Sox.

But history doesn't necessarily have to repeat itself. Statistics, in my opinion, are figures put on paper recording the past deeds of teams, individuals, horses, and what not. Records are placed in them to be broken.

Roger Maris beat Ruth's record—or did he? Bobby Hull and Boom-Boom Geoffrion tied Rocket Richard's goal-scoring record—or did they. Manny Wills, the fleetest "thief" baseball ever produced beat Ty Cobb's record, or did he? It all depends on the controversial number off games.

The more rabid Yankee lovers—and they are aplenty hereabouts, will tell you their Bronx bobbies can lick the hell out of anything the National League can produce, whether they won their flag the last game of a playoff or by a margin of 20 games.

I don't think this Yankee team is swathed in any cloak of invincibility). It can be beaten—and probably will be.

My prediction record is one right out of every 100. So "Giants Sk—Yankees, Go Home!"

Giants Snatch Pennant In Ninth

LOS ANGELES (CP) — San Francisco Giants in a thrilling ninth inning comeback Wednesday spilled Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4 in the final playoff game to take the National League pennant.

The Giants go against New York Yankees today in the World Series opener at San Francisco.

It was a comeback reminiscent of the famous "miracle finish" of 1951, when the Giants of New York defeated the Dodgers of Brooklyn.

Wednesday's win came on a walk delivered up by the Dodgers' Stan Williams with the bases loaded and an error by rookie Larry Burright. The Giants came from behind with four runs in the ninth to become a 4-2 Dodger lead.

It seemed the Giants had been beaten by Tommy Davis' two-run homer and a sensational base-stealing display by fleet Maury Wills who trapped out four hits, but they bounced back with the help of a sudden wild streak by Dodger relief hurler Ed Roebuck, the ultimate loser.

In the catastrophic ninth the Dodgers watched some $10,000 in series money for each player go out the window while the Giants uncorked the champagne.

USES THREE PITCHERS

After using eight pitchers in Tuesday's 8-7 loss, Giants' manager Al Dark went through three more Wednesday to bring San Francisco its first major league pennant.

Juan Marichal and Don Larsen had worked the first eight innings, but trailed chiefly because of Davis and Wills.

Pinch hitter Matty Alou opened the incredible ninth with a single. After Harvey Kuenn hit into a force play, Dodger reliever Ed Roebuck walked both Willie McCovey and Felipe Alou, loading the bases. Willie Mays' line single off Roebuck's glove scored one run and Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly off Stan Williams, who had relieved Roebuck, tied the score.

Then the Giants walked to the pennant.

Williams forced in the tie-breaking run by walking Jim Davenport. An insurance run scored when Dodger rookie Larry Burright muffed Jose Pagan's easy grounder.

Dark was taking no chances with youngsters after his Giants took the lead. He summoned the veteran Billy Pierce from the bullpen and the 35-year-old lefthander sealed the Dodgers' doom in one-two-three fashion in the last of the ninth.

COLLAPSE IN THIRD

This is the Giants' first pennant since they left New York after the 1957 season and made up in part for the one they threw away in the final week—to the Dodgers—in 1959.

The Dodgers defence collapsed in the third inning when three errors, one each by Johnny Podres, John Roseboro and Junior Gilliam, helped the Giants open up a 3-0 lead.

The Dodgers got one back in the fourth on Duke Snider's double, Tommy Davis' single and Frank Howard's force of Davis on which Snider scored.

Trailing 2-1 going to the sixth, the Dodgers suddenly turned on the power with a single by Snider and a 360-foot homer by Davis, the batting champ of both majors with a .346 average.

The Dodgers increased that lead to 4-2 in the seventh when Wills singled for his fourth straight hit, stole second and then stole third for his 103rd and 104th thefts of a record season. Catcher Ed Bailey of the Giants hurried his throw to third base and it bounced down the left field line for an error that let Wills score.

COULDN'T CARRY ON

Roebuck, who came in with the bases loaded and nobody out in the sixth, escaped unscathed again in the eighth he got out of a jam by making Davenport bounce into a double play—the Dodgers' third of the day with Wills involved in all three. But Roebuck couldn't carry the load any further.

Marichal struggled through seven innings before he was pulled after throwing three balls to Tommy Davis opening the eighth. Larsen finished the job by walking Davis but got out of the inning without damage. Thus the perfect game pitcher of the 1956 Yankees became the winner of this final playoff game.

Yanks Have Work Cut Out

This is the first of a series of daily stories on the World Series written exclusively for The Associated Press by the Yankees' veteran infielder, Bobby Richardson. Richardson's comments will be carried each day during the series.

By BOBBY RICHARDSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—It looks like we have our work cut out for us in this World Series. We knew we were going to start things in California but we had no idea we'd be playing in San Francisco.

Naturally, we were rooting for the Dodgers. It wasn't so much that we wanted the Giants to lose but most of the Yankees had bought series tickets for friends for games in Los Angeles.

When the National League race ended in a tie most of us Yankees began rooting for a three-game playoff. That would put the winner into the World Series without a day off. Momentum might be on their side but they would also figure to be a tired club with a tired pitching staff. At least that was our theory.

As to the Giants, I respect their pitching. They made a tremendous comeback. And the way Billy Pierce shut out the Dodgers on Monday in the first game of the playoff was something.

Even though Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda have outhomered Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris this year (84 to 61), I like our versatile array of hitters.

Ralph Houk, our manager, can bat a right-handed line-up or load up with left-handers. Four of our first five batters can hit left-handed. And three of four first five men can bat right-handed, without a line-up change. That's because Mantle and Tom Tresh, our fine rookie left fielder, are switch hitters.

Tax Boys Refuse Bid For Purse

WASSINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Internal Revenue Service turned down Wednesday an appeal for immediate release of part of the impounded receipts from last week's Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson heavyweight championship fight.

The release was requested by Martin Smith, president of Gault, Betsey and Smith Enterprises Incorporated, the firm that organized the closed-circuit television broadcast of the Sept. 25 bout.

Smith, who estimated the total amount of fight receipts frozen by IRS at more than $2,000,000, said agency officials told him they need more time to study the situation before considering even a partial release.

Hundreds of IRS employees seized fight receipts due the promoters within minutes after Liston stripped Patterson of the heavyweight title in the first round of their meeting at Chicago's Comiskey Park.

T. Davis Wins Bat Crown

NEW YORK (AP) Tommy Davis of the Dodgers collected two hits in three times at bat in Wednesday's third playoff game, hiked his average to .346 and gave Los Angeles its first National League batting champion.

Davis clinched the title with a home run and a single that enabled him to top Hal Smith of Cincinnati finished second at .342 followed by Stan Musial of St. Louis, seven-time batting titleholder, with .330.

The last Dodger to win the National League crown was Carl Furillo in 1953. The Dodgers moved from Brooklyn to Los Angeles in 1958.

Davis also drove in two runs Wednesday and boosted his leading total to 153. Willie Mays of San Francisco captured the home run crown with 49. He slammed a pair in Monday's playoff game that also gave him the major league title. Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota topped the American League with 48. All playoff records count as part of the regular season.

Pete Runnels of Boston won the AL batting championship with a .326 mark.

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks, romping through an exhibition schedule in which they have not lost a game, received a jolt Wednesday night that may have spoiled what has been a perfect training camp.

Stan Mikita, all-star centre in the National Hockey League last season, was taken to hospital during an exhibition game at Ottawa where it was determined he has a badly sprained ankle.

There was no estimate on the length of time Mikita will be missing from the Chicago lineup—but the injury was serious enough to require x-rays.

Mikita's injury will likely prevent him from playing in the NHL all-star game at Toronto Saturday night.

Hawks, who were tied 3-3 by Hull-Ottawa Canadiens Tuesday night, had trouble whipping the Eastern Professional League team 2-1 Wednesday night.

BEAT AHL CLUBS

In other exhibition action, Boston Bruins whipped Providence Reds of the American League 7-2 at Boston, Montreal Canadiens dumped the AHL's Rochester Americans 4-2 at Peterborough and New York Rangers barely edged Baltimore Clippers, their AHL farm club 6-5 at Brandon.

Mikita was believed injured when his skate became entangled in a crack in the ice at Ottawa on a breakaway.

If he misses the all-star game he may not be the only absentee. The defending Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs, the All-Stars' opposition, may have as few as six players in their lineup.

No player not signed to a contract is eligible to participate in the game because of a league ruling, and Leafs are reported to have no more than six men in the fold.

Manager-coach Punch Imlach isn't talking to reporters about signings and said he will use players from Leafs' Rochester farm if needed.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, told reporters in Vancouver earlier this week he is standing by to arbitrate if necessary.

ANNOUNCES NAMES

Leafs are doing their contract squabbling and playing in Western Canada. Meanwhile, their Toronto office Wednesday announced names of players who will bolster the all-star squad. They are Bernie Geoffrion, Ralph Backstrom and Claude Provost from Montreal Canadiens; Alex Delvecchio and Norm Ullman from Detroit Red Wings; Doug Mohns, Doc McKenney and Leo Boivin from Boston Bruins; and Dean Prentice and goaltender Gump Worsley from New York Rangers.

The first All-Star team consists of goaltender Jacques Plante of Montreal, defencemen Jean Guy Talbot of Montreal and Doug Harvey of New York, centre Mikita, right winger Andy Bathgate of New York and left winger Bobby Hull of Chicago.

The second team includes goaltender Glenn Hall of Chicago, defencemen Carl Brewer of Toronto and Pierre Pilote of Chicago, centre Dave Keon of Toronto, right winger Gordie Howe of Detroit and left winger Frank Mahovlich of Toronto.

Brewer, Keon and Mahovlich if signed will play with Toronto Saturday night.

For 1963, Rambler leaps years ahead with 'Uniside' construction to bring striking new beauty to the Rambler Classic

For 1963, Rambler brings you the most revolutionary automotive engineering advance in years—new "Uniside" construction. Twenty-three years ago, Rambler pioneered Single-Unit construction (we welded the entire car into a solid structure). This method gave Ramblers added strength and put an end to body-bolt squeaks and rattles. It made all other assembly methods old fashioned. Remember this was twenty-three years ago, yet the rest of the industry is just beginning to catch up.

Now, Rambler again leaps years ahead! Exclusive new "Uniside" construction is an entirely new way of building cars. This year, we're stamping the complete side out of single sheets of steel! It gives you even greater body strength, longer car life, perfect and uniform door openings with vastly superior weather-sealing. In addition, "Uniside's" outer layer is completely galvanized for increased rust protection. This feature, together with our exclusive Deep Dip process, makes Rambler the world's most completely rustproofed car.

"Uniside" brings yet another bonus to the Rambler Classic Six—striking new beauty! This year, the car is lower, with the same generous interior dimensions. Side windows are now curved to give added spaciousness (a touch of beautiful luxury found on few other cars in the world). Chair-high seats, in a new variety of colours and quality fabrics, are still a major comfort feature. Moulded, one-piece floor coverings have been added while the Cushioned-Acoustical ceiling remains a Rambler exclusive.

Other new Rambler features include an alternator which charges even while the engine is idling to keep your battery at full-strength for better performance. A new three-point engine mounting eliminates vibration and noise. A longer wheelbase gives an exceptionally smooth and quiet ride.

Standard Rambler features that are still exclusive are the improved Ceramic-Armoured muffler (guaranteed for as long as you own the car), a two-year guarantee on both the battery and coolant, and the Double-Safety brake system.

For those who are looking for breath-taking luxury and performance, the new 1963 Rambler Ambassador V8 is an unusual value. With all the features of the Classic Six it has one of the best weight to horsepower ratios in the industry for outstanding performance. And you'll be surprised at its new low price.

Once again we've produced a car designed primarily for maximum usefulness to the user—with Rambler's proven performance, dependability and economy. Take a test drive in a new Rambler Classic Six or Ambassador V8 at your Dealer's soon. Prove to yourself that they are the most beautiful, most practical cars ever designed for the Canadian motoring public. And if you're in the market for a compact car, see the new 1963 Rambler American Six—the lowest priced Canadian car you can own.

Ron Howell Likes Move To Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ron Howell once proved how fleet on foot he is by running back a kick 90 yards for a record.

His latest move—3,000 miles in 48 hours—backs up his reputation as one of the fastest men in Canadian football.

Monday afternoon in Hamilton he was informed by the Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference that he had been 'dealt off' to British Columbia Lions of the Western League.

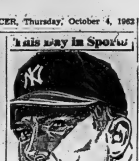
Twenty-four hours later he was shaking hands with his new employers.

And a few hours after that he was catching footballs with his new teammates.

SURRISED BY TRADE

"Of course the trade surprised me," Howell said in an interview.

"But I'm a professional athlete, football is my business and I have to go with it.



"Everything I have seen here so far has impressed me."

Howell said he likes "the way the management of this team does business."

"I was very impressed with the coaching staff. And the fact that the club looked so strong in its last two games is encouraging as far as the playoffs are concerned."

POPULATION MARK

Italy's population is expected to pass the 50,000,000 mark before the end of 1962.

Mosport to Continue Racing

ORONTO (CP) — The National Trust Company was appointed Wednesday as receiver and manager of the affairs of Mosport Limited, a sports car racing track near Bowmanville, Ont.

J. L. A. Colhoun, manager of National Trust's corporate trust department, said in an affidavit that Mosport was in default of a debenture held by the trust company, and had admitted in writing its inability to pay its debts when due.

Paul Sullivan, Mosport president, said the trust company's action was requested by the bank that was designed to protect holders of debentures and shares while a proposal is made to creditors.

Sullivan said racing will definitely continue next season.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Royal Spirit, a 13-1 outsider, won the $7,500 added Nettie Stakes with ease at New Woodbine Wednesday, hammering a field of 12 by better than five lengths.

Royal Spirit was worth $33.50 to $7 straight investors, $12.80 for place and $7.40 for show. The time of 1.43 3-5 was three-fifths of a second off the track mark set by Hartney five years ago and equalled by Winston a year ago.

Al. Dark Blasts O'Malley

LOS ANGELES (AP) — San Francisco manager Alvin Dark charged Thursday that Walter O'Malley, owner of Los Angeles Dodgers, is running baseball and is intimidating National League umpires.

Dark was still seething over umpire Jocko Conlan's intervention with the grounds crew's work in conditioning the infield at Candlestick Park before Monday's first playoff game between the Giants and Dodgers.

"Mr. O'Malley is the most powerful man in baseball," Dark said before Wednesday's decisive third game between the Dodgers and Giants. "His word is law.

"Imagine an umpire coming out before a game to interfere with a grounds crew's work at a ball park? Dark asked. "That wouldn't happen anywhere else except where the Dodgers are involved."

Networks Nearing Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and the privately-owned CTV network are nearing agreement on plans for telecasting this year's Grey Cup football game, State Secretary Halpenny told the Commons Wednesday.

He said the CBC and CTV have been meeting with the Board of Broadcast Governors, "and it looks as though they are going to have a solution."

Mr. Halpenny replied to a question by Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) who asked about the controversy over television broadcasting rights.

CTV bought the rights for private network stations and offered to supply sponsored coverage of the game to the CBC. The CBC refused, saying CTV had earlier committed itself to giving the CBC the coverage without commercial sponsorship.

Clark Out For Game With Riders

MONTREAL (CP)—Fullback Don Clark will not play with Montreal Alouettes when they meet Ottawa Rough Riders here Monday, the Alouettes said Wednesday.

Clark, last year's leading rusher of the Eastern Football Conference, has been practising regularly with the team this week and was expected to return to action Monday after a seven-week absence caused by a kidney injury.

A club official said the team doctor had decided Clark should not play Monday because there is still blood in his urine."

Clark was injured in a bruising tilt with Ottawa here last Aug. 16.

Three New Series Opened And All Had Good Points

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A trio of new programs had their television premieres Wednesday night, and they certainly had tough acts to follow: The successful voyage of astronaut Walley Schirra and the windup of the National League pennant race.

Almost any fiction entertainment after these real - life dramas had to be anti-climatic. Nevertheless, all three had their good points.

First came ABC's Going My Way, which is the series based on an old and beloved Bing Crosby movie. Gene Kelly plays Father Chuck O'Malley, the young curate, and he's a more serious fellow than Bing was. Leo G. Carroll plays the older priest with dignity and humor. This promises to be a sentimental, warm proggam — and have a little message, too.

Then along came Stanley Holloway as Our Man Higgins, also on ABC Holloway plays a British butler who is inherited by the American Masterson family, along with some ancient silver. By next week Hazel will have a formidable male rival.

Finally, there was NBC's new medical series, The 11th Hour, in which Wendell Corey plays a lawyer - turned - psychiatrist. The story opened by showing an outbreak in a violent ward of a mental hospital, which soon focused on a woman accused of murdering her husband. The question was not the usual whodanit one, but simply whether she was legally sane or insane when it happened.

Recommended tonight:

Premiere Theatre, ABC, 10-11 (EDT)—return of the anthology series with James Stewart in a baseball story.

Astrological Forecast

For October 5

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19)

Best to wait until this evening before making final decision. Collect facts. Study indications. Go with the tide. Premature action in afternoon could cause regrets.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20)

Much in your favor. But you must initiate first step. Waiting for the other fellow to make a move creates discomfort. Be confident. Accept added responsibility. Listen carefully. But do things your way.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21)

Cycle begins to rise. Means today you should complete and forget depressing experiences. Start anew. Be refreshed, stimulated, and then act it! You'll find fulfillment.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21)

Take stock of assets, deficits. Listen to man of experience. Wise words come your way. Up to you to pay heed. Wonderful evening for making new contacts. Be at your best!

Leo (July 23 to August 21)

Favorable lunar aspect. Means constructive day ahead. Recently you have sensed important upcoming event. Now, your impression proves correct. Be gracious, diplomatic.

Virgo (August 22 to Sept. 21)

Evening fine for social affair. Stress versatility, humor. Time to expand, not to shrink back. Plan journeys. Communicate, write, read. Be discriminating but flexible.

Libra (Sept. 22 to Oct. 23)

Show strength. If others know you have allies, you will be treated with greater respect. You can accomplish more today than in past weeks. Means you get into rhythm of current activity.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21)

Person who carries rumor should be listened to with contempt, but not taken seriously. Actuality is far more aware of facts than those surrounding you. Remain calm. Tonight, relax with friends. Be cooperative.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 a Dec. 21)

May be difficult for you to understand minor delay. But necessary that you maintain good family relations. Otherwise much emotional energy is wasted. Tonight fine for entertaining at home.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

The more you insist, the less you are likely to achieve. Best to win your way through diplomacy. A nice smile, an encouraging word could bring reward. Exercise patience. Tonight cycle near peak.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Show you are willing to "carry the ball." Friends will rally to your bid. You could win popularity contest. Means your influence is felt. And your actions, words are appreciated.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20)

Like Gemini, look to future instead of brooding over past. No matter what has happened, you can make a better life for yourself in the near future. Begin to plan. Outline goals, purposes. Instead hopes. You can fulfill them!

If today is your birthday you are natural character analyst. You can size up persons almost at a glance. Use this ability next month. You'll need it!

GENERAL TENDENCIES:—Cycle up for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. New political leader could make known his views. Exciting day for those with foresight.

Private Hearing Of Coyne, Tower Will Be Held

By DON BANKIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The public may never know what James E. Coyne tells the royal commission on banking and finance.

The ex-governor of the Bank of Canada is expected to appear before Ontario Chief Justice Dana Porter and his six fellow commissioners later this month.

But it was learned Wednesday that the hearing—unlike others by the commission—will probably be held behind closed doors. And it appears unlikely that a transcript of evidence will be made public.

The same arrangement will apply to Graham Towers, who preceded Mr. Coyne as Canada's central banker. Neither will submit written briefs.

Dates for their appearances are not yet known. A list of witnesses for the commission's April, 16-hour, 1-sitting session is expected to be published next week.

AMPLE PRECEDENT

Public hearings by royal commissions are a matter of tradition—not law, officials said. There was ample precedent for in-camera sittings.

The commissioners are understood to feel that the testimony of Messrs. Coyne and Towers will be far more valuable if delivered in private.

Mr. Coyne has not spoken publicly since his epic clashes of his policies before the Senate committee which, with its Liberal majority, rejected the government's bid last year to have Parliament fire the Mr. Coyne now is employed in Toronto for a Winnipeg law firm.

TREASURER'S SALE of LAND FOR TAXES

CITY OF BELLEVILLE

COUNTY OF HASTINGS

To Wit:

By virtue of a warrant issued by the Mayor of the Corporation of the City of Belleville under his hand and the seal of the said Corporation, bearing the date of the eighth day of May, 1962, for the sale of lands in arrears of taxes in the City of Belleville will be held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, Belleville, Ontario, at the hour of 10.00 o'clock in the forenoon on the eighth day of November, 1962, for the taxes and costs are sooner paid.

Notice is hereby further given that the adjourned sale, if necessary, shall be held on Monday, November 19th, 1962, whereat the Corporation of the City of Belleville shall purchase any and all parcels of land if the price offered is less than the arrears of taxes and costs accrued.

Notice is hereby given that the list of lands for sale for arrears of taxes was published in the Ontario Gazette on the seventh day of July, 1962, and that the said list may be had at my office.

Horses of every size and description were on exhibition at Madoc yesterday. Here one of the saddle classes line up for the judge. The horse show saw dozens of ponies, saddle horses, carriage horses, four-horse hitches and even a drawing contest.

Madoc 4-H Calf Club members line up their calves for their Achievement Day at Madoc Fair. David Foley took top points in the event, but Beverley Ketcheson had the best calf and also took top honors for showmanship.

Fair president Leonard Trotter presents Simpsons-Sears silver milk pitcher to Mrs. Ray LaPaine for taking the most points in domestic exhibits within ten mile radius. Background of faces shows part of huge crowd which attended the annual fair.

Future 4-H Clubber is Dianne Jarrell, age 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Jarrell of Corbyville who was a big help to her father in showing his 14-head herd of Jerseys.

Crowd of 5,000 Attends Madoc Fair on Wednesday

Perfect fall weather, coupled with a well-rounded out fair program which saw something of interest for all, brought out a crowd estimated at more than 5,000 at the annual Madoc Fair yesterday.

Featured were three classes of horse racing, a biggest-ever horse show, Junior Farmer events, livestock exhibits, a jam-packed agricultural building and possibly the biggest midway ever to attend Madoc Fair.

And for those who wanted to get away from the cows and other livestock for the day, there was the usual varied platform program featuring both professional entertainment and near professional performances put on by district step dancers and old-time fiddlers.

Clarke T. Rollins, MPP, for East Hastings, officially opened the fair after introduction by fair president Leonard Trotter, who welcomed the thousands of patrons to the fall fair.

County Warden Harold Varty added his own words of welcome and extended congratulations to Madoc's Senator George S. White on his being named Speaker of the Senate.

RACES ENJOYED

Three classes of harness racing kept racing fans interested throughout the afternoon which got underway with a parade of public school children.

The 75 children taking part later were heard in school singing, while a group of junior baton twirling on the special events platform.

Tommy Mason, of Buckhorn, was in his usual element as master of ceremonies for the special events and for him it was like renewing acquaintances as he greeted old time fiddlers, step dancers who have been returning to Madoc Fair for many years.

Professional entertainment included Emerson, the King of Balance, the Flying Comets in a roller skating act, and comedian George Currie, with his balloon act.

The Madoc Brass Band also took part in the afternoon program, offering several numbers.

The Madoc Junior Farmers' junior square dance team, under the direction of Beverley Ketcheson, also displayed their dancing ability.

Jack Beeton of Belleville, "stepped" his way to victory in the senior step dancing event with Joe Berry, Cloyne, and Gerald McWilliams, Corbyville, placing second and third.

WOMAN BEST FIDDLER

Mrs. John Murphy of Madoc, was the old-time fiddling contest, as she fiddled her way to victory over Lionel Zacharish, of Picton, and James Rogers of Eganville.

There were also special events for each sex, with the ladies having their nail-driving contest, while the men vied with one another in seeing who could tie up six grain sacks in the shortest time.

The display of school children's work, and the showing of fruits and vegetables and the home cooking and handicraft arts of women throughout the district filled every bit of available space in the agricultural building. The show was stated to be the "biggest ever."

There were about 50 cheese shown in the special cheese building as well as several cheese displays. Exhibitors in the cheese classes included Ivan Sine, Orval Ray, John Dudgeon, Don Pollock, Delbert Carmen, Blake Johnston, Don Deline, Roy Huffman and Harold Elliott.

CALVES SHOWN

Seventeen calves were shown by members of the Madoc 4-H Calf Club achievement day won by David Foley. Among the first five competitors were Robert Keene, Beverly Ketcheson, Katherine Burnside and Lindsay Neal.

Beverley Ketcheson had the best calf in the show, and also topped the showmanship class in the dairy calf class. Kenneth Bedore of Marmora won the showmanship event for beef calves.

In the Inter-Club competition the Tweed Calf Club won the event. Other clubs, Madoc, Belleville, Stirling, Marmora, Wellston and Tweedmore, finished in the above order.

Winners in the Hastings 4-H Club Russell Oats contest were Owen Ketcheson, Don Mumby, Don Farrell, Calvin Sharpe and Kirk Carleton.

In the Madoc High School 4-H Forestry Club exhibit Katherine Burnside, Marie Foley, Harold Bailey, David Foley, Beverley Ketcheson and David Burnside were the winners.

Potato club winners were Marie Foley, Carol Foley, David Foley, Elizabeth Sager, Dale Graham and Ross Bailey.

In the hay-pasture management club Don Farrell, Kirck Carleton, Owen Ketcheson, Calvin Sharpe, Don Mumby and David Foley were the winners.

Cost Of Living Index Declines During August

Cheaper Food Given As Main Reason

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's cost of living declined during August, reversing a sharp upward trend in the three previous months.

The consumer price index—yardstick of urban area living costs—declined to 131 on Sept. 1 from 131.4 a month earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. Cheaper food was the main reason.

The index, which is based on 1949 living costs equalling 100, was nearly two points above its mark of 129.1 on Sept. 1 last year, and had fallen back to the same level it was at the start of July. During the three months May-July it had risen by 1 2-10 points.

Though food prices led the drop in August, other operating costs were lower too with price cuts on year-end 1962 car models, gasoline and fuel oil and some auto replacement parts.

HOUSING COSTS UP

The cost to Canadians of housing and clothing rose in August, but there was no measurable change in such things as health and personal care, tobacco and reading.

The price index decline in August followed a July dip in industrial materials, the index of average industrial wages and salaries—the latest figure available—was 188.3 compared with 186.7 a month earlier and 182.1 a year earlier.

The wages index, based on 1949 levels equalling 100, is compiled from a survey of firms employing more than 16 persons in a wide range of industries. It represents an average of total wages paid.

There was a sharp fall in food prices during August, with the index dropping to 126.8 from 128.4, thanks to large seasonal declines for fresh fruits and vegetables. These more than offset further price rises for beef and increases for ham, pork products, dairy products, fish and eggs.

FUEL MORE COSTLY

The housing index edged up to 130.2 from 130.1, with higher prices for fuel, furniture, floor coverings, textiles and other household equipment.

Clothing costs rose more sharply—the index jumped to 124.2 from 122.9—with the ending of summer sales.

The lower cost of driving and operating automobiles reduced the transportation index to 140.3 from 140.8. Prices actually rose for bicycles and television repairs reduced the index of recreation costs to 146.4 from 147.6.

The medical personal care costs held steady, with the index at 158.2, while the index of tobacco and reading remained at 119.

WARNS OF RAYS

LONDON (AP) — Dr. Alice Stewart of the department of social medicine at Oxford University said Thursday in a paper submitted to the British Medical Journal that leukemia — cancer of the blood—can be caused by medical x-rays. She said that about eight per cent of leukemia cases under review were caused by diagnostic x-rays and a further 3.6 per cent by therapeutic rays.

GOVT. RECEIVES CLUTCH ASSIST FROM SOCREDS

2 Non-Confidence Motions Defeated

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative government, with a clutch assist from the pivotal Social Credit contingent, has survived its first real test in Parliament's "House of Minorities."

Two back-to-back motions of non-confidence, one sponsored by the Liberals and the other by the New Democratic Party, were voted down Thursday night in a Commons chamber packed with spectators and electric with tension.

On both the count was 140 to 118, Conservatives and Social Credit lining up against the Liberals and NDP.

The voice came at the end of the fourth day of debate on the speech from the throne, read at last Thursday's opening of Parliament as outline of the administration's legislative intentions.

CUT AND THRUST

It climaxed a day of ripsnorting political warfare that produced the sharpest and most sustained cut and thrust since the session opened—and it has been a lively session from the outset with the possibility ever present that the three opposition parties might unite to overthrow the government.

Though the lineup for Thursday night's votes had been clearly indicated by prior statements of party spokesmen, there was an atmosphere of spine-tingling suspense as the roll of members was called by second clerk assistant Gordon Dubroy.

The diplomatic, official and public galleries were packed. Not a soul left the chamber between the start of the first vote around 9:45 p.m. EDT and the end of the second, half an hour later.

Five Social Credit MPs—including Deputy Leader Real Caouette—were the only members not in their seats when the crucial moment arrived.

The remaining 25 Social Credit MPs joined with the 115 Conservatives on each vote, opposing 100 Liberals and 18 NDP members.

SURVIVED THREE VOTES

It was the third time in three days that the government—which had the former massive majority wiped out in the June 18 federal election—had survived a non-confidence vote.

Tuesday night a Social Credit motion was defeated 223 to 34, only Social Credit supported that one, which was worded to make other opposition backing unlikely.

Following Thursday night's decision, Liberal Leader Pearson said his party will have to decide between now and next Tuesday whether to offer a further non-confidence motion during the throne speech debate.

Mr. Pearson said Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson had admitted framing the Social Credit amendment in such a way thas the other parties could not vote for it and "that would make it safe for them to vote with the government on our motion."

"I feel sorry for Mr. Thompson that he has to find reasons of that kind to explain his reason," said Mr. Pearson.

Mr. Thompson held a reporter

SPEAKER EJECTS SOCRED MEMBER FROM COMMONS

Failed to Heed Call for Order

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit MP Bernard Dumont from Bellechasse was ejected from the House of Commons by Speaker Marcel Lambert today when he failed to heed the Speaker's call for order.

When Mr. Dumont gave no sign of leaving the chamber voluntarily, the speaker called for the sergeant-at-arms, Lt.-Col. David V. Currie, to remove the MP. Mr. Dumont then left the chamber voluntarily.

Speaker Lambert took this rare step when, as soon as today's sitting began, Mr. Dumont took the floor on what he said was a question of privilege and began talking about low farm income in Quebec.

Mr. Lambert called 10 times for order. Mr. Dumont's microphone was cut off and due to his distance from the green gallery and the general murmuring in the House, his remarks could not be heard.

WAVES FINGER

With the internal public address system switched over to the Speaker—but with Mr. Dumont still on his feet, waving his finger at the Conservative benches—Mr. Lambert said the rules required MPs to sit down when the Speaker rises.

Mr. Lambert said that since Mr. Dumont was new in the House, he would take no action this time. But he told the Social Credit MP to study the rules on behavior in the Commons.

As soon as the Speaker finished, Mr. Dumont was up

Gives Up Last of Six Children In Effort to Get Others Back

LONDON (AP)— Mrs. Margaret Edwards said today she had given away her six children because she couldn't afford to keep them.

The children are Elizabeth 6, Kathleen 5, Barbara 4, Janet 3, Arthur 24 months and Janet, born a month ago.

Mrs. Edwards lives in a trailer with her parents in the nearby countryside.

She was married at 17 to Kenneth Edwards.

Earlier this year Mrs. Edwards, now 24, and her 27-year-old husband parted. There has been no divorce.

The mother said that she put Elizabeth, Kathleen and Barbara in a children's home. A family in Newcastle adopted Brian. A couple in Peterborough adopted Arthur.

Mrs. Edwards gave baby Janet to Mrs. Pauline Rowell who also lives in a trailer.

"I could either live on national assistance and keep Janet, without any hope of getting Elizabeth, Kathleen and Barbie back", said Mrs. Edwards, "or I could give her away and go to work.

"It's been a heart-breaking decision, but now I've got a full-time job in a factory and I hope to save and have a home of my own. Then I'll be able to get back some of my poor children".

In Britain, parents who give away their children can ask to have them back—but not if the children have been legally adopted.

Political Fur Begins to Fly When Roberts Takes Stand

TORONTO (CP) — The political fur began to fly today shortly after Attorney-General Kelso Roberts appeared before the Ontario royal commission on crime to defend the government's record in law administration.

Lawyers for the Liberal and New Democratic parties interrupted with charges that the minister was making a political speech rather than giving evidence, and eventually the commissioner, Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, stepped in and admonished the attorney - general against "glorifying the record."

Mr. Roberts opened with a hair-splitting rebuttal to Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer's speech of last November which touched off the inquiry, but ran into objections when he prefaced it with a detailed account of his own record in politics.

New Democratic Party counsel Andrew Brewin and Liberal counsel B. J. MacKinnon immediately objected.

Mr. Brewin noted that the commissioner had warned Wednesday against introducing political propaganda and added: "He is just giving us a political speech."

Mr. Justice Roach permitted the minister to tell about his record observing "maybe he will be a little warm up to the subject a bit."

Mr. MacKinnon noted that the minister and commission counsel Roland F. Wilson each had type - written material in front of him and commented that Mr. Roberts was obviously well prepared to answer certain of the questions.

The commissioner allowed the minister to go ahead but Mr. Brewin soon suggested that the attorney - general's evidence would be more valuable if he were questioned in the same way as other witnesses rather than being permitted to read prepared material.

Counsel procedure seems to me not conducive to getting the facts", Mr. Brewin said.

"I have never heard evidence given this way," he added.

"You're hearing it now and I'm not going to stop him," Mr. Justice Roach said.

However, the commissioner himself interrupted Mr. Roberts shortly afterwards as the attorney-general told how authorities had put three major gambling houses out of business in four years and described this as "a job well done."

"Now, you just tell us facts without glorifying the record," Mr. Justice Roach advised.

"I'll be happy to do just that," Mr. Roberts said.

Getting down to his own defence against Mr. Wintermeyer's allegations of maladministration, the attorney - general said:

"I have been true to my oath of office."

He said the Wintermeyer speech was a "denigration of my personal character."

Murray Gaunt, Liberal, Wins Huron-Bruce Election

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP)—Murray Gaunt, a 37-year-old Toronto man in provincial politics, Thursday night ended 29 years of Progressive Conservative rule in Huron-Bruce riding to become the youngest member of the Ontario legislature.

He'll be sworn in as the 94th Liberal member of the 108-seat legislature.

Mr. Gaunt drew 6,922 votes to the 6,203 cast for George McCutcheon, the Progressive Conservative candidate in the two-party race.

The result had no appreciative result on the standings in the Conservative-heavy legislature. The PCs have 67 seats, the New Democratic Party five and two seats are still vacant. Mr. Gaunt, a television commentator on station CKNC-TV here, is two years younger than Robert Gibson, the Liberal member for Kenora who previously was the youngest legislature member.

His victory prompted an immediate call for a general election by John Wintermeyer, Ontario Liberal leader.

"The government cannot withstand or set its back against public opinion in Ontario which is obviously demanding a change of government," he said. "This is a tremendous victory in view of the fact that Huron-Bruce has been held by the Conservatives since 1943."

Mr. Gaunt, too, thought of an election call this autumn.

"Personally, I feel there will be an election next June," he said. "Today's vote showed general dissatisfaction with the present government."

Besides his job as assistant farm editor at CKNC radio and TV, Mr. Gaunt, a graduate of Ontario Agricultural College, still deploys some of his talents on the Gaunt turkey farm at Wilkie Church, 10 miles from here.

Premier Roberts had little to say of the election result, but indicated it will not sway him into a decision on a general election.

"I haven't given a general election much thought," he said. "It's a byelection, we lost and I'm disappointed."

Mr. McCutcheon, at 39, an eight-year veteran of municipal politics, said he does not feel bitter in defeat. "I feel it has been a wonderful experience. I am ready to start again."

The reeve of Brussels, Ont., whose occupation is a car dealer, said he intends to return to his garage there and continue as warden of Huron

TRADE DEFICIT UP $600,000 DURING JULY

Heavy Increase In Trade With U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp jump in import buying during July helped tack another $600,000 onto Canada's trade deficit, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

It left the country with a commodity trade deficit—excess of imports over export—of $136,600,000 for the first seven months of the year, in contrast to the small $10,900,000 deficit a year earlier.

Heavy increases in trade with the United States, mostly in imports, told most of the story.

Total imports of $562,100,000 were 22.4 per cent higher than the year-earlier mark of $459,300,000.

About three-quarters of the rise was due to purchases from the U.S.

The month's total exports of $425,500,000 were a close to matching imports, were only 5.9 per cent higher than the July, 1961, mark, of $401,800,000. Exports to the U.S., however, were up 12.2 per cent. For the seven-month period to the end of July imports were 15.2 per cent higher at $1,711,600,000 than the 222,200,000 in the corresponding period last year. There were increases in July imports from all major trade areas except Britain.

Total exports in January-July advanced 11.3 per cent to $1,-211,200,000 from $1,075,100,000, with all of the gain accounted for by sales to the United States.

One factor affecting the trade figures is the change in exchange value of the Canadian dollar, which has had the effect of increasing the Canadian dollar values of both exports and imports.

Detailed trade figures for the January-July periods of this year and last, in millions of dollars:

Exports	1962	1961
United States	$2,145.4	$1,737.7
United Kingdom	500.4	509.4
Other Commwlth	189.0	183.7
All others	749.2	770.5
Total	3,575.0	3,211.2
Imports
United States -	2,698	2,189.3
United Kingd.m	340.4	363.5
Other Commwlth	174.2	153.2
All others	587.2	516.2
Total	3,711.8	3,222.2

The report gave no information on the main commodities involved in the trade changes.

Man Is Fined $200 for Whipping Horse

HAMILTON (CP) — For repeatedly whipping his horse, 39-year-old Salitcet man was fined $200 or two months in jail in court Thursday.

"It's too bad somebody can't take a whip and give you some of your own medicine," Magistrate John E. Robinson told William Greathead who had pleaded not guilty.

Greathead, operator of the Circle C Ranch at Salitcet, earlier testified he had hit the horse "to make him obey".

Boston Socialite Admits Slaying Man Found Nude in Her Dwelling

BOSTON (AP) — Police said today a pretty young girl has admitted slaying an electronics engineer whose nude body was found in her luxurious Beacon Hill apartment.

Edward Sherry, lieutenant of detectives in charge of homicide, Cliff. 21, was booked on a murder charge.

The girl, accused of the shooting of Piero Brentani, 27. His body with a .22-calibre bullet in the back of the head was found Wednesday in the girl's paddocked bedroom.

Sherry said the girl was calm, almost "stoic" as she told her story. He said she gave no reason for the slaying.

She identified a .22-calibre pistol, found in the bedroom of the apartment she shared with her socially prominent grandmother, Mrs. Barbara Pierce Bingham, 73, as the murder weapon.

Mrs. Pearmain found the body when she went to awaken the girl for a 10-day vacation. Police were called and a homicide squad started a search for the girl.

The pretty niece of movie actor Montgomery Cliff, who separated shortly after she entered Massachusetts General Hospital, Police found her after getting the lead from a taxicab driver.

James Maxyck, administrator of the hospital emergency ward, said the girl "just walked in and said to me here's the anyone else looking for beatings?" He said Miss Cliff was crying and "gave the appearance of a person looking for a psychiatrist."

De Gaulle Faces Showdown Vote As Govt. Falls

Censured for Seeking Change by Referendum

OF from orters-AP

PARIS — An all-out election battle between President de Gaulle and France's traditional parties shaped up today after the collapse of the government on an anti-de Gaulle censure vote early this morning.

The government of Premier Georges Pompidou toppled after 280 of the 480 National Assembly deputies censured the government with the charge that de Gaulle is violating the constitution in his plan to seek approval by referendum for his proposal to make future presidents by popular vote.

Pompidou was expected to hand his resignation to de Gaulle later today following the vote which exceeded by 39 the number needed to fell the first legislature of the four-year-old Fifth Republic.

Opposition deputies sang the Marseillaise and Gaullist deputies shouted "Vive de Gaulle" in reference to the anti-Gaullist Secret Army organization in Assembly Speaker Jacques Chaban-Delmas proclaimed the official result.

ENDS BITTER DEBATE

The ballot came at the end of the bitter 10-day campaign by de Gaulle's Oct. 28 referendum. It began Thursday two hours after de Gaulle gave a radio address to the French people he would not withdraw his referendum proposal in the referendum.

At the moment de Gaulle's proposal seems likely to win a majority in the referendum. The general is popular and trusted, and many voters will probably follow his advice.

But victory for de Gaulle in the referendum will not start a constitutional crisis. The opposition is prepared to take the case to the constitutional council whose members, according to reliable sources, feel sentiment by referendum is unconstitutional.

The council is a sort of supreme Court to rule on constitutional questions, and the constitution gives it the final decision on such matters is final.

Furthermore, de Gaulle's popularity may get a boost on Sunday that candidates for Parliament, to be elected on that day, the middleroad parties gang up on the Gaullists in the election, the president could ask for a new Gaullist assembly later in the year.

The issue went to a vote early today after Pompidou warned the opposition deputies not to justify themselves before the nation but to applaud the government over de Gaulle's proposal.

DISSOLVE SATURDAY

A degree dissolving the National Assembly is expected to be published today, after the government remaining in a caretaker capacity until after the election campaign and takes place early next month.

Parliament's next seven-year term would end in early 1969.

The law says the election must take place between 20 and 40 days after the assembly is dissolved.

All political groups in the assembly except de Gaulle's own Union for the New Republic party joined in censuring the government over de Gaulle's referendum, which requests authorization to take the presidential vote out of the hands of the parliamentary and national and local public figures.

Regional Hospital Council Holds Meeting in Kingston

Kingston General Hospital was host to over 80 representatives from Eastern Ontario attending the annual meeting of regional hospital council of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Representatives from Belleville were: Mr. W. F. O. Deschesl, superintendent of Belleville General Hospital, Mrs. Weese, chief dietitian, Mr. Wishart, and Mrs. Jones, members of the Board of Governors of the hospital, Mrs. Women's Aids of Belleville General Hospital was also well represented.

The theme of the meeting was "The Changing Scene in Hospitals", Dr. W. D. Piercey, Executive Director of the Canadian Hospital Association, in his luncheon address, emphasized the importance of human relationships in hospital work and warned against the danger of routine becoming more important than the patient in the large impersonal modern hospital.

He outlined the changes which national and provincial hospital insurance had brought about and the necessity of increasing government control.

Dr. Piercey stated that there is a much greater need locally for interested volunteer books of director and women's auxiliaries to insure local autonomy.

He expressed his feeling that hospital should be more active as community centres in the public health program, and that at least one hospital in the country should be given the money and the facilities necessary to do a thorough job of experimental research into different methods of hospital administration.

Ronald J. C. McGeown, architectural consultant on hospital construction spoke on changes in hospital design brought about by pressure such as the shortage of graduate nurses, the movement of population to the suburbs of large cities and other factors.

G. S. Roberts, director of public relations for the Ontario Hospital Association showed a film "Heart of the Love of Life" and spoke on the role of public relations in the life or any modern hospital.

The annual meeting was conducted by the chairman, W. F. O. Deschesl, superintendent of Belleville General Hospital. Reports were heard from the Women's Auxiliary, the accounting section, the laundry section and the chairman of the administrators conference.

Mr. Deschesl reporting that as a result of recommendation from regional council No. 9, the Ontario Hospital Association had formed a personnel section, and at its inaugural meeting in Toronto where 153 hospitals were represented, G. Wilson of Brockville General Hospital was appointed its chairman.

The slate of officers elected for 1965-1963 was: Honorary Chairman, F. F. Armstrong, Kingston; Honorary vice-chairman, W. F. O. Deschesl, Belleville; Chairman, Gordon Hay, Brockville; Secretary Treasurer — James Fairfield, Brockville.

HERBERT ASHLEY KEEGAN

In ill health for the past sixteen days, Herbert Ashley "Bob" Keegan, 76 South Front Street, in this city, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday. He was born in this city, 58 years ago, being the son of Mrs. Margaret Keegan and the late Frank Keegan and had been a continuous resident of this city, where he was well known.

Mr. Keegan was well-known to the many anglers of the city and district for he assisted his father for some years in running a bait house just below the CPR tracks. There was always a friendly argument as to where the fish were and how big, when the anglers called in for bait. He was of a friendly nature and will be sincerely missed by a wide circle of friends.

He was a member of St. Thomas' Church and is survived by his sister, Mrs. Swetzerville United Church, in 1892, which was later torn down and built in 1825. He was deeply influenced by the religious beliefs and principles of the pioneers and the original settlers to their descendants. Families such as the Martins, Empeys, Switzvilles, Millers, McKims and Switzers of whose blood descendents in t e married. In later years he found these records so interesting that he included them in his extensive historical studies which became a hobby with him.

Upon the death of his father in 1899, he left the farm and moved with his mother and four brothers to Napanee, and obtained his education in the Napanee Collegiate Institute. This was followed by twenty years experience with Rose's Drug Store in Tamworth. He then went as a druggist at the Ontario College of Pharmacy in Toronto in 1907. He went west, that same year to work in the harvest and to look for a location in which to start a business for himself. Later he was employed in the Drug Store in Wilkie, Sask. While in Govan he served as the 1st Sunday School superintendent of the Govan Methodist Congregation. In 1908 he opened a drug store in the pioneer village of Raymore, Sask., where there was only a general store, a restaurant, a grain warehouse and some implement dealer construction.

WENT BACK TO WEST

On July 28th, 1909, he married Myrtle Woods at the home in Tamworth, taking her back west with him to establish a home on the "Canadian Prairies". Here for more than 40 years he and his wife made their five daughters and three sons a prominent part in all the activities of the community. Among the many offices he held in the village are first secretary of the Board of Trade, two terms as chairman of the school board, which he saw grow from a one-room school to four rooms, and was active on the Board of the United Church as steward and secretary-treasurer and on one occasion delegate to Presbytery. Other official work included paymaster for the Pool Elevator, local agent for the Saskatchewan Transportation Bus line (and the Greyhound Bus which preceded it). He organized two rural telephone companies, covering an area of 200 square miles, was secretary at one time of three rural telephone companies and the Raymore Village Telephone Company. He was a regular auditor for various associations. He enjoyed curling as long as his health permitted.

In 1950 he sold his home and grocery store outright to Mr. G. Drummond Clancy, MP. Since then he and his wife have resided in Belleville, where he retired from all public work. However, he continued as a druggist on a part time basis in various drug stores in Belleville and Trenton.

He was a member of Hollowway Street United Church, and active when health permitted in the work of the congregation. He is survived by his wife, the former Myrtle Woods; three sons, R. Sidney Martin of this city, Ronald Martin of Ottawa, Aubrey Martin of Vancouver, B.C.; five daughters, Marguerite, (Mrs. Aubrey Woodcock), of Napanee; Doris (Mrs. R. J. French) of Ottawa; Roberta (Mrs. A. M. Atchison) of Nanaimo; Miss Edna Martin of Toronto; Miss Enid Martin of Kingston, and two brothers, Karl Martin of Napanee, and Ross Martin of Portage la Prairie, Manitoba. Also surviving are 14 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

JOSEPH COOK
Bloomfield

PICTON — Following an illness extending over a two-year period, Joseph Cook, of Bloomfield, passed away in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Sunday, September 30th.

Service was held Wednesday afternoon from the funeral home of G. M. Hicks & Son, with Rev. Bowen Squire of Crofton and Pastor R. D. Black of the Picton Baptist Church officiating.

Interment was in Burr's cemetery.

Bearers were: J. Donald Baxter, Robert B. Otto, Jas. Gough, William Osborne, Gordon Gilbert and Bernard Freeborne.

Lovely floral tributes included one from neighbors and friends, Prince Edward Agricultural Society.

Mr. Cook was born on February 28th, 1886, in Leamington, Essex, England, son of Thomas Joseph Cook and his wife, Harriet Emma Brand. He had resided in Bloomfield for the past six years and prior to that for 34 years on Christian Street. In the latter community he was active in church work and one of his great pleasures was the decoration of the edifice for weddings and anniversaries. A farmer, he was especially interested in poultry, and for many years exhibited at the county fair in Picton. He served as a director of Prince Edward Agricultural Society. His cheerful nature and helpful aid made him many friends.

Surviving are his wife, the former Iona Ames; two sons

HAROLD EMPEY MARTIN

Harold Empey Martin, 31 Howard Street and a resident of this city for the past 30 years, died suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday afternoon.

Born in Belleville on Sept. 23rd, 1885, the deceased was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Martin. He was brought up in Switzerville where he was a member of the early Methodist history and tradition. He witnessed the demolition of one of the earliest Methodist churches built in Canada. This was Switzer's Chapel built in 1826, which for many years the main place of worship for the area west of Kingston as far as Belleville, and north to the limits of the settlement. He saw the erection of a new brick church, now the Switzerville United Church, in 1892, which was the fourth built in 1825. He was deeply influenced by the religious beliefs and principles of the pioneers and the original settlers to their descendants. Families such as the Martins, Empeys, Switzvilles, Millers, McKims and Switzers of whose blood descendents in t e married. In later years he found these records so interesting that he included them in his extensive historical studies which became a hobby with him.

Members Vote To Improve Park Dale Hall

Park Dale Ratepayers voted funds to provide for insulating the ceiling of the Community Centre Hall, at their regular monthly meeting last Wednesday night. The money will be placed at the disposal of the Park Dale Community Centre Board, advertising body for the hall to which the city of Belleville holds title. It was hoped that the city council might assist with the project.

Mr. Charles Keeble, secretary-treasurer of the board, declared that the improvement is in the tradition of the Park Dale area. The Community Centre was conceived, planned, and built by the original residents of the area, through volunteer labor. Mr. Keeble also stated that heavy screening had been installed on the hall windows, as a preventive measure against acts of vandalism such as were perpetrated last summer.

Calling the meeting to order at 8.30 p.m., Association president John Morman asked new members to rise. Mr. I. Creelman, Mr. A. Hamill and Mr. S. Scott were introduced, as well as executive member, Mr. John Ellis.

The president also introduced Mr. Fox, Harnburg of Foxboro, an observer at the meeting, who represented a group of Foxboro citizens planning to form a Ratepayers' Association.

Mr. R. Kraft, assistant city engineer, introduced Mr. M. Verbeeten, the new engineer for the sanitary sewer construction presently in progress, who was attending at Mr. Kraft's behest.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

Mr. Verbeeten, on loan to the city of Belleville from the staff of Gore & Storrie, Consulting Engineers, Toronto, described the rapid construction progress to date and some of the problems encountered. He answered numerous questions made by the members and clarified many points. Mr. Verbeeten's assistance was much appreciated by the ratepayers, and was acknowledged by a hearty vote of thanks.

Mr. Ivan May and association vice-president Vic Allen volunteered to serve as a special committee to attend the Ontario Municipal Board hearing of the Park Dale Ratepayers' Association zoning plan. The committee is to submit the report at city hall on October 11th, and report the facts at the next Ratepayers' Association meeting.

Questions arose on the contents of a letter circulated in the area by the Bell Telephone Company. In part, the letter stated: "the cost of sewer connections installed at the time of present construction will be included in local improvement taxes, whereas future connections would have to be paid in cash by the owners."

Asked to advise on this matter, Mr. Kraft explained that the letter was not quite complete. The local improvement tax will include the cost of the sewer main past each lot and the lateral to the property line. However, after the present construction work is closed, cost of further lateral would have to be paid in cash.

"This merely means," said Mr. Kraft, "that if you own a vacant lot and have the lateral to it put in now, the cost will be included in your tax assessment." "On the other hand," he added, "if the lateral to a vacant lot is not put in now, the cost will have to be paid in cash when it is eventually installed."

The attending association members expressed their appreciation, and the meeting adjourned at 10 p.m.

Heavy Rainfall Across District Is Reported

After a better than average rainfall in September, the month of October is also starting out to be damp.

Rain fell most of the night and continued on this morning as an intermittent drizzle with a total of 3.32 inches reported to have fallen at noon today.

Farmers report sufficient rain has fallen to provide good plowing conditions; low levels in wells and district streams indicate that much more rain is needed before the freeze-up in December.

Dare Devils Perform Well Despite Continuous Rain

Despite the inclement weather which was somewhat reminiscent of a tropical monsoon, close to 300 people turned out for the performance of Paul Riddell's Canadian Dare Devils at the Belleville Fairgrounds yesterday evening.

Despite the very greasy and muddy track conditions, which would undoubtedly have provided a first class setting for a swamp buggy show, Riddell's crew of drivers managed to slither, slide and slip their 1965 Dodge Coronet 2662 Dodges through the muck and show their ability with a number of low speed stunts.

The mire prevented any attempt at getting up to the high speeds normally required for the show's stunts and the mud and water resulted in a couple of stalls and drivers suddenly finding themselves (and their cars) enmeshed in a jump ramp also ways instead of straight on.

The first part of the program included a number of intricate driving stunts with both low and high ramps. The second part of the show consisted of a number of crash scenes using older cars.

REAL EXCITEMENT

Following a couple of rolls off a jump ramp, which proved both the durability of these old-er cars and the daring of the drivers, there were several "no crashes" off the jump ramp, which provided some real excitement for the crowd.

By this time the continuing rain had rendered the track so muddy and slippery that it was a physical impossibility for the drivers to get their cars up to the speeds necessary for their normal show.

The program was reluctantly concluded by the performers but it was obvious that the crowd felt they'd done the best they could and appreciated it.

The show was sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club and it is anticipated that Paul Riddell's Dare Devils will be back again next year with more favorable weather conditions.

Street Curbing Being Put in At Rapid Rate

TRENTON — Trenton has had, this year, more curbing than during all the other years to the end of the war. Of the 35 miles of roads in the city, seven miles had curbs at the end of last year, and two-and-a-half miles of asphalt. Now 12 miles have been rebuilt, with curbs, by the end of this year. The eight-nal two miles, approved last spring, were completed several weeks ago, and a further three miles were approved by the Ontario Municipal Board. The second project is proceeding at the rate of about 200 feet per day.

At the present rate of progress, it will take about 11 years to complete work on all the streets in Trenton. Eric Aldersey, the town engineer, pointed out that the road program, which includes the curbs, is responsible for almost doubled staff of the engineering works department this summer. Present employment in the department is 45 men. Normal summer employment is 25 men.

Car Runs Into Hydro Pole, $150 Damages

TRENTON — About $150 damage was done Wednesday to a car when it ran into a hydro pole on Sidney Street, in Trenton. Alfred Squire, 39, of 74 Bay Street, Trenton, owner and driver of the car, told police he was travelling south on Sidney Street about 6.00 p.m. Near the Skill Tool plant he had swung out to pass a parked cement truck, and caught one wheel in the soft shoulder of the road. He lost control of the car and struck a hydro pole, damaging the grill, radiator, hood and left front fender of the car. He was not injured.

$700 Damage In Accident

TRENTON — Leslie Charles Rath, of Colborne, was involved in a single car traffic accident at 8.40 p.m. Thursday, on No. 2 highway, between Brighton and Colborne, according to the Brighton Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police. Details of the accident are not yet available, but the damage to the right side of Mr. Rath's car has been estimated at $700.

Sewer Project May Be Done By Month's End

TRENTON — Trenton's Sidney St. sewer project may be completed by the end of this month, according to town engineer, Eric Alderey. Although Mr. Alderey is not officially responsible for the project, he considers it his duty to keep track of all projects, by municipal and provincial government in the town.

Two gangs have been working on the north end of the sewer, he says. The sewer will be carried north to the last house on Sidney St. in the town. Although this is well within the town, all the land to the north is zoned for industrial development, and no more houses will be built in that area. If a large plant is to be built north of the sewer, Mr. Alderesy suggested, the town might be willing to extend the sewer.

Connections from this sewer will be laid to all properties along the street, even the vacant lots, thereby having to tear up the road later. The connecting lines will be laid to the edge of the lot by the town and the owner of the lot will be billed for the job, by the town.

Trenton Sewer Project May Be Done By Month's End

TRENTON — Trenton's Sidney St. sewer project may be completed by the end of this month, according to town engineer, Eric Alderey. Although Mr. Alderey is not officially responsible for the project, he considers it his duty to keep track of all projects, by municipal and provincial government in the town.

Two gangs have been working on the north end of the sewer, he says. The sewer will be carried north to the last house on Sidney St. in the town. Although this is well within the town, all the land to the north is zoned for industrial development, and no more houses will be built in that area. If a large plant is to be built north of the sewer, Mr. Alderesy suggested, the town might be willing to extend the sewer.

Connections from this sewer will be laid to all properties along the street, even the vacant lots, thereby having to tear up the road later. The connecting lines will be laid to the edge of the lot by the town and the owner of the lot will be billed for the job, by the town.

Child Struck By Truck, No Charges Laid

PICTON — Condition of 3½-year-old Richard Ablarde was reported as satisfactory today in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. The child suffered head injuries Thursday afternoon when struck by a delivery truck driven by Clesson Allan, on Main Street. The boy's father, Lawrence Ablarde, had lifted his son from a delivery truck and raced him on the sidewalk. The boy darted between two parked cars on the street. The impact of his head against the headlight broke the glass, and he suffered cuts.

Town constable Ronald Robin investigated. No charges have been laid.

PLANTING RECORD SET

HAVANA, Cuba (Reuters) — A probable world tree-planting record was set Sunday in Oriente province when 1,020,000 saplings were planted in a reforestation project in two hours and 20 minutes, the forestry department said today. It said 35,030 people responded to an appeal for 10,000 volunteers to plant six types of hardwood trees, mostly mahogany.

GOVT. RECEIVES

that Social Credit support of the government was based on the belief that another election this winter is wrong.

SEEKS POSITIVE STEPS

"If Prime Minister Diefenbaker can produce positive legislation," said Mr. Thompson, "then I can see the minority government lasting for some time. If he can't, an election will come a little later."

The government's own motion to implement the contents of the throne speech in general terms is scheduled for next Thursday, the fifth and last day of the throne speech debate.

Thursday's debate was highlighted by an assault on the government's economic record by J. W. Pickersgill (Lib.-Bonaventure-Twillingate), and an equally fiery defence of the record by Finance Minister Fleming, former finance minister.

Mr. Pickersgill, repeating the Liberal contention that the government hid the facts of Canada's economic situation in the period before the June election, said he had no "reasonable doubt" that the government before the election put a spending program May 3—the day the dollar was devalued to 92½ cents U.S.

He also made a charge—subsequently denied by Mr. Fleming—that the day Parliament was dissolved in April, or the following day, Mr. Fleming as minister instructed government departments to spend $100,000,000 out of spending estimates.

"That is false—that is a falsification of the record," he said, replying to Mr. Pickersgill's assertion that new spending was a priority program began in May.

CUTS INTO FLEMING

"The record can get up and say it is false," retorted Mr. Pickersgill. "He can get up and say it is false, but I say it is true, if he dares. He has been repudiated and cast aside by the prime minister. He is not in his purpose and now he is on his rebound."

The Liberal MP rapped the government for not asking this session for a vote to give the emergency economic measures legislation force after the June election — there had been no mention of them in the throne speech.

"We just have taxation by television and order-in-council."

A bristling Mr. Fleming, speaking after Mr. Pickersgill, said the opposition of making "false statements, false accusations and false charges."

Replying to the "utterly irresponsible statements" of the November session, Mr. Fleming stoutly insisted there was no estimates spending before the dissolution of Parliament. It was at the end of April that pressures began to develop and deficits began to develop.

NOMINATION

He denied an earlier suggestion by Walter Gordon (L—Toronto Davenport) that he was forced to appeal to the international Monetary Fund for aid, and to accept devaluation as a condition for the aid.

"We did not go to the fund for approval of a rate that we ourselves had decided before-hand on," he said, and they gave it their warm approval. No officials were present.

Mr. Fleming said government finances were then in good shape—"we were flush almost with cash than we had ever been." He said the situation during which I was minister of finance, . . . The emergency that arose was caused entirely by adverse exchange reserves."

Allegations of Canadian dollars developed on the last week-end of the election campaign, that the government had, on the night of the election was to "restore confidence," and a run set in which that week reached "enormous proportions," forcing the government to take action.

Hall and Fleming had been elected with a clear majority, Mr. Fleming maintained, it was "grim" that "emergency" measures would have been avoided.

HITS THOMPSON REMARK

Judy La Marsh (L—Niagara Falls) attacked a statement attributed to Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson that his party's non-confidence was specifically framed Tuesday to make the Liberals and NDP support the government. She said:

"I have never heard of such a lack of dignity, lack of honour, lack of understanding of his responsibilities . . . the cheapest political trick."

He said he instructed Hatch not to give the same to anyone, including himself—and OPP Commissioner W. H. Clark.

"I was suspicious myself that there were leaks around there somewhere," the deputy said. "I was not surprised when Sgt. Hatch made the request.

Discussing Mr. Maloney, he said the late minister never had approached him for protection with gambling or clubs, but would not deny that he might have told Sergeant Thompson that—as that official testified—that Mr. Conway had said Mr. Maloney had "been in the department's hair for some time."

"He was very forthright and left very few stones unturned," Mr. Hall said.

IDENTIFIES CALLER

Magistrate Thompson, who knew Mr. Maloney, had identified his caller as the minister in testimony before the commission, but Mr. Conway said he had not been so positive when he saw the attorney-general and deputy in Mr. Hall's office and the call about his gaming case.

Mr. Hall said he had been instructed to proceed with the case and eventually registered the conviction.

The magistrate had testified he felt "intimidated" and "depressed" under questioning by the attorney-general, but Mr. Winterowd said he did not sense the atmosphere of the meeting.

He said Mr. Maloney later denied the whole incident in a conversation with the attorney-general.

Examination of Mr. Winterowd—who was called as a witness by the commission—was largely devoted to attempts by Mr. Wilson to determine whether material in the November speech had been checked fully and to find out where information had come from.

He said the speech was a composite but "firm: "I'm sorry." Mr. Winterowd said he had waived protection for himself but would not divulge information.

INFORMATION CHECKED

The information had been checked as far as it could be before he finally decided to take responsibility of making it public. It was up to the commission to take it from there.

Mr. Wilson prodded for more background, the charge of "one hidden job" was resolved by B. J. MacKinnon, counsel for the Liberal party.

Mr. Arthur Beach, the commissioner, quickly admonished both lawyers that he wanted no "political swordplay" or "political propaganda" before the commission.

Mr. Wintermeyer told the commission he felt he was justified in making the November speech on the basis of information which he brought to him and concern being expressed over allegations of gambling.

Deputy Attorney - General Common defended the manner in which provincial charters had been given in 1957 to three major gambling clubs—the Mossland, the McDermott-Feeley operation at Cooksville and the Frontier Club at Niagara Falls.

The clubs previously had federal charters and he had heard Attorney - General Roberts and Toronto lawyer, Louis Herman of Toronto, that they were building operations for production and should give up federal incorporation and accept provincial ones with restrictive clauses.

The clubs agreed to do this, and for a time the OPP was ordered to stop "harassing" their clientele to give them a chance to show good faith. However, no undertaking in this effect had been given the clubs, and no restrictions were placed on actual raids.

In response to questioning by New Democratic Party counsel Patrick Lawlor, Mr. Common said officials suspected at the time that Mr. Herman's principals were McDermott and Feeley in the case of the Cooksville Club, although not the other two.

"But the same man was acting for all—didn't you think that strange?" he was asked.

"Not necessarily," Mr. Common replied. It had not been thought necessary to ask who were the "moving powers" in the clubs.

While all the charters now have been cancelled, Mr. Lawler said that for three years the clubs had operated in contravention of the charters and asked whether information on this had come to the deputy.

AWARE OF PROVISIONS

Mr. Common said the provincial police were aware of the provisions of the new charters, although he did not know giving them particular instructions.

Mr. Common said in connection with a report turned in by Staff Sgt. John Anderson of the anti-gambling squad that the high-pressure conspiracy trio of gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley, but no minister and the government had placed no restrictions on possession of Gordon Ford, who handled the Crown case.

"Any suggestion of suppression of evidence in this instance is completely unsupported by any facts whatsoever," Mr. Roberts said.

TORONTO (CP)—A Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature interested in 1958 to obtain the withdrawal of prosecutions from about 30 pinball machine operators, the provincial royal commission on crime was told Thursday.

W. C. Bowman, director of public prosecutions, testified that following a protest from Maurice Hamilton (Renfrew North), between 25 and 40 gaming house charges against storekeepers with machines were reduced to five or five to seven as "warnings" to the others. It lost was the first time Mr. Hamilton's name came into the long inquiry, although there have been many references to the orange Renfrew politician — the late miners minister James Mosley of Renfrew South—who was alleged to have interfered fre-quently in the administration of justice in the area around his constituency.

As Thursday's commission appearance of Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer brought political flurries, it was announced that the chief witness today will be Attorney-General Kelso Roberts, expected to reply to allegations of laxity in dealing with gamblers and "social" clubs.

Developments Thursday included:

1. Questioning of Mr. Winterowd, who presided at a General charge that commission counsel Roland F. Wilson was doing a "political hatchet job" and Mr. Wintermeyer refused to name sources for material in his legislature speech for last November which precipitated the inquiry.

2. Deputy Attorney - General W. B. Common testified that in 1957 he suspected there were information leaks to criminals from the Ontario Provincial Police, but had heard only rumors and suspicion until an anti-gambling squad sergeant got permission to conceal the name of a newspaper informant from his superiors.

3. Mr. Common testified that he had been "astounded, disgusted and angered" when he learned in August — the commission had previously heard — that there was a cache that he was getting $800 a month from gamblers. He has already denied the allegation.

4. The deputy said an undercover investigation of OPP blockages already had been terminated when he learned of this, asserting suggestions that a payoff in the attorney-general's department may have had something to do with ending the investigation.

Mr. Common took issue with earlier evidence by Toronto Magistrate Fred Thompson that the magistrate had been "intimidated" by Attorney-General Roberts when he reported that a telephone caller identifying himself as Mr. Maloney had expressed concern about the outcome of a gaming case he was trying in 1956.

"During the day two key figures in the county—gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley—lost appeals in the Ontario Provincial Police information illegally. Their alleged go - between, former OPP anti-gambling squad constable Robert J. Wright, also lost out.

The three were sentenced last March to 18 months in prison. The appeal court also set aside the acquittal on a charge of bribing OPP Const. George Gore, and ordered a new trial.

It was the diary of Scott, written while acting as a double agent, which led to the charges and provided much of the information in Mr. Winterowd's accusatory speech of last November.

Besides the names of Mr. Maloney and Mr. Hamilton, that of a third politician—Arthur C. Wishart, Progressive Conservative MLA for Niagara Falls—cropped up in Scott's diary and this was followed out. The Wishart disappeared.

In another section of Mr. Bowman's testimony, he said he had been informed that a call having been made to this home and was told by McDermott . . . Feeley number, as shown in telephone company records.

Mr. Bowman said he is that I've never spoken to either one," he said.

Mr. Common told the commission that his suspicions of leakage in the OPP anti-gambling squad had jelled in 1957 when Sgt. Jack Hatch, trying to get Gore, the busy Scotland Gambling Club near Windsor, obtained and got permission to discontinue reports to headquarters on his activities and to keep a record of the name of an informant he was planting in the

POLITICAL

Taking up the speech in detail he repeated a previous statement that Mr. Wintermeyer had reached a "false conclusion" in suggesting the attorney-general ordered the termination of a 1960 investigation into leakages of information from the Ontario Provincial Police anti-gambling squad.

FT 1957

This investigation was conducted by OPP Constable George Scott and some of the entries from Scott's diary had been quoted by Mr. Wintermeyer including a report that Scott had been told that "the fix is in at Queen's Park," concerning the issuance of provincial charters to some gambling clubs.

Mr. Roberts today termed as "slanderous and untrue" this and other statements in the Scott diary presenting an provincial government officials.

Mr. Wintermeyer had remarked on the fact that considerable material in the diary was not investigated in the 1961 brief conspiracy trial of gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley, but the minister said the government had placed no restrictions on possession of Gordon Ford, who handled the Crown case.

"Any suggestion of suppression of evidence in this instance is completely unsupported by any facts whatsoever," Mr. Roberts said.

Moscow Posts Naval Attache

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today accused Cmdr. Raymond D. Smith, the assistant U.S. naval attache at the embassy here of espionage. He was ordered to leave the country immediately.

The Soviet foreign ministry ordered Smith expelled in a note handed to U.S. Counsel James R. McSweeney.

The Soviet note said Smith had "carried out espionage through observation of military objects."

Highlights in Recreation

By R. JARVAN
Assistant Director

Did you know that the British Army is the only one in the world today with a unit of archers? Probably you didn't at least I didn't until I began inquiring into this fascinating sport, because the affiliation with the Belleville Recreation Program. It seems that King George IV took a liking to the sport and honored the leading London Society with his patronage, thus making it the Royal Toxophilite Society, which still has the honor of the present Queen as patron. The segment of the British Army which acts as the Queen's official bodyguard is known as the Royal Company of Archers.

According to Jim Blackburn, a leader experienced baseball player, there is nothing difficult about learning to shoot the bow and arrow and the professional work in archery has included many years as a craftsman making the bows and arrows and six years as archery pro for the Hollywood Movie Colony Parks Commission.

However, Belleville is not to be outdone and there is no reason south of the border because only recently, an archery club has been formed in the city. Mr. Jeff Calvert, who had taken up archery during the time of the former British Isles National Champion, offered his services to the Recreation Department and as a result, we now have the nucleus of a strong archery club.

According to Mr. Calvert, and many archers are interested in him, in the past 20 years there has been a rediscovery of archery. Many reasons for this have found that shooting bows and arrows is a fascinating pastime and an invitation to the enjoyment of all outdoors. In fact, many new devotees of archery, especially in the Belleville Club, have been attracted to the sport because of their interest in hunting.

It was not long after the original meeting on August 8, that things were rolling and the club was on its way to becoming quite an active one.

Under the guidance of the Recreation Department, the membership elected their initial executive which included, Mr. Jeff Calvert as president; Floyd Armstrong, as vice-president, and Mr. Gord Gregory as secretary.

KINGSTON TOURNAMENT

One of the club's first outing took them to a tournament at the Circle Archery Club of Kingston. Although the shooting of the bowmen was not of marksmanship calibre, the courses and the weather were ideal. This was just the beginning, and according to Mr. Calvert, the general marksmanship of the group has improved tremendously and once again they are going to journey to Kingston and this time, they hope to bring a trophy home with them.

Club membership and if you are even slightly interested in Archery or just curious, why not phone the Recreation Centre at WO 2-1403 for Mr. Calvert or phone the home of the world's oldest but most fascinating sports.

Four Professors and the Law

Last weekend a conference on criminal law was held at Osgoode Hall. Four professors from three countries spoke. Of course, being experts, they differed. Some of their observations might bear a little examination by a layman.

Prof. H. L. A. Hart of Oxford University, England, said that "the theory that a criminal should be punished just for the sake of hurting him is close to human sacrifice as an expression of religious worship."

This is closer to making sense than some would imagine at first glance. Most of us think that wrongdoing should be punished. But it is the punishment does no more than hurt the offender, then it is purely and solely revenge—and no matter how understandable a desire for revenge may be on the part of a person injured it is a totally indefensible objective for civilized society as a whole.

This, though, does not mean that we should automatically discard the principle of punishing the criminal. There is inherent in our system of laws a belief that the punishments prescribed are deterrents, to the lawbreaker and to others, before.

Prof. Louis Fuller of Harvard Law School said the idea that the sentencing of a man could act as a deterrent was now old-fashioned. The trend of his argument was shown by his claim that England was the most law-abiding country in the world because there existed an "acute shame" at a criminal conviction.

But even if we grant that sentences do not deter others, they frequently deter the criminal from repeating his offence. The man who is in jail finds it impossible to steal while he is in jail. Even the harshest of punishments have this idea of effective deterrence behind them—consider the Arab custom of cutting off the hand of a thief, which would certainly handicap him in future theft attempts.

Prof. Alan Mewett of Queen's University has no faith in Prof. Fuller's apparent regard of public morality as the most effective crime deterrent. "If there is such a thing as public morality—and I don't think there is—it's highly immoral," he said. Criminal acts are acts the public wants to do, he argued. He contended that the law, while it does not take all the joy out of life, certainly reduces it. But for the law, the public would rape and murder.

There is just enough truth in this to give one pause. But we think the other three professors were right in all disagreeing with him. The number of people who want to rape and murder is small—if it were not there would be more murders and rapes, in spite of the penalties imposed. Corroboration for this view would seem to be provided by experience in some of the states of the U.S., where there are stringent laws against adultery, but where adultery is far from unknown and frequently is unpunished. Often there is no complaint.

This seems to provide backing for the contention of the fourth of the professors, Elliott MacGuigan of the Jesuit Seminary, Willowdale, that criminal law has become too all-embracing, and it ought not to be concerned with sin as such.

That, though, makes it imperative there should be strict laws against crimes and the penalties should be such as to deter the criminal from repetition, even if there is grave doubt the example of punishments for offenders is often an effective deterrent to others.

Wrong Methods

The Soviet Union, according to an AP report, is launching an intensified drive against religion. The Russian Council of Trade Unions leads the effort, with orders to its members to organize meetings and arrange television and theatrical shows, and even "to go into people's homes to drive out belief in God."

With all due respect to Soviet brainwashing techniques, one might be tempted to question the effectiveness of this program. Oppression has always failed to make inroads on religion. If the Soviets were really anti-religious, they could reduce religious influences by raising the living standards of their people to a world high. Religion thrives on depression, but prosperity invariably tends to build a materialist society.

May Alter China Policy

Detroit Free Press

Evidence keeps piling up that the United States is considering changing its policy about Red China.

Since Chiang Kai-Shek was driven off the mainland to take refuge on Formosa 12 years ago, the United States has acted as if Red China did not exist.

We call the Chiang government China, and rarely ever refer to the mainland government.

We supply military missions to Chiang, support him with foreign aid, and maintain his position in the United Nations with vigor against all comers.

Only once have we recognized that there is a Red China government and even here our State Department tried its best to equate the government with Barque's ghost at the party.

I was there, but it wasn't real. This was at the 1955 Warsaw conference.

Nonetheless, the rest of the world is getting increasingly tired of our stand, and indications are that we are beginning to recognize its unreasonableness.

No one disputes that the morality of the Soviet regime precludes Communist China membership. It is not a "peace-loving nation" as the charter requires. But Russia could hardly be classified as peace-loving either.

First indication of a possible switch came at the UN session last year, when the United States opposed admission of Red China, but not as hard as before.

Then in March, the wartime papers of Gen. Patrick Hurley and diplomat John Davis Davies were released. Both sets were highly critical of Chiang Kai-shek's war effort.

They had not been released before, the President explained, because they would embarrass China. No mention was made of why it was all right to embarrass him now.

And last week came a report from Washington that a white paper on China policy was being circulated through the Cabinet.

Prepared by one of the President's brain trusters, Professor W. Rostow, the paper calls for a two-China UN policy.

The Formosa wing would be ratified Formosa, and would retain the China seat in the Security Council. The Reds would be admitted as China, but limited to the General Assembly.

There is, as Columnist Robert Allen points out, no chance that Peiping would accept such a compromise. It wants the whole hog.

But if and when a proposal would get the United States off its lonely spot and back with such allies as Britain, which recognized Red China a dozen years ago.

It would also get us off the hook of being the sole backing of Chiang, when and if he ever decides to invade the mainland. This is a gamble we keep threatening to try, but which would have no chance of success.

As a State Department official said not long ago, "We don't think they have the power or regime to lead it. This is a gamble he keeps threatening to try, but which would have no chance of success.

As a State Department official said not long ago, "We don't think they have the power or regime to lead it. This is a gamble he keeps threatening to try, but which would have no chance of success.

He Wrote It On Porpoise!

Letter to the editor of the Montreal Gazette by K. S. Gisbert of Ottawa

N.A.S.A. can easily spend $80,700 research grant to study porpoise communication with dolphins (Gazette, Sept. 17) and Dr. Lilly may succeed in understanding these delightful creatures, even if they speak four letter words faster than we do. However, the question arises: Is it really fair? Let us visualize the possible consequences of establishing communication with dolphins. Such a deal will still be able to converse with them, our misguided people will want to convert the porpoise and to make him "cover his shame" with our modern outfit (and that modest) swimming suits. This is going to cause the poor dolphin utterly uncomfortable.

Then, of course, Radio Free Dolphin Army Reserve Dolphin Radio will start broadcasting to the dolphins saying that they are thoroughly confused. Worse still we shall have "dolphin assistance programs" and "dolphins attached", of course; and dolphin advance agents will plan their 'economic growth' (target for 1980; an outboard motor for each dolphin family). By then, dolphins will gain their freedom from the United Nations, and with the porpoise taking four times faster than the fastest dolphin, they will outtalk the humans in no time at all. You can understand from UN will file four times as much material, which may make lives of some of us readers unbearable. Furthermore, we do not really know how many dolphin nations there are, thus it is quite likely that dolphins will achieve a majority in the Assembly. If so, would they press for the exile and end of colonial era at sea? This may put Canada with our newly-founded fisheries in the same position Portugal is in today. Needless to say, Green will try to win a UN popularity contest even with dolphins in the majority, but will be successful.

In view of these horrible possibilities, I suggest that we petition to stop the grant $80,700 on a more pressing though more difficult communication problem: How to establish meaningful communications with Mr. Cousette.

Democracy Is Rejected

St. Catharines Standard

Much as we of the Western world might deplore the lack of democracy in the newly-emerging nations of Africa, it is an immutable fact that democracy is not what we know it is alien to the African mind. Somehow we manage to get over the shock of seeing democracy rejected the better it will be for all.

For many centuries before the white man came to Africa the people of that continent were under the rule of their own chiefs, kings and emperors. They had their share of despots, but they also had chiefs who were wise and kindly leaders. Yet these chiefs were many cogitates, the chief's word was law, and no democracy democracy never entered the picture.

Several of the new African nations recently confirmed their belief in the tribal kingdom system. Ghana voted last week to establish the one-party system. As one Ghanaian parliamentarian explained, the institution of democracy in the established rule is a European luxury and unacceptable to the African mind.

Notwithstanding the present outlook, it is to be hoped that in the distant future some form of democracy might find its way into the African political pattern. If it does, it will be a form of democracy barely recognizable by us as such. But it will be a form of government the Africans themselves want, and not necessarily the sort of government we feel they ought to have.

Polka-Dot Mice His Aim

Windsor Star

It is natural to react with sorrow to a life's ambition unfulfilled, exemplified by Montreal Star. And yet it is possible that Lord Wrottesley, who died in England the other day at 88 faced death a satisfied man. "I am thankful not to succeed in my lifetime," he used to tell his friends, "but I shall keep at it." There is a peculiarly the satisfaction was in the trying.

What Lord Wrottesley had devoted years to trying was the breeding of a polka-dot white mouse, with completely circular black spots on a white ground. Some, in this utility-obsessed age, may say it was time wasted. But it is certain he did not really know what use he spotted mouse would serve, beyond: "I would take it to show."

And yet was it really time wasted? Is there not a place, indeed a need, in today's world for things undertaken for their own sake with no thought of useful purpose, no hope of producing, say, a more potent anti-biotic or a more durable fabric?

The mountaineer who risks his life to conquer an unclimbed peak has no explanation beyond the classic "Because it is there." Lord Wrottesley perhaps could have explained why he spotted mouse for no reason except: "Because it is not there."

And is that not purpose enough?

Use of Seat Belts Causes Mistrust

By SIDNEY J. HARRIS

Mentioning seat belts on cars as I did the other day reminded me of an incident a few months ago, when I was picked up at the airport on my way to a lecture.

The man who picked me up fastened his seat belt as soon as he slipped behind the wheel, and I promptly did the same. He looked at me with some gratification when I remarked that I had a belt in my car, too. (I failed to add that I hardly ever use them.)

"I'm glad you feel that way," he said. "You know, it's a funny thing about these belts - a lot of people don't like to drive with me after they see them."

"Why is that?" I asked.

"Well, it puzzles me for a while," he said, "but after I've acted a few questions and got evasive answers, I figured out the reason. They think I must be a bad driver, or dangerous one, to need the belt."

"That's a curious attitude, I observed.

"They could understand it," he said, "if I didn't use the belts around town, and only fastened them when taking a long trip on the highway. But it, what most bell-owners do, is to fasten the belts when they are just a sort of St. Christopher medal, to protect them by magic."

"I know it," I confessed. "And I'm afraid I'm one of the culprits - once I had them installed, I didn't seem necessary to use them every time I got in a car for a good luck amulet, a way of placating the gods."

He nodded. "Actually, of course, most auto accidents occur not more than a dozen blocks from the driver's house, and at speeds less than 35 miles an hour. And most fatal accidents, too, take place on ordinary streets, not on superhighways."

"I'm aware of that," I nodded, "but it seems a little like preparing for me to fasten my belt when I'm just backing out of the drug store."

"It does at first," he said, "and that's what bothers people about me - it's invariable a bit of fastening driver. They seem to think I'm inviting disaster, or else that I have a bad or nervous driver that I need them. Oddly enough, they think the belts have just one purpose - they're not being used - as soon as you fasten them, they ask for trouble!"

"You're right," I agreed. "I felt like patients getting medicine from a doctor and keeping it on the medicine shelf; its presence reassures them, but they won't take it regularly for fear it might make them sick."

"We can't even give our friends life in home from parties," he shook his head sadly. "They'd rather go with some reckless driver than with me. Safety it seems, makes them nervous. I guess it reminds them of what might happen, and nobody wants to think about that."

To Your Good Health

Emphysema Can Result In Shortness of Breath

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My mother, 58, has had a terrible, persistent cough for a month. She refuses to do anything about it although it leaves her exhausted after every spell.

She once went to a doctor who prescribed some pills which stopped the cough, but she never bothered to renew the prescription. Is there something you could write which might scare her enough so she would go to the doctor again? She always reads your column and often quotes the advice you give to others."

D. O.

Maybe there's a better way than to scare her. But if she reads today's column, I hope she considers the fact that she is scaring her son by not getting rid of that cough.

Perhaps - this is a curious quirk of human nature, but it happens often - she's afraid of what the doctor will say. Or she doesn't go because she's afraid she'll be told to quit smoking.

Maybe she's afraid. For some reason, that she may be told she has a dangerous disease? Years ago, people were afraid being told that they had tuberculosis. They kept it to themselves and put off finding out until the disease becomes difficult or impossible.

Today they know that there are some kinds of coughs besides TB, but the old dread of hearing the truth still lingers.

That could be the reason your mother won't go to the doctor again, although if she thought about it, she would realize that if she had some such perilous disease, it would have made itself inescapably known in 30 years.

Therefore let's suspect that the cough is from some chronic condition or irritation and that, not the evidence, is the one thing that can be eased by medication.

Quite aside from her own comfort and your peace of mind, there are very good reasons for getting rid of the cough. For one, the often-repeated violent spasms of coughing can stretch the lung tissues until they lose their elasticity. Then you have a condition known as emphysema which results in chronic shortness of breath. That alone is good enough reason for taking whatever steps are necessary to get rid of a cough. Like going to the doctor for another prescription.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I read about 10 years ago about a blind baby having pig's eyes transplanted, but they would have to wait for a baby eye to talk to tell whether it would be blind. Have they ever done that case? I'm interested because my niece is losing her eyesight and I said I would ask you."

Mrs. A. J.

That was all hopeful imagination because eyes cannot be transplanted - not successfully, yet. The only transplanting yet possible is of the cornea, the window or outer surface of the eyeball. This, however, must be stored right to a good man about it although it leaves her exhausted after every spell. about it although it leaves her exhausted after every spell.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Driving down in the afternoon from the cottage, I turned on the car radio for the 3 p.m. classical and symphony concert we have where I live. My son, a schoolmate and I sat sitting beside me. The ladies and children were snoozing in the back seat. Their slumbers were soothed by a brief composition by Vivaldi, which, after a soft-spoken word from the announcer, was followed by one of Mozart's symphonies. It had gone for about fifteen minutes when my son reached over and turned the dial.

"You can take just so much of that old-fashioned music," he said.

And he twiddled around until he got a station playing something with swing, live and in stereo, and nearly number by Mr. Sinatra.

He then rested his elbow on the window ledge, put his chin in his hand and snoozed, too.

It is astonishing the variety of what soothes the human ear.

Letter To The Editor

Complains Y Fees Are Far Too High

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

In Sept. 8th paper there was an article about a "Slim-Trim Swim Evening" for women. Having three small children I thought this a wonderful chance for a night out with my husband while babysitting. Since my neighbors were also interested, so we made plans to attend. To our disappointment the baby sitting fee was $4.50 for one child and $5.00 for two children. We have a night out. What families with three children can afford this?

I thought they were for people of moderate incomes. How can people with several children of the "Y" afford to pay the $12.00 per child each year? How many families who need it just can't! Surely $5.00 for an adult and $2.00 per child would be reasonable. We are members of the United Appeal Fund of which the "Y" is a member and it seems it should be that all people can enjoy the "Y" privileges and not the "Y" being run like a country club. Only those who can pay are able to enjoy it.

STOCK QUOTATIONS

TORONTO (CP) — Sparkplugs of Thursday's stock market gave outburst in western oils fizzled today, but other issues stepped in to keep the group climbing.

Central Del Rio, prime favorite Thursday, dropped 25 cents to $8.75, while Canada Southern Petroleums declined 10 cents to $4.35. Canadian Husky and Calgary and Edmonton were both unchanged.

Dome, however, jumped ¾, and Great Plains Development ¾. Bailey Selburne A rose 10 cents to $8.30.

Among industrials, Aluminium, Bank of Nova Scotia, Shawinigan, Massey - Ferguson and Distillers Seagrams all advanced in a ¼ to ⅝ range.

Consolidated Paper, Algoma Steel, and Bank of Montreal all slipped ¼, ⅜.

On the exchange index, industrials gained .20 to $29.17, golds .20 at $0.93 and western oils .60 at 115.00. Base metals fell .18 to 175.18. The 11 a.m. volume was 686,000 shares compared with 911,000 at the same time Thursday.

In the base metals list, International Nickel rose ¼ and Falconbridge ½, while Consolidated Mining and Smelting declined ⅛ and Noranda ⅛. Speculatives saw Northgate drop 20 cents to $5.20.

Western oils took the play Thursday.

Their index advance—more than four points—was the sharpest since a five-point rise May 20, during the brief recovery in the midst of the market's May collapse.

Sparkplug was Central Del Rio, which jumped $1 to $9 on a turnover topping 150,000 shares. Shortly after the opening bell, trading in Central was suspended as orders flooded the floor.

Normal trading in the stock was resumed after 30 minutes when the backlog of orders had been sorted out. Prior to the stoppage, Central Del Rio had sold at $7.70. Its next trade was at $7.50.

Canadian - Husky, linked recently with central in takeover murmurs, raced through 31,000 shares, gaining ½ to 7½.

Industrials weakened as the day progressed. Atlas Steel, Walker-Gooderham and Dominion Foundries and Steel all fell ¼.

Banks resisted the downward trend, with Montreal, Nova Scotia, Royal and Toronto-Dominion all gaining in a ¼ to ⅝ range.

International Nickel weakened base metals, dropping ⅛. Consolidated Mining and Smelting and Hudson Bay Mining both declined ¼, while Noranda rose ⅛.

That had been the first suspension since 1956, when Donald Fleming—then in opposition, and now justice minister—was ordered out of the chamber during the noisy pipeline debate.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were steady and trade fairly active on light receipts of good and choice steers, heifers and yearlings.

Lower grades were numerous and sold at prices easier to lower.

Veal calves were fully steady with common and medium grades selling lower and slowly on a heavy supply. Hog prices were easier on the top end while sows were higher.

Lamb prices were steady.

Cattle receipts were the same as last week and about 2,000 head more than the same week in 1964. Receipts from Western Canada totalled 725 head, an increase over last week of 384 head. Western stock in transit receipts were unchanged from last week at 382 head. There was also 41 cattle received from Quebec and 45 calves from New Brunswick. Lay New Charge Against British Admiralty Clerk

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard disclosed today a new charge against William Vassall, 38-year-old clerk in the admiralty accused of collecting secret information.

The second charge, brought under the Official Secrets Act, said Vassall communicated secret information to a person likely to be an enemy of the state.

Vassall was accused of committing the offences in August and September.

The second charge was not brought until after Vassall had appeared in a court Thursday. The case was held over until next Tuesday.

Vassall was arrested last month.

The son of a London parson, he once worked in the office of the British naval attache in Moscow.

Plowing Match Total Receipts Were $33,330

Almost a year after the final sod of the 1961 International Plowing Match was turned the Hastings County Plowmen's Association has turned up its financial books on the big event held north of Belleville last year.

Treasurer Ben Bleecker reported this week that total receipts of the county association in connection with the International match were $33,330.77.

All outstanding bills have now been paid and the balance of $1,031.90 has been turned over to Sidney MacDonald, secretary of the new County Plowmen's Association, which this year held a county match at Madoc.

Gate receipts during the four days of the big match were the major source of revenue for the local committee, amounting to a total of $23,803.21.

Grants (including $3,200 from the County of Hastings which was all returned) totalled $4,175; donations amounted to $1,754.45 and revenue from the operation of helicopters and aircraft at the match saw $610.60 go into the local committee's kitty.

On the debit side, it cost $3,401.46 to prepare the site for plowing, while expenses for the various other committees ranging up to just over $2,000 each, ate up most of the balance. Disbursements to the committee chairman, executive members and secretary and treasurer, totalled $4,131.

MURRAY GAUNT

County for the rest of his one-year term.

The seat was made vacant by the death last March of John W. Hanna, who wrested it from the Liberals in 1943 and held it until he died. In the last general election in 1959 Mr. Hanna, of Wingham, defeated Liberal candidate Rae J. Watson in another two-party contest by 6,683 votes to 5,375.

MAY BE INDICATOR

Of the 15,650 eligible voters, 12,125 turned out at the polls. The by-election had been considered an important weathervane on how the provincial political winds are blowing.

Mr. Gaunt, a bachelor who lives in Wingham during the week and returns to the family farm on weekends, took an early lead in returns from this county centre in the balloting and held it throughout.

Of his future role in the legislature, he said "I would like to increase an awareness of agricultural problems at Queen's Park."

He called the campaign "clean and well fought" and said: "I would like to congratulate my opponent on his hitherto principled campaigning. Neither of us resorted to name calling."

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, said the result indicates the government "has obviously lost the confidence of the people."

County Museum Wants Articles Of Interest

The Hastings county museum is leaving no stone unturned in its efforts to dig up articles of historical interest, which were used in the early life of the county.

In fact appeals at the county area are being made for articles and photographs depicting early life in the area.

Wednesday at Madoc Fair a request was read from Gerald Boyce, president of the Hastings county Historical Society, asking for materials manufactured or used in that area. In particular Mr. Boyce is looking for old sugar making kettles or articles from the old iron works in the district.

The Madoc area was said to be important historically "not only because of the early iron mine, but also because of the old Madoc road land settlement plan and the discovery of gold at Eldorado in 1866.

Post Office Hours on Thanksgiving

The Post Office has authorized the following postal services in the city on Thanksgiving Day as follows.

There will be no delivery by letter carriers or rural couriers. Street letter box collection will be made in the evening only.

General delivery, registration and postage stamp, wicket at the post office will be open from 10:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon, and the lock box lobby from 6:30 a.m. until 6:00 p.m.

Receipt and despatch of mails will be made as usual, and special delivery service will be given.

Store Closing Bylaw Passed In Cobourg

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Town council gave second reading Wednesday night to a store closing hours by-law modelled on a recently-passed St. Catharines by-law.

The clauses require stores to be open from 8 a.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday and 9 a.m. Thursday and Friday except during the Christmas period.

J. Bashon, manager of a large discount store said the bylaw represented an attempt by local merchants to "close us down". His store has been open till 10 p.m. nightly since it opened three weeks ago.

He said about 50 of his store's 150 employees might lose their jobs if the by-law is passed. Cobourg and District Labor Council also opposed the by-law.

The proposed by-law goes to its third reading Oct. 15.

NARROW MOVEMENT — The industrial index on the Toronto Stock Exchange has moved in a comparatively narrow index since its slide from a record 679.06 March 12.

Graph shows movement of the index made up of 20 key stocks—from 1953 to end of September.

During the first six months of the year practically all gains made by stocks during 1961 were wiped out. The slide started after the March high and hit a low late in May. By the end of June the index was down almost a hundred points from the year's opening at 618.59. (CP Newsmap).

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Malcolm T. — It's about time he retired from retirement and came alive again.

Mr. G. T. —I like doing nothing and refuse to "look busy" just to please them.

Malcolm T. — My father has retired in every sense of the word, including failing asleep and staying asleep. He just does plenty of nothing, spending his days sitting around and staring into space. When we suggest that he get out, meet people, make new friends, he refuses. He says he's content keeping to himself.

How long can a man stand that sort of life? This has been going on for four months now and it's driving my mother and the rest of us to distraction. Mother has the worst of it. Instead of helping her around the house, he's just in the way, like another piece of furniture. It pains us all to see what is happening to an intelligent man who used to enjoy a busy active life.

Mr. G. T. — What's wrong with starting into space? According to the headlines, that's where big things are happening. If I stare long enough, who knows? I may see something my run-around family is missing. Seriously, I find great joy in quiet reflection and contemplation. I realize that a lot of people who dash here and there are no further along in achievement than I. They just look busy, but all the while they're merely going around in circles, accomplishing nothing.

If I were wealthy, I might be playing golf, or travelling. But on a limited income I satisfy myself with short walks around the block, a bit of kibitzing with the family, and lots of meditation. I don't bother anyone.

The Council: "When a feller needs a friend" was the caption under a series of cartoons which ran daily in the newspapers a generation ago. Mr. T., fresh out of a job around which his life revolved, trying to get his bearings in a new and jolting atmosphere, sounds like one of the sad characters depicted in those old drawings. Readers were sympathetic and many of them identified with the poor "feller" who seemed deserted and alone. Malcolm, or his mother, and the rest should do less. It takes a while to get used to a string of days with no fixed working hours, no check-ins desk, no fellow workers to greet. Regardless of Mr. T's glib and flip acceptance of an on-the-shelf life, he probably experiences moments of panic and confusion as he faces a formless future. Now is the time for all good families to come to the aid of a Dadi Patience and pats on the back, rather than groans behind the back, are in order.

We don't believe Mr. T. is interested in complete withdrawal from activity. He's a his stock-taking breather. During it, however, we suggest that he try to view things from his family's side, too. Here suddenly they have a new Presence around all day. Why not make it count pleasantly? By helping his wife with her work, she might finish sooner and be able to join him on those short walks. (Tell your mother, Malcolm, to call anything he does around the house "help" and praise him for it!)

The happy way to regard retirement is as "change" — and for the better. Mr. T. might pull out that old question, "If I had my life to live over again, what would I do?" and realize that this is a new life and now's his chance. While he may not be able to travel or swim the Hellespont or ride polo ponies, there are other dreams which are quite fulfillable. One of them is to serve others. (The Veterans Administration Hospitals report that 20 per cent of their volunteers are retired people). Another idea is a part-time job doing something totally different. Still another "filling" lies in the direction of the classroom, because there's always something Mr. T. doesn't know. During his hours of meditation he can ponder these pointers on How to Succeed in Retirement.

Three and Possibly Four Provincial Leadership Conventions for PCs Seen

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Three and possibly four provincial leadership conventions in the Conservative party during the next few months are being regarded here as possible sources of some embarrassment to the federal Conservatives — but of potentially over-all benefit.

Leadership conventions are scheduled this month for New Brunswick and Alberta and the machinery has been set in motion for such a convention before the year-end in British Columbia. Party sources here say there is also the possibility of a leadership convention in Prince Edward Island.

The possible embarrassment to the federal organization results from the fact that Conservative members at Parliament are being mentioned in each case as potential candidates.

If a federal member were chosen provincial leader, he would likely resign from the Commons. This would mean several by-elections necessary at a time when the federal Conservatives, outnumbered 148 to 126 in the House, need every man they can muster for a vote.

However, party sources say that the provincial conventions should have stiffening benefits for the federal party. Such conventions generate enthusiasm among party workers.

East to west, province by province, the provincial leadership contests shape up this way from the viewpoint of the federal Conservatives:

Prince Edward Island: Conservative Premier Walter Shaw, 75, has recovered from a recent illness but there are reports here that he may retire soon. A number of candidates are said to be eyeing his position, including Premier J. H. Phillipson's health, should quit the provincial field for the provincial

New Brunswick: The provincial Conservatives lost their leader with the appointment of Hugh John Flemming as federal forestry minister in 1960 a few months after the government he headed was defeated. Thomas M. Bell, parliamentary secretary to Justice Minister Fleming and MP for Saint Johnsbert since 1953, is reported to be under some pressure to leave the federal field and seek his provincial fortunes. The convention has been called for Oct. 26 and 27 in Moncton.

Alberta: The Conservatives have been in the wilderness provincially since 1935 when the first Social Credit administration took office and have been represented in the legislature since 1959 by their acting leader —and sole MLA—Ernest Watkins of Calgary.

Federal MPs said to be either interested in the leadership or under pressure to become interested are Art Smith, Calgary South MP since 1957, and Elmer Woolliams, Bow River MP since 1958. The convention has been called for this weekend in Calgary.

British Columbia: A long process of healing jealousies between federal and provincial Conservative organizations is reported to have reached the stage where a leadership convention can be called.

Desse Finlayson, who resigned as provincial leader after personal defeat in 1960—when Conservatives were elected to the legislature—now is reportedly preparing to stand for re-election.

Stuart Fleming, MP for Okanagan-Revelstoke since 1958, who is provincial party president, is said to be not interested in the leadership, but there is some continuing pressure that he, Wes Foster Fulton and George Chaolerton, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, should quit the federal field for the provincial

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Pro's and Con's About In-Laws

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—The lady who wrote to you recently about her mother-in-law remarking on her thinness had a very common problem. I know several people, including my own mother-in-law, who say such thoughtless things to others without regard for their feelings.

Such remarks as, "You look so tired," "You don't look a bit well," and "What have you been doing to yourself?" are better not said. Sometimes there is a wee bit of envy behind some of these remarks.

Would you kindly comment on this, Doris? On the other hand, do you feel that people who are disturbed by these remarks are just too sensitive?—SENSITIVE ALSO.

DEAR SENSITIVE—A build-up is better than a tear-down every time. Tell a man often enough how pale he is and he starts looking at his tongue in the mirror. Admire him and he'll jump over the moon for you.

We're all sensitive; some just a bit more than others. Envy? sometimes. If an unflattering remark comes of real concern, it should be taken in that spirit.

DEAR DORIS—I notice that Mrs. Pete calls her daughter-in-law "that woman," which implies that she has never really accepted her as a daughter.

I had the same experience in my own family and find that it doesn't pay to be a meddler where "in-laws" are raising children, even if they are making a hash of it. In my case I purchased some baby oil, baby powder, soap and water softener and wrapped it attractively and gave it as "something I thought you could use"; also I made frequent visits to baby-sit and encouraged them to go out together.

I'm sure Mrs. Pete will be more appreciated for her tact and thoughtfulness than if she brings accusations against her daughter that she can't prove. If she could be "gentle as a dove and wise as a serpent" and learn that "love conquers all," she will be much happier.—GRANNIE.

DEAR GRANNIE—An important key to Successful Living! Thanks for sharing it.

DEAR DORIS—I will be fourteen in a few months and have a boy friend who just turned sixteen. Last Friday I went over to his best friend's house to listen to records. His best friend is fifteen and is going steady with a girl fourteen.

My mother says I am too young to date and that I am associating with too old a crowd. When I told her that I went over to his best boy friend's house with him, she just about blew! I don't see that there was anything wrong with that. His mother was sitting in the next room.

What I am worried about is that he will be giving me his ring soon. How can I convince my mother it is all right to go steady and that I am not running around with an older crowd?—JUST HAVING FUN.

DEAR JUST—You can't because it's not and because you are.

DEAR DORIS—If Mrs. B. W. would spend a few cents on the recorded remix of "Can-Can" and practise what she was able to see of the dancing in the show—that is, if she saw any of it for watching her husband and his friends, she might be in a position to keep the bald-headed row at home. Her letter sounded very "sour grapes" to me.

And as for teen-age boys measuring their friends in inches —adults made it so. This doesn't mean that Mrs. B. W. can't be proud of her measurements if she wishes it to be so. Have to watch my inches too and can't blame the extra ones on Broadway dancers.—MRS. G. B.

DEAR MRS. G. B.—It's an idea. Keeping in shape to put on your own floor show is the best way I know of keeping the boys from roaming.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—Do you think one can become intimate friends with a pen-pal?

Could you please tell me where I can write to for a pen-pal from Germany or France? I would like it to be a girl thirteen.—LISA-AN KAUL.

DEAR LISA-AN:—"Intimate"? Let's say I have known of lasting friendships which started that way.

To try your hand, write your request to Miss Gladys Arnold, Information Service, French Embassy, Ottawa, Ontario.

TO CONSTANT READER—No, don't nag your boy. Paint the ends of his fingers with tincture of iquasia. It tastes terrible. Make it a game with him, complete with fun and prizes, and he'll stop chewing his fingernails.

DEAR DORIS—I just finished reading the letter from "Need Help," who wanted to know if she should break up with her nineteen-year-old boy friend. You said to just be friends. I feel the advice you gave was the right thing to do.

But I am fifteen also, and my boy friend is nineteen. We have been "going around" for two years. We have "gone steady" twice. I am going steady with him now and we are both looking forward to marriage in two or three years. —AN EXCEPTION.

DEAR EXCEPTION — Wanna bet? May I show you your letter two years from now?

DEAR DORIS—We are holding open house for our fiftieth anniversary soon. The announcement will be in the paper. How far ahead should that be done?

We are not sending out any invitations to friends in the city. Would it be in good taste to telephone some? Who should do that, we ourselves or the family? A. M.

DEAR E. A. M.—Make the announcement three or four days ahead. Give the paper details a week ahead of that when and where and a photograph, and other such details as the editor has room for.

By all means flatter good friends with a phone call to be sure they are coming; either do it yourself or have another member of the family call.

B of RT Set Strike Date Against CPR

OTTAWA (CP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (CLC) set a strike date Thursday for Monday, Oct. 28, to back demands for an eight per cent wage increase from the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The brotherhood announced "98½ per cent vote in favor of the strike. The union would involve about 6,000 train and yard service employees of the CPR.

The decision follows a settlement between the brotherhood and Canadian National Railways for an eight per cent increase over a 35-month contract, although a majority recommendation of the conciliation board was for a 6½per-cent increase for a three-year contract.

The brotherhood also announced that "an 8 in 1-3 a eight per cent increase has been granted to about 150 trainmen on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway in British Columbia.

The CPR has so far refused to go beyond 6½ per cent in its offer to the brotherhood.

WORLD IS DIFFERENT

If the railway succeeds in holding the line under eight per cent it would be the first time since 1939 that wage settlements on the two major railroads have been out of the same order.

William P. Kelly of Ottawa, brotherhood vice-president, said the negotiations with the CPR have been going on for 18 months and were in conciliation for a year.

The federal conciliation board chairman, Judge John B. Robinson of Haileybury, Ont., said in his Aug. 29 report that it would be almost impossible for the CPR to ignore the CNR's settlement for eight per cent.

But he said that having recommended 6½ per cent for the CNR firemen, he could not make "an about face" and "favor a different figure for the CPR."

Senator Arthur Roebuck, union nominee of the board, called for an eight-per-cent boost and added that CPR trainmen should not be expected to get less money than their CNR counterparts — and "their employer should not provide industrial hostilities by insisting that they do so."

CITE POLITICS

R. V. Hicks, CPR nominee on the board, said the increase should not exceed 6½ per cent. He said the brotherhood's eight-per-cent increase was won from the CNR last June during the election campaign in a "some what accommodating political climate" and because of this it should not be recognized by the CPR.

Mr. Kelly said the brotherhood is "prepared for negotiations" and is waiting to hear from the CPR.

But in a statement, the brotherhood said that "under ac circumstances should train and yard service employees on the CPR be expected to work for on the Canadian National."

Also involved in the dispute are rule changes which Mr. Kelly said would actually mean pay reductions if the CPR requests are granted.

Sunday School Lesson

Reviewing Our Beliefs

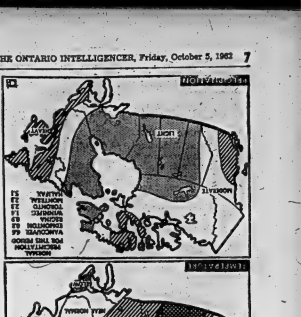
By ROY L. SMITH

There is a common saying to the effect that it does not make any difference what you believe so long as you are honest in your belief.

The facts are, however, that it makes all the difference in the world what you believe, for what you believe makes you what you are. We are not the product of our environment, our heredity, our nationality or our social circumstances. We are what we are because of what we believe. True, all these things may contribute to our beliefs but in actual truth we are free to chose our beliefs. And we are free to change our beliefs when we find they are mistaken.

The pastor of a church that prided itself on being "one of the leading churches in the city" undertook to test the quality of leadership it was giving to the community. With 74 members of his official board present, he asked two very simple but revealing questions: (1) What serious book in the field of religion are you reading? (2) Have you read any book that required you to examine your beliefs, during the last six weeks?

The alarming aspect of the result was that not one member of the board was reading any book in the field of religion, nor had anyone read a book during the previous six months that caused him to examine his religious beliefs in the light of any new facts.



One member of the board was honest enough to say, "I would be afraid to read such a book. I have my beliefs all straightened out, and I am afraid if I should read a book it might make it necessary for me to do my thinking all over again."

An entirely new set of facts has appeared over the horizon during the last 20 years. There is a revolution of rising expectation abroad in the world, and the greatest scientific breakthrough in consequence has occurred, and is occurring, the greatest scientific revolution in a consequence has never known — a scientific revolution that is laying the foundations for an entirely new world. And there is an ideological war going on, the outcome of which will determine the history of the world for the next 1,000 years.

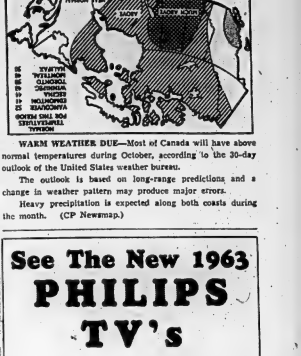
For a Christian to think carefree traditions under such circumstances, based on the facts, and dependent chiefly on customs and habits, is to betray the Lord who said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy mind."

The doughty old board member who was afraid to read a book lest it make it necessary for him to change his mind, was not be any new morality, for one respect. Some of the things he had been taught to believe in his youth need never be revised. Nothing is true, just because it is new.

Rabbi Silver, the famous Jewish leader of Cleveland, reminded one of his audiences a few years ago that "there cannot be any new morality, for the simple reason that there cannot be any new immorality."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 7; "The Beliefs Matter;" Matthew 5:8-14; John 3:17-18; Acts 16:11-15; 2 Thessalonians 2:13-17; 1 Peter 3:15; 2 Peter 3:14-18.

To shake off the old restraints just because they are old, and to accept the "new theology" for no better reason than that it is new, is to misjudge the whole purpose of the Christian Gospel. Jesus did not come into the world to set the style in religion, but to save sinners from the terrible results of their sinning.



It sometimes happens that a "new religion" offers nothing better than an escape. The story is told of a woman who approached Phillips Brooks on one occasion, urging him to listen while she expounded a new religion, but he "just brought back from Europe." "How did you get it past the customs officer?" the good bishop asked. "Why, bishop," the woman exclaimed, "the customs officer has no interest in a new religion." "Oh, I see," the preacher replied, "It has no duties connected with it."

The "progressive" religious thought that undertakes to relieve the believer of duties is a sham. There is no substitute for the cross.

(Monitron Control is the reason why)

It will be a long time before they're old enough to entertain on their own. And when that day comes, the chances are that your Philips MONITRON Control TV set will still be entertaining you. How can we offer such dependable service? Because of a new TV discovery.

Philips electronic experts decided to do something about a common household fault that often results in premature failure of the picture tube and other expensive TV parts. This common fault is power surge. To lick this problem, our experts developed the MONITRON, a small but incredibly sensitive electronic device which prevents these power surges reaching and damaging the expensive parts of your Philips set. Because of this added protection Philips has increased its picture tube warranty to 2 full years.

Your nearby Philips dealer will be glad to show you Philips MONITRON Control TV . . . and you'll be glad to meet him. We picked him for his courtesy, his integrity, his ability, and his willingness to provide responsible "Follow-Through" service. See your Philips dealer today.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Walsh, Marysville, Ont. announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Elizabeth, to Mr. Edward James Plewes, Toronto, Ontario. Marriage to take place Saturday, October 27th, at eleven o'clock, at St. Leo's Church, Minico, Ontario.

Mrs. Bella Varley, Moira Street, West is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Katharine Cunningham was among those attending the birthday party of Miss Penny Tinig, Wellington.

Women's S.G. Enjoys Norway Cruise Film

The Women's Study Guild met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, Eastwood Park Drive with 14 members present. The newly elected president, Mrs. M. Meldrum, presided over the meeting. Business was conducted and the new slate of officers and committees presented.

An inspiring worship service on "Thanksgiving to God for His Gifts" was conducted by Mrs. A. Orr.

NORWEGIAN CRUISE

The group was entertained by an intriguing description and picture ably presented by Mrs. George Wishart. This travelogue depicted her personal experience in May of a 10-day "Norwegian Fjord Cruise" from Copenhagen, Denmark, via Bergen, Norway, past Arctic Circle to Kirkenes, beyond the Arctic Circle, first back.

Norwegians everywhere use electric power from the mountain streams. Everywhere flowers are evident in their two and one-half months of continuous sunshine. Their literary culture is outstanding, in their schools, libraries, homes and theatres.

Six miles from the Russian border lost but turned back and re-viewed the magnificent scenery of snow-clad mountains, precipitous rocky coastline, dangerous fjords and ancient churches and settlements.

Most impressive was Aeusland, "Wonder of the North." This fascinating land of unusual intrigue provided a most enjoyable evening to all present. Souvenirs were displayed.

A social time was also enjoyed when a delicious lunch was served.

Holloway UCW Plan Fall Activities

The Thanksgiving meeting of the Holloway Street United Church Women was held in the church parlors on the afternoon of October 1st. A good attendance was present and all were warmly welcomed by the president, Mrs. C. Holmes, who asked the UCW to remember the pioneers who instigated Thanksgiving, and let it, thanks be as sincere as theirs. She then invited all to enjoy the dessers luncheon served by units two and ten.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. T. F. Townsend her theme being "Thoughtfulness and Thankfulness," saying in part: "There are heights in life which we must climb — climb them and then 'rest and be thankful.' Most of us have to admit that our table provides a very refreshing meal. Let us give thanks then, for there are many tables in this world that don't. Fulton Osler said, 'Food tastes better if we feel thankful before we eat it'.

"Let us never borrow trouble. Life can be gloriously worthwhile if we use God's gifts to make it so. We see Jesus in the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honor. Divine spirit is present in each world. Our prayers may often be pleas for help and guidance, but let us also give thanks for our many blessings and His love of us."

A poem, "Now Performate We Are," was read by Mrs. W. Phillips, and the thankoffering received by Mrs. W. Johns and Mrs. E. Hubbell.

GUEST SPEAKERS

Mrs. G. Coulter introduced the guest speaker, Miss Ethel Horton, of Tabernacle Church.

Miss Horton brought to the meeting an interesting and informative book review on the books to be used in study this year, as well as the many books of reference which are available through the organization. The study book, "On the Rim of East Asia," is about the life and work in the islands off the east coast of Asia — where 38 million people dwell. Much trouble, such as in Korea, has been imposed from without, and the natives have to adapt themselves to new situations; many are homeless.

Miss Horton closed her remarks with a short account of the School for Leaders, held at Wesley this summer, leaving the thought that "the United Church Women have to face where they are going! It is a new organization, which means change — but change means growth. They must dare to be a people of God and live with a special mission from God."

Miss Horton was thanked by Mrs. W. Johns.

A short business period followed, including plans for the fall bazaar and tea and reports from the decorating and finance committees were given.

Country Clothes Brought To City Streets by Dior

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Paris winter fashion is whimsy, originality, and occasionally almost outright nuttiness.

Amid restrained and easy-to-wear basic silhouettes, high fashion has introduced new looks, new accessories and numberless little ideas waiting to be adapted by women with a flair.

Few women can afford to shed last year's clothes and start again from scratch each season, but everyone can make and trim one new purchase pay valuable dividends, or incorporate details from the top fashion collections to brighten a lackluster wardrobe.

In the final analysis, the new look for this winter proves to be only a new mood, or a style of dress worn at a different time and place.

The No. 1 trend in daytime fashion, for example, spotlights the "outdoor girl" — country clothes brought to city streets.

Leading designers like Balenciaga and Dior interpret the new mood with rusticated striped cape, trouser-skirts and knee high boots designed for walking.

One theme of the Dior collection is Marc Bohan's revolutionary "rani-skirt." The effect is casual, comfortable and a far cry from skinny tubular skirts which ride up as the wearer sits down.

Balenciaga features the outdoor girl wearing high cavalry boots which are authentic copies of those worn by the French Republican Guards at the president's palace in Paris.

Balenciaga even brings in the cowgirl dressed in a three-piece ensemble comprising shirt, skirt and waistcoat, all made of natural tooled buckskin.

After dark, the new look then becomes as soft and fluttery as the languid 1912 glimmer which are the trademark of the Paris winter season.

Ostrich feathers trail from the ends of stoles and panels, edge bemliner, line evening coats skirts and shawls, make formal hats and trim sculptured hair styles.

One of the most provocative looks, destined to become a conversation piece in any cocktail hour wardrobe, is hosiery with bullion beauty spots made of black velvet and set on the outside calf of one leg.

But, with or without beauty spots, the French accent is definitely on legs. Christian Dior's bewitching full-length evening sheaths in transparent fabrics are left unlined up to knee level. Other models feature split panels intended to show a generous glimpse of the calves.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald David Devolin are shown following their recent marriage in St. John's United Church, Tweed, Ontario. The bride is the former Miss Marion Roberta Palmateer, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Palmateer, Tweed, became the bride of Mr. Ronald David Devolin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Devolin, R.R. No. 2, Madoc.

Baskets of mixed fall flowers and ferns decorated the church, and guest pews were designated by white satin bows.

Given in marriage by her father the lovely bride wore a floor length gown of ivory brocaded satin featuring round neckline, fitted bodice, long pointed sleeves and caught at the back with 5 rosettes. She wore a single strand of seed pearls with matching earrings. Her seed pearl and crystal crown held her waist length veil in place. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white shasta mums and ivy.

Miss Marjorie Palmateer, sister of the bride was maid of honor wearing a pink ribbon satin dress featuring rounded neckline with a shawl effect of pink chiffon designed with a fitted bodice and bell shaped skirt with a pink satin cummerbund caught in a large bow at the back.

Her headdress was a white satin bow ending in feathers with a net veil. She wore white satin and gloves and carried a bouquet of white carnations with ivy caught up with a white bow.

Miss Carol Devolin, Madoc, sister of the groom and Miss Joan Palmateer, sister of the bride were bridesmaids, dressed identically in white chiffon over taffeta in dresses featuring rounded necklines, designed with fitted bodices and bell shaped skirts. Their white head pieces, shoes and gloves were identical to the maid of honor's. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Pretty little Miss Donna Palmateer, cousin of the bride was flowergirl dressed in light blue chiffon over nylon. Her headpiece was a blue band of flowers, and she carried a basket of blue carnations.

Mr. Devolin, Madoc, brother of the bridegroom was best man while Mr. Harry Palmateer, Guelph, cousin of the bride and Mr. Keith Devolin, Madoc brother of the bridegroom acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony a turkey dinner was served by cousins and friends of the bride. The bride's table featured the guests wearing a two piece dress of teal blue double knit cotton, with white and black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. She was assisted by the groom's mother wearing a two piece dress of green brocaded rayon weave with white and brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

The bride's table was appointed with a white linen cloth and centred with a 4-tier wedding cake misted about the base with tulle and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Slender vases of sweet peas and tall white candles and silver candelabra enhanced the table.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and North Bay, the bride chose a three piece grey double-knitted suit with white hat and gloves and black shoes and purse and a corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Belleville, Campbellford, Hamilton, Trenton, Guelph, Madoc, Marmora, Peterborough and Toronto.

The young couple will reside in Madoc. The bride is a member of the Department of Lands and Forests staff at Tweed. The groom is employed with Hulin's garage in Madoc.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Lyman Holmes with Mrs. Wanda Franks as cohostess where about forty friends gathered and presented her with many lovely gifts. She was also presented with a gift from the Lands and Forests staff.

Older Women Should Keep Busy Says Woman Dean

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—Evelina Le Blanc tries to impart some of her enthusiasm for life to the girls she meets in her role as dean of women at the University of Ottawa.

"Enthusiasm can be developed—and it should be developed," she says. "So many young people are dragging their feet.

"The French have a saying 'la vive belle'—life is beautiful and it is, as long as you look at it the right way. I'm not a teacher of philosophy, but that philosophy can be applied to everything you do."

Older women should keep busy, says Miss Le Blanc, who is 54.

She doesn't approve of mothers of young babies who work but thinks women should train for a career they can go back to when their family is raised. Charitable work was good for women who did not want jobs.

Miss Le Blanc says working with young people is what keeps her young.

"I guess I have what you would call spiritual maternity—I have a very large family. I was due to have girls what I would have done for my daughters if I had married and had a family."

She has no thoughts of retiring. "We've got a residence to build," she explains. This fall, 80 girls will live in residence in a university-owned house renovated under Miss Le Blanc's watchful eye. Every home conferring lodging for female students is inspected by her.

"I now climb more stairs in one week than I did in a whole lifetime."

She not only is concerned with the girls' physical comfort but leaves the door to her office open so they can slip in to discuss their financial and emotional problems.

"It's not only boy-girl relationships." Many girls had problems with their parents.

Where lecturers parent-teacher groups, she tells them they must adjust their thinking to modern times. Asked how she slipped into French to explain "le fosse entre les generations" — a large breach between generations — had to learn that I was not here to make laws."

One of 10 children of a New Brunswick lumberman, Miss Le Blanc grew up in the village of Bonaventure on the Gaspe coast. "We were not rich but my father saw that we all were educated. Our education was our heritage."

After graduation from Laval University, Quebec City, she became the first woman organizer of rural adult education services in agriculture for the Quebec government.

In 1953 she joined the home economics section of the federal agriculture department. Then she returned to Quebec 21 years later as the province's chief of home economics. In 1949 she rejoined the federal agriculture department to organize a new information language information service for women.

As she approached 60, Miss Le Blanc had to decide whether to retire or stay with the government until she was 65.

She decided to retire — but only from that job. In 1959, at the age of 60, she embarked on a new career as student recruiting officer for women for the University of Ottawa. Two years later she was appointed dean of women.

Miss Le Blanc follows an early - to - bed - early - to - rise pattern because she finds she works best early in the morning. She's often on the job before 8 a.m.

"I'm not much for social life." She shares an apartment with a sister. She likes to read, particularly newspapers, and enjoys the theatre.

"It's quite a thing at my age to find complete happiness. I thank God every day."

UNIVERSITY DEAN — Evaline Le Blanc, 54, maintains a busy daily routine as dean of women at the University of Ottawa. She was appointed to the position in 1961. Before that she worked for the federal and Quebec governments in educational and agricultural services. (CP Photo)

Beta Sigma Phi Hears Talk On Phoning

Members and prospective members of Alpha Lambda Chapter Beta Sigma Phi, recently met at the home of Mrs. Fred Pewsick. The sorority sisters each made a brief biographical resume and introduced her sponsor. Roll call and attendance was taken.

President, Mrs. E. Brett conducted a short business meeting during which plans were discussed and decisions reached on "Preferential Tea" and the forthcoming masquerade. Future programs were discussed briefly and promise to be stimulating.

Mrs. Ira Weiss outlined the aims and policies of Beta Sigma Phi and gave a brief account of the history of Alpha Lambda chapter.

Following the business meeting members participated in a delightful game directed by the social chairman, Mrs. G. Mutter.

TELEPHONING TECHNIQUES

The highlight of the evening was a talk given by Mrs. Bakay, assistant chief operator of the Bell Telephone Co. Mrs. M. White introduced the speaker, who delighted everyone with tape recordings illustrative of common vocal faults — breathlessness, monotone, lack of head tones, poor enunciation and plate. Mrs. Bakay stressed the importance of making a good impression with one's voice, and demonstrated the correct way to use a telephone. Several members recorded telephone conversations. The results were hilarious as well as informative. Mrs. C. Young presented the speaker with a token to show the sorority's appreciation for such an interesting talk.

Refreshments were served by the social committee and the evening closed with sorority members and guests anxiously awaiting the next scheduled event.

Four Men Enter Course Of Nursing

WINNIPEG (CP)—Four men this fall embarked on a three-year hospital nursing course here, outnumbered 37 to 1 by women.

Even so, the tiny male enrolment is the largest in the history of the Winnipeg General Hospital nursing school.

Only one male graduated last year at the General and it was a field traditionally dominated by women.

In the present class there are 149 girls, and Nursing Director Margaret E. Cameron says no more men should try it.

"We're certain they will find career satisfaction in this particular work," she said.

Male nurses aren't restricted to treating male patients. Some female patients prefer men to look after them, Miss Cameron said.

SEEKING FUTURE

Rob Okie, 21, of Robin, Man., one of the new male students, said working as a hospital orderly led him to choose a nursing career.

Dennis Lavitre, 23, of South Burnaby, B.C., felt nursing "would be a career with a future." He has worked in a psychiatric clinic.

The other two first - year males, Dan Wiwchar, 18, of Winnipeg, and Ted Kvasz, 20, of East Selkirk, Man., also had been exposed to some aspect of medical practice before.

All four will take exactly the same course as the girls, but live in the interns' quarters.

Starting salary for nursing graduates now is $283 a month, but likely will be $300 or more by the time the four graduate in 1964.

50 Years of Married Life Marked by Mr., Mrs. V. Free

CAMPBELLFORD—Mr. and Mrs. Victor Free of Garry St., were at home to their friends on Sunday afternoon and evening on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Free, and the former Nettie Thain, were married in the manse of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on September 30th, 1912.

Mr. Free worked for the Department of Transport, when the Trent Canal was built in the Campbellford area and during the First World War, worked at a shell filling plant in Campbellford. For the past 18 years he has been employed by the Campbellford Cloth Company.

The couple have nine children. Their four daughters are Mrs. Harold Detherick (Stella); Mrs. Lionel Holmes (Lois); Mrs. Russell Jacques (Marie), all of Campbellford and Mrs. Jerry McCrory (Florence), of Frankford. There are five sons: Mr. and Donald of Campbellford; Fred of Toronto; Harry of Brighton and Percy of Whitby. There are 23 grandchildren and ten great grandchildren.

Many gifts were received by the couple during the day including a chair by their family and a purse of money from the grandchildren as well as bouquets of flowers and other gifts. Messages of congratulations were received from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker; Harry Bradley, MP for Northumberland-Quinty; Wm. Goodlet, Minister of Highways, and an illuminated scroll from John Varcoe, Deputy Minister.

Mr. and Mrs. Free were guests of honor at a dinner given for them by the immediate family on the previous Sunday.

Bemersyde IODE Holds Pot-Luck Meal

CAMPBELLFORD —The September meeting of Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E., was held in the form of a pot-luck supper at the summer home of Mrs. J. O. Benor at Percent River, with 42 members present.

The business portion of the meeting followed supper with the Regent, Mrs. Helen Vice, the chair. Letters were received from the secretary and treasurer and correspondence read. Members were reminded of the semi-annual meeting to be held in Peterboro on October, 17th and 18th, and advised to contact the secretary, Mrs. G. Vandewater for further information.

Mrs. Vice reported that the Chapter had purchased a new Lamp Stand for Bridge Street Public School, and it had been presented on Tuesday, Sept. 25.

GROUP ACTIVITIES

Group Leaders reported on their activities and the Commonwealth relations convener, Mrs. T. Cryderman, read an interesting article entitled "Welcome Calendars, the Indians." It dealt with the history of the original people of the country and of their distrust of the white man's promises, misunderstandings.

Mrs. Rose Rollins was hostess when she was presented with a life membership in the I.O.D.E. Mrs. Rollins has always had performed. Mrs. Helen Vice and Mrs. Florence Hopkins were in charge of the presentation ceremony.

Mrs. Vice read a letter from headquarters asking for a long-term assistance for a child under the memorial scholarship fund. Another was a notice concerning the district meeting to be held in Belleville on October 24th and an invitation to attend the annual dessert bridge at Belleville armouries.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED

The need for a used piano in good condition for Merryvale School was brought to the attention of the Chapter and a committee was selected to look into the matter, convened of Mrs. Fran Nicholls, Mrs. Florence Boner, Mrs. Ella Sherwood and Mrs. June Bennett.

The possibility of entering a float in the Santa Claus Parade was discussed but the decision was left for the next meeting.

Mrs. W. Kingston thanked Mrs. Benor for entertaining the Chapter members and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

The October meeting will be in charge of Group 1 with Mrs. Helen Anderson as convener.

Mr., Mrs. Percy Gordon Celebrate Ruby Anniversary

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gordon, Forest St., were at home on Sunday, September 30th, in the afternoon and evening on the occasion of their fortieth (ruby) wedding anniversary at their home on Main Street, Marmora.

The home was beautifully decorated with bells and streamers and floral arrangements were mostly in wine and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lawrence presided at the tea table, a large basket of ruby, wine and mauve asters and neighbors gave them a lovely electric kettle and cut glass vase. They received many cards, several in ruby glass among which was one from Marmora Women's Institute of which Mrs. Gordon has been a member for over 30 years and secretary for several years.

Mr. Gordon was employed for a time at the Niagara Falls and for 27 years at the Deloro Plant of Deloro smelting. He now is self employed at his trade as carpenter. They have lived most of their married life in Marmora where he was born.

Mrs. Gordon (nee Mary Ann Reynolds) and Mr. Gordon were both natives of Bannockburn and were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wannamaker by the Rev. Joseph White.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon (nee Mary Ann Reynolds) and Mr. Gordon were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wannamaker by the Rev. Joseph White.

They have three children, Ernest of Marmora (Elsie) Mrs. Murney Bateman, Springbrook, (Gladys) Mrs. Gordon Meiklejohn, of Campbellford and ten grandchildren. All were present.

Besides local friends calling were several from Bannockburn and Belleville, Campbellford, Harta, Peterborough, Niagara Falls, N.Y. Springbrook Stirling and Madoc.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

PARENTAL EXAMPLE PROMOTES GOOD MANNERS

Children take a narrow view of manners.

To their clear way of thinking, parents simply should practise what they preach. Mother keeps harping on courtesy, but sometimes she neglects its practical application. Occasionally she has a most obvious spot, in her relations with the child's teacher at school.

A mother might fume when a neighbor drops in at an inopportune moment, and mutter things about "rudeness" and discourtesy" under her breath. Yet it makes perfect sense to her to drop into a classroom and ask a busy teacher how Johnny is doing in arithmetic.

Naturally a teacher is only too happy to discuss Johnny's problem with a considerate and interested parent. But just as mother resents an unwelcome intrusion, most teachers prefer not having the work of their classes disrupted by a discuss the flighty mathematics of one of the pupils.

Most successful parent-teacher relationships, while cordial, necessarily have to be conducted on a more businesslike basis. If mother finds it necessary to discuss a youngster's progress with his teacher, it's much more courteous to do it at a time that is convenient to both, so the discussion can be fruitful.

Instead of just dropping in, Mother should telephone. Then show courtesy by dropping the teacher a note suggesting an appointment. The teacher then could set aside time during the day when it's convenient, or after school when the pressure of the classroom is removed and the talk could be more prolonged and beneficial.

As an added point in the term, many schools make it convenient for parents to discuss their youngster's problems and progress.

Interested parents also can get to know the teacher better by attending regular PTA meetings. Naturally, since these are social-social gatherings after the business at hand is disposed of, it's not discourteous to corner a teacher at a time when others are waiting to see him.

Offering these simple courtesies to his teacher will help convince a youngster that the narrow view is ever widening and that parents actually do practise the same good manners they constantly preach.

Question: When introducing people at a party, for example, is it permissible to use nicknames? I've used nicknames on occasion thinking that a more informal introduction would help break the ice among strangers. The reason I've had some second thoughts on the subject is that recently I was introduced to a very annoyed because I introduced her to him by his nickname, as "Red" to friends at a casual gathering. Everyone at the party, including him by his nickname, so I naturally used it in introducing him myself. Since he's quite a bit older man, my husband thought it was disrespectful and disconcerting. Do you think such an introduction is incorrect?—

Answer: Yes. Introductions are properly made by using surnames — Mr. Smith, Mrs. Jones, Miss Brown, for example, especially in a fairly mature group. A young man might be introduced as John Jones, and a young woman as Mary Jones. Introductions are never made by first name alone, and certainly not by nickname.

'Education' Topic at Melrose W.I.

Mrs. L. Gnaedinger opened her spacious home for the September meeting of Melrose W.I. which was attended by 25 members and several visitors. The president, Mrs. Mac Lazier, welcomed all and thanked Mrs. Gnaedinger for her gracious hospitality, after which each branch, which is to the roll call, "My Earliest Recollection of School," the secretary read the Institute Bulletin" from the Department, stating in part the resolutions which had been passed and reporting 270 children had been adopted by the various Institutes, including Melrose branch, which is supporting a nine-year-old girl, "Yong Soon Sim," in Pusan, Korea.

Mrs. K. McMechan was appointed curator for the district Tweedsmuir History.

Booklets, entitled "Fall-Out and the Family" were distributed, to each lady present and Mrs. T. Howard and Mrs. Don McLaren, members of Directors of the Girls' Club to attend the conference for Women Leaders for Summer," at Stirling on October 22 and 23. Mrs. Howard and Mrs. English took charge of the program, opening with a display of an old School Day's Desk in keeping with the subject, "Education" Mrs. Howard, chairman gave a reading, "Making a Good of Education," then urged a sensible approach to education, encouraging pupils to work hard for better understanding on the part of the parents.

Mrs. English, the leader, brought out many good thoughts in her presentation of "Learning to Play away because the Institute is not perfect, however, how it would feel in a perfect Institute, after which Mrs. C. Sir, rendered a pleasing piano solo.

Mrs. McMechan read a humorous poem on "Discipline" and Mrs. Mrs. Mc-Laren, a humorous poem "High Cost of Leaving School" which had been compiled by Mrs. McLaren. "Anyone who doesn't finish high school generally has problems in securing a position."

Out of 100 students only six could spell correctly. The lessons for this low percentage were given to University students complain students are at the elementary level and there is a lower grades to overcome this. TV interferes with studying, the student can help the student by encouraging his efforts and giving constructive criticism as the fate of the empire depends on the education of the child.

As all share in the benefits of education, it is a responsibility to see that sound education is maintained and improved.

Mrs. C. Bates Jr. read an article regarding Education Week, which adopted the slogan, "Stay in School."

A "Word Contest" proved exciting and was won by Mrs. Bates, Mrs. Jr. and Mrs. Lane.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the lunch committee.

BAKE 'N TAKE CAKE

1¼ cups boiling water, ½ cup shortening, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1¼ cups cake flour, 1 cup uncooked rolled oats, 1 cup white sugar, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Pour water over rolled oats and let cool. Cream sugar and shortening together, add egg one at a time and beat well. Add vanilla. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with oatmeal mixture to sugar mixture. Beat well. Then beat 2 minutes on medium speed. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr for 25 to 30 minutes in rectangular pan, 13 x 9 x 1½".

Topping: ½ cup margarine, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 cups yolks, 1 cup coconut, ½ to ¾ cup chopped nuts (optional), 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt margarine. Remove from heat and stir in brown sugar, then add beaten egg yolks and other ingredients. Blend well. Spread on top of hot cake and broil under broiler hot broiler until, topping bubbles. When cool cut in squares.

Answer: Thank you for this unique cake with lightly topping. I'm sure it will appeal to our readers. Could you extend my thanks to your sister in Tennessee?

Letter: To have lettuce heads stay their natural green without "rust" — wash and trim, cut the root off and let the lettuce drip. Then pat dry and wrap in paper towel or large paper table napkin and a cellophane envelope when put in the refrigerator. I've found this procedure very satisfactory.

Answer: Thank you for this practical contribution.

Question: I have misplaced a very good recipe for Hot Fudge Sauce for ice cream. As well as I can remember it was a corn syrup in it, a package of chocolate chips, and maybe marshmallows. It became very thick when stored in the refrigerator but was so dark and rich tasting. Today I canned a 6-qt. basket of plumlotus. This is by far the best recipe I've Pickled Red Plumlotus I have found and thought you would like to share it with your readers. Wash, cut into several pieces and take out seeds of 3 quarts of red plumlotus. Have ready large kettle of boiling salted water. Drop in plumlotus and when they come to boil again, take out immediately and drop into small sterilized jars. Add following syrup and seal: 4 cups sugar, 2 cups white vinegar boiled together for several minutes.

Another recipe my family likes so well is your Haddock au Gratin.

N. B.

Answer: Thank you for your method of Pickling Red Plumlotus. Please see tomorrow's column for Haddock Sauce.

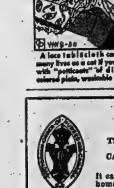
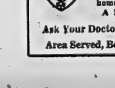
Women Can Get Man by Going West



OTTAWA (CP)—Girls, if you want to get a man go West.



Figures released today from the 1961 census by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that the largest ratio of men to women is in the West—particularly the Yukon and Northwest Territories where there are 128 men to every 100 women.

Saskatchewan is next with 108 men for every 100 women and Alberta is third with 107 men for every 100 women.

The other provinces are Newfoundland, 105; Prince Edward Island and British Columbia, 104; Nova Scotia and Manitoba, 103; New Brunswick, 102; Ontario, 101; and Quebec 100.

The best odds are in the rural areas, where men outnumber women in all areas of Canada.

A lace tablecloth can have as many lives as a cat if you apply to it "preserves" of different colored plastic, washable materials.

Silver Anniversary Marked By Sixty Relatives, Friends

WEST HUNTINGDON — A pleasant surprise took place on Saturday evening when about 60 relatives, friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. John McLaney, gathered in the Sunday School room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, to honor them on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary.

The bride and bridegroom of 25 years were seated at a table, decorated with pink and white bells and streamers, autumn flowers and an anniversary cake in white and silver.

Mr. T. D. Dodds was chairman for a short program. He voiced congratulations and best wishes from those present and wished the honored couple many more happy years to come.

Mrs. Stewart Hoover gave a reading, "Leatha's First Beau".

A mock wedding followed with amusing costumes and antics which was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Carl Thompson expressed sentiments on behalf of the gathering and called on Miss Gail Hoover to present the gift of a decorated money tree to the bride and groom. Other gifts and cards were also presented from friends.

The bride and bridegroom made suitable replies and thanked those responsible for planning such a pleasant evening.

A dainty lunch was served, including the anniversary cake.

Flash pictures were taken and a social hour followed.

Y.P.U. Enjoys Social Event

RAWDON — One Thursday evening recently the initial meeting of the Hamilton circuit Young People's Union was held in Bethel Church hall with 30 in attendance.

The president, Miss Diane McAdam presided at this new members and opened the devotional with "Worship the King" and group prayer. Kaleva Sharp read the Bible lesson and Janet Fletcher gave the special story. Miss Mary Eileen David presented her report. The Misses Dianne and Judy Cooney contributed a vocal duet and Miss B. Dreaup read a humorous story. Allen Fletcher conducted a few games and the Bethel girls served refreshments.

On September 27th Mr. and Mrs. Carman Mix of Wellman's entertained over 40 young people when all enjoyed a hayrack ride and bonfire.

Miss Carol Sharpe, vice-president of the Rawdon circuit Y.P.U. welcomed the new members and at the close of the evening expressed thanks to the hostess for the fine hospitality.

The evening was spent in contests, games skits and a sing-song. Charles Nix, David Murray and David Glidden entertained with several western songs with Charles playing the guitar accompaniment.

A short business meeting was held to make plans for future events. The hostess and Wellmans girls served refreshments.

SPACE DOG HAS PUPS

MOSCOW (AP)—Chernushka, one of Russia's spacedogs, has given birth to two black-spotted white pups, Tass news agency reported Thursday. Soviet dogs sent into space just before Maj. Yuri Gagarin made the pioneer journey by man, are raising families in the Moscow Zoo.

Bakery Shop Clerk in Race For Mayoralty

MONTREAL (CP) —, Mrs. Louise Parent, 50, a bakery shop clerk and a part-time nightclub singer, announced the day the first woman ever to enter a Montreal mayoralty race and said:

"If Charlotte Whitton can be a mayoress of Ottawa I don't see any reason why I cannot hold the same office here."

Mrs. Parent put up $100 to get her nomination papers for the Oct. 8 election but outlined her platform for reelection.

First, she insisted, she is not to be called a politician. "Politicians," she said, "are the mayor of Montreal is no longer interested." She promised she would fix that if elected.

She would press the federal government to adopt a Canadian flag and to abolish the last white background with the word "CANADA" emblazoned across it. Mrs. Parent admitted this has nothing to do with municipal politics, but she thought it was a good point anyway.

In an apparent pitch for pedestrians' votes, Mrs. Parent said she would ban all cars from city streets except those driven by garage owners.

Mrs. Parent has three opponents — incumbent Jean Drapeau, Senator Sarto Fournier and Paul Lamberti.

Peace River Dam Will Be North America's Biggest Man-Made Gravel Pile

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Peace River dam will be North America's biggest man - made gravel pile.

It will cost about $100,000,000 and at that price it had better stay firm indefinitely.

That responsibility lies with three men — an American, a to revew design of the dam, Swede and an Englishman — hired by the British Columbia Hydro and Power Commission to review design of the dam, selecting of materials and building plans. In each case, they must also watch costs.

Creating this kind of supervising board is standard practice for such projects, and the experience of the three men reflects the scope of world power development.

J. Barry Cooke, 47, of San Rafael, Calif., and Geoffrey Binnie, 53, of London, are consulting engineers. Tor Nilsson, 58, of Stockholm, is civil engineering director of Sweden's state power board.

Mr. Cooke described their job as "a matter of achieving maximum safety with economy."

During their B.C. visit in September they studied sketches and reports in Vancouver and flew to Hudson Hope, B.C., 300 miles north of here, for a look at the actual Portage Mountain damsite. Men and machines already have cleared 1,000 acres for the diversion tunnels that must be dug to allow work on the dam next summer.

PROJECT IS IMMENSE

Binnie described Portage Mountain as an "immense project," among the largest he had seen. His firm has designed and is supervising construction of the Mangla Dam in Pakistan, biggest of its kind.

Mangla Dam will take 3,000,000 more yards of fill than Portage Mountain, but its generating potential is 1,000,000 kilowatts, compared with 2,500,000 kilowatts for the Peace project. Binnie said he knew of no other site in the world outside of Russia with this potential.

The three men spent just one week in B.C. How will they get together to discuss the dam?

Correspondence is part of the answer, Cooke said. But the dam - building fraternity is a mobile, international set of the highest order and the paths of its members cross often in all parts of the world.

Cooke, for example, ran into Nilsson this summer in Moscow. Early in September, Cooke and Binnie met in Chicago and at the end of September Cooke and Nilsson were to meet again at a world power conference in Melbourne.

Cooke said that as an independent consultant he has to keep moving to make money. In 1962 he had already visited India twice, Africa three times, South America twice, and Europe so many times he couldn't recall.

"The jet planes make very pleasant offices," he said. "You're not conscious of paying any rent."

Highly-Developed Air-Taxi Service in Czechoslovakia Growing in Last Decade

By DAVID OANCIA

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (CP) — Dial for a taxi in this, the most Western of Communist countries, and you have to specify whether you want a car or an airplane.

The car you get is not to be a ramshackle relic of a socialist vintage that often seems to run only because its clunky driver has great faith in it.

The airplane you get, on the other hand, is a 1,000-horsepower engined craft with a cabin roomy enough for four passengers.

These planes, called the Moravan L200, are the mainstay of a highly developed air - taxi service that has been growing for the last decade. The service has resulted in the creation of a breed of flyers comparable to Canada's bush pilots.

ALWAYS ON CALL

They're always on call, ready to fly to the most remote and rugged spots in this compact and hilly country. They go around the country, they provide rapid transportation to 72 different points which dave no regular airline facilities.

Capt. Zdenek Bedrich is one of the flyers. On the day I met him he had flown a mother and her three children to Liberec, a small town near the Polish-East German frontier, then picked up a sick man and flew him to hospital.

Later he took some Western visitors on a aerial tour both to show off the country's ancient castles and natural beauty and to demonstrate how the Moravan performed.

The air-taxi service, an offshoot of Czechoslovakia's state-run airline, was launched in 1951. Over the years it has developed into a major enterprise. Its fleet now logs more than 1,000 hours a year.

WANT TOURISTS

Costs for each passenger are said to be comparable to scheduled airline fares for similar distances. It usually roughly 30 cents a mile to hire the air taxi. Four persons can make a 400-mile flight for about $120.

Officials say that for ordinary persons the fare need may be only a touch because of the cost. But the big state-run industrial concerns — such as the Skoda works at Pilsen, used them regularly to move their executives and technicians around the country.

Now the organization is in the throes of launching a major drive to get some of the tourist money. Sightseeing tours are to be provided from major towns.

A scheme is also being developed to provide air transport from Prague, where most tourists arrive, to the hunting and fishing grounds in the High Tatra mountains in northeastern Slovakia, a region that is much the same as the Canadian Rockies.

The aircraft used is one the Czechs have pushed with some success in export markets. So far, 300 have been produced by the state's aircraft production monopoly and have been sold to users in 40 countries.

The Moravan L200D, the latest model, has the performance characteristics one expects from the Canadian Beaver and the Otters used in the north. It takes off quickly, handles easily and is capable of some of the tightest manoeuvres when it's airborne.

The Czechs are so confident of the quality of their product that they are willing to put in the competition for markets which now customarily buy comparable American-made craft.

CAMPBELLFORD

Rotary Club Hears Appeal For Unfortunate Retarded

CAMPBELLFORD — Guest speaker at the Monday meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club was Mrs. Ken Reid of Trenton, representing the Canadian Association for Retarded Children. She made an eloquent appeal on behalf of those unfortunates, who, through no fault of their own are doomed to be dependent upon the generosity of others for whatever comfort and satisfaction they can hope to get out of life.

In posing the question, "What Is Retardation?" Mrs. Reid said it is an incomplete medical ability. Unlike mental illness, it cannot be cured and, therefore, any plan for the care of the mentally retarded will, of necessity, embrace the entire lifetime of the victim.

Since one baby in every three born is retarded in one degree or another, the numbers requiring the care, sympathetic understanding and financial help of the community is ever on the increase.

221 LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS

The Canadian Association for Retarded Children was formed 14 years ago by parents of retarded children. Now there are retarded children's associations in all provinces. There are 221 local organizations such as the one in Campbellford, operating for what can be done.

Home care is one of the many services of service into which the association enters. This consists of parent forums to care for the mentally retarded child in the approved scientific manner. Grab supplies in cases where there is no parent in the area. Field workers are sent out to see that the parent is fully instructed.

Pre-school children are taken care of in a similar way, except that groups of them are formed in a community where it is feasible.

The association includes in its many activities the provision of training camps for the retarded, workshops in the larger centres where they can be usefully employed, follow-up services and institutional care for those who have no parents or relatives upon whom they can rely for the simple help they might need.

NECESSARY RESEARCH

One of the most significant of the efforts of the association relates to the research necessary to tackle the many and intricate problems encountered. The Dominion Association has been fortunate in securing the voluntary aid of experts in the medical, psychological and scientific fields to make up an advisory council to assist them in this very important phase of their work.

Campbellford is one of the 220 affiliates of the association. The local organization operates on its own authority receiving what help it can get from the governments of the province, the municipalities involved and from the generosity of the people of the community.

The Campbellford school has $2,500 for the coming year. A canvass for this sum will be undertaken next week. The speaker urged all to give generously so that the school in which Campbellford, as a community, should take much pride, may continue to serve those who have been hitherto forgotten.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. Gordon Whitehorne, who presented assistant to the forthcoming canvass of the town. Rotarian Ron Hall thanked Mrs. Reid for her address.

NEW FORESTS — At the northern fringe of the reforestation project, looking west, one can see the waters of Lake Ontario in the distance. In this area, in another 20 to 30 years, there will be full camping facilities for Ontario camping enthusiasts and their guests.

NEW BEACHES — Looking towards the east and West Lake from the same vantage point as the picture to the left one sees the vast sandy beaches for which Sandbanks are famous. These will be preserved to form a major feature of the provincial park when it is opened.

SHIFTING SANDS — A Lands and Forests officer checks the progress of another shifting sand dune which is moving up alongside the most recent reforestation area. The snow fencing is used to help stop the sand from covering up the new seedlings to the right.

MULCHED AREA—That's not green grass on those hills, it's old hay mulch carefully spread by hand to provide a firm base for the planting of poplar seedlings. With almost 80 per cent of these new saplings expected to take root a new forest can be expected within 30 years.

Reforestation Project At Sandbanks Sponsored By Lands and Forests Dept.

Some say that Prince Edward county has everything. This could well be for conservation over the past year indicates that not only does the county have the deepest and gustiest snow storms in the district but it also probably has the shiftiest, whispering sands this side of the Sahara.

These sands are, of course, the famed Sandbanks, located to the South of Wellington and consist of six miles of beautiful natural sand beach backed up by the constantly shifting sand dunes with Lake Ontario to the west and West Lake to the east.

The Sandbanks was not always so, however. Over a century ago it was described as consisting of fertile green field and woods and there was an active lake port located on the now land-locked West Lake.

Why the change?

The change is due to a desire for more arable land by the farmers of that area about one hundred years ago. They cleared the forest acres which existed on the west side of their farms between these green fields and the blue waters of Lake Ontario. The elimination of the trees also meant the removal of a natural windbreak and the land was now open to the effects of erosion and change.

Change it certainly did. Within forty years the district residents realized their mistake. Sand from the shores of Lake Ontario were being drifted across their arable lands by the predominant westerly winds and sand dunes were forming on the shore and slowly sweeping across the land. Eventually six once-prosperous farms quite literally went under, and brick factory and a hotel were completely covered by the sand and the channel into West Lake slowly filled up and lake ships could no longer find anchorage.

It is a matter of historical record that the farmers attempted to save their lands through their own reforestation projects but these proved unsuccessful and it was not until 40 years ago that the Ontario government started its reforestation project to try and save what could be salvaged from the shifting sands.

BIG FATALITY RATE

This initial attempt was unsuccessful and only a few trees on the fringe area of the project survived. The fatality rate was over 50 per cent of the new trees planted. Ten years ago, however, new techniques were devised and these proved highly successful.

Today the planting of new trees by the timber division of the Lands and Forests Department, Tweed District, is at least 80 per cent successful. In fact the Sandbanks project has this year enjoyed a greater degree of success than any other reforestation project in the district despite the fact that it is considered to be the worst possible site.

This success is credited to the abundant use of mulch — old hay is best, and snow fencing. The mulch is applied by hand and laid down in a layer, which is several inches thick. This helps to provide a fairly firm base for the new trees or saplings, preventing the movement of the sand beneath them. As an area is mulched and planted, snow fencing is erected to help protect it as much as possible from the erosive effects of the wind.

Initially there is a planting of poplar seedlings. This is no popular poplar but a special species developed by the Lands and Forests people by crossing the Lombardy poplar with the Canadian aspen. The result is called the Carolina poplar.

The Carolina poplar is not considered to be the end of the reforestation project when it takes root. Its only reason for existence is to provide basic protection for undergrowing species as Scotch pine, spruce, red and white pines, in another 20 years or so.

Once these new trees reach sufficient maturity to defend themselves from the effects of humanity and the itinerant campers (which requires about another ten years) the area can be opened for tourists and camping.

LONG-TERM PROJECT

Thus it can be seen that reforestation at the Sandbanks is a long - term project. Thirty years is easily required before the land is once again ready for human use.

Incidently, not all of the Sandbanks area is to be reforested. Close to 80 per cent of the vast sandpile is to be left that way with only the southern portion to be reforested. Once this work is completed this district will be able to boast of one of the finest tourist and camping areas in Canada.

Don't start pulling out your camping gear and the kiddies' sand toys yet. Remember, Sandbanks is not going to be ready for another 20 to 30 years and then let us hope that people use and not abuse it. It takes a long time to rebuild.

SEEDLINGS START — Ontario Lands and Forests officer Edward Edson checks beneath the mulch to see how the roots of a recent planting of poplar saplings are coming along. The hay mulch, which is spread by hand, protects the sand base from wind erosion, allows the seedlings to gain a firm root and then protects their roots from erosion. This system is 80 per cent successful—a very high degree.

EROSION EFFECTS—These tree stumps are being exposed for the second time. After they were originally covered up some decades ago by the shifting sand dunes they were cut off at ground level only to have the remainder exposed once more when the sand shifted again. They stand as reminders of the effects of erosion caused by indiscriminate forest cutting.

Mine mill worker Joseph Kehoe is seen with chunks of white talc ore as it comes from the 400-foot deep underground mine. Ore is crushed and then ground into white powder.

The Canada Talc Industries grinding mill, east of Madoc, is equipped with the most modern machinery.

Area must be periodically shovelled off around mill is covered with white talc dust which collects on the roof and delivered to the mill at the station. That was the start of a 6-for-one motor trucks.

With the construction of the new mill at the mine site, modern machinery was installed and the grinding process is now largely automatic.

BLAST WITH FERTILIZER

The underground workings of the Madoc talc mines is essentially a hard rock mining operation. Holes are punched into the soft rock and the ore is blasted with an ammonium nitrate fuel oil blasting agent originally used as a fertilizer. Mr. Roscoe says it is as efficient as dynamite and much easier to work with.

Instead of dynamite sticks being placed in the holes the blasting agent in its powder form is simply blown into the holes.

The only objection apparently is the smell. It still smells like fertilizer.

Anywhere up to 20 or 30 tons of rock are blasted in detonations while in the stopes up to two or three tons are commonly used. The underground work is done by day shift men, with only the grinding mill being operated at night.

One of the company employees, Joseph Kehoe, 50, has worked at the mines for about ten years on two different periods.

He first started as a miner at Madoc, then went to Deloro. When the Deloro operation closed down two years ago he returned to the talc mines at Madoc.

But the Madoc talc mines have been running since before the era of memory. He recalls that as a young boy his father cut timbers for use in the Madoc mines.

Ground talc is bagged in 50-pound paper sacks for shipment. Mr. Kehoe is seen with sack of talc "flour," which has more than 100 uses. By-product of mine is white terrazzo. Less than one per cent of mine production is used for cosmetics.

Madoc Has One of Three Talc Mines in Dominion

Talc may be one of the most common non-metallic minerals in the world, but the fact remains that the Madoc talc mine is one of three in eastern Canada and the only one in this country where pure white talc is available.

The other two talc mines in Canada are in the provinces of Quebec, but grey talc of a less pure form is mined.

The Madoc mine, now owned by Canada Talc Industries, has operated since before the turn of the century and over the years has employed up to 25 men.

However, in recent years, with the installation of modern machinery fewer men have been employed. Currently about 15 men work at the mine, most of them underground, mining the soft greasy soapstone material which has literally hundreds of uses.

MANY USES -

In fact talc is one of the most important of the non-metallic minerals. But, important as feminine beauty is, less than one per cent of the product of the Madoc mine goes for the manufacture of cosmetics.

Other more common uses for talc are as paint fillers, manufacture of plastic paper, and asphalt roofing materials, rubber production and insecticides.

The present manager of the Canada Talc Industries is Harry Roscoe, whose firm took over operation of the mine about ten years ago. Mr. Roscoe's family is connected with Noranda Mines in northern Quebec.

The talc deposits on the eastern outskirts of Madoc village apparently were first discovered back before the turn of the century by a Toronto university professor who attempted unsuccessfully to develop the deposits.

The mine was eventually developed by George H. Gillespie who still lives at Madoc. The mine then was known as the Gillespie Talc Mines.

Actually there are two talc mines at Madoc. They are on adjoining properties and are now owned by the same company.

One of the workings is locally known as the Henderson quarry and the other as the Conley quarry.

Mr. Ed James of Belleville at one time owned the Madoc talc mines.

400 FEET DEEP

Shafts at the mines go down over 400 feet. The talc rock is hoisted to the surface in vertical lift cages, put through a crusher and then through grinders and is finally bagged as "talc flour" in 50-pound bags for shipment.

The grinding mill is now located at the mines but not too many years ago the talc ore was transported to the village for grinding at a mill near the railway station.

Old timers at Madoc still remember the talc ore being hauled through the village by horses and wagons as it was

Cabinet Minister Hints Quebec May Move Into Other Sectors of Economy

MONTREAL (CP) — A leading Liberal cabinet minister has hinted Quebec government may move into other sectors of the economy besides the hydro-electric field "to ensure French-Canadians a share of control in their resources."

Rene Levesque, natural resources minister, said Thursday night "French Canadians don't really exist in the mining and pulp and paper industries, they are only tolerated."

He told a Montreal service club Thursday, however, that expropriation was not the answer to the province's woes.

paper, unlike the hydro industry.

"We will have to find other formulae," Mr. Levesque said, "but the Liberal government has fuelled a provincial election Nov. 14 with expropriation of electricity its main platform plank.

Mr. Levesque, whose ministry includes the public-owned Hydro-Quebec, led the drive to expropriate 11 privately - owned hydro-electric firms.

He described the present system of mixed hydro production as "lunacy."

Labor Minister Defends P.M. In Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime objective of the Liberal party since 1957 has been to "destroy the prime minister so as to get back to power," Labor Minister Starr told the Commons Thursday.

The attack on Prime Minister Diefenbaker "they cannot deny," said Mr. Starr. The Liberal party made the image of this great man who has done more as prime minister in his term of office than any other prime minister during a comparable period."

Planning as used by the New Democratic Party is socialist planning which is "entirely different than what free democracies believe in," he added. It meant regimentation and nothing else.

He said Liberal charges that Mr. Diefenbaker had deceived the electorate before the June 18 election constituted the "lowest degrading of political life."

EXCEEDS 'TARGETS'

Mr. Starr said current employment and the value of goods and services exceed the targets described in January, 1958, the writings of Walter Gordon (Liberal-Toronto Davenport) and in the 1955-57 report of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects which Mr. Gordon headed.

The Liberals were saying the rate of expansion of new job opportunities must be doubled. Under policies of the present government 200,000 new jobs were provided annually.

Employment so far this year was consistently higher than in either 1960 or 1961. Economic growth was running at an average annual rate that was eight per cent higher than last year.

Parliamentary Notebook

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian parliamentary history will not name Chaplin have met again.

Thirty-six years ago the Commons recorded the nearest approach to a complete vote of all its members since 1867. In the 245-seat House only one member was absent—A. D. Chaplin, a Conservative representing Kent, Ont.

His brother, James D. Chaplin, later trade minister for three months in the late Arthur Meighen Conservative ministry, was present for the vote. He represented Lambton.

This week the Commons broke the 1926 record. Every MP was present for the vote on Speaker Gordon C h a p l i n, 56, son of James D. Chaplin, who sat as a Conservative for the same constituency his father represented.

In many respects the Parliament of 1926 was similar to the present one. The Liberal government had suffered at the polls and held 100 seats. The Conservative opposition held 115. A third party—the Progressives—held the balance of power with 24 seats. There were two Labor members and two independents.

In the present Parliament the roles are reversed and there are some differences in party standings. The Conservatives hold 116 seats, the Liberals 100, the CCF 30 and New Democrats 18. One seat is vacant—Burnaby-Coquitlam in British Columbia where a by-election has been called for Nov. 5.

PCs OFFER MOTION

When the new Parliament assembled in January, 1926, the Conservatives offered a non-confidence motion. With progressive support, they could have toppled Mackenzie King's Liberals who had just several ministers, including Mr. King himself, in the election.

About 12:30 a.m. Jan. 15, 1926, the Conservative non-confidence motion was put to a vote. The 115 Conservatives were joined by five Progressives. But the 100 Liberals were sustained in office by 19 Progressive votes and more of both L&P; and independent MPs.

The non-confidence motion was defeated 123 to 120. A. D. Chaplin, ill in hospital, was unable to vote. Speaker Rodolphe Lemieux, a Liberal, did not vote either because then as now the Speaker votes only in case of a tie.

At 9:45 p.m. last Tuesday the Commons voted on a Social Credit non - confidence motion. This time only the 30 Social Credit MPs voted for it. The 100 Liberals and 18 New Democrats voted along with the 116 Conservatives.

Although the stage was set again Thursday night for another Tuesday night House vote, there were five absent MPs, Mr. Chaplin, however, was in his seat and voted in both recorded votes.

Feared Strings Of Poisonous Beads Awarded

CHATHAM (CP) — An estimated 120 strings of beads, feared to contain poisonous jequirity seeds, were given out as prizes Thursday night at McKeough Public School.

A Chatham radio station issued warnings over the 20 minutes and about 70 to 80 strings were recovered.

The remaining 70 necklaces given out as prizes at a fish pond game, were still in the hands of children.

The children were at a hobby fair sponsored by the Home and School Association which purchased the beads some time ago from a Toronto manufacturer.

Jim Hope, a reporter for the Chatham News, recognized the beads as being similar to a necklace discovered here last week and told the father of one of the winners that he should take the necklace to police for inspection.

Police agreed they were similar to the necklace found last week which was confirmed to be poisonous by the attorney-general's department.

Sen. Grossart Will Retire as PC Director

OTTAWA (CP)—Allister Grossart, the chief Conservative organizer in the last three federal elections and now a senator, will retire in about three months as national director of the Progressive Conservative party.

Party sources say he expects to turn over his desk and its organizational hot seat to a successor about the time the federal Conservatives hold their national annual meeting here next Jan. 18 and 19. He probably will combine an interest in private business with his duties in the Senate, where he took his seat last week.

Plans for the annual meeting which will draw about 1,500 delegates and as many more guests, alternates, and observers, are going forward although the government could be defeated at any time by a combined opposition vote in the Commons and have to call a general election before mid-January.

In that case, the meeting would probably be cancelled and Mr. Grossart persuaded to remain on the job.

DRAFTED TO STAY

The senator said the former newspaper man and advertising executive, who will be 56 in December, has been drafted to stay active to private business for about three years. He had difficulty finding a successor, and when this year's election loomed, he was drafted into staying at his post.

He was Prime Minister Diefenbaker's right hand man in the campaign which led to his national victory over the Liberals in 1957, his sweep of the country in 1958, and his tenuous victory this year.

Mr. Grossart's appointment to the senate for a lifetime position of senator followed the expressed wishes of Mr. Grossart made a detailed analysis of the election result. The appointment was a unanimous decision of the party executive.

"All Christians, whatever be their confession, hope and pray that this historic event will serve to advance the cause of unity for which our Lord prayed," says Rev. Dr. Willem Visser 'THooft, general secretary of the World Council of Churches.

One key zone of past tension, already relaxed in some measure, has been Rome's traditional aloofness from other denominations, on the ground that it is the only true church.

Some Catholic leaders see the possibility of a fresh interpretation of that creed. Such action, says Rev. Robert J. Gr:nam, a Jesuit scholar, could further a new approach to Catholics' to i n t e r d e n o m i national relations.

Senator Called Barefoot Boy From Bay St.

OTTAWA (CP) — "The barefoot boy from Bay Street."

That was the tag put on Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon, minister without portfolio in the Conservative government, Thursday in the House of Commons by Liberal front-bencher J. W. Pickersgill.

Mr. McCutcheon, former vice-president of Argus Corporation and director of a multitude of other industrial concerns, was elected to the senate and appointed a senator about two months ago.

Speaking in the throne speech debate Mr. Pickersgill, MP for Bonaventure, Bonaventure-Twillingate riding, referred back to a Commons speech made by Prime Minister Diefenbaker in 1947.

Reading from Hansard he quoted Mr. Diefenbaker as saying the Liberal government of the day was the "most invisible incognitos"—high civil servants.

KNOWS VIEWS

"We know what the prime minister thinks about civil servants," said Mr. Pickersgill.

"They belong to that same group of public servants as a certain gentleman who is incognito in the House. I refer to that recent addition to the senate, the barefoot boy from Bay Street.

"This is one of the people who, according to the prime minister, were trampling on the liberties of this country under the late C. D. Howe during the war years. That is the incognito who is running the government of Canada today.

"He is not in this House. He is not facing the elected representatives of the people."

Mr. Pickersgill said Senator McCutcheon and finance department officials should be brought before the commons committee so they can be questioned on when preparations were begun for the government's austerity program.

Senator McCutcheon during the war was a high official of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Vatican Council for First Time Will Seat Other Communions Not in Fold

For the first time, this year's Vatican council will be attended by observers from other denominations. Here, in the last of three articles, an Associated Press writer will attend and explores what this may mean in future years.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roman Catholicism maintains it is the "one true church."

However, when its historic Vatican council convenes Oct. 11 in Rome, representatives of other communions also will be officially seated in the solemn assembly.

They also are somehow part of Christianity, Rome recognizes, even though essentially outside the avowed "one" church.

It is a subtle but significant point, and offers a dramatic undercurrent to the council, first of its kind in nearly a century and the only one ever held under Rome's auspices to be attended by those not in its fold.

Although the Protestant, Anglican and other "separated observers" will have no direct voice in the proceedings, their presence will be felt, and their views may exercise a latent but definite reflex influence on the proceedings.

One purpose of the council, says Pope John XXIII, is to help "clear away some of the roadblocks" to Christian reunion. He himself has been a prime mover in renewing links with Protestantism and Eastern Orthodoxy.

Although the council intends no direct moves toward reunion at present, this is a future, inherent goal.

From pulpits of nearly every denomination have come expressions of hope—and doubts—about possible steps in this direction.

"All Christians, whatever be their confession, hope and pray that this historic event will serve to advance the cause of unity for which our Lord prayed," says Rev. Dr. Willem Visser 'THooft, general secretary of the World Council of Churches.

One key zone of past tension, already relaxed in some measure, has been Rome's traditional aloofness from other denominations, on the ground that it is the only true church.

Some Catholic leaders see the possibility of a fresh interpretation of that creed. Such action, says Rev. Robert J. Gr:nam, a Jesuit scholar, could further a new approach to Catholics' to i n t e r d e n o m i national relations.

Although Rome stands fast on the immutability of its basic doctrines, it also holds that fuller exposition of them can sometimes bring wider consensus, without compromise of truth or conviction.

Such efforts may be focused on defining the nature of the Christian church itself, and whether or not the full and authentic dimensions, in some ways, exceed Rome's institutional lines, with other churches sharing it to some extent.

This fundamental question has been before the church for centuries, says Augustin Cardinal Bea, head of the Vatican's secretariat for Christian union, but has never been dealt with "in a complete and profound manner."

The coming council, he says, should "face that task."

One proposal is that the council make absolutely clear that valid baptism, already conferred outside Roman Catholicism, joins a person to Christ and, at least in part, to his church, thus affirming that true aspects of the church extend beyond Rome's administration.

This wouldn't automatically ease the long-standing doctrinal rifts.

But, it would, in the view of many church authorities, provide a basis for reciprocity and stimulate effort toward understanding and to overcome differences, where possible.

However, many Catholic traditionalists are wary of interdenominational collaboration, and may resist attempts to facilitate it.

The non - Roman churches hope, said Dr. Visser 'THooft, that the second Vatican council will mean progress from monologue to dialogue.

"It is important that progress be made toward a conversation in which the Roman Catholic Church and other churches, without compromising deeply held convictions, deal with each other as Christian churches should behave to each other."

The issue comes at a time of world-wide ecumenical urge for unity, among most all Christian bodies.

With encouragement from the present Pope, relationships between Rome and other branches of the faith already have increased immensely, including the Vatican's establishment of its first liaison agency, the unity secretariat.

Many Catholic leaders also have begun emphasizing that the cause of the divisions rests on all parties concerned, including Rome and not just the Protestantism and Orthodoxy. They hold that all have made mistakes, on the human side, and can learn from each other.

British Labor Party Feels It Has Chance to Win

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There was a gilt on the eye and a jauntiness in the step of most delegates to the conference of the Labor Party this week.

It wasn't just the fresh sea air breezing across the Brighton promenade. It was the general feeling that the party of power since 1951 Labor has more than fighting chance to win the next election.

Labor's biggest gun in the country politics was missing. The new-found opposition to joining the European Common Market on the terms the Conservatives so far have been able to obtain.

Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell has left the door to Europe only barely ajar by throwing in all but with the majority anti-market group within the party.

LOSES FRIENDS

This has given labor the closest approach to unity since 1945. It has had in years. But by alienating the pro-European market element Gaitskell has lost some of his closest friends and runs the risk of losing more.

Besides the Common Market issue, Labor has also established a presentable program of alternatives to woo the voters on domestic and international issues.

Shadow chancellor James Callaghan Thursday announced a sweeping four - year industrial expansion plan that he promised would end the government's "policies of stagnation."

Despite this there are some within the party who would decide if who do not share the hopes of Gaitskell and his followers. Deputy leader George Brown, who favors joining European Common Market, is bitterly: "It's death or glory this time."

Other observers have remarked that the Brighton health cure that has given Labor possible election-winning prospects has also revealed how tired and frail the soul of the party is.

There were new bright young socialists roving the conference gangways and the few that did speak themselves were more inclined to back the Common Market.

Gaitskell's appeals to "1,000 years of history," his reference to Vimy Ridge and Calpoll, the hushed reverence that most of the remarks about the postwar Labor government, moistened the eyes of many delegates.

But many outsiders thought these sentiments ill became a forward-looking party dedicated to internationalism.

Remanded Week In Custody

TORONTO (CP) — Antonio Ricario, 25, charged with criminal negligence following the death of a 39-year-old pregnant woman Tuesday night, was questioned for 12 hours Wednesday by metro-politican homicide detectives.

Ricario, a Toronto doll maker, was remanded in custody for one week without bail.

Detectives Thursday investigations are continuing.

Mrs. Quinzio Riccuiti was killed when she and her 23-year-old husband were knocked down by a car while shopping. The husband was not injured.

Police said Ricario and Mrs. Riccuiti had gone out a number of times before her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Riccuiti, childhood sweethearts, were married about a year ago in Italy.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. R. CARVER, Sports Editor.

"I read a weird story about a former major baseball league pitcher who was reportedly murdered on a diamond after a game," writes a customer. "His name was "Bugs" Raymond. Is the story true?"

"Bugs" Raymond was a pitcher with the Detroit Tigers, making his debut in 1904. He was notorious for his escapades rather than famous for any pitching skill.

He was a favorite of the famous Grantland Rice. One day he bet Rice he could eat a whole turkey, drink a bottle pf Scotch, walk two miles to the ball park and pitch a shutout. Rice lost the bet. Bugs did what he said besides amusing himself throwing rocks at birds on the way to the park.

"Bugs" favorite diet was beer and bananas. One afternoon while pitching for Charleston he drank 12 bottles of beer before the game and when he went west to pitch he carried a bunch of bananas. He laid the fruit near the mound and munched on it between strikeouts. With each pitch he'd yell to the batter "Hit it!" He scored a shutout.

Later he went to the Cardinals but they soon tired of his exploits and sold him to the New York Giants. John J. McGraw believed he could handle him and hired a private detective to trail the errant one.

The private eye's first report stated Bugs drank five beers at one saloon, four in the next, then three shots of bourbon, a few more beers and several ounces of rye—and onions.

McGraw faced Bugs with the report. "It's a dam lie," shouted Bugs. "I never ate no onions in no place all my life."

But with all his carousing Bugs managed to win 18 games for the Giants while losing a dozen.

The next season McGraw decided to have a detective with Bugs at all times when not in uniform. After hurling a brilliant shutout, Bugs and the "eye" left the park. McGraw didn't see them for three days.

McGraw hired another detective to trace the pair. He found them in the back room of a saloon two blocks from the Polo Grounds. Bugs had bet the detective he could outdrink him in a three-day bout. Bugs won.

Two years later the Giants released Bugs but no major or minor league would sign him. So he drifted back to Chicago where he was born and made a skimpy living pitching semi-pro baseball.

A former pitcher who opposed Raymond in the last game he ever pitched said that Bugs refused to go to the mound until they furnished him with a keg of beer. They got it for him, wrapped it in a wet sack. He also had a bunch of bananas that he took to the mound.

"Bugs," he said, "would wind up like a windmill and throw the craziest pitches I ever saw and yell 'Hit it!' His pitches would scare any batter."

"I asked him how he got the peculiar break on the ball and he told me 'Kid, you could do the same thing if you'd use what's on the inside of a banana peel."

"I had the answer to Bugs' passion for bananas. It wasn't food but the peel he wanted. He would rub the ball on the peel while eating the fruit."

"This game got pretty rough," the story goes. "Bugs stopped in the middle of a windup to visit the barrel and drink another schooner of beer. The crowd became disgusted and the game ended in a riot in the sixth or seventh innings. As it was leaving I looked back in time to see a fellow come up behind Bugs and hit him a terrific blow on the head with a bat."

"Bugs," the former pitcher related, "slumped to the ground and I instinctively knew I had been witness to a murder. I hurried away from there."

"Later I learned that they loaded Bugs into a delivery truck and took him to a cheap dingy hotel where he had a room. They half-dragged the corpse to the freight elevator and to Bugs' room. They left him there."

"The sight of Raymond being carried into the hotel was a familiar one so no one paid any attention to it. The afternoon papers printed a brief item reporting Bugs Raymond had been found dead in bed with a large lump on his head evidently the result of a fall."

"I never read or heard any more about the incident and I did not pitch much after that, but enough to try the banana ball with excellent results," the former hurler said.

Ford Leads Yankees To Opening Win

Terry Faces Sanford Today

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—San Francisco Giants were batting the odds again today as they faced New York Yankees in the second game of the World Series.

After Thursday's 6-2 defeat in the opening game, the Giants were in their usual position of having to battle back.

But manager Alvin Dark was still confident his Giants will win the series. He pinned his hopes on right-hander Jack Sanford, who won 24 of 31 decisions during the regular season.

Ralph Houk, the Yankee mentor, selected his best right-hander, Ralph Terry, who topped American League pitchers with 23 victories, while losing 12.

Satisfied with his team's all-around performance in the series opener, Houk planned to use the same line-up that rapped Giant pitching for 11 hits—including a home run by Clete Boyer—and brought the Yankees their fourth straight World Series triumph over the Giants. The Yankees won the last three games in 1951, the last time the two teams met.

MAKES CHANGES

Bailey is a left-handed hitter, too, but Haller, a former Hillsdale quarterback, normally catches Sanford. Bailey suffered a cut on his right forearm that caused six stitches in the second playoff game against Los Angeles last Tuesday.

"I want to play," said Haller. "The stitches won't matter."

Kuenn and Cepeda failed to get a hit Thursday as Whitey Ford tamed the Giants on 10 hits for his 10th World Series triumph. Cepeda, the National League's leading home-run hitter and runs-batted-in leader in 1961, left four runners on base and hit into a double play to kill off a promising Giant rally.

"Orlando is worn out," said Dark. "Including winter ball, he has played 280 games since last season. I'm not in favor of winter ball for fellows who play regularly in the major leagues."

PRAISES FORD

Dark wouldn't use tiredness as an alibi for the Giants, even though the club seemed emotionally drained after the wild three-game pennant playoff with the Dodgers.

"Ford just pitched a fine game" he said. "He deserved to win. But we'll get them. We've come back before."

Off to a shaky start, Ford got better as the game progressed. He permitted only two hits after the fifth inning and struck out Willie Mays in the eighth after Willie had cracked three line singles in his first three times at bat, including sluggo Mays now has nine hits in 11 times at bat against the brilliant Yankee left-hander.

"If Willie has a weakness, I haven't found it yet," remarked Ford. "But that's nothing to be ashamed about. He's only one of the greatest hitters I've ever faced."

Sanford has never pitched in a World Series. Terry, whose World Series record is 0-3, has appeared in four games, three as a starter.

The Yankees lost no time in giving the Giants a taste of their power Thursday. With one out, Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh hit successive singles. Giant starter Billy O'Dell struck out Mickey Mantle but Roger Maris drove in both runners with a long ground-rule double that missed being a homer only because of a last-minute lunge by right fielder Felipe Alou.

WILLIE SCORES

Mays was prominent as the Yankees bombed back with eight-run in the second and third innings, scoring from third on Jose Pagan's perfect bunt for one tally and sending home Chuck Hiller, who had doubled and moved to third on Alou's single, with a base hit to center.

The Giants continued to threaten in the middle innings but Boyer put the Yanks ahead to stay with a blast that barely cleared the left field wall in the seventh.

A single by Maris set the stage for two more Yankee runs in the eighth, O'Dell grazed Elston Howard with a pitch and Dale Long, a late-inning replacement for Bill Skowron, singled Maris home. Bo Larsen took over from O'Dell and yielded another run, as Pagan and Harvey Kuenn collided under Boyer's short fly ball and the shortstop's throw to the plate was too late to get Howard.

Howard's ninth-inning single off Stu Miller scored Tresh with the final Yankee run.

NHL All-Star Game

Leafs Could Be Patched-Up Club

TORONTO (CP)—The ice appears to be melting between Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs and his higher pay-hungry players. Now the once ... threatened National Hockey League All-Star game here Saturday night may not get into any hitches.

For weeks the Leaf brass has been mum while rumors of contract difficulties with all but a handful of players have run rampant. Thursday night in Winnipeg, Leaf head scout Bob Davidson said the club has only four players left to sign.

And in Toronto, President Stafford Smythe of Maple Leaf Gardens said "there might be one or two missing" when the Leafs and the All-Stars meet.

All of which means an NHL meeting called for today to discuss the possible disruption proceedings may have a slim agenda.

The problem was that NHL policy has been to allow only signed players to participate in the all-star game, held annually between the All-Stars and the Stanley Cup champions.

MIGHT BORROW

Imlach had said that if he couldn't get all his players signed, he would start borrowing from Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League, a Toronto farm club, to bolster his lineup.

Davidson named one of the four remaining holdouts as star left winger Frank Mahovlich, reported to be fishing for $30,000. He declined to name the other three.

As usual, Imlach refused comment, although he said he had planned an announcement on the subject last night but postponed it.

Leafs are due back here today and reports from their Western Canada tour indicate they're a tired lot, with many more's no doubt shot from their exhibition game record. . .

Against their fellow NHL teams, Toronto tied once and lost four times. The culminating defeat was Thursday night when New York Rangers gave Leafs a 4-0 licking to send them back east with tails drooping.

Play In Winnipeg Saturday

Bombers Ready For Lions

Canadian champion Winnipeg Blue Bombers are full of vim and vigor as they turn into the home stretch of the 1962 Western Football Conference season. Bombers not only lead the five-team conference by three points with two games in hand over second - place Calgary Stampeders, they also have their full team ready for action.

The action in question is Saturday night in Winnipeg against British Columbia Lions, who are working on a rare two-game win streak.

The first of the Lions' two victories was over Blue Bombers 27-22 Sept. 24 and the second over injury-riddled Edmonton Eskimos 46-24 last Monday.

Bombers will have fullback Charlie Shepard back in action after a month on the injured reserve list with a chronic pinched nerve in the neck. They'll also have tackle Frank Rigney, 1961 lineman of the year who was out for several weeks with a knee injury.

To make room for the return of halfback Ron Howell, picked up from Hamilton Tiger-Cats this week in a trade for Gerry Schreiber.

With his team already in woeful disrepair, Edmonton coach Eagle Keys faces Calgary in the other game Saturday with at least two more players out of action.

Fullback Johnny Bright, with a recurrence of an old leg injury, and fullback Dune Harton, ankles tendon suffered in the Edmonton game Monday, separation, will not play.

TORQUAY WINS

LONDON (Reuters)—Torquay United beat Workington 2-0 at home in an English Fourth Division soccer game Thursday night.

BOYER ROUNDS BASES — Clete Boyer, Yankee third-baseman, is shown on his way to home plate, between third and home, after he smashed his first home run of a World Series over the left field fence in seventh inning of yesterday's opener between New York and San Francisco Giants at Candlestick Park. The homer broke 2-2 deadlock. Yankees won, 6-2, with Whitey Ford the winning pitcher. (AP Wirephoto).

Bobby Richardson Says

'Typical Yankee Victory'

This is the second in a series of daily stories written for The Associated Press by Bobby Richardson, second baseman of New York Yankees.

By BOBBY RICHARDSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It always feels good to win that first one. We beat a good team today. The score (6-2) may not indicate it but the Giants battled us all the way.

It was a typical Yankee victory. We got the long ball, the tight pitching and the good defence.

I was particularly pleased that Clete Boyer hit that home run which broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning. I couldn't help but think back a couple of years, to the opening game of the 1960 World Series in Pittsburgh, when Casey Stengel took him out for a pinch-hitter in the first inning.

The player who impressed me again. We respect them. I respect the most, however, was Willie Mays. He's great. I had played against him before but only in now. I don't expect them to fall a couple of all-star games and over and played back before and will do it then I was in the game only again.

two or three innings so I didn't really get an opportunity to see much of him.

MAYS DRIVE HOOKS

I think the ball he hit past (Tracy) Kubek in the fifth inning was one of the hardest hit balls I have ever seen. The ball actually hooked about 10 feet as it shot past Kubek. Tony took a step to his left and the ball hooked to his right.

Which brings me to Whitey Ford. Boy, you've got to give that Whitey lots of credit. Mays already had three hits off him when he came to bat in the eighth. With the chips down, Whitey struck him out with the hardest pitch he made all game. The pitch started on the outside and broke in over the plate. It was a big out for us and it just proves once again what a great competitor Whitey is.

Those Giants are battlers. They've proved it time and again. We respect them. I expect them to fall a couple of all-star games and over and played back before and will do it then I was in the game only again.

Harvey Kuenn Says

"We'll Pick Up Today"

This is the second in a series of daily stories written expressly for The Associated Press by Harvey Kuenn of San Francisco Giants,

By HARVEY KUENN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — I think there should be a day off after a pennant playoff before the World Series starts.

It didn't seem like the excitement of a World Series Thursday. It just seemed like another game, and it was just someone in a gray uniform out there against us.

After those three playoff games with the Dodgers there had to be a letdown. You say "there won't be a letdown, there won't be a letdown," but psychologically there has to be. Everybody was trying real hard and everyone was up—but not to the point you should be for a World Series.

But we'll pick up today. After a day off from the playoff, the lift will return.

I think after three games like we had with Los Angeles, you have to have a day off even to realize you're in the World Series.

I'm the Giants' player representative and I think I may bring this up. I know it's tough because they like to play the series through the weekend.

But I think for the sake of the players and the fans they should be a day off regardless of how long the playoff runs.

YANKS HAVEN'T CHANGED

We've bounced back all season long, though. If we had to lose one, I'm glad it was today, and not sometime else, or we wouldn't even be here.

Those Yankees are tough just like they were when I was in the American League. They still have good power and defense.

Whitey Ford was as good as ever, except I thought he was a little quicker. He's always had good breaking stuff and I don't think he hung a curve ball today.

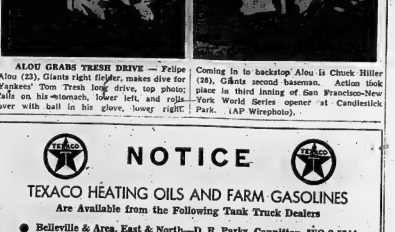
On that fly ball in the eighth inning where they scored a run, I was walking on it and I called for it but Jose Pagan didn't hear me with the crowd noise and all.

I don't think the run would have scored because I was set to throw. But he backed into me and had to get his balance and get set before he could make the throw.

Another one I didn't catch was Clete Boyer's home run. I didn't think it was gone, but a line drive here hit low can keep carrying, whereas a high fly sometimes won't make it.

His homer seemed to clear the fence only by about a foot. Somebody standing there could have reached up and caught it but there was no way to get her back there.

Like I say, I think we were simply a bit off after the playoff. You say "you've got to give extra," but it just wasn't there.



TO USE CATAMARANS

TORONTO (CP) — The first Ontario international multi-hull regatta, sponsored by the Ontario Sailing Catamaran Association, will be held on Lake Ontario off the Queen City Yacht Club Saturday and Sunday. One race will be sailed each day. Entries are expected to include many types of catamarans and possibility some tri-marans.

HAPPY AFTER VICTORY — Clete Boyer, third baseman of Yankees, and pitcher Whitey Ford, are happy pair in the New York Yankees dressing room after the New Yorkers won the first game of the World Series, 6-2, from San Francisco Giants in Candlestick Park yesterday. Boyer homered against the Giants to break a 2-2 deadlock in seventh inning. (AP Wirephoto).

Pair Tangle At Practice

Moss Says Mosca 'Big Kid'

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—The irrepressible Perry Moss is to make an attempt today at reconciliation with Angelo Mosca, a giant hulk of a man with a complex disposition.

The pair tangled verbally—for the second time at least this season—at a Montreal practice Thursday night.

Moss ordered tough Angie to leave the field.

The six-foot-five 265-pounder trudged off tight lipped. Team members won't give interviews, in line with a front office directive issued some time ago to discourage team personnel from making unauthorized comment to the press.

Later in the dressing room Moss described Mosca as a "big kid."

Moss was irked because between offensive plays, Mosca bounced the ball around on a spongy canvas-covered portable blocking dummy, trying to keep it airborne.

A couple of other players were doing the same thing. But they were doing it less conspicuously.

MOSS FUMES

Moss, standing near the goalposts, said nothing for a while. But he was grim-faced and obviously fuming.

Then he snapped at Mosca: "Stop tossing that ball around."

Mosca replied:

"I'm not the only guy doing it."

Moss put his foot down quickly.

"Go inside," he said. "I'll see you in the morning."

Later Moss said Mosca had been "fooling around for four or five practices" and the spat was "just one of those things."

There would be no fine.

"I don't believe in fines. We'll have a chat and see if we can straighten things out."

BOMBERS CUT END

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers announced Thursday that offensive end Bob Deegan from the University of Minnesota had been placed on waivers and picked up by Montreal Alouettes for the $500 waiver price. The cut meant that the defending Canadian champions are down to the 15 American players they can carry—they can play 18.

Giants Honor Cardinal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Catcher Ozzie Oliver of St. Louis Cardinals was a guest of honor at the World Series Thursday.

Oliver's eighth - inning homer in Los Angeles in the final game of the regular season Sunday hung a 1-0 defeat on Los Angeles Dodgers, enabling San Francisco Giants to tie for the National League pennant.

Wednesday night, after the Giants whipped the Dodgers in the pennant playoff, Oliver flew to San Francisco as the guest of a group of Giant fans.

WILL MISS GAMES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Joe Cronin, president of the American League, will miss the first two World Series games in San Francisco because he was called home to Boston by the illness of his son, Kevin, 12. Joe McKenney, public relations director of the American League, said Thursday Cronin had reported that his son was resting comfortably after an emergency appendectomy.

Tigers In Toronto Saturday

Schrieder To Play Against Argos

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

TORONTO (CP)—Jim Trimble, who will unveil Gary Schrieder as a Hamilton Tiger-Cat Saturday night at Toronto, has hinted he traded Ron Howell because Howell wasn't living up to the standard he set last season.

"After all," the Ticat coach said from his Hamilton home Thursday night, "you'll be supplanted in your job if you're not doing it properly."

Trimble swapped Howell to British Columbia Lions for Schrieder and an undisclosed amount of cash to provide the Canadian Football League with its biggest news story this week.

Hamilton meets Toronto Argonauts Saturday in a game which is important to both clubs in the standings.

Ticats lead the eastern conference by a three-point margin over Ottawa Rough Riders, Ottawa walloped Hamilton 27-0 last Saturday. Argos have won only two games this season but have lost just 12 which ended a Calgary Stampeder five-game winning streak at Calgary Monday.

TWO POINTS BEHIND

Argos have five games left and are two points behind the third-place Montreal Alouettes.

Trimble was asked if Hamilton fans had displayed any emotion about losing Howell, a hometown halfback who had been with the Tabbies nine years.

"There will be Howell fans and other fans," said Trimble. "We had to pick him for the deal because that's the way Lions wanted it. And, with Milan Vall injured, we needed Schreider."

Wall, a defensive specialist, is out of the lineup indefinitely with an elbow injury picked up at Ottawa last weekend.

Schreier has been impressive in workouts this week and Trimble said he'll make up for the loss of Wall.

Ticats will again go with young Frank Cosentino at quarterback, replacing Bernie Faloney who is on the sidelines a minimum of six weeks with an injured knee.

IS HE WORRIED?

Hamilton has lost two in a row and was anything but impressive against Ottawa. Is Trimble worried?

"Well, some of our fans are getting concerned," he answered. "But they've got concerned even when we don't win by big scores. They hate to lose in this town.

"I'm not at all concerned. I know we'll come back."

If the Tabbies pick Saturday night to come back, they may end Argos' chances for a play off spot.

"We have five games left and we have to win all of them," said Toronto coach Bobby Wilkinson.

ALS HAVE INJURY TROUBLE

Meanwhile Montreal Alouettes were bothered by injury misfortune, climaxed Thursday night when fullback Don Clark their offensive mainstay, was put on the club's injury reserve list for seven days.

Clark will have missed more than two months of IRFU action when he comes off the list Oct. 20. He will be eligible to play in only three remaining league games.

The 25-year-old all-American from Ohio state injured his kidney here Aug. 26 in a bruising game against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Argos were counting on having Clark back for that game with Ottawa Monday," Perry Moss, coach and general manager of the Alouettes, lamented.

Thompson To Hit Pro Trail

TORONTO (CP) — Who's afraid of fallows Pro Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus? Not Alvie Thompson.

The 26-year-old pro at Toronto Northwood, winner of this year's Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship, disclosed today that he has found a golf sponsor.

This means the gaunt—160 pounds, six feet tall—Thompson will realize a lifelong ambition. He'll play the U.S. winter circuit against the world's best golfers and receive $300 a week from his sponsor to keep him going.

Alvie isn't naming his sponsor, but he says it is a New York businessman who asked a mutual friend if he knew of a young golfer who would be interested in trying to make it in the big time.

The mutual friend, Earl Roy, a New York teaching professional, suggested Alvie and the deal was made.

Cookie's Big Trouble, "Money"

NEW YORK (CP) — Cookie Gilchrist, brulsing Negro fullback of Buffalo Bills in the American Football League, says his trouble's he's had with football teams centre on one thing—money.

Gilchrist, who came to the Bills from Toronto Argonauts after being waived out of the Canadian Football League, discussed his stormy career in Canadian football in a question-and-answer "conversation piece" released by the A.F.L. here Thursday.

"The only trouble I've ever had with any club was money," he said. "If I've been paid what I deserved, I would still be with the same club."

Gilchrist played for five teams in Canada—Garnis and Kitchener in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union; Hamilton, Saskatchewan and Toronto in the Canadian Football League.

"I could be the best 1962 player in Canada today but I wouldn't be making money," Gilchrist was quoted as saying.

"Look, in 1958 (with Hamilton) I played 21 games and played both ways—offence and defence. Is that fair? In 1960 (with Toronto) the last eight games of the season I played fullback, middle guard, defensive tackle, defensive end linebacker and handled kickoffs and field goals and extra points.

"I'm selling my body for X number of dollars and when I negotiate a contract, I'm negotiating my future. I have no education—I've got nothing to fall back on after football."

APPROVE BUDGET

BONN (Reuters)—The West German cabinet Thursday approved a draft budget providing for a record 17,000,000 marks ($4,424,000,000) for defence. The expenditure will be increased by more than 2,000,000,000 marks ($536,000,0) from the current year.

Firemen, PUC Series Again All Tied Up

All things must come to an end—even the championship series between the Fire Department and Public Utilities softball squads.

The Interdepartmental Softball League finalists have been playing diamond tag now for the past three weeks.

They've already played seven games in what was scheduled as a best-of-five series.

Three times they've gone to the mat—and come up even-steven.

Twice the Heat and Water gang trimmed the Smoke-Eaters. Last night with a 3-1 lead it looked as though they were back over the title and trophy.

But they hadn't reckoned with the comeback qualities of the Hosemen.

You're right. The Smokies edged 'em 6-5 to once more square the series. Ray Reid nudged Ralph Sine on the mound.

The big one will be played at the CNRA Park next Thursday night starting at five o'clock.

But don't wrap it up. These clubs are liable to come up with more ties than the old gun gets at Christmas.

They could end up in the curling rink.

Bragan To Braves As Coach

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Bobby Bragan will leave Houston Colts to join Milwaukee Braves as coach, it was learned today.

Bragan, a former big-league manager, served as coach for the Colts this season after joining the new National Baseball League organization in a scouting capacity in 1961.

The 46-year-old former manager of Pittsburgh Pirates and Cleveland Indians will join holdover Whit Wyatt, Bill Adair and Jo Jo White, whose signing was announced by the Braves Thursday night in conjunction with the dismissal of Jimmy Dykes and Andy Pafko.

Dykes will join Kansas City Athletics, along with Maj McGaha as coaches for the team's new manager Ed Lopat.

Lopat succeeded Hank Bauer as Kansas City pilot last week. The announcement came at the signing of McGaha and Dykes is expected before the end of the World Series.

McGaha, 36, managed Cleveland Indians in 1960. He was released on the final day of the season.

Juniors Tie 20-20

BCI Nips Brighton 12-6

Belleville Collegiate Institute football teams won a senior Bonds COSSA game and tied another with Brighton High yesterday. The seniors smacked a 13-0 victory while the junior squad came home with a 20-20 tie.

The senior game was riddled with penalties and both teams frequently resorted to skullduggery along the way. But Brighton looked as if they had never seen a forward pass before as the winners completed eight tosses. BCI defences were porous at times as Brighton put on a good running display. Their passing from the shotgun formation was mediocre.

In the first quarter BCI marched from their 10-yard line to the losers' 10 on two passes and two sweeps. A penalty moved them back ten yards to the Brighton 20 but John Miller romped into the end zone on a 20-yard end run. Adams converted but a penalty nullified the score as the gun went.

The winners kicked off to open the second period and Brighton ran it to their 45. Fullback Mike Stobie slanted off tackle and ran the ball 55 yards for a major. Brighton's convert was also disallowed due to a penalty.

BCI recovered a fumble on the Brighton 25-yard line early in the third quarter. Miller drove to the three and on the next play he tumbled into the end zone on a buck with the winning touchdown. Adams' attempt to run the convert in was foiled and the score remained at 12-6.

One of the game's features was a forty-yard double-reverse pass play pulled off to perfection by the Collegians. Brighton rallied in the final minute as they passed their way from their 20 to the BCI 45-yard line but the Collegians intercepted on the last play of the game to clinch the victory.

Picton Splits With Moira

Moira Secondary School football squads split a Bay of Quinte COSSA twin bill here yesterday with Prince Edward Collegiate from Picton.

The Moira senior squad eked out a 8-3 victory over the Prince Edward team with the juniors dropping a 25-3 decision.

Don Fraser of Moira scored the only touchdown in the senior game the score coming in the first half.

Gravonie of Picton was the big scoring gun in the junior fussle, the Prince Edward star accounting for three of his teams four touchdowns. Jones scored the other.

Don Carson scored the lone Moira touchdown.

Three Records Set

Moira Wins Cross-Country

Three records were set today in Moira Secondary School's first invitational cross country meet. The records were set in each of the Junior, Intermediate and Senior races.

In the junior age group 19 boys, 15 from Moira, set out on the 1 3-4 mile course and May Bounsa of BCI came home the winner in 11:15.

The intermediate race provided the closest finish of them all as the first three runners crossed the finish line in the space of 2 seconds. Winner and new record holder was Bill Carswell of Moira who completed the course in 15:37 — 2 full minutes ahead of the previous record.

James Poole, another Moira runner, won the senior race as he completed the 3 1-4 mile in the record time of 18.03.

Moira won the team championship in the junior division, the only group in which competition was provided by another school.

Following are the results for all races.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Windmill II won Thursday's featured Spartan Purse by a little more than a length before 3,368 at Newbridge.

Harolon Dallon urged the filly in the jockey's second victory of the afternoon. Half a length back of Its Ann, which placed second, was Loch Miss.

Windmill II, purchased in England by Coun Smythe for $11,000 last December, won her second race in 10 starts this year.

The quinella of Windmill II and Its Ann returned only $7.70. In the first two races Pread combined with Moony for a daily double of $29.60.

Toronto Winless In Five

Fans Boo Leafs, Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leafs, in five games against NHL opposition, managed only one tie, that against New York, and even dropped a game to Portland Buckaroos of the Western League.

Montreal Canadiens, paced by Gilles Tremblay, dumped Cleveland Barons of the American League 4-0 at St. Thomas in other action Thursday night.

PERRAULT IN NET

At Boston, where the Bruins were idle, coach Phil Watson made his first official press release of the season when he announced that newcomer Bobby Perrault will open the season in Bobby's net.

Perrault, a veteran American Leaguer, was obtained from Hershey Bears in an off-season deal.

Detroit Red Wings, also idle, announced Thursday that defenceman John Miniuk and centre Neil Forth will join Edmonton Flyers in the WHL.

Miniuk was with Flyers last season and Forth played for Sudbury Wolves in the Eastern Professional League.

Ron Harris, defenceman with the Memorial Cup champion Hamilton Red Wings last season, has replaced Miniuk as Detroit's fifth rearguard.

Val Fonteyne, now with Pittsburgh Hornets in the AHL, is also being elevated to Detroit and Earl Balfour, Roger LaFreniere and Eddie Joyal are slated for Pittsburgh.

WON'T CHANGE STAND

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin told the United states and Britain Thursday his government will never change its position in the deadlocked nuclear test-ban negotiations. The Western powers want provisions included in any test ban for on-the-spot checks of possible violations. The Russians say this amounts to espionage and will have none of it.

Edmonton Eskimos Sponsor Junior Groups in Alberta

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

EDMONTON (CP) — More than 1,100 boys between the ages of 14 and 20 run out on the football fields of northern Alberta each fall equipped with all the necessities—equipment, coaching and organized leagues.

It's all made possible by Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Football Conference.

Eskimos pour between $18,000 and $20,000 and abundant energy in the form of North Kimball, their minor football 'go-on-dinator, into the minor football program.

"The object," Kimball says, "is to provide opportunity for the young players to advance football careers and kindle an interest in the game which in years to come will return dividends to Canada's professional football clubs."

Most of the financial aid goes to Edmonton's two junior teams, the Huskies and Wildcats of the Alberta Junior Football League. Eskimos make up any deficit shown by the clubs, which Kimball says runs around $6,000 to $7,000 a year.

Organization is the main ingredient of aid to the other teams in the 45-team program, consisting mostly of high school units.

Kimball, a graduate of Edmonton junior football ranks who has held his co-ordinator's job for two years, provides direction for setting up of finances, purchase of equipment, schedules and coaching and umpire clinics.

CLINIC FOR COACHES

Eskimos' program, aided by grants from a $25,000 Canadian Football League fund created by promoters of minor football in Canada, now is mainly concerned with formation of high school leagues in rural areas.

Four new leagues, involving 20 teams, have been set up in the last two years, Kimball says.

The program also provides information for coaches in minor football.

"We have a clinic, which now is a joint project with Calgary Stampeders of the WFC, where coaches from throughout Alberta and Saskatchewan receive information from professional coaches." Two of these have been held, one in 1961 in Edmonton and the other this year in Calgary.

Eskimo players provide some unofficial help to the program, coaching local high school teams. Fullback Johnny Bright and Mike Lashuk and former Eskimo star Rollie Miles now hold such positions.

Eskimos receive a return on their investment through production of Canadian football talent. During the last five years, at least one player a season has matured enough in the minor program to break into the Eskimo lineup.

Such players as defensive end Bill Smith, defensive half Howie Schumm, guard Don Duncalfe, halfback Dave Harvey, corner linebacker Ted Prochnitz and Lashuk have made their way through the ranks.

But, says Kimball, "the basic idea behind the program is not to make future Eskimos. It is to develop participation and interest in football."

Scouting activities

By ANNE M. McDONALD

The Avondale Cub and Scout Mothers' Auxiliary held their first meeting of the season at the home of Mrs. Joan Reid, 108 Palmer Ave. Nine members were in attendance and the new members, Mrs. Nancy Depaul and Mrs. Marilyn Rollins, were welcomed to the group. The meeting which was in charge of Joy Wonnacott, opened with the Mothers' Promise. Minutes of the June meeting were read by the secretary, Betty MacKinnon. The financial report for the year was given by Edna Nix, the treasurer.

A letter of resignation from the president of last year, Mrs. Irene Reed, was read with regret. Mrs. Reed thanked the group for their co-operation during her term of presidency and extended best wishes for a successful year ahead.

Mrs. Anne McDonald, of District Council, was in attendance and referred to the Quinte Region Scout Leaders' Auxiliary Conference to be held in St. Peter's Anglican Church, Cobourg. Mrs. McDonald hoped that several members would attend and felt much benefit would be derived from the conference. It was reported that a study course for all members will be held Thursday, October 28, 1965, in the Auditorium of the Diocesan Centre of the Anglican Church, 135 Adelaide Street East, Toronto. All members will be warmly welcomed. Register for tickets should be made by October 15th.

With the exception of the office for president, the nominating committee presented the following slate of officers: vice-president, Nancy DePaul; treasurer, Katherine Thompson; secretary, Betty MacKinnon; planning convenor, Joy Wonnacott and Dot Morrison; representatives to group committee meetings, Janette Cooke and Mary Wilson; sewing convenor, Dorothy McLean; welfare convener, Marilyn Rollins; social convener, Joan Reid.

It is hoped that a new president will be nominated by the next meeting.

The secretary is to obtain a list of the current Cub and Scout membership in order to compile an up-to-date list of mothers for the phoning committee.

The October meeting will be at the home of Edna Nix, 164 Avondale Road, with Betty MacKinnon as co-hostess.

Luncheon was served by the hostess, Joan Reed, and the Mitpah was repeated.

QUINTE REGION LADIES' AUXILIARY CONFERENCE

Ladies from a wide area assembled at St. Peter's Anglican Church in Cobourg on Saturday September 20, to take part in the Quinte Region Auxiliary Conference which was chaired by its representative, Mrs. Jean Hodgson of Peterborough. The general theme of the program was Purpose, Organization and Responsibility.

The main speakers included Reg. Field Comm. L. Wilcox who briefed the ladies on the sponsorship program, and also showed a film strip regarding group sponsorship.

Mr. A. Burch, D.C. of Port Hope, spoke on Scouting as a family unit. He explained that the Group Committee is all powerful and is responsible to the Scout Group. A pack of 36 boys should have at least four leaders to properly handle and operate a cub pack. The cub is taught the rudiments of Scouting. The Scout troop is the most important because you train the boy for citizenship. The Rover turns his service over to service. Mr. Burch further stated that Scouting can be exciting if you work hard at it and prove that it is good. It can do everything for a boy that can possibly be done.

Mr. L. Griffith, Reg. Comm. explained the role of the Council, and its organization.

The president of the Peterborough District Committee, Mrs. Florence Brown, gave a talk on the role of Provincial Advisory Committee and regional representatives, and their relationship to the Auxiliaries. She reported that there are 12,077 registered Auxiliaries in Ontario. If the affiliation fees of $1 are not paid by the individual auxiliaries then they would not receive mail to keep them informed on what is happening in the ladies' Scout movement.

Mrs. Dave McDonald of Belleville addressed the ladies on the role of the District committee stating that they are organized with the approval of the District Council. These committees serve as clearing houses between headquarters and individual auxiliaries. However the district committee does not control or dominate the auxiliaries.

Mrs. Peg. Neeley A.D.C. for Cobourg of Peterborough offered many interesting ideas, and explained the importance of a well planned program. There should be something on Scouting at every auxiliary meeting, and should not last more than three quarters of an hour.

At the September meeting a good idea would be to invite leaders to meet the members; or have boys model cub and scout uniforms and explain badges. The October meeting could include a safety program. Perhaps a safety officer could give a talk on this subject. November would be a good time to plan a meeting around Rowering. In December or even around Easter time a program around Religion would be ideal, explaining how a religious badge may be obtained. At the January meeting the ladies might include the group committee and leaders. February being Baden Powell's birthday would be a time to do something around his life. This is also a popular time for the Father and Son banquet. April in leisure time as a speaker from a nature club or from the Conservation Dept. is interesting. Also a member might give a talk on the different kinds of careers, hints and tests. Here a mother could learn the requirements for the gardener's badge. In May a RCMP could be invited to speak on the rules of boating; or something on life saving, first aid, and the effectiveness of the lifesaver's badge. The final meeting of the season, could be a picnic suggested inviting the Rover Crew to a fish supper or picnic.

Mrs. M. Fewtress explained parliamentary procedure, the closing of a meeting, and the importance of group participation.

A question and answer period regarding money raising Do's and Don'ts finalized the program. Many thanks to Eileen Griffith representing Cobourg Ladies' Auxiliaries, and Virginia Brown, secretary of Cobourg District" Council for helping to make the conference the success it was, and to Bev Brown, ADC Training, Peterborough, for leading in such a delightful singsong.

2nd. BELLEVILLE BOY SCOUT AUXILIARY

The September meeting saw 11 members of the 2nd Boy Scout Auxiliary meet for their first fall meeting in the parish hall of Christ Church. President, Mrs. H. Rainbird, gave a warm welcome to those present.

At the close of the business period, Mrs. Rainbird gave a report on the Group Committee meeting. The following announcements were made:

A church parade was held on October 30th where patients were urged to attend as this was the final service of Archdeacon Creegan. On October 3rd a going-up ceremony was held for the Cubs. Here again the parents were invited to show special interest in this very important step in the life of a Cub. On October 19th and 20th Apple Day, takes place, and on Oct. 28th the annual District Council meeting.

The new Cubs joining 2nd Belleville Pack are as follows:— Ricky Niles, Alan Woods, Peter Bettle, Malcolm Eaton, Jason Lazenby, Stephen Cavalier and Chris Lazenby.

The meeting closed with the Scout Mispah. Group Captain Mrs. Rogers and her assistants, Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Caldwell were present in the group.

BOY SCOUT SHOW COMMITTEE

The Belleville Boy Scout Show Committee under the chairmanship of Ford Bray is progressing favorably. The show "Hi-Jinx for '65" is to take place on April 19th and 20th for two nights. Moira Secondary School. Each leader will select at least two of their most talented Cubs and Scouts to participate in this show. Musical Director, Phil Squires will hold auditions and be responsible for the screening and final selection of boys. The pianists will be Mrs. Schryder and her daughter, Akela Marion Gelsthorpe and Ron Buskard will be the scenic designers. Make-up director is Mrs. J. Barton, and costume director is Mrs. G. Hutchinson. Newspapher is Mrs. Lillian Ashley.

AT THE BELLE — Doris Day is intrigued with the empty liquor bottle adorning her big toe, while Cary Grant is nonplussed over the effects of Doris' contents in Miss Day. Scene is from "That Touch of Mink", romantic comedy in which the two star together for the first time. The color film continuing at the Belle Theatre, co-stars Gig Young and Audrey Meadows.

Most Viewers Have Already Made Up Minds on Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The new television season is well launched. Only two of 39 new weekly programs have yet to make their debuts. Television executives believe that most viewers have already made our decisions about the shows we will watch the rest of the fall and winter.

Practically without exception, people make up their minds by the end of the second week of a show," said one network programming specialist. "They test out a new program one week, and make a choice the second.

And usually, we stick by our choices. Right now, all three networks have strong suspicions about the success—or failure—of their new shows and of old shows returning. But it will be public information around Nov. 1 when the first country-wide ratings—those vital estimates of audience size—are released.

Recommended viewing:

Sunday — Ed Sullivan Memorial Presentier, ABC, 7:30-8:30 EDT—series about history in the wartime Italian campaign.

Saturday — The Defenders, CBS, 8:30-9:30 — Ed Begley is guest star in an episode of the series specializing in good scripts.

Sunday — Twentieth Century CBS, 6-6:30 p.m.—a study of the use of opinion polls as a political tool;

Voice of Firestone, ABC, 10-10:30 — classical and popular musical program;

Big Deal in Laredo, NBC, 10-11—comedy about a big poker game, with Walter Matthau and Zachary Scott.

ORDERS STATE PROBE

NEW YORK (AP)—Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller ordered Thursday a state investigation of the boiler explosion that took 21 lives and injured at least 100 in a telephone company building. He called the disaster "inconceivable" in this day and age. The state investigation will bring to five the number of separate investigations being conducted on the disaster.

Darryl Zanuck Gets 20th Century-Fox Back on Feet

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP)—The president of 20th Century-Fox strode out of his office and returned a minute later with a glass of beer.

Darryl Zanuck sipped the beer, puffed on an overrize cigar and paced the room.

He is a single-minded man, and right now his job is to rescue the firm he helped found from the brink of bankruptcy.

"I believe we are on our way toward stopping the downward trend," he said.

"A lot depends on the pictures now in release and coming up for release. None of these are my own pictures, except 'The Longest Day.' And it will not show much this year, as we will have only 30 roadshows worldwide. We'll know more about it after the general release in June, 1966.

"Cleopatra looms large in our future, but even it will not be profit for a long time. We won't be able to get it out before late spring or early summer, and the roadshows do not bring in immense profits.

SLOW START

"The only yardstick we have is the 'Sound of Music.' It got off to a checked its first six months, you'd think it was a flop. The next year—whamo! And the second year it did double the first, starting a new general release. That's the real gravy."

A roadshow exhibits at a limited number of theatres with premium-priced tickets. Zanuck was also planning to build or reopen the Hollywood studio, now virtually shuttered.

"I haven't been the biggest idea," he replied. "I don't want to start the studio running again until I have a constructive program. I don't want to have a stop-and-start operation. It's too expensive, and I don't like to operate that way. I want to guarantee jobs for people who work for us.

"What I do open the studio again, I want it to stay open. I want to have a program of 52 pictures per year—I'd even settle for eight really good ones. I want to maintain a continuity of production, and it will be centred in Hollywood."

OPERA TRIMMED

The Canadian Opera Company has announced cancellation of its forthcoming production of Wagner's "Die Valkure."

Medical X-Rays May Be Cause Of Leukemia

LONDON (Reuters)—A leading British expert on leukemia, cancer of the blood, said in an article published today that the disease can be caused by medical x-rays.

Dr. Alice Stewart of Oxford University's department of social medicine made it in the British Medical Journal of her analysis of leukemia deaths in Britain.

She said: "It was finally concluded that about eight per cent of leukemia cases were caused by diagnostic x-rays and a further 3.5 per cent by therapeutic x-rays.

Dr. Stewart took more than 1,000 cases, or about one eighth of the 7,500 leukemia deaths in Britain from 1958 to 1960.

She compared the rate of exposure to x-rays of the leukemia victims in the years before they contracted the disease with the same number of healthy "control" men and women and found to be significantly higher.

"In view of what is already known about therapeutic x-rays it is reasonable to interpret these findings as evidence that certain types of leukemia in adults can be induced by relatively small doses of x-rays."

NEW TALENT

Ed Sullivan plans to run a series this season introducing new talent and giving youngsters a chance to get exposure on national television. It begins Sept. 30.

AT THE PARK — Joel McCrea and Randolph Scott team for the first time as two hard-shooting ex-"town tamers" of the old West in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Ride the High Country". The adventure-filled outdoor action-drama is in CinemaScope and color, showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. On the same program is added M-G-M thriller "World In My Pocket", stars Rod Steiger, Both hits are first showings. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00 p.m. Doors Open 12.30.

TOUGH YEARS

Red Skelton, now in his 10th season on TV, in earlier years played medicine and tent shows, a riverboat, vaudeville and the Catskills.

AT THE PARK — The famed and versatile actor, Herbert Lom, as the Phantom, appears without benefit of being make-up he wears as he enters the title role in "The Phantom of the Opera", opening Monday at the Park Theatre. Lom is the third actor to play this monstrous character on the screen since late Lon Chaney Senior originated the part in the silent version made in 1925, and Claude Rains re-creating the role in the talkie version in 1943. The new color version of the classic chiller also stars Heather Sears, Thorley Walters and Michael Gough in principal roles. On the same program in addition to Park Theatre's "Howard Hughes' "The Son of Sinbad" starring Dale Robertson, Sally Forrest, Lili St. Cyr and Vincent Price. Special matinee Monday at 1.30 p.m.

BY-LAW NO. 1691
A BY-LAW TO RAISE $25,000.00 TO AID IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SEWAGE SYSTEM IN ZEMANIA.
The Council of the Township of Thurlow, pursuant to The Municipal Act, enacts as follows:
1. The Reeve may from time to time, subject to the provisions of The Municipal Act, borrow on the credit of the Corporation of the Municipality such sum not exceeding in the whole $25,000.00, as may be determined by the Council, and may issue debentures therefor payable in annual instalments of the corporation, in such sums as the Council may deem expedient, and may sell the said debentures at not less than par.
2. Subject to section 10 of The Ontario Municipal Act, the Council is of opinion that the population of any person to borrow money for the purpose of constructing a tile, stone or timber drain should be granted in such case in that the Council may, by resolution, pass a by-law to lend to such person the amount required and may lend the same to the person applying for the purpose of the drainage works.
3. A special annual rate shall be imposed, levied and collected over and above all other rates upon the land in respect of which the money is borrowed sufficient for the payment of principal and interest as provided by the Act.
Read a first and second time this 13th day of July, 1962, and dassinated By-law No. 1691.
H. H. POUND, Reeve.
E. M. DAFOE, Clerk.
Read a third time and finally passed, signed and sealed this 13th day of September, 1962.

Dr. W. T. Ross Flemington First Education Director For External Aid Office

By JACK BEST

OTTAWA (CP)—At 64, Dr. W. T. Ross Flemington has embarked on a brand new job—and he's fairly up his alley.

Dr. Flemington, one of the country's best-known educationist, left the presidency of Mount Allison University after 17 distinguished years and now is breaking in as first director of education for the Canadian external aid office.

"It prolongs my life," is the special comment of the Newfoundland-born United Church minister about his new career.

A fit - looking, quiet - spoken man of medium height, with a generous topgift of white hair, Dr. Flemington is looking forward to continued association with the academic world even though no longer directly a part of it.

Still quiet over the opportunity that came his way one day in Ottawa, he scheduled retirement from the Sackville, N.B., university the veterans of two world wars told a reporter:

"I had been teaching all my life, but there was an educational opportunity in a much wider field."

THE CHALLENGE

"Possessed of a ready wit that he is not averse to turning on himself, Dr. Flemington summed up the prospects that awaited him: the external, "calling into senility, perhaps writing a history of Mount A."

Now the honorary president of the National Conference of Canadian Universities, onetime flyer, and chief Protestant chaplain with the Canadian Army overseas from 1942 to 1945, faces a more challenging future.

His job will be to plan and coordinate educational assistance offered by the external aid office on recruitment of teachers and placement of trainees, conduct liaison with educational institutions and bodies in Canada, and administer Canada's part in the Commonwealth scholarship program.

Dr. Wilson, director-general of external aid, says Dr. Flemington will be a bridge between the two academic fields on which the educational aid program ultimately depends and its success: high school and university.

WELL QUALIFIED

It is a role for which his personality admirably equips him. In addition to having been a university president, he was for 12 years—with time out for Second World War service—headmaster of Mount Allison Boys School.

Dr. Flemington was born in St. Michael and All Angels on Bonaventure Island in Trinity Bay—"we've been teased ever since about being born at Random."

He grew up in a dozen parishes in Newfoundland and New Brunswick—"a Methodist minister, like my father, moved every four years whether he wanted to or not."

After graduation from Fredericton High School, he went on to normal school, then—at age 18 — sailed overseas with the 165th Field Ambulance Corps, later transferred to the Royal Flying Corps and winning his wings.

Back in Canada after the war, he entered Mount Allison and took his BA and MA degrees in biology, intending to be a medical doctor. He ran out of money and switched to teaching and theology, taking the latter at Mount A. and then going on to Columbia and the University of Toronto in 1929.

In the same year he left Toronto with a bachelor of pedagogy degree to become a Sackville as headmaster of the boys' school.

HEADS 128 TEACHERS

Under the educational aid program, which Dr. Flemington now directs, Canada will have 120 teachers serving abroad this school year. In addition, there will be 110 technical advisers.

Also, there are 800 students and trainees from abroad will be in Canada studying under the Commonwealth scholarship plan or the various technical assistance programs.

Canada spent nearly $3,500,000 on such activities in the 1961-62 fiscal year, and this year the figure is sure to go higher.

PAIRING UNIVERSITIES

One line of attack Dr. Flemington intends to pursue vigorously is the "twinning" of universities. An institution in Canada is paired off with one in Africa or Asia in order to help it develop a particular type of course, the expenses involved being met by the external aid office.

He cites as a model the present working arrangement between the University of British Columbia and the universities of Malaya and Singapore in the field of business administration study.

Dr. Flemington is proud of the way Canadian universities have responded to the challenge to the call for professional staff for foreign service.

DEDICATED PRIEST—Rev. Harold Hertzler, known as the rector of the Main, long the centre of vice and crime in downtown Montreal, chats with one of his parishioners during an early morning stroll. Canon Hertzler has served in his Anglican parish for 14 years and has been chosen to become spiritual adviser of the British embassy in Copenhagen. (CP Photo).

'Rector of the Main' Soon To Vacate Post in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—To Rev. Harold Hertzler Montreal's notorious night club district, "the Main," is a thing of two worlds.

"There's this world," he says, pointing to the 24-year-old Anglican church of St. John the Evangelist of which is rector.

"And that world," pointing toward the bars, dance halls and jumbled brick tenements.

Canon Hertzler is part of both worlds, for he is known as "Rector of The Main," a title he is soon to vacate for that of spiritual welfare adviser of the British embassy in Copenhagen.

The chunky priest has spent 11 years administering to the needs of The Main.

"We only get the edges of that other world," Mr. Hertzler said in an interview. "The fissam and jetsam. When the fun's over, we get the hangover."

They come to him in numbers —families destroyed by drinking. The small fry who cling to the edge of life on The Main until no one has any use for them. And mothers without husbands."

"For a priest, the work here is more rewarding in many ways than in some of the more comfortable parishes," he said. "Need breaks down the barriers between people and their priest. When they need help, they're almost to talk. Only a few human problems are aggravated here."

Squalor continues to exist in Montreal, he said. Tenements were overcrowded. He remembered one little girl who was given a religious picture as a gift and asked what she should do with it.

When told to hang it on the wall in her home, she replied, "we don't have any walls."

"When we investigated we discovered that the family was living in the middle of a large room with the space near the walls occupied by other people.

"Well, that's an extreme case. But there's no denying that present government and private welfare agencies miss a lot of people.

"People are proud. They'll try to live on bread and potatoes for years before they finally become ill and have to turn to someone for help."

The solution, he said, is government action. The government should try to tell people what services are available.

"After all, they subsidize highway contracts, liquor permit bearings. Why shouldn't they advertise social services so that people know where to find help?"

The canon's parish is more than 100 years old. The Victorian Gothic church, built on land which once housed a zoo, was the site of many early controversies.

One of its deacons once was censured for "un - Protestant" conduct. It once was described as "a notorious Everest of high Anglican practice." St. John the Evangelist was the first Anglican Church in Canada to celebrate a daily eucharist and to provide for the sacrament of absolution.

"People wonder about the future of downtown parishes," said Mr. Hertzler. "This church once had more than 1,000 families. Today, the parish is much larger but it numbers less than 500 families.

"The shift in population makes it difficult for the downtown church to manage at times. But it doesn't reduce the need. The church has a real vocation here."

Canon Hertzler has spent the middle years of his priesthood on The Main. "It's the best time to work in a parish like this," he said.

Teen-Age Canada

18-Year-Old N.B. Girl Looking to Art Career

By JACK HUTTON

Winsome Pamela Anne Hill is an 18-year-old New Brunswick girl looking forward to an art career motivated by the book of a British Columbia artist. What sounds like a combining it shouldn't.

Pamela, who has just entered Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B., is one of five Canadian teen-agers, proving that Canada does have a strong movement of developing young artists.

She and four other teenagers last July won $400 scholarships sponsored jointly by the Canadian Society of Extraction through Art and Coutts Hallmark Cards.

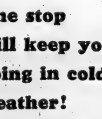
The artistic quintet, who received the awards to carry on their art education after high school, were chosen from 1,000 young applicants who swamped judges with 150 paintings.

The story of Pamela's development as a creative teen-age artist is a splendid example of how interest and effort in any field can pay off in spades for any Canadian teen-ager.

"I've always wanted to paint —even as far back as pre-school years," she said when presenting her entries. "During the primary and secondary grades we were given art instruction by Clive Roberts and I won several awards in competition."

Pamela's talent was recognized and encouraged in a children's art class at the University of New Brunswick, and she was given a real boost when her family moved to Yellowknife in the North West Territories.

Yellowknife is a thriving frontier town with many friendly organized hobby groups," she recalled later.



"Here I got my first taste of crafts, such as copper-tooling, and I painted with an ardent lady artist who specialized in portraits of Eskimos and Indians."

Even with the change of life West on her art, Pamela still felt that she was never going beyond the ideas of her instructors. Two events changed that forever.

First, the Beaverbrook Art Gallery was opened in Fredericton and her family moved east. Pamela found herself exploring other artists' work—and developing strong preferences.

Liberals Launch Second Attempt To Unseat Govt.

Bitter Attack Made On Quebec Socreds

Prime Minister Asked to Name Some Criticisms

OTTAWA (CP)— A dominant cry from the government benches during the throne speech debate this week was a revival or extension of the election - campaign talk of personal attacks on Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

With hardly an exception, cabinet ministers have devoted harsh and bitter words to what Mr. Diefenbaker himself described as "the organized deluge of defamation and adjectival abuse that has been heaped upon the government of this country and myself as leader (which) has never been equalled in the history of Canada."

Again and again reference was made to this theme, usually directed to the prime minister's accusation that the Liberals have disregarded "the accepted principles of political controversy."

The result of this persistent theme may be further attempts from opposition groups to get the government to put on record more examples of the matter to which they object.

Liberal Leader Pearson tried once. He asked Mr. Diefenbaker to substantiate his allegation of personal criticisms and vilification.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied: "I am too old to that. When defamation takes place, do you repeat the defamation against yourself?"

"Put up or shut up," retorted Mr. Pearson.

Scant Evidence Tension Eases At Ole Miss

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Booing students and reports of gunfire did little to encourage hopes today that normalcy was returning to the turbulent University of Mississippi campus.

The greenward of the old university — scene of riots and bloodshed in which two men were killed and more than 200 injured earlier this week — was practically deserted today. Students, including James H. Meredith, were on a weekend holiday and the homecoming game was 170 miles away in Memphis.

Meredith's whereabouts were not disclosed but he was believed to be with his wife, a student at Jackson State College for Negroes, and two-year-old son.

Nicholas Katzenbach, deputy U.S. attorney-general, held fast to his conviction that "we have gone a long way toward relieving tensions here and getting back to normalcy."

STILL IS GUARDED

But through Friday before Meredith left on the two-day respite from classes, federal marshals still guarded the 29-year-old Negro' whose enrolment at the all-white university spurred Mississippi to match its segregation convictions against the armed might of the federal government.

Meredith ate in the university cafeteria again Friday causing one student to yell:

"Who let coon-ass in here?"

Students jammed into a narrow hallway and hissed at Meredith as he passed from a political science classroom.

"Your life is short," one of the crowd shouted.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — A slow improvement is expected in Ontario weather picture for today and Sunday. Clouds will persist during the daytime but there will be clearing skies tonight in some sections. Sunday promises to be pleasant in southwestern and northern sections of the province.

OTTAWA (CP) — A second Liberal attempt to tumble Prime Minister Diefenbaker's minority government was launched Friday in the Commons.

And outside, the House, Leader Robert Thompson of the Social Credit party said his group may offer its second non-confidence motion — which would be the fifth since Parliament opened Sept. 27.

Other events Friday in the fifth day of the eight-day debate on the throne speech:

The freighter Blanche Hindman plugged the Welland Canal during lake traffic's seaway boycott despite warnings from seaway officials. A North Bay inquiry into shipping disruptions was told Friday.

Two seaway officials—Wilfred Dion, radio dispatcher on the Welland Ship Canal, and Alwyn Smith, lockmaster at the northern entrance to the canal — told the master of the Blanche Hiedman went against seaway instructions "when he knew full well" he was in position blocking the first lock.

The freighter — manned by crews belonging to the Seafarers' International Union of Canada — was hit by the July 2 boycott staged by seaway workers against SIU vessels, and it was forced to tie up at the Welland Weller lock in the Welland Canal.

After several ships passed it, the Blanche Hindman made a run for the lock and the lock-tender behind a tug pushing a barge. It moved in and out of the gates that it effectively blocked the waterway to through traffic.

MEMBERS BACK SIU

Later another ship, also manned by SIU crews, pulled a similar tactic and blocked the southern end of the canal.

The Welland Canal was thus closed to all shipping for more than 18 hours—until the seaway boycott was called off Aug. 14 when the federal government agreed to launch an inquiry into shipping disruptions in the waterfront labor violence.

Seaway engineer Thomas Dion said the skipper of the Blanche Hindman told him by radio that he was going to advance into the lock at the next green light. He said he assumed that he did so at his own risk—that a tug and barge were being called up from behind to prevent him from entering the lock.

A colleague, Smith, a member of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, said seaway supervisors were seaway workers, said the Blanche Hindman moved against closed light.

Their testimony came as Mr. Justice J. Keiller Norris entered the 28th public sitting of his commission into violence, obstruction and shipping troubles stemming from a bitter struggle between the SIU and its new rival, the Canadian Maritime Union.

Mr. Justice Norris announced that he plans tentatively to resume hearings Oct. 15 in Montreal, when the SIU will present its side of the story. He also indicated that a brief session may be held before the Commons Labor committee in Ottawa or Toronto.

Aviation Administrator Believes Airline Pilots' Shenanigans Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — N. E. Halaby, federal aviation administrator, says that "if photographs and testimony of secret pit shenanigans are verified then I indicate "a very serious condition existed" in airline operations and "could possibly not happen again."

Halaby told a press conference Friday that some of the photographs produced ...within the last two weeks have been verified as authentic ..."then we think many of them will be."

Some of the photographs showed sharply blondes sitting in pilots' laps and actually at the controls, a co-pilot's view through an airliner, and pilots sleeping.

SHIP PLUGGED WELLAND CANAL INQUIRY TOLD

Hit by Boycott Against SIU

Political Antagonists Fire Ammunition, No One Hurt

TORONTO (CP) — The main political antagonists in Ontario's election campaign fired off ammunition, but the reverberations were distinctly anti-climactic.

The political fireworks were staccato and unspectacular as Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer, whose accusations instigated the inquiry, and Attorney-General Kelso Roberts, on the defence, rounded out the week before Mr. Justice W. D. Rose's royal commission.

Tuesday's action, a prelude for the post-holiday resumption when Mr. Wintermeyer — who spent Friday in direct testimony—takes on Liberal and New Democratic Party cross-examiners who have been accumulating material in 59 daily sessions.

Apart from Mr. Wintermeyer's appearance, the week largely a week of government submissions with the attorney-general, provincial treasurer John Yaremko and two top civil servants being rebutting charges made by the Liberal chief in his accusation-laden legislature speech on Nov. 1 November that gave the ,government the commission into setting up the investigation.

All the government spokesmen denied Mr. Wintermeyer's charges and suggestions of corruption in the department either in Mr. Wintermeyer's speech or scattered through he questioning that followed. Much of testimony so far piled up by the opposition.

Mr. Wintermeyer added no new allegations, and his examination was interrupted only by Liberal counsel S. J. MacKinnon's objection to Conservative-appointed commission counsel Roland F. Wilson was trying to "build up a hatchet job" on the party leader.

Mr. Wilson probed for sources of the information in the Wintermeyer speech but did not push the point when Mr. Wintermeyer, politely regretful, declined to name informants and said he took full responsibility for the contents of the speech.

He had carried out his function of bringing matters to light, the opposition leader said, and it was up to the commission to take it from there.

Mr. Wintermeyer said he had no idea of the information as far as it could be done but he felt impelled to make it public.

Attorney-General Roberts said Friday he could have better by going to his department and the Ontario Provincial Police.

The attorney - general entered a detailed and chronological defence of his department's and the OPP's actions in connection with gambling clubs, handled by commissioner Eric Silk in the past three years.

Mr. Justice Roach protested at some length against references to "cluttering" the commission with "a daily mass of material, and at one point Mr. Roach rejected Mr. Robert's attempt to introduce into the record a speech he gave last fall on liquor law enforcement situation in Ontario.

"There has been a great deal of clutter," Mr. Roach said, but he expressed on organized crime," the minister argued, "and I'd like to put this on record with what it's worth."

"I don't think it's worth anything," the commissioner said. "You made a speech somewhere. I don't think you need to help me in my search for truth."

We'd be here for a long time anyway.

East Germans Prevent Allied Ambulances Entering Area

BERLIN (Reuters) — East German border guards today fired warning shots over two Allied ambulances from entering East Berlin to pick up a West Berliner shot and injured by East German refugees to escape through a tunnel under the Communist border wall.

East German authorities told the crew of a British Army of the Rhine ambulance and a West Berlin Red Cross ambulance that they were well able to look after the 21-year-old injured man who was in a critical condition with a stomach as he was hit by gunfire.

Before he was shot, the West Berliner with the aid of five other refugees had dug a 30-foot tunnel from a cellar in East Berlin to the West. Through the tunnel from and the Red Cross ambulance used by the West German Red Cross to the tunnel.

The Red Cross ambulance attempted to cross into East Berlin at the Sonnenallee crossing point but was refused by the East German border guards and the ambulance men reported there are any injuries to be treated, we have our own ambulance."

Religious Groups Claim Christianity Shows Decline

TORONTO (CP)—Spokesmen for other religious groups Friday concurred with Dr. F. C. Fry, president of the United Church in America, that Christianity is in the process of decline.

Dr. Fry, addressing a two-day founding convention of the Eastern Canada synod of the Lutheran Church in America, held in Waterloo, Ont., said Christianity "as we know it" appears to be dying out in the world and that the major power bloc in the world today lies in the hands of anti-Christians.

Rev. Dr. Lorne Sunstrum, United Church of Canada, said "... the climate of thought which was responsible for Christianity in the three generations ago, now is questioning the basic truth and questions of science and materialist growth . . . This is the kind of thing Dr. Fry means."

Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, Anglican bishop of Toronto, said: "I don't think Christianity is dying out, but I think it . . . will have to compete in a smaller sphere, not only with the major non-Christian religions, but with the aggressive and sometimes militant forces of scientific communism and the secular religions of materialism and humanism."

Rev. John Morgen, First Unitarian Congregation, Toronto: "I think what Dr. Fry says is true of Christianity as we have known it in the last few hundred years. The age of the dominance of European powers is coming to an end, and Christianity has been the religion of Europe."

Father Frank Stone, director of the Catholic Information Bureau, declared: "There is a battle for the world between Christianity and setting down world power play between nations."

"The danger lies in too much complacency. We must not make security in this world the only possible aim. There will be an increase in this tendency unless the church goes underground."

Dr. Stone added: "There has been a great deal of the granting of requests for divorce, a sign of general insecurity. When the home goes, everything goes."

NOT RETIRING

LONDON (AP) — Edward G. Robinson, 68, whose latest picture was interrupted by a heart attack, finished the film Friday and said he had no thought of retiring. "I'm ready for a bit at my California home, and then go back to work," he said.

IRON CURTAIN PRELATES HEAD FOR COUNCIL

Only Poland Had Been Expected

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Iron Curtain was lifting today to permit delegates from at least three Soviet-bloc countries to attend the second Vatican council of the Roman Catholic Church.

Vatican officials welcomed the chance at personal contact with the prelates from Hungary, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Only Poland had been expected.

First to arrive was a nine-member Hungarian delegation including two bishops. It was the first visit of Hungarian bishops to the Vatican in 14 years.

The head of the delegation, Bishop Endre Hamvas of Csanad, said there in his eyes as he left the sleeping car and was met by a group of Hungarian clergymen in Rome near the officials of the Hungarian embassy to Italy.

"I am so happy to be here and to see you that I can hardly speak," Hamvas said. He added that the delegation would remain in Rome for at least two weeks "to see the living job in front of us."

OTHERS NOT COMING

Spellman and his aide, Msgr. Timothy J. Flynn, the executive director of the New York archdiocesan Catholic Relief, in a recent threat against either the cardinal or St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Detectives from the police bomb squad searched the cathedral and one commented, after viewing the bombed area: "It was no accident."

The detective added it was uncertain whether the device was hurled through one of the barred basement windows or was placed by delayed explosion in a below-street-level alcove adjacent to the residence.

Police speculated that the bomb, apparently heard for blocks around, was caused by "several large firecracker-type devices such as a cherry bomb."

Later, however, bomb squad experts found in the alleyway several grains of black powder which they said had the characteristics of dynamite casings. The criminal matter was taken over to a police laboratory for closer study.

Within minutes after the thunderous blast, several police and fire vehicles converged on the darkened cathedral. It fronts on Fifth Avenue between 50th and 51st Streets and runs a full block back to Madison Avenue behind the cathedral.

The Cardinal's residence is on the northwest corner of Madison and 50th and connects with the cathedral via a passageway.

The blast rocked the area —unoccupied for some time according to police reports—and broke windows in the 50th corner of the building, in the basement. The windows broken on the second floor is in a part of the building which was not damaged area.

The force of the explosion blew much of the window-glass outward, as it would have if it had been set off inside the room. Damage, otherwise, appeared light.

Police said witnesses recalled seeing a man running to a car on 50th Street about the time the blast occurred.

Bomb Explodes In Cardinal Spellman's Home

No One Hurt But Blast Broke Some Windows

NEW YORK (AP)—A bomb-like device exploded early today at the St. Patrick's Cathedral residence of Francis Cardinal Spellman. No one, including the cardinal who was asleep on the second floor, was injured when the blast blew out four basement windows.

"It got me up," Cardinal Spellman said of the explosion that he viewed the shattered windows of the unoccupied maid's quarters.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York came to the side dressed in his clerical suit and joked with reporters while calm fell.

Asked if he thought the explosion was a prank, the 75-year-old prelate replied seriously: "What do you mean, kids?"

He obviously was reminded of an explosion that shipped a statue and damaged an organ at St. Peter's Basilica in Rome last July. That was followed on Sept. 22 by the discovery of two incendiary bombs in St. Peter's that forced its closing until the second Vatican council session Oct. 11.

Police Question Five Suspects In Robbery

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Police were questioning five suspects in connection with the $7,000 armed robbery of a bank courier, Peter Groff, Friday.

The city detective said the restaurant two hours after the robbery. The courier was robbed when a man parking his car outside the bank.

The gunman, his face covered with a black silk stocking, then ran across the road to where an accomplice was waiting in a getaway car.

The money was the weekly payroll for Meletsky Bernstine and Meretsky scrap dealers and Romeo Machine Shop.

U.S. Sailor Faces Death Penalty If Convicted in Espionage Case

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal grand jury has indicted Cornelius Drummond, 33, veteran of 16 years in the navy, on charges of a wholesale sellout of U.S. defence secrets to Russia.

The Baltimore - born Negro has been held under $100,000 bond since his arrest Sept. 26 outside a Larchmont, N.Y., diner. He faces a possible death penalty if convicted under the indictment.

Four secretaries to the Soviet mission to the United Nations were named as co-conspirators, but not defendants, in Friday's indictment. All have left the country. Drummond was arrested in company with two of the Russians.

He has been a dozen types of data were listed in the indictment. A government spokesman said they covered naval weapons, submarine maintenance information and electronics secrets.

The conspiracy was said by the government to have begun in October, 1957, and continued until Drummond's arrest. U.S. attorney Vincent L. Broderick, who said Drummond received as much as $6,000 in a single payoff from the Russians,

External Affairs Minister Green scored Opposition Leader Pearson's "abusive attack" on the government as "unbecoming a man who hopes one day to become prime minister."

Negro Village Razed With White Bands

HARMONY, Miss. (AP)—Reports of potshots being taken at more than six Negro houses and a store in the Harmony community weekend mixed reactions today.

Three additional racial incidents also were involving so-called Molotov cocktails — bottles of gasoline with flaming fuses—have been reported since the closing at the University of admittance of Negro James H. Meredith to the campus.

Megar Evers, Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, said the houses and stores in the little Negro community "were shot into by a large number of whites." He said there was some damage but no one was injured.

Leake county law officers said, however, they believed the shots were fired by whites in an effort to get publicity. Harmony is in Leake county.

Members of Jewish Faith Open Autumn Rites Sunday Night

By RABBI J. BERGLAS

Yom Kippur (The Day of Atonement) is the most sweeping day in the Jewish calendar. It occurs on the tenth of Tishri, and is observed by the twenty-four hours of intense fasting, and by prayers and supplications. It is called "The Day of Judgment". We are told that on Rosh Hashanah the BBook of Life is opened and in it is inscribed the fate of mortal man. On Yom Kippur the Book is sealed — man's destiny decided. Hence, we are also told that on Yom Kippur, the Almighty forgives (if repentance is sincere) man's sins against Him; but man's sins against his fellow men can be forgiven only if he makes atonement to the individual harmed. Because, as MIcah the Prophet so concisely declared "What is it that The Lord asks of thee". Only that thou shalt do justice, love righteousness". And, we may also distinguish, "Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart . . . thou shalt not bear a grudge, nor harbor thought of revenge".

The Jewish religion emphasizes the idea of trying to do everything possible, and completely. And so our Torah tells us to observe one day completely set aside for the spirit and soul —a day in which we strive to come closer to God by resolving to draw closer to our fellow men and to all things that are noble. To make in right with our Father, we first right the wrongs we have committed against His children.

With much reverence, and with humble spirit, we sit in the synagogue on this day, to be over with the Almighty. And when the day is over we have come to a perfect understanding. We know exactly what God expects of us, and what we have promised Him. And we know that what we have promised will take very strong will power. Do we have such a will? Yes — and we do not. We abstain from physical comforts and necessities even so urgent and vital as food and water. In the spirit of the commandment of the Torah — "And you shall make this a day of self-discipline" — we feel about twenty-five hours in all, from before sunset of the previous day to after sunset of Yom Kippur Day.

KOL NIDREI

The Kol Nidrei service ushers in the Day of Atonement in the Synagogue. This service, charmingly in a haunting melody, absolves the worshipers from oaths or a religious nature heartily or unwillingly made in relation to service to the Almighty. It has no reference to obligations or duties created, incurred or assumed in civil life, but all of which, under Jewish law, must be strictly adhered to and performed. For while sins gainst The Almighty are forgiven on Yom Kippur, if injurious to another man's rights, sins gainst his fellow man can be forgiven only if he makes atonement or restitution to the individual harmed.

THE SACRED END OF REPENTANCE

In the afternoon service for Yom Kippur, we read the Book of Jonah, which relates, among other things, how the people of Nineveh, when delivered from a terrible fate; even after Jonah had prophesied its doom, repented of their sins and be lated repentance of its inhabitants.

THE SHOFAR BLAST

At the end of Yom Kippur day—immediately after the conclusion of the twenty-four hours of fasting and prayer—the Shofar (ram's horn) blast is sounded, to reming every man and woman of the significance of the Day of Judgment and of the necessity of abiding by the words of the Prophets so as to be made on this solemn and awe-inspiring day.

SLOWING OF SHOFAR AT END OF YOM KIPPUR

The reason for this is given in The Talmud, where it is stated that at night fall on Yom Kippur a Heavenly voice announces God, and say thy meal in joy," and insaid much as this voice is inaudible to mortal ears, it is said that the Shofar so that the people may be aware that the day of fasting is over.

Naturally, however, the first night meal must first be said before eating is permissible. Many other observances of the Talmud also are stated that the Shofar is blown so that those who may go to their homes and give food to the hungry, may be in time to end all day long, and also to set the table for the evening meal, which is a festive book, and similar to those served on the important holidays.

There is also another reason given—that it is a symbol of victory (the Salem Temptation) which has been conquered by the abstention from food and drink and by the devout penitence of the congregation on this awesome day.

May the New Year then, usher in a family of nations based on the recognition of the brotherhood of man and the triumph of Divine Justice.

Dean of U.S. Con Men Gets $5,000 Legit

CHICAGO (AP)—The Yellow Kid—once famed as dean of U.S. con men—scored for nearly $5,000 Friday. And it was strictly legit.

The courtroom setting was not unfamiliar to Joseph (the Yellow Kid) Weil, who was jailed at least 41 times during his 50-year career but nearly everything from selling phoney stock to collecting a $50,000 bet on a staged boxing match.

Lawyers announced that Weil had dropped a $100,000 copyright suit in U.S. district court against Playboy magazine for less than $5,000.

Weil had charged the magazine wrongfully used copyright material about him and his career.

A lawyer said the 65-year-old Weil—who police say regarded $10,000,000 from counterfeit "marks"—felt he was getting old and could not work out a long-drawn court battle.

Weil, active during the 1930s and 1940s, Well got his nickname for his dapper appearance sat off by a snazzy colored vest and matching gloves.

Watkins Glen To Be Scene Of Gran Prix

Motorsport enthusiasts in this district who journeyed to Monsport Hill past summer will witness such events as the 500 and the recent Grand Prix will undoubtedly be attracted by the prospect of witnessing a fully fledged international Gran Prix event tomorrow.

This event will be held at the Watkins Glen Circuit, near Watkins Glen, New York—and many consider to be the birth place of postwar motorsport on the North American Continent.

The event will feature the 1949 Grand Prix Formula One racing cars and not the polpourri of sports-racing machinery as many would be expected on Canadian circuits such as Monsport, which has now closed for the season.

The event could also be the last before the World Championship title for Britisher Graham Hill driving a B.R.M. He will not have a light task of it, however, despite the fact that he currently leads the points race for this singular honor. Felice Bonetto, Italian ace, driving a Lotus, is in a position to unseat Hill, who should not be confused with the American Phil Hill, who won the 1961 World Championship title.

The presence of former world champion driver Jack Barbham of Australia who will be driving a car of his own design — a Brabham, means that the race will surely belong to the swift. Also on hand will be Masten Gregory, brother of the Canadian Grand Prix at Monsport two weeks ago; Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, current runner-up to the points leader; Innes Ireland, winner of last year's event at "the Glen"; Joakim Bonnier, the noted Swedish Bonnier-Porsche driver in the new Formula One Porsche.

Regardless of who does win the event, the race is bound to be one of the finest to be witnessed during the 1963 international racing season. Anyone interested in attendig is advised to be in Watkins Glen by 10.30 a.m. in order to be able to get to the track on time even if the race is scheduled for 2.00 p.m. The traffic lineup is something almost as spectacular as the race.

Toronto Lawyer Not Taking Any Legal Action

KINGSTON (CP) — Toronto lawyer Glen How, counsel for Jehovah's Witnesses in Canada, said Friday he is not taking any legal action following the special trial of a court hearing which made a six-day-old baby a ward of Mrs. Mildred Ann Society.

The child, son of Jehovah's Witnesses parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Forsyth of Kingston was born with an RH blood factor. His parents refused permission for blood transfusions.

Fire-Fighting Service Offered Murray Twp.

TRENTON — The Village of Brighton has fire protection for sale, and it is trying to sell it to Murray Township. Brighton council yesterday read a fire protection agreement, already signed by Brighton officials, in which Brighton offered the services of its volunteer fire department to Murray, for a price.

The price, for protection of a specified section of Murray township, was high. In the opinion of Murray Council, Brighton was asking $200 per year as a standby fee. Out of fire, Brighton would answer the alarm, if necessary, with its fire equipment in need for the job, at $100 per hour for the first hour and $60 for each succeeding hour. The time would be counted from the time the fire engine left the department in Brighton to the fire alarm.

There is a further provision that Murray would pay for the service no matter who puts in the fire alarm.

So far, Murray has not accepted or rejected the offer. Mrs. Ruby Mae Webster, reeve of Webster, will speak to Brighton officials in hopes of having the contract modified before Murray acts.

Tax Collections In Murray Twp. Come in Slowly

TRENTON — Tax collections in Murray Township are coming slow, but they are coming, tax collector Lloyd Dolan told council yesterday. All taxes are due by the first of December, and of the 1,200 taxpayers who have paid so far, the 'Tax bills went out September 20, and the bills went out September 21.

Checking the tax roll, a monster loose leaf book containing all the tax information for the township, Angus Gunter commented, "we're going to have to get a new book, with casters on it before long. If we can't lift it, we can roll it along."

Taxpayers in the book are now listed according to road sections, Henry McColl, the township assessor said. The new arrangement is the recommendation of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs. It will simplify tax calculations for areas, in which the township is divided. Formerly, the tax roll was arranged by polling divisions.

Grader Repair Bill Irritates Murray Council

TRENTON — Last summer Murray Township's grader became a bit overheated, and the transmission seized up. Yesterday, Murray council was presented with a repair bill for $232.25, for which heated the meeting all by itself. The repairs cost a total of $232.25, of which only $316.78 was for parts.

There were two items in the bill from a Toronto heavy equipment dealer, that Murray councillors didn't like. One flat was mileage, two round trips from Toronto to the area viceman, for which Murray township is charged 18 cents a mile. The second was overtime. Murray roads superintendent, Cliff Wannamaker, claims he authorized no overtime on the job, but there is a charge of $20 for such overtime on the bill.

Murray's reeve, Douglas McMaster, will take the bill in to the dealer in Toronto, next week to ask for an explanation.

OPEN AID TALKS

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)—A 10-man delegation from Communist China arrived today on talks with Ghanian officials Friday on aid for development of Ghana's industries, and agriculture.

Fence Remains Where Placed Says Report

TRENTON — Murray township council yesterday read the Fenceviewers' Award in which has never been opened, and Mr. Helsler thought the fence should run along the centre of the road allowance. Up to this time, the fence has been along the north edge of the road allowance, giving Mr. Maybee an extra 66 feet of the lot.

The Fenceviewers' Award provided that the fence should remain in its present position. The award was initialled equally by Mr. Helsaler and Mr. Maybee. The report was signed by Royce Hannah, Blake Terry and Percy Way, all fenceviewers of the township of Murray.

Council Moves Quickly to Form Planning Area

TRENTON — Murray council is moving quickly to establish their township as a planning area. Yesterday, at a regular council meeting, they passed a resolution that will enable permits issued by the township before the year 1962, for which construction has not yet started, be cancelled. The move is to ensure that all new construction in the township will conform to current building by-laws.

A further step in the establishment of the planning area will be taken next Tuesday morning, at 11 a.m. when Murray council will meet in conjunction with the Assistant Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, some of the final details of the plan will be worked out then. Murray township has had a first town planners from Toronto working on the project all summer.

Assessor Will Attend Meet

TRENTON — Henry McColl, Murray Township assessor, will be paid expenses when he attends the Ontario Association of Assessors at Lindsay, on October 12, Murray Council decided yesterday. The one-day convention is sponsored by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs, to give the local assessors a chance to ask questions of the province's experts.

Cheese Prices Here Cent Above Stratford

A total of 28,643 cheese of all types was offered on the Belleville Cheese Exchange this week, the average set for regular cheese being at 31/16 cents for white and 3754 cents for colored.

Top price for white cheese was at 33/16 cents and for colored at 37 15/16 cents.

There were 3,587 specials, 13,301 regular cheese and 9,255 square cheese offered on the board.

At Stratford there were 125 white and 3,102 colored cheese offered, with a price of 36¾ cents being received.

MP EJECTED — Social Credit Herbert Dumont, MP for Bellechasse constituency was ejected from the House of Commons Friday morning by Speaker Marcel Lambert after the freshman member refused to heed the Speaker's call to order. Mr. Dumont prepared a statement which said he deliberately ignored the Speaker because people are living in misery." He said if Parliament goes on as before, "Communism will take hold."

(CP Wirephoto) 1962.

If we had to hear all this speeches," Mr. Brewin commented.

The commissioner told the minister, too, that he differed with his attitude towards an incident in 1959 when Mr. Roberts took three or four months to get in touch with the late mines minister Maloney over a magistrate's claim that the minister had interfered in a gambling case before him.

Mr. Roberts contended it was up to Magistrate Fred Thompson to take action himself, instead of just complaining to his chief, but the commissioner said he disagreed.

REGISTERED CONVICTION

Under the commissioner's questioning, the attorney-general admitted he allowed a provincial election campaign to intervene before he talked to Mr. Maloney, who denied approaching the magistrate. Meanwhile, Mr. Thompson had registered a conviction despite the minister's supposed concern for the defendants.

One of the documents presented by Mr. Roberts Friday was a memorandum of November 1961, to the minister from OPP Commissioner W. H. Clark containing brief answers to a questionnaire of municipal police officials of several municipalities on the existence of organized syndicated crime in their districts and those operating.

Windsor: No organized crime, though it is hard to define the term.

Hamilton: No organized crime at present but police have two men (identified only as Papalia and MacDonald) under surveillance against the possibility.

London: No organized crime. Several individuals operating.

Kitchener: A few bookies.

Chatham: No organized crime.

Guelph: One or two bookies.

Toronto: No organized crime and gambling exceptionally light.

Toronto: No organized or syndicated crime, to the knowledge of the police.

A current legislature memory that Conservative Maurice Hamilton of Bellwood might have came into the evidence during the trial of W. G. Bowman, director of public prosecutions, said he intervened in 1950 to obtain the withdrawal of W. G. Bowman from about 30 pinball machine charges in the Pembroke area.

DONE AS WARNING

Mr. Bowman said the local prosecutor and the OPP had been satisfied to have this done, prosecuting four of five others as a warning to the group.

There has been earlier testimony that Mr. Hamilton—who represented Renfrew South—meddled in court cases in the same area and Deputy Attorney-General W. B. Common said during the week it was impossible he had said, as Mr. Thompson alleged, that the late minister had been "getting in the hair" of his department.

Both Mr. Common and Mr. Roberts denied stepping in to prevent prematurely a 1960 undercover investigation of OPP information leakages, and the deputy reiterated a denial of gamblers' gossip that he was on their payroll.

During the week, gamblers Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley and barber Godfrey Coste, Robert J. Wright lost an Ontario appeal court action against their conviction last March on conspiracy charges stemming from the undercover investigation.)

Provincial Secretary Yaremko denied the allegation of Mr. Winternmeyer in the administration of "political" gambling clubs of the type operated by McDermott and Feeley for years.

"TRUE TO OATH"

"I have failed to enforce the law," he said, and the attorney-general followed him with a declaration that he had been unfailingly true to his oath of office.

Testimony during the week revealed an apparent lack of communication between OPP and different levels of the attorney - general's department over information on the long-standing OPP leakages that finally became public in 1960.

Staff Sgt. Clifford Von Zuben of the OPP testified he was forced to the conclusion in 1953 that there were leakages, after getting "odd hints here and there" earlier.

The deputy attorney-general had heard suspicions and rumors, but none were "pinpointed" for him in mid-1957.

And up to that time, the attorney - general said, he had heard nothing, though he had been chief law enforcement officer for two years by then.

Three Injured In Two Mishaps

Ontario Provincial Police reported two accidents in the Bay of Quinte area since Friday afternoon.

A Montreal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lavigne, were proceeding on highway No. 401, in their late model sports car, when about four miles west of Belleville, the car rolled over. Mrs. Lavigne was driving the car at the time.

Both were taken to Belleville General Hospital where they were treated for minor injuries. Their sports car was extensively damaged.

COLLIDES WITH BRIDGE

Ronald F. Sharpe, of R. R. 1, Belleville was taken to the Belleville General Hospital on Friday suffering lacerations to the scalp and forehead.

Police said Mr. Sharpe was southbound on the Bay bridge road when he lost control of his vehicle, striking the side of the bridge.

Damage to the Sharpe vehicle was considered to be extensive. There was slight damage to the bridge.

Belleville Ontario Provincial Police investigated.

Ships Collide But Crews Remain Aboard

DETROIT (AP) — The Canadian freighter Hutchcliffe Hall and the American - owned ore carrier Richard V. Lindabury collided on fog-covered Lake St. Clair Friday off the Grosse Pointe Farms municipal pier.

Fifty-six men aboard the two ships—29 on the Canadian—escaped injury. The crews remained aboard.

The 342 - foot Hutchcliffe Hall of Montreal went aground off the channel following the collision and settled in water 14 to 15 feet deep.

The Hutchcliffe Hall was struck on the port side by the bow of the 586-foot Lindabury. The Lindabury suffered damage to her bow.

The Lindabury was upbound without cargo for Lake Superior to take on iron ore. The Hutchcliffe Hall, loaded with grain, was headed for ports on the St. Lawrence River.

Kingston Man Goes to Ghana

OTTAWA (CP)—Donald MacAlister Cornett, 44, has been appointed Canadian high commissioner to Ghana, it was announced Friday.

A career diplomat, he has been head of the external affairs department's consular division there for two years.

Between 1948 and 1960 Mr. Cornett held various embassy posts at Oslo, Copenhagen, Canberra and Karachi.

Born in Kingston, he served overseas with the army in the Second World War and was graduated from, Queen's University shortly before joining the department in 1947.

Salvation Army Bandmaster Jack Green seen with his beloved cornet. Still the envy of all who hear him, Mr. Green has many gold medals and certificates won in all-Canada competition.

Jack Green, Salvation Army Bandleader, Leads 40-Piece Band in Buffalo Concerts

A Belleville musician who played cornet solo at famed Albert Hall in London when he was a lad of 14 years, later this month will lead the local Salvation Army Band in three concerts at Buffalo, N.Y.

He is bandmaster Jack Green, Harriet Street, who has headed the Belleville Salvation Army Band as its conductor for the past 15 years. The band will play in Buffalo on October 20 and 21.

Thirty years ago Mr. Green was competing against top Canadian cornetists in open competition and has gold medals and certificates from the Canadian National Exhibition, and from music festivals at Stratford and Waterloo.

But he doesn't need to prove his ability in the Belleville area where he is well known, among both musicians and the general public.

And the Salvation Army Band which he leads is known all across Canada. This year the band has filled engagements in Toronto, Montreal and in the U.S.A., and in the week prior to its Buffalo engagement will play at Varsity Arena in Toronto.

40 IN BAND

The band is composed of 28 senior and 12 junior bandsmen, who with a few exceptions all received their start in music under their veteran bandleader.

In fact Mr. Green's instructive genius has developed some of the country's outstanding musicians and composers.

These include such well known soloists as Jack Gunn, with the RCMP band; Bob Stebbings, with the RCAF band; Robert Blakely, winner of the Kiwanis Scholarship; Ken Rowlings, head of the Salvation Army bands for Canada and Arnold Brown, cornet soloist and composer.

During his lifetime he has taught over 300 students in his role as trainer in brass band instruments. Most of his students have been members of the Salvation Army.

One of a family of eight children, Mr. Green worked in the Welsh coal mines as a lad of 13 and was in the Army at 16½ years.

He commenced his cornet studies as a boy of nine and it was as a member of the Welsh Maesteg Band that he had his opportunity of playing solo at Albert Hall.

He was official trumpeter for his Welsh Army unit and played before King George V as the First Canadian Contingent was welcomed overseas at Aldershot early in World War 1.

After the war he went back to the mines in Wales but working conditions were still difficult and the pay low and he took advantage of a miner's strike to come to Canada.

"I have never regretted the move", he said.

But even when family bands were short he never neglected his music.

He retired last year from the Canadian National Railways after 33 years service as welder and later as track foreman.

But like many who have won their niche in the world, Mr. Green attributes much of his success in the world of music to his wife.

Mrs. Green is piano accompanist for the Belleville Salvation Army Songster Brigade and her encouragement and assistance have been an important factor in her bandsman's success.

He says the Salvation Army has done much for him and his family.

And conversely he and his wife have done much for the Salvation Army. Between them they have a service record of over 100 years with the Army.

Labor Council Backs Union In Dispute Here

A meeting of the Belleville and District Labor Council was held recently at the Club Canara during which delegates voted to support the efforts of Deacon Brothers workers to be recognized.

Mr. Stan Clair of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, spoke on the efforts being made to negotiate a contract with the local firm. He outlined the efforts made since his union was certified by the Ontario Labor Relations Board in 1960.

Vice-president Arthur F. Whitehead spoke of the forthcoming Belleville United Appeal campaign and outlined the necessity of supporting this worthwhile endeavor.

Several letters were read and appeals from the United Glass and Ceramic Workers' Union, Local 203 of Hamilton, and from the Amalgamated Meat Cutters in Toronto to support their strikes against the Dominion Glass Company and the A. R. Clarke Tannery were replied to with cheques.

ment House leader, did not move the necessary motion and Mr. Dumont returned after lunch.

The MP told reporters later that his action in ignoring the speaker's calls to order was deliberate.

"I did it deliberately because people are living in misery. If Parliament goes on with endless speeches as before, communism will take hold.

"I didn't notice when the Speaker named me — I was too mad."

He said he gave up a $15,000-a - year job as an insurance agent in St. Vallier de Dorchester, where he is mayor, to run for Parliament last June against State Secretary Noel Dorion.

But since coming to Ottawa he had wasted his time, he said, listening to "long speeches utterly empty of meaning."

MUTTER OF REVOLT

Farmers in the Quebec City area faced such hardship next winter that many are "muttering about revolt," Government statistics showed that 87,500 families in the five eastern provinces earn less than $1,200 annually and this meant that large families were facing "ruin."

Mr. Green said the "political implications" of Britain's bid to enter the European Common Market outweigh economic considerations.

"If the Commonwealth should be wrecked over this issue, I shudder to think of the increased difficulty we would have in preventing our old friends being completely swallowed up by the American way."

Mr. Green said Canada would like to see international negotiations under Prime Minister Macmillan's trade plan take place simultaneously with negotiations between Britain and the Common Market.

"We believe if that could be done, the result would be very much more beneficial all round and it would be much more possible to get lower tariffs."

WITAL CO-OPERATE

Mr. Green pledged that regardless of what happens in Britain's Common Market negotiations, Canada will co-operate—Canada will do her best to maintain and strengthen the Commonwealth."

Mr. Chevrier, reflecting Liberal party concern with the Social Credit success in Quebec in the last election, accused that party of a gross book-keeping error in its economic philosophy. He said Deputy Leader Real Caouette copied from Hitler in using the slogan: "You have nothing to lose; Vote Social Credit."

O. W. Weichel (PC—Waterloo North) said labor and management will hail the government's attack on unemployment.

Bricklayers and Painters In Demand in District

If you are a bricklayer or a painter you won't have any trouble finding a job in the Belleville area.

That's the early October story from the National Employment Office of Belleville, where this week it was reported that every available bricklayer was working, while only one painter was listed as seeking work.

Carpenters also are mostly all working with, only nine in this category being registered for jobs.

In fact the employment picture in the Belleville area is generally much better than at the same period last year.

This week it was reported there were 503 men and 376 women, a total of 879, registered for work. A year ago the count was 723 men and 412 women, or a total of 1134.

This is a reduction of 22 per cent in the number seeking work.

The number of benefit claimants is also down considerably with the total of 544, down 27 per cent from last year.

"The employment picture is generally encouraging," noted Cecil Hiuser, employment office manager. "The number of job applicants is now the lowest for many months and is the lowest for any month this year."

Since the first of October there have been 80 work orders dealt with the office as compared with but 69 in the same period last year.

REDS HAVE PROBLEMS

MOSCOW (AP)—Tass today said it will be six or seven more years before every Soviet family can have its own apartment. Most Soviet families still live in single rooms, sharing kitchens and baths with other families. In a review of the housing situation, the official Soviet news agency said 7,700 apartments are being completed every day in the Soviet Union.

Market Small, Rain Blamed

Activity was slow on the local farmers' market here this morning, as it was last week. Only a quarter of the usual group of vendors were present.

Prices remained unchanged today, from last week, as the supply of local produce is slowly dwindling, although plums are still quite plentiful.

Such a small crowd could be attributed to the rain which prevailed over the area earlier in the morning.

THOMPSON FUNERAL SERVICE

1883 - 1962

You Set The Price

The recent article in the Toronto Globe & Mail concerning "The High Cost of Dying" has convinced us that we should tell the people of Belleville about our funeral service prices.

In our casket selection room we have always shown a complete funeral service for $195, including our personal and staff service, embalming, reasonable cosmetology, restrative art, establishment facilities, funeral coach, sedan, register book, acknowledgment cards, and a casket with outside case.

For less that $500. we offer five different selections $195., $295., $395. $465., $495. Over $500. we show twelve different selections. You alone determine the price by your personal selection of what YOU want.

Memorial Societies referred to in the Globe and Mail article, request a so called funeral service consisting of little more than transporting the deceased from the place of death to the cemetery or crematory.

Why sacrifice true respect through such a disposal procedure when a Thompson Funeral Service is — and always has been — available at any price you desire to select.

We invite you to come and see for yourself at anytime. If you want a pre-arrangement, we shall be pleased to assist you in guaranteeing the type of service that you desire. Many people are doing this. There are no mysteries about funeral service at Thompson's. Find out the facts for yourself and don't be misled by those who would remove sentiment from our way of life.

The Impossible Peace

Dr. William Krogman, an anthropologist at the University of Pennsylvania, foresees the day when peace between nations will be assured—and something ought to be done about this right away.

One would have thought it was impossible to devise a protection against nuclear war which would be worse than the malady, but Dr. Krogman has dreamed up a preventive which makes those midnight horror movies look like fairy tales for the timid.

According to Krogman the average man of the future will have so increased the power, organization and efficiency of his brain that it will send out waves so powerful he will be able to "send and receive mental messages just like radio telegraphy."

This, of course, will eliminate all necessity for U-2 planes and "spy-in-the-sky satellites." All that would be necessary for one nation to learn about the plans of another nation would be for it to arrange a summit parley—or perhaps even this would not be necessary. Dr. Krogman neglects to indicate whether it will be possible to tune in any other brain at will, regardless of the intervening distance.

It is Dr. Krogman's opinion that, since no secrets could exist between nations, peace will be guaranteed. One might quibble about this; we cannot escape the conviction that occasionally some things are thought by statesmen on one side of the Iron Curtain which might be resented by those on the opposite side. But perhaps familiarity with contempt will breed indifference.

Indifference, though, seems like a weak shield against the other results of this predicted enlargement of men's and women's powers. It will be bad enough to march down to face the boss after some little mistake and, while he carefully suggests that one might be more careful to learn by telepathy that he doubts whether anything better can be expected of such a stupid jerk. It will be even worse to realize that he is tuned in on one's conviction that if he knew as much about the business as the office boy, this kind of thing need never happen. The interchange of damaging messages as two people complete a real estate deal can be easily imagined—"I'm getting this at a thousand dollars less than I would be willing to pay"—"Wait until there is a foot of water in the cellar and he won't think he got such a good bargain." As for negotiations at a cast iar lot—well imagine what will happen when the salesman has to tell the truth about the model he is peddling and the customer reveals all the faults of his trade-in.

All this, though, will be little more annoying than a lonely mosquito at a nudist convention compared with what will happen in the field of relations between the sexes. From first date to divorce court will be a trip fraught with hazards. There is this to be said, though—it is likely to be a journey of extremely short duration.

Dandy Dam Busters

Miss Snorts Dee Wells, a columnist in the London Daily Herald, has it in for modern men. The problem is not her name, as might be expected; but the British Menswear Guild. The Guild has begun a series of men's fashion shows, and Miss Wells, (Snorts Dee), does not think the idea is manly. "Men are too dandy to bust"—no frontiers to push back?" she asks. Miss Wells, apparently, mourns the end of World War II, and the passing of the wild west.

Miss Wells, of course, has her own reasons for being annoyed. Reasons, perhaps almost as good as the men have for disliking women's fashion shows. In fact, men expected their wives to pay for the clothes they bought, or even if the wild animals of the forest fitted in with the human idea of a gally plumed female and the uniformed male, Miss Wells would have excellent reasons.

But the fact remains that men pay for their own clothes, and the male, according to nature, is usually the flashier sex of the species. It is only in our own society that the female has no confidence in being female, and chooses to augment nature sometimes with false fronts and facial make-up.

Of course, there are dams to bust, and there are frontiers to push back, but Miss Wells should realize men will not go alone. Through the ages, men and women have developed an affinity for one another, surprising as this may seem. Because of this, modern men might be excused for failing to push back those remaining frontiers, so long as modern women refuse to stray more than a few steps from the nearest electric hair drier.

Ottawa Offbeat

Boss To Office Boy — All Feeling Austerity Pinch

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — Say what you will about the Government, for or against, but say not that it does not practise what it preaches.

In the new national economic cult of "Austerity" one and so far there has not been anything so very austere about it — the Government itself has been setting the pace in belt tightening.

It said at the outset of the dollar crisis last Summer that it would cut its own spending by $250,000,000.

It would do it by shelving plans — only temporarily, it promised — for many new projects, airports, post offices and other Federal building projects.

Not everybody agreed that this kind of saving was true economy, contending that there were better ways of doing it than putting the brakes on maybe $100,000,000 worth of construction, with its consequent restriction of jobs from the building side back on down through all the channels of supply.

THE SQUEEZEE

But there was a second way that the Government was trying to save — by chopping its own, almost personal bonus. And to this there were objections were taken, except perhaps, here in the Capital where the squeeze hurt most.

The idea was to economize on the "housekeeping" money — to tighten up on its own expenses. And the way the cost service spent it.

Appointments were to be kept to the barest bone of absolute necessity . . . and by September, hiring had been cut in half, only 1108 being taken on during the month as compared to 2,218 in the same month a year ago.

There was to be no firing, but when anybody left — and these emergency appointments retained agencies, usually by hostile 25 different ways.

The crackdown has had some strange results. Take the bureaus, where the authorized staff establishment was for 98 persons, 11 are trying to do the job . . . and oddly, not doing too badly at all.

COFFEE DELIVERY

But among the missing is the office boy — or girl, and his replacement was deemed neither urgent, nor necessary — and so now he has the unenviable, high-strung-priced help takes time out from more attractive duties to bring in the morning and afternoon coffee for the 98 daily Civil Service workers.

Incidentally, one of the many little annoyances of the lights among the scores of recommendations made by the Glassco Royal Commission on Civil Service economy and efficiency, covered this business of the coffee boys.

The Commission felt, that far too many people were "two-days" went down the drain with thousands of Civil Servants trooping twice daily to Government cafeterias.

Money-saving solution, said the Commission, would be to keep the Civil Service at its desks, and have the coffee around to them in mobile "beverage wagons" at different points.

But belt-tightening in the Federal Civil Service is nothing to tell about compared to the half million Government employees who, in one way or another, have been feeling the pinch.

The crackdown has become so severe, that, in many cases as high as 95 per cent in Civil Service stenographic examinations still score passing. Job, although there are scores, probably thousands of different Government offices more than anxious to hire her.

RUSH LATE?

The flood will come later when the "Austerity" dam breaks. Then there will be a greater rush than ever of girls into the Civil Service, many of them coming from comfortable, sociable, friendly "Hometown Ontario" to Ottawa where already there are 10 women for every eligible man?

This is the Capital of the "lonely-hearts" as well as of the country as a whole.

But doubling and even tripling up on a job is not the only way the Government staff is setting "Austerity's" pace.

All cuts are going through the wringer.

You don't phone long distance or even write anymore, except in emergency. You write.

You don't fly first class on Government assignments, unless you are a high-priced deputy Minister. You go economy rate. And you do not go at all if somebody in the regional office can handle it.

And even if you stay home in Ottawa or some district office attending to the job, the Glassco Commission is pecking over your shoulder to see that you deliver reasonable facsimile of a day's work for the taxpayer. You are a stenographer . . . you know many pages of typing are you turning out a day? Or you are a clerk . . . how many pieces daily do you file? But you are the boss, you say . . . all right, then, how clear is your decision, how rapidly are your whole office operations?

Negotiate Or Retaliate

Financial Post

Canada's belated ratification of the 1955 copyright agreement will, as noted here recently, correct one long-standing injustice to artists and book businesses in this country. But they are not yet in a completely satisfactory feeling with their U.S. opposite numbers.

Marsh Jeanneret of the University of Toronto Press, an expert on this complex question, points out that the iniquitous "manufacturing clause" in the U.S. law has been a sore point with Canada's publishers for some application to Canada-U.S. trade.

Books written by Canadians and manufactured here will therefore enjoy copyright in the U.S. regardless of the number of copies they sell there. But U.S. law still requires (and is unaffected in this respect by Canada's signing of the 1955 agreement) that works by American nationals must be sold by Canadians and other aliens domiciled in the U.S. must be manufactured in the U.S. to enjoy copyright there.

There is no corresponding rule in Canadian law. This means that American firms can tender for printing jobs in Canada while Canadian firms are debarred from tendering for like work in the U.S.

Thus, says Jeanneret, "Canada retains its present status in the graphic arts industry." There are two possible lines of action. The situation could be corrected either by a retaliatory Canadian law — or, much preferably, by negotiation.

The one inexcusable course is to do nothing at all.

Wants Senate Back Again

Edmonton Journal

It's sometimes said the best way to reform the Canadian Senate would be to abolish it.

That's precisely what New Zealand did with its Upper House twelve years ago.

Now, some New Zealanders are beginning to feel the old way of doing things may have been better, after all. No less a person than the attorney-general, Mr. J. R. Hanan, has joined them.

New Zealand's single chamber, the House of Representatives, ranks as one of the most powerful bodies of its kind in the world. There is no restraint, no constitution, no number of second thought, no subordinate provincial legislatures, no share of power.

This, Mr. Hanan says, is a system "contrary to everything in human experience, he notes, power do not invariably show restraint in its exercise.

Accordingly, "a group with great power and little restraint would be to place some power in the hands of another group, even if this power was a power to delay only."

This power to delay, of course, is really the chief power of the Canadian Senate. To be sure, the Senate has serious defects, as the old New Zealand Upper House had. But, as Mr. Hanan has become convinced, there is no substitute for one efficient house than two of lesser efficiency.

They Can Communicate

From Oregon comes word that ants apparently can talk to each other. A zoologist says they make noises by scraping their leg joints and feet and rapping their jaws together — and she has recordings to prove it. We can't say we're surprised. If they couldn't communicate with one another, how would they ever have large turnout at backyard barbecues?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 6th, 1942.

McIntosh apples and grapes predominated in one of the largest displays of farm produce to be offered on the local market in some months. Fresh eggs took another slight advance with Grade 'A' bringing 50 cents to the farm. Fowl was quite plentiful, with well-finished birds bringing up to $1.75 each. A few vendors offered butter at the usual 40 cents the pound. Tomatoes were still offered quite freely despite the fact that during the early part of the week, Bushel lots brought $1, while also there were sold at 25 cents. Potatoes sold at $2 the bag or 45 cents the peck. Cauliflower was priced up to 30 cents per head. Carrots sold at 15 cents per bunch, parsnips at 40 cents and onions at 60 cents per peck.

Belleville distilleries were directly harnessed to meet wartime requirements as per announced late Friday by the Honorable C. D. Howe, Minister of Supply, banning production of liquor from November 1st next. Simultaneously with the production Board in Washington ordered all United States distilleries still making liquor, to halt their manufacture by next January 1st and convert to industrial alcohol. It has been said at Toronto that liquor stocks now aging, were sufficient to meet consumer demands for some years.

Provincial Police are searching for automobile tires reported stolen from a motor car owned by Joseph Bondworth of Stirling this week. According to O.P.P. reports received, the tires were jacked up the car and removed the complete set of tires, tubes and rims under the cover of darkness.

Salmon Fill River in B.C.

Montreal Star

In Canada's pioneer days Nature seemed to have no more lavish gifts to bestow on man than the salmon runs of the Pacific coast. Rivers were choked with the fish as they spawned on the plains; the beaver supply was inexhaustible; when the stand of virgin timber had been logged off there was always another to move on. Also there were the fish.

Pacific coast mythology is full of stories of the fish literally rivers dryshod on the backs of salmon. But then, as with the buffalo, the Indians and the big trees, men found that the supply was not limitless after all. The salmon runs, decimated by unregulated netting, dwindled to a trickle; and the idea of each individual run was perpetuated, for years later in the case of the valuable sockeye, was not to be. In the case of the less lordly pink, when the next generation returned to spawn, only a few gravel beds where it was born, to spawn and, unlike the Atlantic salmon, to die.

In more recent years government action — of being backed, in the case of the sockeye, by international agreement) has begun to restore the runs. Its regulation alone cannot account for what has been happening in the small Kitimat River, near Bella Coola, 300 miles north of Vancouver. There a migrating mass of pinks — not much seven feet deep has filled more than 20 miles of the river. Perhaps for the first time in two or three generations, men took look with wonder at the prodigality of nature as it used to be. Bonus fresh combination of temperature, food supply, water-flow and the like with other subtle factors controlling the life and growth of the salmon has turned the clock back.

Bella Coola is where Alexander Mackenzie wrote on a rock with Indian pigment one of the great journeys in the country's history. "Alexander Mackenzie from Canada, by land, the twenty-second day of July, one thousand, seven hundred and eighty-three."

It would be a pretty conceit to imagine Mackenzie, who, crossing a continent, had seen the prodigality of buffalo and beaver, gazing with wonder at the seething mass of the salmon. Unfortunately it was not so. By the time of the Attakrun, he was already back at the forks of the Peace.

Surgery Is Suggested For Varicose Veins

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Every so often a couple of letters arrive at the same time and one answers the other. Like this pair:

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has varicose veins and recently I noticed an open sore near his ankle. He said it pained him very much but he is afraid to go to the doctor. — MRS. D.H."

The other letter:

"You have a letter from a person with 'milk leg' and you suggested a surgical attention to varicose veins. You are so right, Dr. M.

"I saw a miracle take place in my own home last fall. My mother had milk leg for years; she could hardly walk and had an open sore on her ankle.

"She had heard of surgery but was afraid of how much it would cost. Finally the doctor said she might be able to walk at all unless she had the operation.

"Believe me, the surgery was not real expensive. We are common people and our bills have afforded it if it had been.

"In four or six weeks she was walking very nicely and is so thankful she had the operation. And to all of you that have it, I say go like a miracle. — M.F."

But it's NOT a miracle. It's a matter of applying knowledge that has been accumulated over many years.

Phlebitis and varicose veins are not exactly the same thing, but they have a great deal in common. They impede the circulation around the legs, become distended and blood returns only sluggishly to the heart and lungs. Blood flow back is usually slow in flowing to the area.

Removing or tying off the distended veins forces circulation into other veins. The rate of circulation becomes normal and with this fresh blood supply tissues become better at last have a chance to heal.

This is explained in much more detail in my booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." If you want a copy send for it. The booklet is available to anyone in return for 20 cents for printing and handling — coin is plus an unstamped, self-addressed envelope. Send requests to Dr. Molner, care of The Chicago Sun—Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 136, Dundee, Ill.

As to fearing the cost of this surgery — or any other ordinary treatment — I desperately wish I could get across to everyone how small and insignificant though!

Don't let it and worry it injure. Just ask your doctor "How much is this going to cost me?" He may not be able to predict exactly, but he'll give you an approximate idea at least.

Like most worries that we have to ourselves, we magnify things all out of proportion.

Further, if you do have financial problems, your doctor will help find a solution. We pride ourselves that nobody who needs medical care has to go without it. But you, as the patient, must start the ball rolling by talking to your doctor about it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would appreciate a diet to help me avoid kidney stones. I had a calcium oxalate stone and am unable to get a complete diet. — MRS. J.B."

If, sir, your doctor hasn't given you a diet, it might be because he doesn't think it will help you. Diet isn't a major factor in avoiding stones. You might eat foods high in oxalate rarely or sparingly. The more important measure is to keep the urine dilute so stones can't form — and this can mean drinking two to three quarts of fluids a day.

Note to E. S.: No, "blood tonics" are not going to help getting rid of skin rashes.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun—Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 136, Dundee Ill, requesting a copy of my booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling and postage.

No Jackets For Aussies

Montreal Star

Shirts, ties, slacks.

That will be the prescribed dress of the day for men being presented to the Queen in the summer heat in Darwin, Australia, next March. And despite what may be said in Tailor and Cutter, the Government provides the biggest sartorial news since the introduction of the celluloid collar and high button boots, and ranks in importance with the invention of the safety razor.

Men have always liked to make fun of women's slavish adherence of the whims of the fashion dictators, but at least women no longer are slaves to time-worn tradition. Look at Mrs. Jackie Kennedy, the very first made for warmth. Certainly they provide little comfort in overheated offices and homes and sun-warmed streets. Even soft woollens, chilly, when it comes to unnecessaries. And when the Queen Mum ian't venture forth in Bermuda shorts, which at the very least have the advantage of holding a crease — also, silly, come to think of it — in the warmest weather.

Maybe the decision reached for the royal visit to the hot spot of our sister Dominion will catch on. Surely it's not bank on it here within this generation.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Two or three years ago, the Packsack reported that Eskimo carvings were being reproduced in Brazil. That fake Eskimo carvings were being produced in Canada was known to the authorities, but the story of the Brazilian activity had failed to wide circulation on the strength of reports brought home by Phillips, assistant director of the Northern Administration branch of the department of Northern Affairs and Tational Resources, who recently down in Brazil and looked into the matter.

For centuries, Brazilians have been carving in a soapstone that is similar to soapstone found in northern Canada. It has been widely used in churches and in religious figures.

There is some superficial resemblance," writes Mr. Phillips, "between these figures in Canada and those by the Eskimos. I examined a number done some time ago as well as those made a few days ago. I do not think there is much likelihood of there being any confusion between this work and that done in the north."

Mr. Phillips has some examples to demonstrate the point. He recommends that purchasers of Eskimo carvings buy only those to which are attached the official Canadian Eskimo art registration mark with the picture of an igloo. Fakers daren't tamper with that.

Our Age Needs to Recover An Attitude of Reverence

By RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Goethe, once said, "There is one thing no one brings with him into the world, and it is a thing on which everything else depends, that thing by means of which every man that is born into the world becomes truly manly. That thing is reverence".

What is reverence? Well, it is hard to define. But it is not so difficult to recognize. Consider an example or two.

A traveller enters Westminster Abbey. As he walks down the dim aisles, he finds himself surrounded by the tombs of England's heroes. The greatness and dignity of these grip his imagination. From the shadowy, vaulted arches he feels the centuries looking down upon him. A sense of something greater than man begins to cast its spell over his spirit. Things invisible and eternal engulf the things that are seen and temporal. The dead seem linked to the living. God seems very near to man. The visitor's voice sinks to a whisper. His spirit is hushed with awe. That is reverence.

Or turn to another situation. Some time ago a party of us had been riding through the country. Our host asked his driver to detour so that we might pass through a cemetery. At a certain point the car came to a stop. He excused himself, went back and stood for a few minutes alone in silence beside a grave. During his absence, his wife explained that at frequent intervals this man of large business affairs drove seventy-five miles from the city and thus halted at the grave of his mother. That spot was to him where heaven and God seemed very near. That place was sacred. That attitude of his was reverence.

Reverence, then, is the profound feeling of loving awe in the presence of something regarded as sacred. And this, we maintain, is what our age needs to recover.

Our Canadian readers are familiar with the furor raised by the recent decision of the U.S. Supreme Court in regard to prayer in the public schools. The Court was probably right in forbidding the compulsory use of a prayer prescribed by a governmental or church agency. But the issue is far deeper. The case which came to the Supreme Court was not started by persons interested in preserving the vital principle of separation of church and state. The issue reveals the attitude of a growing group which is against all organized religion. If this mood spreads, then multitudes of our youth can go from kindergarten to post-graduate schooling with no formal reminders of a Higher Power which is to be revered.

DISTINGUISHING MARK

What is the quality which distinguishes man from other animals? Some say, man is the animal that thinks. But which the clever antics of a monkey and it is a bit hard to be sure that the little animal is not thinking. And look at some people around us and it is a bit hard to be sure that they are thinking! No, the late great Biblical scholar, Ernest F. Scott, asserted that the really distinguishing mark of a human being is that he is the one animal which makes contact with a Higher Power. Man is the one animal that prays and worships. Cease to cultivate man's contact with God and he starts downward toward animalism.

Further, the person who reverts nothing is a person whose life lacks high incentives. Ceases looking up to something higher than yourself, something you count sacred, and you begin to go downward. It is only not feel the slipping at first, but if you doubt it, read your Adam Bede again. Hetty Sorel first lost her reverence then her self-respect then her purity.

Moreover, lack of reverence is at the root of so many contemporary social ills. When people hold nothing sacred, there is nothing to them by which we can tie ourselves. To keep such persons straight by appeals to man's laws and oath is like trying to hold loose soil on a steep hillside when the trees and the turf have been removed. We may keep on turning out laws by the ton. We may multiply judges, policemen, and loyalty oaths. But all those legal aids will not guarantee a law-abiding people. Dwight L. Moody once said: "Character is what a man is in the dark". And unless men have some inner sanctions and sanctities which keep them upright when no one is looking, laws can never be dent.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

The Clothesline

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

Cedar Waxwings are becoming sentional. They may or may not appear in winter; their nesting site may be 1 or 35 feet up in the home may be in either a deciduous or a conifer...is tree. In an orchard or a swamp. Nesting in a tree is a chosen according to its availability in anything, as long as it is fibrous.

Consequently, we were not at all surprised when on July 22nd a cedar waxwing began pulling string from the knot of our clothesline. Sitting on it, she leaned over to catch the loose end in her bill and nearly turned somersault at every tug she gave. Nevertheless, she carried off the spoil to an upper branch of a tall poplar some yards west of our house. Several trips were made before darkness stopped the work, and the next day she was at it again.

One the 24th Mrs. Waxwing brought her husband to aid her with the string. But by then she had decided on a different location for the home. The two worked fast and furiously for four more days, but went off in the opposite direction, their bills full of bits of fluff. Whether or not several homes were started we could not tell because the birds always disappeared among the thick foliage, as the big trees were surrounded by clothespost bushes.

The plumage of waxwings, though far from brilliant, is not at all drab. The neat looking birds are dressed in soft colours: heads, backs, and shoulders light brown, wings and tails grey, and sulphur yellow underparts. The yellow stripe across the end of the square tail is very distinctive and one of the wing feathers are frequently tipped with scarlet which has the appearance of red sealing wax. The prominent crest is moved up or down to suit the mood of the individual.

mad light enough to hold them.

President William McKinley is reported to have tapped his self on the White House, saying that no one will ever sit here who does not believe in God. So far no one ever has. The United States may elect presidents of the Protestant, Roman Catholic or Jewish faith. But not a godless president.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Depressed Over Husband's Suspicions

DEAR DORIS—Last winter my husband accused me of having an affair with a single man eight years before. I just can't seem to get over the hurt that it caused me because there was no truth in it.

I took other tongue-lashings like a whipped puppy because there usually was some justification for them. I had six children and polio in ten years, so there was seldom a time when the house wasn't dirty when the children were small. I'm not bringing the kids up to suit him either.

I hardly ever go out to anything any more because I'm sure he is and always has been suspicious of everything I do out of his sight. I'm killing myself trying to keep things done to suit him. People think that he is a great guy but can you give any explanation of why he is so hard on me?—DEEPLY DEPRESSED.

DEAR DEEPLY—Your "great guy" is a great big bully in my book. You knuckle under to he keeps right on.

The sins he lays at your door are those he is guilty of himself. Stop suffering in silence. The worm will have to turn. For a clearer understanding of what you are up against and some moral support, you should be talking, not writing, to a social worker. Find one at your Children's Aid Society, 63 West Moira Street, Belleville, which commands on family problems as well as when children are involved.

DEAR DORIS—We have been invited to a "Black tie" affair. The trouble is that I have never heard of such an affair and am wondering what to wear. Our friends all have different ideas.—BEEBEE.

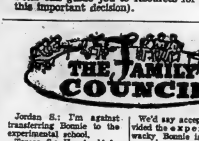
• • •

DEAR BEEBEE—Black tie means semi-formal. Refers to the black bow tie which a gent wears with a tuxedo. You wear a dinner dress: usually has cap sleeves or long sleeves, open neck; is longer than street length, but not even be down to the floor, but it does not have the decolletage of an evening dress.

• • •

DEAR DORIS—Should the brothers and sisters of the bridegroom wear white carnations on the wedding day? — JUST WONDERING.

• • •



DEAR JUST WONDERING—Only if they are members of the wedding party.

• • •

TO G. K.—If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I will send you my leaflets on the Unfreezing North and On Choosing a Career.

• • •

(Have you decided what you want to be? Doris can guide you to resources for help with this important decision).

Jordan S.: I'm against transferring Bonnie to the experimental school.

Teresa S.: She should be glad she qualifies and has been accepted.

Jordan S.: Our five-year-old daughter is one of a group of 30 kindergarten kids who've been chosen to take part in an experiment. Seems they're curious to want to see what happens when you teach children hard subjects before they can even read and write. Bonnie will have to struggle with algebra, French, physics, and stuff like that, even though they call it by other names.

I'm against accepting. Why hurry the kids? Why push her into becoming a genius? Also, it will mean a long trip by bus and train every day to the university, whereas her present school is a block away and one more objection! Her mother and I know enough French to have secrets from her, so the delay of learning French until high school days, like us.

Teresa S.: All Jordan's objections sound silly. Here's a chance for Bonnie to learn advanced subjects, things taught in the most expensive private schools, and he complains about the travel involved. Why, children are sent to Switzerland and to distant boarding schools just something special awaits them there!

It isn't pushing to surround a child with wider horizons. From what we've been told, the child herself will regard the new activities as games. They'll think it's all play. I honestly think Jordan is afraid Bonnie will learn too much, get smarter and catch up with her parents too fast. So what? Every parent should want his child to go a step further than he did. As for our secrets from Bonnie, we can spell them out. She won't learn spelling!

The Council: What a light-hearted problem! It's like having to decide whether to have the ermine or the chinchilla wrap to the Opera, because whatever you choose, you're still sitting pretty. You have a bright child and a choice of fine things to offer her.

We'd say accept the bid, provided the experiment isn't wacky. Bonnie isn't a guinea pig, and some researchers regard human children as guinea pigs if they're stateless to the little tykes. We assume that the study is being undertaken by responsible educators and that careful university supervision. While the travel factor is a consideration, it's the path that must be beaten to that "better mousetrap." And after the project is over, what then? Well, a few things can happen: either the path will open to make a trip or methods of the experiment will be adopted in Bonnie's neighborhood school, and she won't have to commute.

Whatever the outcome, Bonnie can be "pushed" into nothing, so don't see Jordan's objections further, we remind him that no one can be "pushed" into anything. All it takes is agreement and education can do it to someone's there, offer a few tools, and then bequ out of the way. Whether Bonnie is a genius or not, she can gain much from the challenge of a rich school curriculum. Success does anything - except boredom, perhaps.

But we're most intrigued by Jordan's desire to keep Bonnie-not-bilingual-in-French, so that he and Teresa can talk secretively. The obvious answer, to that, of course, is raise your own horizons! Your little child shall lead you to study French, and German. How about telling secrets in Russian?

In order to keep a few jumps ahead of your daughter, you two will have to be on your toes, which is a very healthful and attractive position to maintain! Spelling things out won't help you for long. Bonnie will surely soon be taught reading, writing, in addition to higher mathematics. You'll have to resort to Big Words. We have a couple more of the feelings and rights of others. It's a lesson that will be profitable when they enter kindergarten — and for the long years beyond that.

HILLIER W.I.

HILLIER SOUTH — The Hillier W.I. members met recently in the new apartment arranged by municipal fathers in the newly built addition of Hillier Hall, which also includes a kitchen.

Mrs. Jordon presided. The meeting opened with the usual procedure and a minute's silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Annie Jones, who died recently. Mrs. Jones will be greatly missed, when in health she was a devoted member and gave freely of her services.

Business included "thank you" notes from Mrs. Ethel Allison and Miss Rose Marie Haight.

Donations were received from Mrs. A. Rattray, Mrs. N. Hickok, and Mrs. Fred Way.

The Hospital Auxiliary will be honored with a donation.

Plans for Christmas were voted for 4-H Club, training school and leaders chosen for senior extension course and canvass for blind to be held early in October.

The serving committee served a dainty lunch.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

TEACHING YOTE THE SOCIAL GRACES

Locally, there are three little girls who are learning how to be well - behaved guests and hostesses on the same playground there is - the home.

Instead of inviting them for a day, each acts as hostess for a day to her two little friends. Not just for a day, of course, but in order to give each mother a chance to practise her social graces.

Each of the mothers proved by that time she had become a co-operative nursery school and, since they necessarily had helped out during the term, had gathered some knowledge of basic nursery-school routine and techniques. These now are being applied, with a few social graces added, by the little girls who are all in the neighborhood of three-and-a-half years old.

Instead of enrolling the girls in nursery school, each mother takes the group for one morning each week, and her daughter is the hostess. She greets her guests at the door, shows them where to hang their coats, and conducts them into the playroom, where they immediately settle down to play games and jungle into the day.

During the morning, the mother in charge works with the youngsters and shows them how to use scissors, crayons, finger paints, how to put things together on the magnet board to make pictures, etc. When a break is taken for refreshments, the little hostess gets out the juice and glasses, puts cookies on a tray and does the serving. She also helps the mother clear away and remnants into the kitchen and shows them where they belong either in the sink or in the refrigerator.

Of course, there are the usual minor squabbles when one child wants what another has just selected. If the little hostess puts up a squawk, she's reminded that the guest gets first turn and that hers comes later. Sometimes she does, and knows that the duty of a hostess is to give her guests precedence. It's a tough lesson for a lot to learn at first, but each knows that she'll get first choice next time around when she gives up the designated hostess and slips into the more relaxing role of guest.

At times, other pre-schoolers are invited to join the group to widen their circle of friends. Each mother confides that the youngsters have their bad moments, but, on the whole, are responding types — good humor is rewarded almost immediately.

The mothers were all too sure in the beginning how the whole thing would work out. But, by assuming a bit of social responsibility, each little girl already is learning to be more polite and gracious to all guests who visit her home, and is willing to exercise more give-and-take with older children in the home.

As a result, the weekly game of playing hostess has already proved a success, and awareness of the feelings and rights of others. It's a lesson that will be profitable when they enter kindergarten — and for the long years beyond that.

Second Glance

"THE PRAIRIE IS MY GARDEN"

"The face of the landscape is a mask—where time has plowed its character."—Stephen Spender.

The Dakotas have a romantic Western history, made by colorful individuals such as Custer, Crazy Horse, Wild Bill Hickok, Sitting Bull, Calamity Jane, Buffalo Bill Cody and others as well known to the nation as they are here.

But history to the Dakotan is an honorable, living thing. Many of the first pioneers and settlers are still living, and nearly every native has parents or grandparents who have vivid recollections of homes on the prairies or gold rush camps in the Black Hills.

And then would a town's history be? Let's pick one at random, from the new book about Belle Fourche, in South Dakota, just this side of Wyoming's border, where my husband and I stop for the night. While the city is being re-flushed, I sort out a while frame library about Belle Fourche, one of Stephen Leacock's books, and so mention to the kindly Miss Lancaster, librarian, who since 1930, that the author's sister lives in one of the western cities — which brings an immediate warmth in smile and response as she says: "how much loved - out here."

"As for Belle Fourche," she continues, "Well you can tell, it is French for beautiful fork. Before the railroad arrived and established their loading yards at Belle Fourche, it was a fork. The middle creek facility served a then-prosperous and dynamic cow country backing up to the Montana border. A community through its growth. (It is still a major livestock market for the country) was first in the state in sheep and wool.

"Then in 1895 half of Belle Forche burned down. It was rebuilt by the cattle barons of the region. In 1897 Kid Curry's gang tried a train robbery at the bank. In 1898 riders of regional ranges enlisted in a cowboy parade for the monument fund by Captain Seth Bullock who owned the land on which B.F. was built and who is buried in part of Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders regiment. Also, in 1905 the Bullock cowboys shipped horses to Washington, D.C., and the B.F. Rodeo is a well inaugural parade.

"About this time a large dam, the Orman Dam, was built near B.F. to become the largest earthen dam in the world for years its reservoir irrigated over 20,000 acres down the B.F. river valley. Also the sugar beet mill (the Utah-Idaho) in the area was built and there was much irrigation development."

We are interrupted. The librarian set the record player going and Miss Lancaster explains: "We are always glad just for our own county. Then last year it served two counties, handling the pupils of seven schools, 3,000 books passed over this desk. Now it is a community of 4,500, with four grade schools, a junior and high school with teachers to look after 1,200 students — and a dozen churches to answer the needs of various creeds."

As she accompanies us to the door, she points across the main shop showing the route of the Pony Express and the Mormon Trail of 1847, and then lastly stands before a copy of one of Harry Duin's paintings, from his famous collection housed in South Dakota State College. "We always call it," she says simply as we look at a prairie wife sitting with her motherless baby her several children gathering wild colorful flowers growing before their modest prairie

Carmel U.C. Marks 87th Anniversary

RAWDON — On Sunday, Sept. 30th, Carmel United Church on the Sitzling circuit observed their 87th anniversity, with a capacity attendance at both services.

The altar was enhanced with lovely bouquets of autumn flowers, gold and red, predominating. Guests were in attendance from Belleville, Corbyville, Burnham Hardest, Wellman, Mount Pleasant, Stirling and other points.

The Rev. M. G. McFarlane, B.A., minister of Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, conducted the service in the morning and in the evening he was assisted by the pastor, Rev. F. J. Hommersen, B.A., B.D.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear was in charge of the music for the day and the choir rendered two anthems, "Blessed Are the People" by Marks and "Just As I Am," by Parks. Mrs. Pyear sang a solo based on "When God Gets Us Into Trouble." The morning service was broadcast from Church's One Foundation" and "How Firm a Foundation."

For the evening message Mr. McFarlane chose "Life's Best Investment" and based his stressed that God does love and care for His people. The choir rendered "Praise the Lord O My Soul" by Wilson and "How Amiable Are Thy Dwellings."

Mr. Hommersen conducted a special dedicatory service for when a pulpit lamp was presented to the glory of God and in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Mark Carlisle by their family who were all seated in the sanctuary.

The anniversary services will continue with a home and once through the coming years.

U.C.W. Meetings

MOIRA U.C.W.

MOIRA — United Church Women met at the home of Mrs. Thompson, who opened with a poem, "Others," with worship service by Mrs. David Mumby, and prayer.

Scripture lesson read by Mrs. Douglas Farrell; from Matthew 6:25-34 and meditation by Mrs. Mumby.

Discussion period followed. Invitation to attend Fall Rally at Ivanhoe, and a tea at Ivanhoe and a banner at White Lake were discussed.

Program, with a reading by Mrs. Charles Wood, "He Will Deal With Me"; music by Mrs. D. Mumby, "I Need No Man Here But Jesus"; reading by Mrs. Alice Ketcheson, "All Praise to Our Redeemer"; by Mrs. Vanderwater, "Our Country."

Topic by Mrs. Wesley Farrell, "Good Will in the Fireside."

Lunch was served.

PERFUMERY MATERIALS

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping Radio says Red China turns out more than 1,000 perfumery materials annually, compared with 20 produced at the time of a Communist takeover. The materials are used in the manufacture of consumer goods, foods and some medicines.

Choir Aux. Sponsors Fine Card Party

WELLINGTON—St. Andrew's choir auxiliary held its first card party for this season on Monday evening in the new parish hall, with a nice crowd in attendance. Both euchre and cribbage were played and prize winners in euchre were: ladies' high, Mrs. I. Burd; low, Mrs. Nina Carter; gent's high, Joe Lucas; low, Mr. George Palmer.

Winners for cribbage were: ladies' high, Mrs. Rogers; low, Mrs. G. Upton; gent's high, Wayne Lucas; low, Mr. Gordon Munro. The door prize went to Mr. Allan Davis and the basket of groceries to Mr. Donald Upton.

Refreshments were served by members of the auxiliary.

The next party will be held on Monday evening, October 15.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.A.

WELLINGTON — The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.A. Wellington was held in the new parish hall on Tuesday evening with 12 present.

The president, Mrs. Pritchard, was in the chair and opened the meeting with a prayer. The Scripture was read by Miss Helen Hawley.

Mrs. S. Bradbridge read the minutes of the previous meeting. Miss Hewton gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Blowers reported on the sick. Mrs. Hare would assist Mrs. J. Jackson with the tea. Mrs. Rogers reported that Mrs. Greatrix would assist her with the Y.A.'s tea. Correspondence was reported by Mrs. Upton for the Little Helpers.

It was decided that Mrs. Devern would buy the new calendars for the Ministry fund. The board letter was read by Mrs. Brendon and also the other business, she read a letter of resignation from the president, Mrs. Pritchard, who is leaving to spend some time in Toronto.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Blower and Mrs. Rogers.

After lunch Mrs. Blower presented Mrs. Pritchard with a gift from the members, on behalf of the W.A. Mrs. Pritchard thanked the members and said she would be back again in the summer.

Question: Thank you very much for your suggested method of roasting ducks. May I submit to you another problem? Can you help me with a recipe for dill pickles without vinegar? My Ukrainian father-in-law bands lilies dills only when everyone used to make them in the "old country", that is, with firm cucumbers, garlic, dill, spices which is poured boiling but cooled water. I would like to know the proportion of salt. Apparently these keep well — bachelor friend wanted to know how much salt goes in the Ukrainian type dill pickles. Says he: "I can't find them on the market, so am trying to make them". So he also awaits your answer . . H. P.

Answer: I like dills without vinegar too.

STANDARD DILL PICKLES

(Without Vinegar)

This is the standard fermentation method for dill pickles commonly used by Ukrainian homemakers. Use small to medium-sized cucumbers freshly picked from the garden. Wash them well, cover with cold water, and let them stand while preparing the seasters. Wash the quart sealers thoroughly in hot soapy water and rinse well in hot water. Place in each sealer: A few cherry or current leaves, sprigs of fresh dill with seeds, 1 to 2 cloves garlic, fresh horse-radish root, about 1 to 2 piece, 1-2 level tablespoons coarse salt (not iodized). Prick the clean cucumbers with a fork and pack closely into the sealers. Fill with either boiled water cooled to lukewarm, or boiling water. If using boiling water, add heavily to avoid cracking the sealers. Cover the top with sprigs of dill and seal well. Invert the sealers and shake them to dissolve the salt. If the pickles are to be used soon, keep them at room temperature; they will be ready in 4 to 6 days. For winter use, store in a cool place.

RAWDON—Last week Mrs. Harry Benson, Ivanhoe, received a school picture from Mrs. Henry Ross who resides in Saint John, New Brunswick. She was the former Ella Faulkner and taught in the Allan Public School, S.S. 3, for five years, from 1902 to 1907. There are 39 pupils in the picture and there were two or three absentees on that particular day. In the spring to 1903 when the photographer arrived. The teacher is wearing a black serge skirt which sweeps the floor and if it conspicuously has a long sleeved blouse with choker collar is a pretty voile.

Mrs. Benson kindly loaned the picture to folks at Mount Pleasant who might be interested. Two people still reside in that area and are, Hazel McMullen, near the Frank Hutchinson and Mr. Percy MacMullen, and another person, Mabel Bailey, now Mrs. Clifford Sine, lives on Bongard Avenue. The others who are still alive are scattered over Canada and the United States and some reside in the Belleville area.

The names of the pupils shown are as follows: Clayton Curtis, George Wright, Willoughby Sharp, Mabel Bailey, Hazel McMullen, Clifford Marsh, Myrtle McMullen, Ella Garrison, Evelina Eccleton, Flossie Bailey, Martha Wright, Beatrice Casement, Garnet Bailey, Bessie Hubble, Millie Hunter, Percy McMullen, Iva Maybee, Claude Scott, Selbourne Sharp, Edith Curtis, Ella Cummings, Vera Sharp, Meryl Cummings, Lena Sharp, Myrtle MacMullen and two sets of twins. Ida and Ila Sharp, Melbourne and Melville Johnson, Percy Lawrence, Lorne Rupert, Leige Hunter, Percy McMullen, Iva Maybee, Claude Scott, Selbourne Sharp, Edith Curtis, Ella Cummings, Vera Sharp, Meryl Cummings, Lena Sharp, Myrtle MacMullen and two sets of twins. Ida and Ila Sharp, Melbourne and Melville Johnson, Percy Lawrence, Lorne Rupert, Leige Hunter, Percy McMullen, Iva Maybee, Claude Scott, Selbourne Sharp, Edith Curtis, Ella Cummings, Vera Sharp, Clifford Maybee, Floyd Garrison, Ernest Curtis and Clarence Maybee.

The entrance pupils that year were Hazel McMullen, Flossie Bailey and Clifford Chard.

Mrs. Ross has a sister residing in Belleville. Miss Faulkner boarded with Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bailey during her sojourn at Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Allan Hunter are shown signing the register following their marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Sheila Bernice Canning, daughter of Mrs. H. Canning of Belleville, and the late Mr. Canning. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hunter of Toronto. (Photo by Lumbers Studio, Belleville.)

HUNTER — CANNING

A lovely double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 15, at high noon in Christ Church, Belleville, when Sheila Bernice Canning of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. H. Canning of Belleville, and the late Mr. Canning, became the bride of Murray Allan Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hunter of Toronto, Ontario. Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan, rector of the church, officiated before a background of white chrysanthemums and gladioli on the altar. The guest pews were marked by white satin bows centred by white gladioli blooms.

Mr. John Croyden Withers, church organist, presided at the console of the organ for the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Alex Cunningham, of Belleville, who sang before the ceremony "O Perfect Love," and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Karl Langman, of Belleville, was radiant in her bridal gown of brocaded peau de soie, featuring a fitted bodice having a round neckline and long, sheath-like sleeves filly-pointed over the wrists. The floor-length bustle back, bouffant skirt, which was accented by a peplum caught up at intervals with tiny bows, cascaded into a graceful chapel train. She wore a double coronet headdress with veil in shoulder-length centred by a silver star and carried a cascade of yellow roses mingled with tweed and tied with gold satin ribbon. She was attended by Miss Barbara McMillan, of Belleville, as maid of honour, and by the Misses Caroline Paystie, cousin of the bride, of Belleville, and Mary Hunter, sister of the bridegroom, of Belleville, bridesmaids. They were dressed alike in turquoise sheath organza with overskirts accented by tailored bows at the waistlines, with matching headdresses in pillbox style of matching velvet. They wore matching shoes and carried cascade bouquets of white and yellow chrysanthemums and gladioli tied with gold satin ribbon.

The ring-bearer, Master Terry Langman, of Mountain View, Ontario, cousin of the bride, was natty in his grey flannels and navy blazer with white boutonnieres.

The groomsman was Mr. Patrick Asselstine, of Belleville, and the ushers, Messrs. Brian Hunter of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom and Larry Mavety, of Belleville.

The reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club, Highland Avenue, Belleville, where a telegram from the bride's parents and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Douglas, of Shilo, Manitoba, was read, congratulating the happy couple.

The bride's mother received the guests from Toronto; Oakville; Picton; Stouffville; Long Branch; Bridgewater, Nova Scotia; Windsor and Belleville wearing gown of blue sheath with over-jacket; brown accessories and corsage of yellow mums tinted with gold, and tied with gold-toned satin ribbon. Assisting in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother, who wore a beige lace sheath with fuchsia jacket, accessories and red rose corsage tied with silver ribbon.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white linen damask, and centred by a three tier wedding cake (made by the bride's mother) and topped with two miniature dolls bearing wedding rings beneath an arch of orange blossoms and misted about the base with blue tulle. Tall silver candles and the bridal bouquet graced the nuptial setting.

For the wedding trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and New York, the bride donned a brown wool two-piece dress with gold-toned marlbon hat, gold and brown accessories and corsage of bronze 'mums, tinted and tied with gold satin ribbon. On her return from the bride presented her bouquet to the grandmother of the bridegroom, Mrs. T. Campbell, of Toronto.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at several showers given at the home of Mrs. Donald Hunter, of Toronto; one at the home of the maid of honor, Miss Barbara McMillan; one at the home of Mrs. Ian McColl, cousin of the bride. Also at the presentation of an electric mix master by the office staff of the Northern Electric Company. The bridegroom was also honored by the Stewart-Warner Company by the presentation of a chest of flatware. A dinner party was held by Mr. and Mrs. M. Hunter, of Toronto, at Roslin Quinte when the bride presented her attendants with single strands of pearls, and the flower girl with a sterling silver bracelet, while the ring-bearer received an identification bracelet.

The bridegroom's gifts to his attendants were leather wallets.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter are residing at 36 West Moira St., Belleville.

U.C.W. Meetings

WELLINGTON U.C.W.

WELLINGTON — Unit 4 of the United Church women of Wellington met at the Centennial Parlor on Tuesday afternoon, when the music was played by Mrs. N. Truax.

The Unit leader, Mrs. S. Yourt, read the invocation from the Rally Day service held at Sunday School the previous Sunday morning and warmly welcomed the members to the meeting.

An interesting program had been prepare by Mrs. C. Cleave and Mrs. G. Dorland was in charge of the worship service; the subject was "The Church In This Day." Mrs. R. Fyrne read the Scripture passage. In accepting upon her topic, Mrs. Dorland said "the whole Bible speaks to days like these." Mrs. E. Nash presented the last chapter of the Study Book, "The Strength of the Nations," from "Signals for the 60's," telling that the laws are based on the Ten Commandments, keeping with mercy as taught in the sermon on the mount.

Mrs. G. Dorland contributed a vocal solo accompanied by Mrs. Truax.

Twenty-four house and 14 hospital quilts were reported by treasurer, Mrs. H. Wright, gave her report and also reported on correspondence, which she has been in charge of in Mrs. N. Allison's absence. The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Yourt and autumn thanksforing envelopes given out, to be handed in at either the regular or general meeting in October. A piano solo was rendered by Mrs. Truax.

Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Going Places

No Place for Excitement, Bermuda Quiet Retreat

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

HAMILTON Bermuda— Ever since an undiscovered Spaniard named Juan de Bermudez discovered the islands in 1503, there have been between 400 and 500 shipwrecks on the treacherous coral shoals surrounding them.

Perhaps it is this tradition that has, over the years, turned the islands into a big romantic a quarter, of the way to Europe into nearly everyone's ideal of the place to be stranded away from it all.

It is a fine place for the compulsive sightseer or island-hopper. There is little to see and a short time to hop to when you're done. There are no straw markets, no colorful costumes and no compelling culture of native music or art. The citizens speak English, good English and don't live in grass shacks.

Yet there are few visitors who do not find Bermuda a completely captivating place.

A combination of man, nature and fortune has made its dozen-odd main island paradise the nearest foreign retreat to the heart of North America's population. Bermuda has been popular as a vacation land for the rich ever since the early day virtually all its income derives from tourism, and the islands have developed to a high degree the arts of pleasing visitors. There are well informed, shopkeepers courteous, hoteliers skilled.

Bermuda's glorious location, astride the gulfstream has given it the blessing of a semitropical climate, perfect for living in its nine-month summer, warm enough to be wintry. While only olive-wood, palmetto and aromatic cedar are native, the islands long since have dressed up with colorful oleander, bougainvillea, poinsettias and its famous Easter lilies.

The reefs are detectable only in the lightening of the water's colors from sapphire to emerald. But they have built the world's loveliest lagoons, and the tides have washed the beaches to an ocean powder touched with pink.

Bermuda's homes are the tidiest such's only noise manmade feature. Nearly all are of native plan, and most are pink in keeping with the island's feminine character. They are roofed with white limestone, by terraced white limestone-and-cedar walls designed to catch rain water. They have not changed in 300 years.

The heart of Bermuda is the shiny pastel and white little capital of Hamilton, which manages to be relaxed and peaceful while teeming with trade.

Along Front Street and Bay Broadway, opposite the harbor, the famous little fringe-topped surreys and a few motor cars proceed 20 miles an hour. Among the shops are those that drawn carriages. Brown-legged girls in Bermuda shorts sputter on mopeds to work or to beach. (Short shorts are banned, but this law is not strictly enforced; the police admire the view as well as the tourists.)

Front Street is with the usual assortment of tourist shops, but there is no sales tax—liquor, perfumes, English woolens, china and other devices to lure the tourist's dollar burden broke from saving money.

Some away get beyond Front Street, but those who do usually find it a day well invested. Hamilton is only about 14 miles long. The most comfortable way to see it is by taxi. Drivers are all competent guides, and an eight-hour trip costs $17 for two. The tour can be split between two couples.

One of the worthwhile sights is Crystal Caves, an underground fantasy land of waters, smoothed amber limestone protections set in a glass-clear lagoon. The imaginative stalactites and stalagmites take the forms of of Manhattan skyline, organ pipes, chandeliers, and what our guide called a "petrified" forest.

On Tobacco Bay, on the far Northeast tip of the island, Gunpowder Cavern, whence in 1775 American sympathizers spirited in a waiting frigate 100 barrels of gunpowder solicited by General George Washington. The ship never left the food promised in return, but a letter of appreciation from Washington is preserved in a museum in the town of St. George.

On one day, secluded coves dotted with sailboats and cruisers stands Tom Moore's "Tavern, a three-centuries old stone building with polished wood floors and Elizabethan benches. It is named after a modern Irish poet who settled here.

The walls are decorated with samplings of his verse. But the most interesting literature is a first edition of those from Holinshed's Chronicles of 1578. It praises the virtues of spirits ("we . . . among other things, keeping the "weazin from smothering, the lungs from wambling, and the belly from wurching").

In peaceful Bermuda, there is little woomblying and even less wurching these days.

Women's Institute

RYLSTONE W.I.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Percy Reid entertained the Rylstone Women's Institute on Tuesday afternoon at the Zion United Church Sunday School room, the date being changed to a day earlier on account of Monday Fair being held on their regular day.

Mrs. Stanley Kerr, president, was in charge of the opening exercises.

Aggregments were made for a short course on "The Third Meal" and corresponding was read and discussed.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin was convener for the balance of the afternoon and introduced Mrs. Carl Clancy of Wellman's Corners, who gave a splendid review of a short course entitled "143 Pounds of Meat." This was most interesting and informative and enjoyed by all. Mrs. Jack Watson extended the thanks of all the members to Mrs. Clancy and presented her with a fine china cup and saucer.

Mrs. Jim Milne gave a humorous reading "The Thrifty Progress!" Mrs. Alfred Barnum gave current events and Mrs. Gerald Petherick conducted a travel contest.

The meeting closed after which refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Don Stewart, Mrs. Ed. Barnum and Mrs. Gerald Barnum.

The next meeting will be held in the evening when a speaker from Belleville will show slides and give a talk on cancer. All ladies are welcome.

Styles to Boot

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The nice country boot is a fake fur and comes in gold and white or brown and white with darker buckle and shoe. Cuff and heel are of white crepe rubber.

The next boot style is olive green suede with a curved midheel and crepe sole of brown to match the brown lacings at the side. The lacings serve to insure a snug fit, if desired, for really cold days.

Like a high moccasin or bootie, the step-in is of russet or forest green suede with stitched vamp. It's a good choice for wear with plain sweater and skirt outfits.

All in all, a real bounty of boots ahead, for indoors as well as out.

S.S. Class Entertained by Teacher

MADOC JUNCTION — On Wednesday evening of last week, Mrs. Bruce Stapley entertained the members of her Sunday School class and also Mrs. M. Clancy to dinner at her home.

During the evening several games were enjoyed.

Miss Audrey Stapley on behalf of Eggleton Sunday School presented Miss Sharon Reide with a small remembrance as she will soon be leaving for Ottawa. For sometime Sharon has been Sunday School pianist. Mrs. Stapley briefly expressed her personal best wishes to Sharon and also her deep interest in all the girls as each one makes the choice of her life's work.

Miss Shirley Frost on behalf of the girls voiced appreciation thanks to Mrs. Stapley Sunday School teacher and hostess for a most enjoyable evening.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

On September 27, the Women of the Moose held their second meeting of the month in the Moose Hall. The meeting was called to order by the Senior Regent, Mary Kaine. There was a good attendance of all co-workers.

Three candidates were balloted on and were found favorable and will be notified to attend the next meeting on October 11 for enrollment into the degree.

Accounts were read and moved that all bills be paid. Correspondence was also read and placed on file. Unfinished business was that of the convention to Windsor on October 19, 20, 21. Recorder to write and get reservations at hotel and that members go by bus instead of train. Bus to leave Moose Hall at 8 a.m. It will definitely be decided on at next meeting.

A bake sale was held after the meeting. Audrey Young wishes to thank all girls who so kindly donated towards it. Next meeting night is "Town Night" and enrollment of new members. Lunch to be served 8:30 per under chairmanship of Nellie Burd. Girls please bring your favorite dish of eats for supper at 7 p.m. All to wear your gowns.

Next meeting on October 11th. All girls were asked to send Little Steven Morris a card, he is in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto. He is a son of one of the members and he was badly burnt by gasoline and is a Belleville boy.

Canada Outdoors

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal efforts to increase the supply of Atlantic salmon — undisputed king of Canadian game fish — are being concentrated on two major projects this year.

Biologists are counting on control of the fish-eating merganser duck and the intensive search for a new killer of bodworms to give a much-needed life to east coast salmon fishing.

A five-year study has shown that the merganser duck is the only bird posing any serious threat to baby salmon, which live in rivers for two to four years after hatching. The tiny salmon are the merganser's favorite food.

This season a control program has been started to reduce mergansers on Nova Scotia's Margaree River. It will continue for five years to determine whether this will increase the number of adult salmon returning from the sea to spawn in later years.

KILLED BY DDT

Studies by Dr. A. J. Erskine of the Canadian Wildlife Service already indicate mergansers control will allow more salmon to reach the four-inch smolt stage, at which they head for the ocean. Thus it appears certain more salmon will survive to return in one or two years as grilse (up to six pounds) or adults (eight pounds and up).

New ways of killing spruce and balsam budworms are also being studied to replace the present DDT spray.

In 1954 and 1956 aerial DDT spraying destroyed young salmon by the thousands on New Brunswick's world-famed Miramichi River. The chemical killed some fish outright and starved others to death by wiping out the insects that make up their chief source of food.

Federal biologists are studying several new lines, including a promising bacteria toxin, for a solution to this problem. It has been partly solved by cutting the strength of the DDT spray to one-quarter pound per acre from the half-pound formula which proved so deadly. The diluted spray still kills the tree-killing budworm with less peril to water life. Fisheries men, however, still aren't satisfied with DDT.

NEED IS URGENT

The urgency of the salmon program is apparent in the angling statistics of recent years.

The 1959 catch was 65,043 fish on 137,842 rod days, or 4.1 fish for every 10 days of fishing. Last year only 39,447 fish were taken in 126,781 rod days, 2.1 fish per 10 days.

Statistics for 1962 won't be available for several months but the change is expected.

Not all the decrease is blamed on ducks and DDT. Hydro dams and pollution by mining wastes also have taken a toll of salmon and their threat is much less serious.

Scientists of the fisheries department and the wildlife service have decided that the greatest loss of salmon occurs while the baby salmon are in the rivers. A higher survival rate at this stage, they say, is the key way to tackle-busting adult salmon.

The distinctive Mercury Meteor Custom Country Cruiser for 1963 in addition to its outstanding attractiveness offers surprisingly large cargo space and many attractive features usually associated with larger station wagons.

Ken Galanchuck Is Only Manitoban Chosen for Cage Team to Represent Canada

By GRAHAM COX

WINNIPEG (CP)—One of the most successful young men in Manitoba is 22-year-old Ken Galanchuk.

A University of Manitoba student, Ken is the only Manitoban chosen to augment the previously-considerable power of the Canadian champion Lethbridge Brodbers in the world basketball championships in Manila in December.

The team will also represent Canada in the Pan-American Games in Brazil next April.

The choice was not a complete surprise for Ken since his was one of 16 names read off at the annual Canadian Amateur Basketball Association meeting as possible additions by Broders coach Bob Hamilton.

The assignment will make it necessary for Galanchuk, who honors arts graduate, to withdraw for a year from the law course he had intended to start at the University of Manitoba in mid-September.

Galanchuk, a six-foot-one, 170-pound guard, averaged 15 to 20 points a game last year playing for University of Manitoba Bisons in the Western Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Union and for IPAC Buffaloes in provincial competition.

NOTICED IN PLAYOFFS

It was in the Western Canada finals here last year that Hamilton got his first look at Galanchuk as Brodens defeated Buffs on their way to the Canadian crown.

It also was there that he was first approached with the idea of joining the team if it were picked to represent Canada.

After the August CABA meeting Ken received a series of exercises from Hamilton designed to get him in top physical condition.

"It means I run an average about three miles every other night and practise scrimmage on the other nights," he says. "I'm in real good shape, probably the best in my life."

A solid set shot who missed the 1961 collegiate scoring title by only two points, losing out to Ken Winslade of the University of British Columbia, Ken is strong on defensive ability, something Broders could lack with the ineligibility of guard Lloyd Harris, a U.S. citizen.

TAUGHT TO CHECK

"I started out being a big scorer but they started teaching me how to check and last year it was my job to shadow the other team's big scorers and hold down their points," Ken says. "I guess I did a fair job."

Broders players named to the Canadian team are Jack Lilja, Ken Lazeo, Jerry Carter, Al West, Harry Blacker and Logan Tait. To augment the rangy, powerful crew, Hamilton has recruited Calgary's Bob Inglis, who played at Highgrove Young Men's, Lance Stevens of Vancouver, last year with McMurray College in Abilene, Tex., Neil Durnon of Duncan, B.C., with Washington State U. last year, Dave Way and Bill McDonald, both of UBC.

On the way to the world championships Dec. 1-13 and Pan-Am Games April 30-March 8, Hamilton plans to take his team on a series of exhibitions in Canada and possible games in Tokyo and Hong Kong en route to the Philippines.

Premier League Challenged to TV Debate

QUEBEC (CP)—Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale, has challenged Premier Jean Lesage to a television debate on the Nov. 14 provincial election.

Meanwhile, Mayor J. A. Monge of Trois-Rivieres Friday turned down the leadership of a new, provincial party but reserved the right to change his mind.

In other election developments, Premier Lesage and Natural Resources Minister Rene Levesque Friday night concentrated on Liberal theory behind the decision to fight the election on the issue of expropriating 11 privately - owned hydro - electric companies.

Mr. Johnson was speaking at Ste. Rosalie in the Bagot riding he has represented in the Quebec legislature since 1946.

The Union Nationale leader challenged Mr. Lesage to discuss "his role as federal minister in Ottawa and the Trans-Canada pipeline scandal" and his proposed take-over of the electric power companies.

He charged that Premier Lesage had no intention of taking over the hydro firms, Mr. Lesage, in opposition leader, "won cheap publicity in the English provinces by depicting French - Canadians as backward people who need to be pulled up in the education field."

"On the rule of our reputation of a people he wants to build a federal career."

Mayor Monge declared in Montreal he will neither be the leader of a new party nor candidate in any riding—but reserved the right to change his mind. "If the objectives of the new party are being dispersed by the other parties."

Premier Lesage, appearing on a province - wide French-language television stations, said the Liberal cabinet decided to expropriate the hydro-electric firms "several months ago" after rejecting alternative plans.

The Tracks

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Clint Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont. won both halves of the $15,000 American Trot Thot before 21,494 at Yonkers Raceway Friday night.

Hodgins drove Elaine Rodney in the first test, then came back to win with Mighty Indian in the second race.

Elaine Rodney, owned by the S.L.K. Stables of Spencerville, N.Y., whipped Silver Song by a head and returned $26.10. Duke Rodney finished third, a nose behind Silver Song and a neck in front of Ole Nelson who went off as 14 favorite. Su Mac Lad, with six fourth, upped his lifetime earnings to $22,846. The winner, a five - year - old daughter of Rodney, went the mile in 2:03 1-5.

Sports Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The National Hockey League is a multi-million-dollar outfit, the major league of hockey in the world. Accordingly, it is expected to act like one.

Does it?

That's a pertinent question, and can be answered by the somewhat hilarious hoyley that took place Thursday morning on the subject of the Oct. 6 all-star game at Toronto between the Stanley Cup champion Maple Leafs and the 1961-62 NHL All-Stars.

Briefly, the background is this:

Only five Toronto players were reported to have signed 1962-63 contracts up to Thursday and Coach Punch Imlach had been quoted as saying that if the others didn't sign before game time he would call up players from Rochester of the American Hockey League. Rochester is a farm club of the Leafs.

It was believed, too, that a league rule says all players must be signed or they could not play in the game.

With the game just hours away and the Gardens sold out, this reporter asked Gardens people who would play. The answer, in effect, was: "We don't know."

The next question was directed to NHL President Clarence Campbell in Montreal. Would Leaf players who have signed their 1962-63 contracts be allowed to play in the all-star game?

"Well, now," said Mr. Campbell, "it is a league policy that players should be signed before they appear in the all - star game. They can sign even up to a few minutes before game time in the dressing-room if they want to. But that is just a league policy, and not a regulation in that sense. It could be changed."

When?

"There's a meeting of the NHL in Toronto on Friday afternoon and if the Leafs say they haven't had sufficient time to complete negotiations with their players the owners might very well say it is okay to play unsigned players."

LONG DRIVE

This may be reasonable, except:

Imlach has had six months to talk contract terms with his team. Many players have been quoted as saying he didn't even approach them until they started training in September.

The Leaf contract troubles have been common knowledge to every sports-writer in the country for more than a month.

Campbell, team owners and everybody connected in any way with the NHL have known about it, but no official steps were taken to clarify the situation until just hours before the 8 p.m. EDT faceoff.

It is a ridiculous situation. It's unfair to the people who pay the freight of NHL teams—the fans — and, for sure, it couldn't happen in other major professional sports such as baseball and football.

But the NHL has blithely allowed it to happen.

almost to the day, that Hotel Quinte inaugurated its Saturday Night Buffet Dances. During these five years we have served more than 15,000 people at the generous buffet table and we hope made many friends among them.

Since we have opened our new Terpsicora Room, it has become apparent that the idea for erotic dishes and charming decor is strong enough to justify our changing our Saturday night entertainment. We will however, in our new location, continue to serve what will please you as much as the buffet dinners did. Prices will range from $1.50 to $10.00 (or higher if you like). Come in this Saturday, take your pick from the new menu, enjoy your cocktail and say no to the supper dancing . . . we're off on another five year plan!

Boston Commuter Service Again Going 'in the Red'

BOSTON (CP-AP)—The Boston area commuter service will go into the red as usual this year. And, as usual, homeowners of the area will have to dip into their pockets to make up the deficit.

The Massachusetts Transportation Authority, which operates a network of elevated and subway trains, trackless trolleys and gasoline buses in the Boston area, has had deficits every year since it was established about 15 years ago.

To make up the difference the MTA is given a subsidy raised by assessments on Boston and the 13 surrounding cities and towns served by the system.

The assessment, paid by homeowners through increased real estate taxes, is divided among the communities on the basis of a head count made about 10 years ago.

WON'T PARTICIPATE

The deficits have been as high as $23,000,000 a year. This year it is expected to be about $16,000,000.

There have been efforts in the Massachusetts legislature to change the assessments to suit cities and towns, but these attempts have been beaten down by legislators from communities not served by the MTA.

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce recently went on record with a statement calling for federal and state aid to finance capital costs of rapid transit operations. It said the most efficient operation should be sought without recourse to passenger fares.

The chamber also said it would support a study to determine whether the public would patronize existing rail or other mass transit commuter services if fares were reduced, services increased and equipment improved.

TAX BENEFITS

Plans for improving mass transportation in the Boston area—and other large urban areas of the U.S.—have been linked with a federal approprio, tion which Congress has not approved.

In addition to the MTA subsidy, the Massachusetts legislature has enacted legislation under which railways can qualify for tax benefits. But neither the Boston and Main Railroad nor the New Haven Railroad—the two roads serving Massachusetts—are taking advantage of it.

Both railroads have said that cutting their losses by means of tax benefit law here made it not worthwhile.

One of the specifications in the measure is that the railroads cancel fire or lay off workers without getting the permission of a Superior Court judge.

ORDERS SHOT

MOSCOW (AP) — A government bookkeeper in Soviet Azerbaijan has been ordered shot for helping managers of state shoe stores embezzle money. The American newspaper Izvestia identified him as F. Prosvirin. It said seven others were given prison terms ranging up to 15 years.

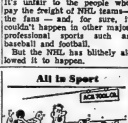
Anglican Rector Takes to TV to Expound Views

HAMILTON (CP) — Rev. E. John Sharp, an Anglican priest, countered the wishes of his bishop, the Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson of Toronto, by expounding his own views on racial problems on a Hamilton TV program.



The United States federal government, Mr. Taylor said had no business interfering since education was strictly a state concern.

Mr. Taylor advocates a system of religious segregation for institutions. He refers to the racial problems in the South, he says, would be for the Protestants to send schools for Negroes and whites. Other schools could be established for different religious sects.

Because people tried to make the school take the place of the church in building citizenship spirit, violence resulted in Mississippi, he said.

Mr. Sharp also attacked the Canadian press and Canadian television commentators for their failure to understand the reasons for the behavior of white southerners. He said Canadians must try to understand the awful hatred between whites and Negroes in the South.

Canadians To Show

New Kind of Rugger

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP)—A touring Canadian rugby team arrived here Friday hoping to show British fans a new kind of playing during a three-month swing through the British Isles.

"You'll see a different kind of rugby, particularly in our halfbacking," said Nick Emlin, of Victoria, coach of the 26-man team at a press conference Friday night.

"Canada is so close to the United States that we sort of follow Americans in our passing. We hope to play as wide open and attractive a game as possible."

The Canadians, sponsored by the rugby unions of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, will play their opening match Oct. 13 at Exeter in Devon. They will have 17 games in all.

"The last Canadian team played here in 1902," Ellis said. "There was a team set to come in 1939 but the war prevented it. Now we've made it."

AGES SURPRISE

The average age of the team is 30. Captain D. L. (Buzz) Moore, veteran forward from Vancouver, is 41. British sports writers are surprised at the age of the amateur players.

"Rugby isn't a game you start playing early in Canada," explained Ellis. "Boys in ordinary schools play American football and baseball and often don't start playing rugger until they're 16 or 17. Then, of course, they get sold on rugby and stay with it."

Most of the players are from British Columbia. Six are from Ontario, four from Quebec and one from Alberta.

Fifteen are Canadian - born. The rest are from Britain, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa.

"We play a weird sort of game," Ellis said. "A little bit like South African, a little bit of British, and a lot of our own. You must forgive us if we keep giving South African or New Zealand names to the positions and plays."

FAVOR GRIFFITH

NEW YORK (AP) — Welterweight champion Emile Griffith is a 5-1 favorite to beat young Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Griffith will be aiming for his seventh straight victory in the non-title 10-rounder. This will be the Virgin Islander's first fight in the Garden since his tragic knockout victory over Benny (Kid) Paret in a title fight March 24. Paret died 10 days later.

Jordan KO'd by Torres

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Raymundo (Battling) Torres of Reynosa, Mexico, 145, knocked out former world welterweight champion Don Jordan, Los Angeles, 149¾, in the first round of their scheduled 10-round fight Friday night, but the official verdict was no decision and the fighters' purses were ordered held up.

The Mexican knockout artist floored Jordan and referee Jimmy Wilson counted 10 after two minutes, 10 seconds of the round as Jordan apparently was trying to get to his feet.

Clayton Frye, secretary of state athletic commission, was summoned to ringside hurried consultation with the officials.

"There is no decision rendered. The purses will be held up pending action by the commission," Frye told the booing crowd.

FABULOUS GOLDEN OPERETTA SERIES COMING TO BELLEVILLE

Probably the most exciting offers of the year for lovers of great musical entertainment is the announcement by the Belle Theatre of the presentation of a series of the world's greatest Operettas, starting Thursday, October 11th. The Belle Theatre by special arrangement, selected from the treasury of M-G-M's masterpieces, the cream of all-time musical entertainment. They bring to the big screen beloved singing stars in renowned romantic Operettas.

The Belle Theatre parade of Golden Operettas begins with the magnificent production of Rudolf Friml's masterpiece "Rose Marie," the story of a wild young beauty of the woods tamed by a handsome Canadian Mountie. Rich with songs, it features a spectacular Indian ballet and was filmed amidst the beauty of the Canadian Rockies. This will be followed on Thursday, October 18th, by "The Chocolate Soldier," Oscar Straus' brilliant Operetta. It's the dazzling musical story of a romanticized stage couple who were a triumph in the theatre but were domestically complicated by the flirtatious wife and the jealous husband. On Thursday, October 25th, "The Merry Widow," the celebrated Franz Lehar achievement, with its bold story of gaiety and flirtation, the romantic Paris. Thursday, November 1st, brings Sigmund Romberg's most beloved Operetta, "The Student Prince," with the fabulous voice of Mario Lanza heard in this beautiful romance of the village maid who loved a Prince, studying incognito, at Germany's famed Heidelberg. A rare treat on Thursday, November 8th, "The Great Waltz," Johann Straus' heart-stabbing love story of old Vienna told in spectacular Operetta style. The thrilling climax to one of the most memorable events in the Belle Theatre history. The Operetta series concludes with its sixth presentation on Thursday, November 15th, with Victor Herbert's romantic Operetta, "Naughty Marietta," the disguised French Princess seeking escape from a marriage of state and her romantic adventures in old New Orleans.

Among the great singing stars who will appear in the Belle Theatre series of Golden Operettas are Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Rise Stevens, Howard Keel, Ann Blyth, Mauriel Chevalier and an extraordinary treat, the singing voice of Mario Lanza. The memorable songs of love and fantasy that crowd this remarkable Operetta series are thrilling to look forward to. Space makes it impossible to list them all but among them are "My Hero," "Rose Marie, I Love You," "The Merry Widow Waltz," "In Falling in Love with Someone," "Tales of the Vienna Woods," "Deep in My Heart," "Indian Love Call," "Drink, Drink, Drink," "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and many more.

The first of the golden Operettas, "Rose Marie," will be presented for one performance only on Thursday, October 11th, at 8:15 p.m. at the Belle Theatre. The other Operettas in the series will be presented one each Thursday for five consecutive weeks. For convenience of patrons, the management has arranged a special rate for the series, now on sale at the Belle Theatre box office. Tickets may be obtained at the box offices at any time for individual Operettas including the day of the performance.

That the Belle Theatre has been chosen as one of the first theatres in Canada to offer the Golden Operettas for the use by patrons is a tribute to this area and to the Belle Theatre management.

AT THE PARK — The Three Phantoms of the Opera — And the Three Women in Their Screen Lives! The new version of "The Phantom of the Opera", photographed for the big screen and in color, is the third filmization of Gaston Leroux' classic thriller about a monstrous musician who terrorizes an opera house. In the current macabre screen drama Herbert Lom plays "The Phantom and Heather Sears is the heroine on whom he concentrates his attention. The title role was originally created by the late Lon Chaney in the silent days of 1925, and re-created in 1943 by Claude Rains in the first talkie version. In the upper photo strip, from left to right, are pictured Lon Chaney, a master of make-up and disguise famed as "the man with a thousand faces," and how he looked when his covering mask had been ripped away to show one of the most grotesque and frightening facial disguises ever devised; in the centre, Claude Rains is shown as he appeared when The Phantom added his voice to his frightening sight; and, Herbert Lom in his interpretation of the sinister and terrifying figure, and wearing the one-eyed, mouthless mask which concealed the hideously disfigured face beneath. The opera-singing heroines — bottom photos from left to right are Mary Philbin of the Lon Chaney era, hailed as the "new Mary Pickford" at that time, and who remained a Hollywood star until the advent of talkies in 1929; Susannah Foster, who played the role of Christine opposite Claude Rains at the age of 17; and Heather Sears as the heroine in the latest production of the story, with her Phantom Theatre. On the same program "The Son of Sinbad", in Color and Cinemascope opens Monday at the Park starts at 1.30 p.m. Doors open 12.45.

Allen Happy With Show, He Is Not Easy to Please

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—This is the season of the television forums, with such greats as Lucille Ball, Jackie Gleason, Loretta Young, Jack Webb and Sid Caesar going once-around-again on the networks.

They should hope—to do as well as Steve Allen.

The egghead funnyman can be racked up as a hit with his late-night 90-minute nightly outing, now in its fourth month. Ratings are high, sponsors are clamorous, critics are approving and fans are bordering on the fanatical.

Even Allen is happy, and he's not an easy man to please.

Early last summer the velveteen of the television wars went back to his old stand. He had pioneered the 'tonight' show, perfecting the late - night formula before Jack Paar had ever learned to ply it.

He went on to weekly shows, experiencing highs and lows of fortune until his ABC outing bombed last season. After due consideration, he accepted Westinghouse's offer to battle for the late-night market. He now is in 25 cities, with more being added all the time.

What he offers is a combination of music and nonsense, punctuated with his own rare ad lib.

"I think it's the funniest show on the air today," he said casually as he lounged beside his pool on his day off. "Of course that last saying much, because there isn't anything very funny pioneered the 'Tonight' show, on television nowadays."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. B. CARVER, Sports Editor

If reports from Kingston are true a Limestone City "B" entry in the OSA Eastern Ontario Junior League depends on whether a Belleville club is entered.

A reliable Kingston source says that junior officials down thataway are not too fussy over entering a circuit that has the powerful Peterborough club the only "B" opposition. The other five clubs are "C" teams.

The Petes, piggy-backed with a junior "A" squad, should be the powerhouse of the league. It is felt in Kingston. However, Roddenville will consider an entry if Belleville puts a team in the loop.

Meanwhile, I am told, Coach Danny McLeod of the Kingston junior organization is scouting the possibilities of another junior pasture field in which to romp his puck-chasing colts.

Be that as it may. The big question hereabouts is, will this city in organized hockey for the past six decades be without OHA representation this year.

Up to this point the only hope is the survival of the junior hockey club, depicted in ranks as it is.

H. J. McFarland, as is known, has withdrawn his sponsorship. There has been no rush on the part of another sponsor or sponsors to take up the financial torch.

The Belleville Booster Club, through its president, Jack Matthews, views the situation with apprehension. If not alarm. Jim feels, as does a lot of other hockey-minded people of the city, that the junior club should be maintained; that the city continue its unbroken skein of years in organized hockey.

With this in mind President Matthews has issued a clarion call to the Booster faithful and others interested in the survival of junior hockey, to rally to the colors.

A special meeting of Boosters past, present and future, will be held in Memorial Arena next Tuesday evening starting eight o'clock.

The Booster Club executive is ready to foundation a movement that will assure, it is hoped, the continuance of junior hockey here.

But it cannot do it alone. Help, much help will be needed. A lot of willing hands will make the task easier and believe me, this will be no easy one.

"Snipe" tells me that a number of influential men he has contacted are in accord with the idea. Others have come forward of their own volition and offered financial contributions.

He feels that with the co-operation of Booster members, other fans and the business and industry of the city, sufficient funds can be raised to finance the junior entry.

The Booster Club in the halcyon years of the famous Belleville McFarlands world champions, proved itself an organization of more than ordinary "organizing" ability. True, the ranks of the faithful have thinned considerably, but Matthews believes they will again rally to the flag and lend willing hands.

This must be an all-out effort... Anything short of it means failure. A number of jobs have to be done here it means that everyone interested will have to put a shoulder to the wheel and get the wagon over the hill.

What the Boosters have in mind I do not know at this writing. I understand the executive will be working hard over the weekend, formulating ideas and plans, all of which will be aired at the Tuesday night meeting.

So it seems the fate of junior hockey, for this year at least, lies in the hands of Boosters, the fans and other sports-minded individuals and organizations of the city and district.

Those who are sincerely interested in the future of the youngsters' club should make it a point to attend Tuesday night's meeting.

Giants' Sanford Spikes Yankee Guns

Shuts Out Bombers 2-0

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—The World Series teams took a day off for travel and relaxation today after splitting the first two games at San Francisco. Despite Jack Sanford's strong three-hit shutout in Friday's game, San Francisco Giants remained 9-to-5 underdogs with the next three games to be played in New York Yankees' home park starting Sunday.

Giant manager Al Dark scheduled a Giant workout at Yankee Stadium to let his weary troops get their first look at the triple-decked park with its tricky wind currents and sunny left field. The Yankee star also planned to limber up at home.

The weatherman predicted some rain but gave hopes for a good day Sunday when over 68,000 fans will jam the big park in the Bronx.

Because of the contours of the stadium with its handy right field porch, so convenient for left-handed home run hitters, Dark was following the usual procedure by naming a lefty to pitch.

Billy Pierce, the 35-year-old former American Leaguer who had pitched often in the stadium, was saved to face right-handed Bill Stafford of the Yanks in the third game.

SHUT OUT DODGERS

Pierce finished with a fine 16-6 record for the Giants, winning the first playoff game from Los Angeles Dodgers with an 8-0 shutout and cooling off the Dodgers again with a ninth-inning relief job in the third and final playoff game.

Sanford, Giants' top hurler during the National League season with a 24-7 record, pitched one of his finest games against the world champions Friday, permitting only two runners to reach second base.

Sanford's teammates got him a run in the first on their lead-off batter, Chuck Hiller, sent Roger Maris crashing into the right-field wall in an effort to pull in his long drive and the ball popped out of his glove for a double. A sacrifice by Felipe Alou and a ground-out by his kid brother, Matty, brought the run across.

The slender lead stood up as Sanford grew stronger after facing three batters in the early innings and Willie McCovey provided an insurance run in the seventh when he crashed a 450-foot homer off Yankee starter Ralph Terry, running his series record to 0-4.

COLLIDING WITH PAGAN

Sanford gave up a fluke single to Tom Tresh in the fourth inning when the pitcher collided with shortstop Jose Pagan while trying to field a pop fly on the rookie outfielder's attempted bunt. Clete Boyer's two-out single in the fifth and Mickey Mantle's ninth-inning double, also with two out, were the only other Yankee safeties.

The Yanks appeared satisfied to have split even on the road "They say if you can play .500 ball on the road you're doing all right," said manager Ralph Houk. "The parks don't make any difference. But having that last at-bat helps."

Houk won with Whitey Ford and lost with Terry in two well-pitched games. Stafford, only 24, does not measure up to either Ford or Terry on his 24-9 season record.

After the Sunday game, Houk expected to follow with Ford and Terry again in the stadium. Dark said he would pitch Juan Marichal in his first series start Monday and follow with Billy O'Dell, loser of the opener.

MAY BE READ

Houk hopes Bill Skowron and Elston Howard will be ready for action Sunday. Skowron had to leave Thursday's game due to a charley horse condition and did not play Friday. Howard was out Friday because he could not grip the bat due to a wrist injury suffered while sliding Wednesday.

Yogi Berra caught and Dale Long went to first base Friday but both are left-handed hitters and Houk would prefer right-handed power like Skowron and Howard in the order against the left-handed Pierce.

Dark would be well as long as possible before naming his batting order. However, it was expected that Orlando Cepeda, hitless in the opener, would remain on the bench, and McCovey would play first. Harvey Kuenn, former American Leaguer, might replace Jose Alou in left because of his familiarity with the stadium.

The Broadway Oddsmakers quoted the Yanks at 9-to-5 favorites for the Sunday game and 9-to-6 for the series.

Rote Has Head Cold, Argos Worry

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts' performance tonight in their Eastern Football Conference game against Hamilton Tiger - Cats may depend on the severity of a head cold.

The cold has been bothering Argo quarterback Tobin Rote all week. And while coach Bobby Wirkowski says Rote definitely will be in the lineup, only time will tell how badly the germs will affect Rote's performance.

The star quarterback, who hasn't taken part in any practices since Argos beat Calgary Stampeders in Calgary 38-23 last Monday, showed up at exhibition park Friday night but decided it was too damp to participate in the drills.

Treat coach Jim Trimble could be excused for not offering his sympathy to Rote. Last time the two teams met, Argo fullback Gerry McDougall was recuperating from the flu, yet he gained almost 200 yards and scored two touchdowns.

MAY BE CLOSE

Hamilton won the earlier encounter 29-25, but with the last-place Argos fresh from a victory over the Western Conference's hottest team, this game would seem to be a toss-up. The first-place Tiger-Cats were laced 27-0 by Ottawa Rough Riders in their last outing.

Wirkowski has made only one change in the lineup that recorded against Calgary. Import guard and defensive end Ken Beck will play in place of line-backer Zeke Smith.

Beck had been sidelined in the Calgary game with a bruised shoulder suffered against Regina a week ago.

Trimble's lineup is fairly well set. He has named quarterback Frank Cosentino to play all the offence and Garry Schreiber, obtained in a trade with British Columbia Lions for Ron Howell, will replace injured Milam Wall as corner linebacker.

Ralph Goldston, Garney Henley, Dick Easterly will inherit Howell's position in the defensive backfield.

The game is today's only fixture but Montreal Alouettes will play host to Ottawa Rough Riders Monday.

INFIELD DANCE FOR HIT—Jack Sanford (33), San Francisco pitcher, regretted this play in fourth inning yesterday when he went for fly ball off the bat of Yankees Tom Tresh and interferred with Giants shortstop Jose Pagan, right. Ball dropped into the infield, centre, and was ruled a hit. At left is Jim Davenport, Giants third baseman. Giants and Yankees are in their second World Baseball Series at Candlestick Park in San Francisco. (AP Wirephoto).

McGaha Gets Dual Job

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mel McGaha, recently released as manager of Cleveland Indians, has been given a dual job—front office and coaching—with Kansas City Athletics, owner Charles Finley announced Friday night.

McGaha will assist Finley and general manager Pat Friday in the front office and at the start of spring training, then will be a coach under the new manager, Eddie Lopat.

"McGaha is in no way replacing my general manager," Finley said, "but he will work with both of us. It may be on promotion on player deals or in many different ways."

In 1960 McGaha won the International League pennant as manager of Toronto Maple Leafs. Last year he was a coach at Cleveland, and took over as manager this year.

Packers, Lions Big One

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sonny Jurgensen, Philadelphia Eagles quarterback who must have the most durable arm in the National Football League, brings his pass-happy offense into Pittsburgh tonight to face the Pittsburgh Steelers in the opener of another weekend schedule.

The big one comes Sunday afternoon in Green Bay, when the defending champion Packers go to Detroit Lions meet in a ownership of first place in the Western Conference. Both have 3-0 records.

Washington will try and retain its eastern lead at home against Los Angeles Rams, putting a 2-0-1 mark against the Rams 0-3. In other games, New York (2-1) is at St. Louis (1-2), Dallas (1-2) at Cleveland (1-2), Chicago (2-1) at the Minnesota Vikings (0-3) and San Francisco (1-2) at Baltimore (2-1).

RETZLAFF SIDELINED

Jurgensen has thrown 106 times so far, 53 times in one game, the most in the league. He currently is ranked fourth among the NFL's quarterbacks with an 8.81 yard average per past, hitting 66 of his throws for 804 yards and four touchdowns.

However, tonight he'll be with out one of his prime targets, Pete Retzlaff, who is sidelined six to eight weeks with a fractured left arm suffered in last week's upset victory over Cleveland.

Green Bay carries an 11-game winning streak against the tough Lions. The Packers are rated 10-point favorites.

Washington, the surprise of the NFL, again will bank on the pass catching of fullback Bobby Mitchell and the passing of Norm Snead. These two have hooked up on 16 touchdown throws so far.

CAN REACH FIRST

The Giants, who can get first place in the east if the Skins lose and they beat the Cardinals, will probably operate without halfback Paul Dudley, John David Crow and former All-Pro real Alouettes quarterback Sam Etcheverry are St. Louis' hopes.

Cleveland has been upset in its last two starts and coach Paul Brown has given rookie Ernie Green the starting job previously held by veteran Tom Wilson.

The battered Bears still aren't expecting much from halfbacks Harley Sewell, Willie Galimore, fullback Rick Casares and linebacker Bill George, all hampered by injuries. The Vikings (0-3) put their hopes once more on quarterback Fran Tarkenton.

Johnny Unitas will match wits with the Colts against John Brodie, while both teams expect improved ground games.

Cleveland's Ernie Davis Has Deadly Leukemia

CLEVELAND (AP)—Ernie Davis was forced to the sidelines two months ago by leukemia, but he and Cleveland Browns are making plans today for him to play football again.

The 22-year-old prize rookie halfback of the Browns—the top United States college star with Syracuse last fall—was told Thursday night that he had the deadly blood disease, but that it was in a "perfect state of remission." The public learned this news Friday.

Whether the remission, or lull, or temporary arrest of leukemia—cancer of the blood—will continue to enable Davis to play in any of the Browns' National Football League games this season remains to be seen. Intermittent remissions are characteristic of the disease, and Davis' case is not unique, doctors say.

There is no known cure for leukemia.

The modest all-America back, only a pound over his normal playing weight of 213, appeared in excellent condition.

"I figure it will take me three or four weeks to get my legs and wind in shape," Davis said. "The doctors told me I'm completely normal now. After I get in good condition, it will be up to coach Paul Brown whether I can help the team or not."

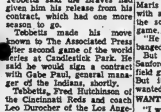
Tebbetts To Manage Indians

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Birdie Tebbetts said Friday he will leave his job as manager of Milwaukee Braves and become manager of Cleveland Indians in the American League.



Tebbetts said the Braves had given him his release from his contract, which had one more season to go.

Tebbetts made his move known to The Associated Press after a round of golf at the site of the series at Candlestick Park. He said he would sign a contract with Gabe Paul, general manager of the Indians, shortly.

Tebbetts, Fred Hutchinson of the Cincinnati Reds and coach Leo Durocher of the Los Angeles Dodgers all were reported in line for the Cleveland job, which became vacant with the firing of Mel McGaha.

In the Dressing Rooms

By JACK STEVENSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "You couldn't improve on Jack Sanford's pitching today," manager Alvin Dark declared after his right-handed ace had shut out New York Yankees 3-0 to even the World Series 1-1.

Catcher Tom Haller agreed, explaining, "He was throwing every all day—not overly strong but hitting the spots he wanted. That was as good a game as he has pitched all year and he has pitched some good ones."

The triumph was the 25th in 1962 for the 33-year-old who wears No. 30. He threw a three-hitter. No Giant pitcher has won that many since Carl Hubbell captured 26 in 1936.

"I wasn't worried at any time until Mickey Mantle hit that double in the ninth with Roger Maris next up," Sanford said with a grin far different from the scowl he wears during a game.

"He hit a fast ball and really banged it."

But there were two outs and Sanford retired Maris on an 8-foot grounder to end the game. But it wasn't the pitch he wanted to throw.

WANTED LOWER PITCH

"I wanted it lower . . . It was closer down the middle," the lanky pitcher admitted.

Willie McCovey, who took over for slumping Orlando Cepeda at first base, said losing pitched Ralph Terry fed him a pitch that he hit for his seventh-inning homer.

"I figured had Haller, his favorite catcher, behind the plate decided to give receiver hanging a work with six stitches in cuts his right arm. He was injured during the playoff with Los Angeles.

They didn't hurt at all," the long-hitting former University of Illinois quarterback said. Then in further explanation of Sanford's pitching, he added:

"Jack was throwing mostly fast balls . . . just a few curves. The fast ball is his big pitch."

By MARVEN MOSS

MONTREAL (CP)—The caustic exchange of words with Perry Moss has led to another shuttle for Angelo Mosca.

The big burly lineman was sold outright to Montreal Alouettes to Hamilton Tiger-Cats Friday in the aftermath of the spat.

It was the first discernible sign that a reason of a split in the Moss organization.

But it is understood there is other internal explosions.

A good majority of the players sided with Moss on the Mosca issue.

But there is also dissatisfaction on other matters.

Pinpointing it is impossible, however, of course, is tight-lipped.

CLING TO THEIR JOBS

Fan disenchantment with the Moss method meanwhile is evident while the Als cling to third spot in the Eastern Football Conference standings.

At the last Montreal home game, there was signs stretched at one end of the field, reading: "Moss go home."

Perry was unruffled when questioned about it.

He is entrenched here as coach and general manager with a long-term contract said to be good for another two years after that.

He is also known to have solid backing from M. J. (Ted) Workman, who owns 70 per cent of the Montreal shares.

Nonetheless, observers look for possible further developments inside the team structure, possibly within the next few weeks, but more probably at the end of the season.

AT PRACTICE

The tiff with Mosca came at a team practice Thursday night.

Moss singled him out and called him down for tomfoolery, ordering him to leave the field.

Friday he called him into the Alouette offices.

Moss and Mosca told him he would have to accept a fine—a game's salary equal to about $750—or he would be cut adrift.

"I told him I didn't want to be fined," said big Angie, grinning.

The Als announced initially that Mosca had been placed on waivers with no provision for recall because it was the second time he had been put on the list.

But later the sale announcement was made along with a statement that Angelo was "detrimental to the good of the team."

Giant Changes Paid Off

This is the third in a series of stories analyzing the World Series, written for The Associated Press by New York Yankee second baseman Bobby Richardson.

By BOBBY RICHARDSON

NEW YORK (AP) — The Giants had the perfect winning combination in the second World Series game. They had strong pitching, tight fielding, good clutch hitting and a well-managed game by Alvin Dark.

Dark, who impressed me with the way he handled his pitchers even when we beat the Giants in the opener, made several changes, inserting left-handed hitters against our pitcher, right-hander Ralph Terry, and it paid off.

It was a left-handed hitter (Chuck Hiller) who scored their first run; it was a left-handed hitter (Matty Alou) who drove it in; and it was a left-handed hitter (Willie McCovey) who supplied the clubbing with a home run.

Jack Sanford, who shut us out with three hits, pitched extremely well. He kind of surprised us. We knew he was a good pitcher but we expected him to do more. With all the pitching he's done lately we didn't look for him to go the distance. But he paced himself beautifully.

LOSES THE BALL

Terry pitched well enough to win most games. He had a one-hitter until the sixth inning and he would have had a no-hitter had Roger (Maris) held on to that ball hit by Hiller in the first inning. Roger caught it, too — a great play—but his momentum from the hard run caused him to lose the ball and it went for a double.

To me, the turning point of the game came on the next play. Felipe Alou bunted to the right side, a wise play, moving Hiller to third where he was in position to score on a routine grounder, also to the right side, by Felipe's brother, Matty.

McCovey got good wood on that pitch he hit for a home run in the seventh.

Dark must have had an inspiration when he decided to pull the infield shift on Matty moving his second baseman closer to first and his shortstop on the left side to second. That maneuver enabled Hiller, their second baseman, to take two hits away from Roger.

The Giants didn't shift on Rog in the opener. If they had, they might have taken another hit or two away from him.

Linesman Blasts Halter

MONTREAL (CP) — Linesman Larry Brennan of Montreal has resigned from the officiating staff of the Canadian Football League, loosing a blast at commissioner Sydney Halter of Winnipeg.

Brennan, 36, an official since 1953, said his letter of resignation to Halter Friday, giving "lack of work" as the reason.

The issue goes back to the Montreal - Ottawa game here Aug. 18 in which Montreal fullback Don Clark suffered a severe kidney injury when hit by Gilles Archambault.

Brennan worked the game.

There was later criticism by coach Perry Moss of Montreal that the official had been negligent in allowing Archambault to pile on after the play had been stopped.

Moss was subsequently fined $100 by Halter.

Brennan said Friday that following the game Halter and Hap Shoudice of Ottawa, assistant commissioner's eastern representative, "reprimanded me officiating team for its handling of the game.

"A couple of days later I was surprised to see on television that Halter in an interview said we had erred on the play," said Brennan. "He said we had been instructed that this is an absolute lie."

He said Shoudice later told him to "forget about" the incident.

"But in the meantime I haven't been given a game to work since."

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Earl Hyatt of Brigden turned in the best performance at Western Fair Raceway Friday as he won wins in the third and sixth trots.

In the third he steered Brother Hy, a six-year-old, to victory. Hyatt returned $13.30 and set up a $18.30 quinella when Prima Byrd, the favorite, finished second.

Hyatt's second triumph came in the sixth with his Lee Almond Hy for a $5.70 payoff.

Bonnie Sloan, owned by J. Cecil Stone of Petrolia, captured the eighth race with the best time of the night. The five-year-old returned $3.70 as she raced the mile in 2:09.3-5 with Marshall Moore at the reins.

TORONTO (CP) — Bantering at a party in a downtown Toronto hotel room burst into a fantastic major hockey league deal involving $1,500,000 early today.

The rumor was squelched as soon as reporters tried to track it down.

"Absolutely not," was the first comment of Stafford Smythe, president of both Maple Leaf Gardens and the hockey club.

"I'd still offer $1,000,000— boasted multi-millionaire Jim Norris, owner of Black Hawks.

MADE THE OFFER

Smythe, pressed hard by newsmen, then added:

"Jim Norris made me an offer of $1,000,000 for Mahovlich. But I will not consider such a deal at a party. If he would like to contact me I'll be in my office at noon and make the same offer, I am interested."

No hockey deal really took it as a serious offer.

But Norris had admitted Mahovlich the Black Hawks would have had two of the best left wingers in the game in the National Hockey League. Chilton Bentley, president of both leagues, the left side on one of the Chicago lines, last year became the third NHL player in history to score 50 goals in a season. Two others, Rocket Richard scored 45.

As of Friday night, Mahovlich was one of three players the Leafs hadn't been able to sign to contracts. He was reported to be asking $30,000.

The NHL brass met Friday and voted to refuse the league's policy of allowing only players who have played contracts to play in the all-star game.

MAY NOT PLAY

That meant Mahovlich, centre Billy Harris and defenceman Allan Stanley wouldn't be in the Thomas Lipton game unless they agreed to terms with manager-coach Punch Imlach before the game.

The All-Stars and the Leafs have fetched the annual All-Star dinner Friday night. Ministures of the Stanley Cup were also handed individually to Leafs.

NHL owners decided Friday to order strict enforcement of the rule penalizing goaltenders who hold the puck for more than 3 seconds and to also tighten up on playoff regulations. The rules are designed to speed up the game.

Burly defencemen who replace centres at crucial faceoffs will get a holding penalty for holding the opposing centre either at the faceoff or in the following seconds. The penalty will be a trip to the penalty bench.

"Now Its a World Series"

This is the third in a series of stories analyzing the World Series for The Canadian Press.

By HARVEY KUENN

NEW YORK (AP)—It felt like a World Series game Friday. Jack Sanford and Ralph Terry pitched hard right from the beginning and he kept the ball down. That was one of the best pitched games I've ever seen.

There were only two walks, balls hit off Jack—Mickey Mantle's double and the last out of the game. Chuck Hiller made a helluva play on that ball that Maris hit. It was a hit ball as it went first and second, but Chuck got over and got it.

Jose Pagan made some good plays, too. There was lots of defense in that game. Terry made a perfect throw for them, too, to get Davenport at home in the first inning.

After the letdown Thursday, everyone picked himself up Friday. You see really like to be in reference in the altitude and spirit. It's something that's hard to explain, the feeling that you get.

Even the crowd was better. They were louder and there was more of them.

Now the climax playing in Los Angeles is over. We all know we're excited in the locker. And after the way we had to battle before there isn't any pressure on the series.

Those three with Los Angeles were a World Series all their own.

MADOC JCT. — A good number were in attendance at Eggleton United Church on Sunday afternoon when the ordination service was conducted by the Rev. G. G. Lester and Mr. G. Dyson, assisted by the elders.

Mrs. Sharon Reide left this weekend for Ottawa where she will be attending a school of hair styling.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett enjoyed a three-day motor trip through the Georgian Bay, Muskoka Lakes and the Lake of Bays area. The northern woodlands are beautiful in their gorgeous autumn colors.

Mrs. Harry Clarke and Mrs. H. Hall visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clarke of Corbyville last Thursday evening.

Mrs A. Clarke of Kingston, spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Harry Clarke. Other members of the family visiting at the same home on Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Ashley and children of Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clarke and family of Corbyville, Mrs. Mrs. William Petherick and children of Petherick's Corners, Mr. and Mrs. W. ABROAD, BELFRY IS VERY ANTI-TAP WATER—HE TAKES NO CHANCES—INSISTS ON THE BOTTLED MINERAL KIND—

HEY! NEW, WAITER!! WAKE UP!! TAKE THIS AWAY!! AND BRING US SOME BOTTLED WATER!! WERE WATCHIN'!

OUR HEALTH THIS TRIP—KRITCH!

ACCORDING TO THE BOOK "BOTTOLIA IS AQUA FERSCA!"

YOU CALL THIS A MARTINI?! IT'S WARMER THAN TABASCO SAUCE! PUT IT BACK IN THE SHAKER AN' ADD IT WITH ICE—ICE—ICE!! AN' SHAKE IT UP REAL GOOD! WE WANT IT COLD! SEE?!

ACCORDING TO THE BOOK "BOTTOLIA IS AQUA FERSCA!"

BUT LISTEN TO HELP ORDER A DRINK OUTSIDE! WE JUST THINK ICE IS MADE OUT OF STERILIZED WATER!

Devalued Dollar May Mean Higher Wages Says Official

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's devalued dollar is likely to bring demands for higher wages that cannot be denied, says Bertram Hoffmeister, president of the British Columbia Forest Industries Council.

Battling against the U.S. lumber-industry's drive for massive tariff-import restrictions, the wartime major-general let loose with a barrage of argument to offset charges that Canadian lumber gets a big market advantage through lower taxes and a lower-priced dollar.

Conceding that Canadian lumber wages are lower than those in the U.S.—but not as far as the U.S. lumber industry claims—Hoffmeister said the B.C. industry already has moved to a wage boost for 1963. As living costs rise because of the devalued dollar, he certainly will bring in its train requests that cannot be denied for upward revision of wage rates," before the tariff commission. Hoffmeister argued flatly that "forest industries in B.C. and Ontario hold the dubious distinction" of being the most heavily taxed companies in Canada because these two provinces also apply a logging tax."

It is wrong to believe, he added, that increased earnings brought by the devalued dollar go entirely into the pockets of Canadian lumber producers. An increase of 5 per cent provincial stumpage charges. At the same time, the price of imported equipment the Canadian industry requires increases in terms of the devalued currency.

As the commission hearing, which opened last Tuesday, reached the half-way mark, the U.S. industry's case for increased protection seemed threatened as one prominent Seattle lumber manufacturer, who also has large interests in B.C., and the 94,000-member International Woodworkers of America (AFL-CIO), with about 25,000 members in Canada, took the Canadian side.

Is No Need To Warm Baby's Bottle

NEW YORK (AP) — Warming baby bottles is a waste of time from a health standpoint, according to a study conducted at the premature baby unit of Bellevue Hospital.

The two-year study, under the direction of Dr. I. Emmett Holt Jr., was published in the Journal of Pediatrics.

The study was conducted on premature babies on the premise that, if these more delicate infants can survive on cold feedings, so could normal infants.

Dr. Holt said the cold formula is not exactly new. For years, he said, French practitioners have used iced feeding in treating infant vomiting.

Concerning warming baby's bottle, Dr. Holt suggested there was a lot of mother — and baby — love power being wasted. He said you could figure on 150 to 200 hours a year being spent on warming bottles for each infant.

Says Walker's Acts Indicate Mental Illness

WASHINGTON (AP)—A psychiatric examination was ordered for retired Maj.-Gen. Edwin A. Walker after a government psychiatrist reported his medical history and accounts of his recent behavior might indicate an "underlying mental disturbance."

The findings were contained in an affidavit signed by Dr. Charles E. Smith, medical director and chief psychiatrist of the Federal Prison Bureau, it was learned.

The affidavit was sent to U.S. District Judge Claude F. Clayton before the judge ordered the examination last Tuesday.

The psychiatrist said he based his findings on Walker's medical history which, he said, it was understood, his army records, and on press accounts of the retired general's actions in the University of Mississippi integration riot and his appearance last spring on Capitol Hill.

SAYS SPEECHES MUZZLED

The Texan then testified before a senate committee investigating charges that military officers' and Communist speeches were being muzzled.

He contended that State Secretary Rusk, as well as some other administration officials, were linked to a "conspiratorial" which he said followed Walker like a shadow.

After the 14-hour session he punched a reporter who tried to ask him a question.

News dispatches from Oxford, Miss., said Walker led rioters in a charge against U.S. marshals. He was arrested and pleaded guilty to conspiracy in riot of Actor Edward G. Robinson, Walker was Macy's 19 while a passenger in a car driven by Gelsler and that Gelsler was under the influence of alcohol and incapable of driving.

Astrological Forecast

For October 7th
By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to April 19): Look to one close to you for comfort, advice. Marriage or business partner could provide major answer. No time to be discouraged. Draw upon inner strength. Spotlight spiritual side.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Trying to be something you are not creates tension. Stress individuality. Be true to your own beliefs. Revitalize spiritual assets. Tonight gain through reading, hobby, suggestion by family member.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Aid from loved one heads off worry over financial matter. You learn by teaching. You gain by throwing off antiquated methods. Day marks spiritual growth. Live up to potential.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Keep promises you make to yourself. Refuse to rationalize. Face facts as they exist. Tonight, relaxation brings inner peace. Be with those who know how to laugh. Avoid gloomy persons.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Attend to details. Work early in day may seem tedious. But it is necessary. Later, an outing with friends could prove of special benefit. Spiritual mentor should be consulted regarding domestic decision.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Emphasis on vitality, travel, romance, intellectual curiosity. Don't be satisfied with no for an answer. Stress the positive. Be willing to make basic changes. Have confidence!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You hold better cards than you imagine. You possess key to success of project. Others might try to downgrade your role. Listen, but then have your say. Stick to your guns. You will be amazed at how others swing to your side.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Good for visits, picnics, social and church gatherings. Time to evaluate desires. Remember all that glitters is not gold. Confide in older, sympathetic individual. Take time to help friend

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Could be Power Day. Make decisions and stick to them. You receive chance to accept greater responsibility. Do so. Finances could improve based on decision. Heed advice offered in confidence.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Answer to question involving greater independence is yes. Strive for, self-expression. Say no to proposition that would place you in shadow. Insist on receiving credit for work done. Take the spotlight. You've earned it!

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Best for starting rather than finishing. Look to future instead of brooding over past. Don't be sorry for things you cannot repair. Make amends by doing better now. The "now" is today.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Friends help make this constructive day. Stay tendency toward agonizing self-doubt. Follow impulse. Could lead to exciting, creative time. Get out and around; Visit. Display your Pisces charm.

If today is your birthday . . . you are individual others claim they "can't figure out." Actually, this means you refuse to conform. Keep it that way! This has been busy year, which is being capped by accomplishment.

* * *

General Tendencies: No punches are pulled between nations, individuals. Patriotism soars. Claims of strength are made.

Astrological Forecast

For October 8

By SYDNEY OMARR

"The wise man controls his destiny . . . Astrology points the way."

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Take care in announcing plans. Don't "cap your hand". Roadblock shown in form of plagiarism or imitators. Best to play strong, silent role. Gain through independent action.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Caution is key. Examine offer with care. Take time. Another, better proposition could be forthcoming. Your position strong. Show you are capable of added responsibility.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Overcome tendency to speculate on what might have occurred. Make resolution which guarantees future happiness. Key is expansion. Diversify activities. Test, experiment. Accept help.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23): Events occur which shake you out of lethargy. Realization strikes that you are capable of greater success. Move with confidence. Surprise could enhance financial standing.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Better to wait for improved conditions. Trying to force views leads to frustration. Be content. Permit Leo flair for showmanship to shine. Be gracious. Spotlight public relations.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept 22): Get proper rest Conserve strength. Build vitality. Emphasis on enthusiasm. It can be electrifying. Realize you are preparing for advance. But all cannot be accomplished at one time.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Favorable lunar aspect; today it means you receive affection, appreciation, reward. Do not abuse benefits. Concentrate on being the best person you can be. You are regarded for kindness, consideration.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Day when you come into your own. You can lay facts on the line. Use to position to appreciate industriousness help make you aware of potential. Seek added responsibility.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Try to straighten out details. Avoid confusion. Postpone journeys, if practical. Better for concentrating on immediate tasks at hand. Move ahead. Don't try to bring back "good old days".

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Disregard minor setback. You soon will have materials needed for completion of project. Refuse to be discouraged. Others look to you for inspiration. You can give it.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Statement made by trusted friend could jolt you. Means you must be self-reliant. Promises may be made, but not kept. Learn difference between intentions and what actually is done.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Avoid scattering forces. Telephone rather than travel. Put thoughts on paper, but be prepared to rewrite. Delays are featured. But these delays can be blessing in disguise.

If today is your birthday . . . you are person who seems to constantly battle "within". You are a dreamer, a idealistic. You are altruistic, but you want to see the money on the line.

* * *

General Tendencies: Many idealists express disappointment at decisions announced by national leaders. Controversy builds. Some experts warn that "breaking point" may be near.

Tuesday, October 9

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plans generous, but not extravagant. Express friendship with deeds, not money. One who asks for big "boost" may be only testing you. Stress practicality. Draw upon past experience.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) The more you worry, the less you accomplish. Strive for relaxation. Stress change of pace. Say no to one who wants all answers at once. Standing is constantly affected by recent decision. Stick to your guns.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Good lunar aspect, which emphasizes action, foresight, love. Share beliefs. Advertise. Write. You can be persuasive. Others to your point of view. Details must be attended to; this is easily accomplished.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23) Good for journeys, creative efforts and romance. Not so good for making firm financial decisions. Changes. Indicated where partners are concerned. Applies to business or marital partner. Keep door open for revisions.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Avoid self-pity. Recognize source of temporary despair. Day proves rewarding if you grow through lessons learned. Fine for gaining happiness through writing, reading, visiting stimulating people.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Tendency to feel yourself is possible — means you want to give everyone the benefit of any doubt. But make sure others are worthy of your trust. Be discriminating today. Ask to be shown.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) —Favorable lunar aspect today means you abound with energy. You express desire to learn. Intellectual curiosity comes to fore. Ask questions. Solve problems. You impress important person by exhibiting Libra charm.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —Much strength on your side. Opposition does more talking, but has less knowledge. Attend to domestic details. Get chores out of way early. Fulfill personal ambition. Splurge tonight! Enjoy yourself.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Pay heed to personal appearance. Dress up. Put forth extra effort. Be at your best. Remain alert. Avoid tendency to talk out of turn. The more you listen, the more you gain.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Member of opposite sex demands attention. Give it. But ask for and receive positive assurance regarding finances. Means you must know that extravagance is out of question. Check receipts.

SYLVIA BOORMAN, AUTHOR

WILD PLUMS IN BRANDY

(A new Canadian book by Sylvia Boorman ($4.95) McGraw-Hill Canada)

Shy and soft-spoken Sylvia Boorman was born and brought up in Petreborough, and is a graduate of Victoria College, Toronto. Lovers of solitude and the wild outdoors, she and her husband (together with their two small children) divide their time between a country log cabin and a picturesque city house, surrounded by plants and animals.

Wild Plums in Brandy, Sylvia Boorman's first book is published by McGraw-Hill. Beneath her quiet exterior, Miss Boorman harbors some extraordinary talents, and this book has grown out of the happy combination of a few of them—keen and sensitive appreciation of nature's beauty and its gifts, coupled with an exceptional knowledge of its creatures; a natural talent for anecdote and the re-creation, in evocative prose, of atmosphere and the fleeting moment; and maybe most of all—the natural flair of a born artist in the kitchen.

Wild Plums in Brandy is a beautifully illustrated book of wild foods cookery that will appeal to people who love the out-of-doors, to cooks and gourmets, to fishermen and hunters, and to those who simply like beautiful books. All of us have known, at some time or other, the special fascination of gathering nature's bounty and taking it home to cook. The fish that you yourself have caught is sweetest to the taste, and strawberries still warm from a sunny hillside are true ambrosia. Miss Boorman's book evokes the pleasures of woods and fields, and combines them with those of the palate.

The recipes, many of them culled from pioneer dairies and ancient cook books, interspersed with the author's own witty and charming comments, are as fascinating to read as to cook from. They range from such exotic dishes as creamed marsh marigolds and roast porcupine, to careful instructions for making elderberry wine and baked whitefish; all of them are expertly designed to enable readers to transform the fruits, vegetables, fish, fowl and game that can still be found wild on our continent into rare and surprising delicacies.

An eminent artist and sculptor, Mr. Lambert has caught to perfection, in his superb black-and-white illustrations, the book's unique flavor.

Garden Notes

You Should Imitate Nature By Planting Seeds in Fall

By FLORA M. GAVILLE

Nature sows her seeds in the fall. We can gain time by imitating her tactics. The fall rains beat the seeds into the ground and holds them there with a light layer of soil. The falling leaves cover them with a mulch which keeps in soil moisture and shelters the seeds from the drying winds.

Let some of your annuals drop their seeds around the mother plant and leave the soil undisturbed until the spring when you will have the tiny plantlets to set out in a new bed. You may gather the fresh seed and plant it out in rows, or broadcast in a prepared bed. Do not bury it deep. A very light covering of soil will hold it in place and the rains will help beat the seed deeper.

There are many annuals and some perennials that need fall planting to succeed. Larkspur will sprout in the fall and the tiny plants will winter over, producing great spikes of bloom in June. Spring planted larkspur is quite inferior to it. Delphiniums need to be sprouted from fresh seed. Get it in as soon as the summer blooms set and ripen their seed.

PLANT IN NOVEMBER

Other annuals might be lifted if sprouted in the fall but late planting will hold them dormant until spring temperatures push them into growth. For these mid-November is a good time. Prepare the soil earlier and be ready in November to plant. A light mulch of evergreen boughs or excelsior will protect the seed from the birds if they are troublesome but ordinary mulches will not work.

They are almost impossible to remove in the spring without damaging the seedlings.

Shirley poppies, calliopsis, candy-tuft, cosmos, nicotiana, and hatchelor-buttons (cornflower) are as hardy as oaks and will grow from fall sown seed unless destroyed by flooding, washing out of soil or soil compaction due to poor condition. These plants do well from spring sown seed also, but the fall sown seed sprouts weeks earlier and then are much sturdier than those started earlier in flats. By making a second planting in the spring of the same kinds you can extend their season by many weeks.

When bulbs are planted in beds and borders hardy annuals can be sown at the same time. They will sprout and bloom a little later than the bulbs and will hide the slowly dying leaves of the bulbs. Sow rows of hardy annuals to the vegetable garden when the vegetables are all pulled out.

GET LONGER SEASON

Get a longer season from sweet peas by planting them in the fall. Dig a shallow trench and sow thinly. As they sprout and grow in the spring fill in the trench. This deep planting will keep the roots down where they are cool and moist. They will reward you with extra weeks of bloom.

Snapdragons, cynoglossum, hardy pinks, California poppy, nigella, petunia and gaiardia do well when fall sown. Others are rudbeckia, blue salvia, bells of Ireland, pansy, gomphrena, nigicostella and morning glory.

BUSY FISHERMEN

About 2,000,000,000 pounds of fish are caught commercially in Canada each year.

The Golden Years

This Man Claims Wife Is Key To Any Successful Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

The question at issue is this: Just how hard does the average man work to get out of work after he retires?

Pretty hard, most studies show.

But the retired men have their dander up about the matter. More than a few have squeezed enough time out of their puttering days to write in protest against a charge made against them here a few weeks ago - that they get only work to avoid work but then turn around and brag about how busy they are.

The protests are about what you would expect. They mow the lawn, tend the garden, help with the dishes, work for the church, help clean the cemetery etc., etc. But one man came up with a bit of wisdom that can be important to men now approaching retirement. And may still be helpful to those who have passed over, old, useless days.

"The first four months of my retirement were about as puttery and pointless as your column charged," the man says. "And my wife was the cause of it, though not solely to blame.

"You see, we have been downgrading the wife in our retirement planning, yet she is the key to a man's retirement. Not the money, the medicare, not the moving away - but the wife.

SOMETHING WORTHWHILE

"I came home with my pension, a self-determination that I was going to accomplish something worthwhile with my freedom. I had been in the mercantile business and was going to start a mail survey service on specific products people buy. I would take refrigerators, for instance and with a carefully refined mailing list would find out from independent buyers or managers why women switched from one brand to another when they bought.

"The findings of my surveys, which would be on a monthly basis, would then be sold to manufacturers...."

"Sounds like a lot of project, like most others that achieve anything had to be organized. So he organized it, with typewriter, letter materials and file cases in the study, bedroom, and with arbitrary hours of work - from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., five days a week. His reasoning was that under this schedule he would have the mornings free for golfing with his wife and the afternoons free for whatever pursuits he and his wife chose. Lunch would break up his work period.

"But you can't impose this sort of organized schedule on a wife's home," the man continues. "Oh, maybe you could on some wives, but not many. They can take the typewriter-in-the-bedroom deal. And they'll think your big business project is cute. But you'll not shut yourself off in a room in their house from 11 to 2 - or any other specific hours - and do anything but irritate the hell out them.

"In the first four months of my retirement, my wife never once made me feel I was one of my dissppearing from 15 to 2. But from that day she had twice as many things planned for us to do between 11 and 2 as she had for me after 21 hours of the day.

POUTING PERIODS

"We're like each other, I went along ... and along... and along For four months I hadn't done the things I'd planned starting my survey service except to send my wife into five 24-hour pouting periods on the five occasions when I cried to break away.

"According to this husband, a wife is not an organized creature. She can sweep and wash at the same hour every day. But she doesn't have the sense of business organization that a man brings home from his office. She doesn't comprehend working three specific hours per day. To her a business project. Don't ask me why. She doesn't.

"I came to the conclusion that a wife has to be personally and emotionally identified with a job before she can really accept it. This she can't do with some private project of her husband ... in her home.

"So, after four months of frustration, I called in a lawyer friend, For $75 he turned my survey project into a corporation, with me named as president and my wife named as vice-president in charge of operations.

"We have been operating nicely ever since ... from 11 to 2.

How to Check For Possible Valve Leakage

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Valve leakage is one of the car troubles which may not be diagnosed easily since the symptoms could suggest any of several conditions ... or combination of conditions. Common symptoms include stalling, rough idling, little or no pep, poor oil and gas mileage - which are also caused by dozens of other troubles.

When compression tests are made in order to check out the possibility of leaking valves, they may disclose a subnormal reading in one or more cylinders. But, this is not conclusive evidence, low compression may be due to piston, rather than valve, leakage. An old method is to inject heavy oil into the low cylinder to seal against piston leak. Then, if compression reading is still low, valve leakage is evidently the problem. Most stations employ a vacuum gauge to test valve condition or confirm compression readings.

V.S. writes: "A weakening fuel pump was your answer to a recent question regarding engine cut-out at high speed. Couldn't ignition do this, too?"

(A) Yes - a defective distributor breaker arm spring or a tailing coil could be at fault.

From M.S.: "Your recent tip of the week mentioned rust, exhaust and tail-pipes. Isn't this actually just one situation or aspect of?" That's what I was told when my muffler had to be replaced."

(A) One assembly, but not one unit. Some garages without scruples will sell you a muffler that all three - exhaust pipe, muffler and tail pipe - must be replaced when any one section is defective.

P.N. asks: "Our car has power steering and I've noticed something very peculiar about it. During the past few weeks of extra wealthy, it's much easier to park than it was in the summer months."

(A) When there's oil in the power steering system heats up, there is greater resistance. This could account for the change you've noticed.

L.D. writes: "Why alarm car owners unnecessarily by warning of ignition coil troble? I've owned cars for 30 years and my brother has owned them for 29, and neither of us have ever had a hint of coil trouble."

(A) Should doctors cease mentioning ills which some people never have lest never will experience?

FAVORS PUBLIC EXHIBITS — French-born artist Michel Rostand, who now lives in Montreal, says he prefers to have his work shown in public exhibits rather than disappearing into private collections. He plans to exhibit some of his three-dimensional paintings, created using a palette knife to carve figures on a canvas with gobs of wet paint.—(CP Photo).

Montreal Artist Hates to Sell Paintings But Has to Eat

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal artist Michel Rostand would be completely happy if he never had to sell one of his paintings.

The 67 - year - old native of France has a little when he thinks of one of his works disappearing into a private collection where its chances of ever being viewed by the public are slim.

Since he likes to eat, however, he says with sincerity that he sells one or two of his paintings a month to earn "enough to live on." The artist says with sincerity that belies any suggestion of egotism, will be left to the world.

Rostand, who was born in Nice, began painting in 1946 and came to Canada to live in 1951, so dearly wants to have his works shown to the public that travels widely in hopes of interesting art galleries in exhibiting his paintings.

He has just returned from Europe with his briefcase of paintings—they're usually done on six - by - eight - inch canvases - and with invitations for one-man shows in Paris, Vienna and possibly Zurich next spring.

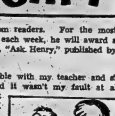
Rostand plans to exhibit works in his latest three - dimensional style which he calls "sculpture on canvas." Using a palette knife, he carves the figures on the canvas with gobs of wet paint. The result is an unusual lifelike quality.

When he first began painting seriously, he produced softly impressionistical street scenes of his native Nice. After coming to Canada he painted scenes of places he has lived in or visited—Montreal, Quebec City, Paris and New York.

In contrast with the representational works of earlier years, he now produces richly coloured canvases teeming with the life found in night clubs, ballrooms, country fairs and historic and religious pageants.

Rostand was in Toronto after his return from Europe hoping to interest galleries here in showing his work. When asked whether he had met with success he shrugged. Later he said many galleries explained they had to refuse because his paintings are so small.

The artist has occasionally relaxed his rule against letting any more paintings than necessary fall into private hands. He presented his painting of the Promenade des Anglaises in Nice to former President Eisenhower, and gave a painting called Bal d'Opera to the Queen.



One work he vows he will never surrender is his first—a still life done when he was a 13-year-old law graduate of the University of Vienna.

"When I die it will be worth $50,000."

ask Henry

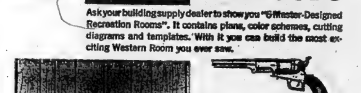
Henry invites letters from readers. For the most interestign letter he receives each week, he will award a copy of his nut-selling book, "Ask Henry," published by Prentice-Hall, Inc.

Dear Henry—I got in trouble with my teacher and she made me look like a fool and it wasn't my fault at all. When she found out she just said sorry. I hate her.—JACK SPRATT.

Dear Jack—I know the "Sorry" she told you. It didn't help your situation very much, but she can't get down on her knees and beg forgiveness. Just be happy you didn't get stuck with the rap.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—Henry, I disapprove thoroughly with the advice you gave to a mother of a 7-year-old. I think you sounded absolutely drunk with the answer "What birds and what bees?" Many other parents I know also think this way.

When someone asks you for advice we expect a little effort on your part for an answer, after we take the time to write you. Hope you are brave enough to print this in the paper.—ROLINDER.



Dear Reader—I'm writing this not to prove I'm brave but to explain my answer. I gave the answer I did because many unknowing kids read my column But to you and the mother who asked the question I would say: Start talking when the kid starts asking.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I have a son who cannot control his tongue. He always embarrasses us and other people. I told him many times to think before he speaks. But he doesn't. How can we help him?—CONCERNED.

Dear Concerned—Tell your boy to be a little more considerate of other people's feelings. It is good to say what you think. Usually people who think before they say, don't say what they think.—HENRY.

Arab Republic Backing Rebel Rule In Yemen

Royalists Say Forces Advancing on Capital

ADEN (AP) — Troops and planes of the United Arab Republic are bolstering the revolutionary regime in Yemen amid signs of an approaching fight with forces seeking to restore the monarchy.

Royalists claimed their forces were advancing in two-pronged drive to surround the revolutionary capital of San'a. They said they encountered negligible resistance. There was no confirmation of the claim.

Western correspondents on a weekend visit to Yemen saw ample evidence of expanding U.A.R. military assistance to the revolutionary regime.

U.A.R. troops and planes guarded San'a's Airport. Squads of U.A.R. officers and instructors were seen outside the massive government building and more were unloading from a U.A.R. ship at the port of Hodeida, 150 miles away.

"We do not care if there is a threat," the rebel premier, 40-year-old Abdullah Sallal, told the reporters. "We can depend on ourselves and our friends."

The U.A.R. Middle East news agency said 10,000 volunteers were being armed in Yemen's three key cities—San'a, Ta'izz and Hodeida.

HAS BIG SUPPORT

Sallal said the rebel regime has the backing of the Yemen Army of 20,000, including the national guard, and sufficient Soviet and Czechoslovak arms purchased by the monarchy to withstand attack. Communist countries tendered considerable aid to Yemen under agreements with the previous regime.

The army has T-34 tanks and other heavy equipment. The fledgling air force has Soviet MIG 17 fighters and Ilyushin 19 bombers with more on the way. Yemeni pilots are training in Italy and Cairo, and virtually every plane has a Soviet bloc crew. A squadron of Second World War Russian Yaks is awaiting repairs.

The report of she royalist advance came from the Yemeni Embassy in Washington, which has remained loyal to the monarchy. The legation said it received word from Prince Saif Al Islam Al Hassan in Yemen that his troops would surround San'a and the rest of the area in rebel hands.

Hassan, who headed the Yemeni United Nations delegation, is believed supported by several wounded Yemeni tribes as well as by King Saud of neighboring Saudi Arabia. Hassan said claim to the throne when the rebels said they had slain his nephew - king, Imam Mohammed al-Badr.

Saudi Arabia Sunday denied a Cairo broadcast that Saudi troops had invaded Yemen and clashed with rebel supporters near the northern border. It called the report ridiculous and said no troops were massing in the area.

UGANDA NOW INDEPENDENT AFTER 60 YEARS

Continent's Trouble Far From Ended

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Uganda, a British protectorate for more than 60 years, became the 33rd independent nation in Africa today, but the continent's troubles are far from ended.

More than 75 per cent of the continent's surface was free of the colonial presence when the new red, black and yellow flag of Uganda went up. On a population basis, more than 85 per cent of Africa's 240,000,000 inhabitants will be living under governments free of any colonial restraint.

At the end of the Second World War there were four independent countries in Africa—Egypt, Ethiopia, Liberia and the Union now republic of South Africa. Their combined area is about 11 per cent of Africa's 11,600,000 square miles.

In 17 years newly independent countries have exchanged colonial grievances for a seeming collection of new complaints —tribal enmities, one-party dictatorships, slumping trade figures, social unrest and administrative incompetence. But the drive for freedom persists.

NEARLY BANKRUPT

The Congo (Leopoldville, now two years old) is still divided, propped up by the United Nations and on the edge of bankruptcy.

Ghana, 5½ years old, is plagued with political dissension, tribal jealousies and governmental feuds which resulted in attempts to assassinate President Nkrumah.

The Sudan, nearly seven years old, is ruled by military dictatorship. Many of the new governments are one - party near - dictatorial establishments. Most of the former French colonies survive economically only through French subsidies.

Uganda is moving into the free world with 28 different tribes as a loose federation of four kingdoms and the District of Busoga. Serious internal quarrels over boundaries, finances and the relative importance of the various kingdoms are to be resolved.

Quebec Postal Workers Vote Strike Action

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Quebec province postal employees have voted in favor of strike action unless the federal government grants them a labor contract, negotiation and arbitration rights.

The post office workers also asked the Canadian Postal Employees Association to withdraw from the Canadian Labor Congress and the National Federation of Civil Servants.

The motion was passed at the provincial employees' annual meeting in this centre 60 miles northeast of Montreal during the weekend.

A hypocrite is a man who hands his wife a rose and his wife with a smile on his face.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Skies will be mainly cloudy across the province today and Wednesday. Scattered showers are forecast over the regions north of Lake Superior today and across the remainder of Ontario tonight and Wednesday.

HARD AGROUND — The force with which hurricane Daisy lashed Nova Scotia Monday is illustrated graphically in this photograph of heavy seas breaking over the side of the whaler Beaten, which went aground by the mile sun hour winds at New Harbor, about 40 miles west of a processing plant. The storm played havoc with shipping along the province's southwest coast. (CP Wirephoto).

NDP APPROVES GOVT-BACKED MEDICAL PLAN

Hospital Ownership Was Ruled Out

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario New Democratic Party convention gave unanimous approval Monday to the inclusion of a government - sponsored medical insurance plan in the party's political program.

The 782 delegates, winding up a three-day convention, rejected suggestions from the floor that the resolution be amended to include government ownership of hospitals and a licensing commission for doctors.

Dr. Guy Mersereau of Welland, opposed the changes as "a coercive plan of threatening the medical profession."

Dr. Mersereau said such measures had been proposed before the introduction of medical care insurance in Saskatchewan and this proposal had "worsened the situation."

"A substantial minority" of Ontario doctors are in favor of government medical insurance and this minority would "seek to influence the profession not by coercion but by intelligent discussion," Dr. Mersereau said.

AGREES WITH DOCTOR

Donald C. MacDonald—provincial leader re-elected for a two-year term Monday—agreed with Dr. Mersereau: "We have no desire to get into a battle with the medical profession."

However, Mr. MacDonald said "we have no intention of compromising on the five basic principles laid down in the program."

The medicare resolution, as approved by the convention, proposes the establishment of a medical insurance plan to which all contribute and upon which all can draw in time of need.

The NDP plan would be introduced by stages and financed in part by money individual premium and partly through general revenue measures."

The remedy with which the convention passed the medical care resolution and elected a

Briton Says Reds Used Photos To Blackmail Him Into Spying

LONDON (Reuters) — William Vassall, 39-year-old former British admiralty employee in Moscow, confessed betraying British information after being photographed in compromising sexual acts, it was alleged in a court here today.

Vassall, accused of two offences under the Official Secrets Act, was quoted by the prosecution as telling police in Moscow he was taken to dinner by Russians, plied with strong drink and photographed in compromising sexual acts.

Vassall was ordered to appear in London's Old Bailey Criminal Court for trial after the preliminary hearing. The date was not set immediately.

Prosecutor Mervyn Griffith-Jones read to the crowded Bow Street Magistrates Court Vassall's alleged statement recording his experiences in Moscow.

The statement said two Russian officials showed Vassall the photographs and threatened to make an international incident of the affair unless he told them about his work.

The statement said:

"I tried to stall them off with innocuous items but they said that unless I told them more important matters they would have me hauled off to the headquarters of the M.V.D. (secret police). I had no alternative."

Vassall, it was alleged, said he handed the officials documents, some of which would have been secret.

Vassall, a London parson's son, had been charged with recording and communicating information to the prejudice of the state.

Cuban President Demands UN Condemn United States Blockade as Act of War

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—President Osvaldo Dorticos of Cuba demanded before a tumultuous United Nations General Assembly Monday that the UN condemn as an act of war any U.S. blockade of the island republic.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said later his country would maintain its economic pressure against Premier Fidel Castro as the "least violent way" of moving against a Communist threat in the Western Hemisphere.

Dorticos was the first speaker of the day.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada was in the UN for the day but did not hear the Cuban president's speech. Green was host at a luncheon for Commonwealth leaders and also leaders of countries belonging to the 17-nation disarmament committees.

The chief U.S. ambassador, Adlai Stevenson, was ready for the Cuban president Monday. Outside the assembly hall he declared that "the maintenance of communism in the Americas is not negotiable."

Dorticos had challenged Stevenson to guarantee by deed and not words that the U.S. would not attack Cuba.

Dorticos was interrupted at the outset by cries of "murderer!" and "degenerate" hurled at him by spectators in the gallories. The galleries were closed to the general public. All those admitted held tickets issued to them by UN delegations.

Loud applause also punctuated the speech. It was led mainly by a group of Soviet UN employees who left their desks to attend.

Anti-Castro hecklers went into action at least five times. At the conclusion of the speech a group of pro-Castro demonstrators got in their licks by unfolding a banner reading "Stop Kennedy, master of Cuba." The guards were kept busy hustling out at least 20 demonstrators.

Stevenson took the assembly rostrum briefly to explain that he would violate UN tradition if he replied directly to a speech by a chief of state. He said he would make a statement at a press conference.

At the meeting with correspondents the U.S. ambassador described the charges by Dorticos as "neither original nor true."

He reiterated that the United States would not attack Cuba, but added "it is equally clear that the United States will not tolerate aggression against any part of this hemisphere."

He said it was absurd to describe U.S. economic action against Cuba as either aggressive or warlike.

Dorticos asked the assembly to consider whether or not a U.S. naval blockade of Cuba would amount to an act of war. He asked whether the United States had the right to take onesided action "in contempt of the United Nations." Then in reference to U.S. steps to halt shipments to Cuba he demanded that the United Nations condemn these "aggressive acts of the United States."

Macmillan Has Heart Set On Britain Joining Market

LONDON (CP)—The Conservative party annual conference opens in Wales Wednesday with the clear understanding that Prime Minister Macmillan has his heart set on taking Britain into the Common Market.

His job will be to convince the party this is a good thing.

On the surface it would appear the majority of party associations already agree. The agenda, drawn up several months ago, shows that they hail the 31 resolutions on the subject as a group and that 12 are more qualified and only four constituencies are openly hostile.

But the agenda pre-dates the London conference of the Commonwealth prime ministers with its barrage—almost to a man—of anti-Market feeling.

Now there is some speculation that the opinions of the Commonwealth leaders and the publicity they drew, plus the unanimity of the Labor party's opposition to the Market terms now available, may well influence the mood of the Tory conference.

Still, the Conservative party is traditionally the most disciplined of the three and its lead-

Loud applause also punc-ers are used to getting their own way. Despite the bitter anti-Market speeches that are bound to be made in debate, there is little doubt among party leutenants that the resolution summing up the pro-Market policy will get overwhelming support.

The opponents will find themselves in the somewhat embarrassing position of siding with the Labor argument. Even one of their amendments, urging the government "to associate with Europe in a manner which has the full agreement with the Commonwealth," sounds like an echo from the Labor convention last week.

Last year the leaders of the Tory anti-Market group made a bid to slow down the government's progress towards Europe but the some 4,000 delegates voted them with an overwhelming endorsement of Macmillan's stand.

Since then the prime minister has moved his plan ahead step by step—with his statement before the Commonwealth leaders, his television address immediately after that meeting and with his booklet, Britain, Commonwealth and Europe, issued last weekend.

86 FATALITIES ACROSS CANADA OVER HOLIDAY

Blackest Record In Recent Years

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 68 persons were killed on Canadian roads during the weekend, one of the blackest records for long weekends in recent years.

It was the second worst record for any three-day holiday weekend since 1955. The only holiday weekend with a higher death toll was last month's Labor Day weekend, when 72 persons died on the roads.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council had predicted a toll of 70 for the Thanksgiving weekend.

Ontario led 29 road deaths and Quebec had 17. Others were killed in 11 in British Columbia, six in Alberta, two each in Manitoba and Nova Scotia and one in Prince Edward Island.

In all, 86 persons lost their lives in accidents during the three-day holiday.

ONTARIO DEAD:

Friday

Robert Rowley, 24, accidentally shot outside his home at Bracebridge.

Nathaniel Douglas Minard, 30, Toronto, when his car overturned on Highway 401 near Oshawa.

Harry Elliott, 28, Dublin, Ont. struck by a car near Stratford.

Patrick Moran, 32, and his daughter Karen, 6, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in a car-truck collision near Espanola.

Edward Isaac Blackburn, 84, New Toronto, in a two-car collision at Primrose, in Dufferin County.

Saturday

Alexander Maresch, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Maresch of Kitchener, when the family car collided with a car and a transport truck on Highway 401 near Oshawa.

Canadians Spent Thanksgiving Holiday With Little Activity

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With temperatures in the low 50s in most parts of the country and storms with heavy rains on both the East and West Coasts, Canadians spent the Thanksgiving holiday in a relatively quiet manner this year.

Aside from special church services and a scattering of sports events, most provinces report little activity to mark the last long weekend before winter.

Traffic in Canada was generally light, but many people took to the highways to see autumn colors or visit the cottage for closing-up operations.

Many others stayed home to watch the football game of the World Series on television and enjoy the traditional turkey dinner with family and friends.

The most severe weather was in the Maritimes, where hurricane Daisy hit the eastern seaboard with winds as high as 85 miles an hour and waves 15 feet high. The three - day tropical storm, which was downgraded considerably by last night, took at least two lives in Canada. A father and son were drowned Sunday when swept off rocks at Peggy's Cove, 15 miles west of Halifax.

Aside from several football games there were no special activities planned for Thanksgiving in the Maritimes.

Most of the Quebec was generally sunny Monday and traffic in the Montreal area was reported quite heavy.

Most parts of Ontario enjoyed mild or sunny and warm weather and provincial police reported heavy traffic on major highways. No major tie-ups de-

Rival Cuban Factions Battle In Front Of UN

33 Persons Arrested As Riot Follows Speech

NEW YORK (AP)—Anti-Castro Cubans attacked Castro supporters in front of the United Nations Building Monday with rocks and fists, then mounted a barrage of rotten eggs.

Police arrested 33 persons.

An address inside the General Assembly Hall by Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos led the appearance of the demonstrators. Dorticos denounced the United States in his speech.

As he was doing so, demonstrators in the assembly galleries flung such epithets as "traitor" and "assasin" at Dorticos, while some 300 opponents of Premier Fidel Castro paraded outside.

As each demonstrator in the hall rose and shouted, he was surrounded by UN guards and escorted from the hall after being photographed for future identification.

THROW LEAFLETS

In one such demonstration, a woman sitting in the lower galleries threw a batch of yellow leaflets into the air. The leaflets said "communism has assassinated more than 200,000 men and women in concentration camps."

The clash between the pro and anti-Castro mobs on First Ave. occurred late in the afternoon, after Dorticos had finished speaking.

One clash broke out when the anti-Castro group hurled to distribute leaflets near UN headquarters. Another occurred after an anti-Castro demonstrator threw a concrete block at an opponent from a building under construction.

A pro-Castro supporter was struck on the head by the block and several others were pummelled by the anti-Castro group before police could reach the melee. They did so by forming a human wall to block another charge of the anti-Castroites.

The fighting appeared to have finally been put down when it broke out again.

THROW ROTTEN EGGS

Pro-Castro demonstrators had started to stack their placards against a wall when the rotten egg barrage began. Many of the eggs had been packed with a red dye, and small containers of the dye also splattered the street.

Of those arrested, 31 were anti - Castro Cubans and two pro - Castro. Police said the adults were charged with disorderly conduct, and three juveniles were charged with delinquency.

Fog Hits London

LONDON (AP) — The giant heavy fog of the autumn season hit shipping in the Thames, slowed rail and highway traffic and closed down London Airport for a day.

Flights from Geneva, Madrid and Barcelona were diverted to Paris. Airliners from New York flew on to Frankfurt without stopping. Later the haze lifted and normal air traffic resumed.

HURRICANE DAISY BIDS FAREWELL TO MARITIMES

Father and Son Swept to Death

HALIFAX (CP)—A weakened hurricane Daisy faded eastward today with a farewell blast at Prince Edward Island on the heels of a three-day rampage through Nova Scotia and eastern New Brunswick.

The hurricane, reduced to a "disturbance" early Monday, made a brief comeback over Prince Edward Island later in the day when it collided with a flow of cool, northern air.

Summerside, P.E.I., reported 70 - mile - an - hour winds with gusts to 80 Monday night but the storm was diminishing. It was expected to dissipate rapidly in the Atlantic south of Newfoundland.

In Nova Scotia, Shelburne and Yarmouth suffered heaviest damage as the storm gained strength Sunday.

A $16,000 breakwater in Shelburne was swept away and three small fishing boats were smashed on shore. A 20-foot building and the deck from a 200-foot government pier near Shelburne were lost.

SWEEPS TWO AWAY

At Peggy's Cove, 25 miles west of Halifax, a father and son were swept from rocks into the sea by a towering wave. Four other persons among a group watching the storm-tossed waves were rescued after being swept into the water.

Two men and a woman en route to Australia on board a 36-foot converted fishing boat, crashed ashore Monday on a rocky beach at Seaforth, 15 miles east of here.

Ken Pitt-Jones, 40, of Sydney, Australia, his 40-year-old Norwegian-born wife Astrid and Jeff Kellock, 36, of Glascow, Scotland, escaped with only a wetting. Their boat was later severely damaged.

They had sailed across the Atlantic from England via the Azores with Halifax as their immediate destination. They now plan to get jobs in Halifax before deciding whether to continue the trip.

The hurricane, before moving into the Maritimes, was blamed for at least 24 deaths in New England.

Soblen Took Drug Hidden in Secret Pocket

LONDON (AP)—A coroner's jury held today that Dr. Robert A. Soblen committed suicide by swallowing a sleeping potion hidden in a secret pocket of his trousers.

A Scotland Yard detective testified Soblen apparently managed to conceal the sleeping pills in his clothing despite a minute search of his person just before he entered the ambulance.

A prison guard said Dr. Robert Soblen was stripped to the skin and searched less than two hours before he gulped down an overdose of sleeping pills Sept. 6.

The 62-year-old psychiatrist collapsed in an ambulance carrying him from Brixton Prison to Hospital. He was to have been put on an airliner for America, where he faced a

27 Applications Made for Right To Sell Liquor

KINGSTON — Twenty-seven hotels, private clubs, motels and restaurants in the tourist-conscious "seaway valley" will seek the right in Brockville Oct. 19 to sell liquor, beer and wine.

H. J. F. Stewart, QC, deputy-registrar for No. 10 district said the applications will be reviewed at a special hearing called by the Ontario Liquor Licence Board.

The 27 applications, far more than usual, are from business firms and private clubs in the seven waterfront counties of Lennox-Addington, Frontenac, Leeds, Grenville, Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

Mr. Stewart said most of the applications are for cocktail lounge room for both dining and cocktail lounge privileges and a few for just the consumption of beer.

Presents Evidence In Bow Lake Dispute

D. J. Whalen, real estate broker, of the city last week in Toronto gave evidence before the Mining Commission on his appraisal of property values in the Bow Lake area near Barkcroft in an action between several property owners and Faraday Mines. Mr. J. J. Robinette, Toronto solicitor, acted for the property owners.

Purchasing Agents Will Meet Here

The second meeting of the Purchasing Agents' Association of Eastern Ontario will be held at the Tope Motor Hotel in Belleville, Wednesday, October 10. The executive meeting will commence at 5:00 p.m. and the dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m.

The president, Mr. Bill Templeton, of the Pyrotenax of Canada Limited, Trenton, will chair both of these meetings, which will feature speakers Mr. T. McFaulds, Phillips Electrical, Brockville, Mr. F. B. H. Sheffield, Northern Electric Company, Belleville, and Mr. G. H. Davies, Miller Bros. Limited, Trenton. Their topic will be "Inventory Control and Value Analysis."

Gasoline Pumps Being Taken Out At Taxi Stand

Gasoline pumps formerly used in operation of the one-time Texaco service station at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets are being moved to another spot for taxi parking.

The pumps haven't been used for several years but before over a year and it has been decided to remove all but one of them to make more room for taxi parking.

One of the pumps is being moved to the back of the lot for our own use and the others are being taken out" noted Grant Devolin, manager of Central Taxi.

Two Students Win Argyll Awards

The monthly meeting of Argyll Chapter, IODE, was held October 3, in the Legion Rooms, with the regent, Mrs. Alex Cunningham presiding.

Reports of delegates and members were delegated to attend semi-annual meeting in Peterborough on October 17 and 18.

The present chapter has been asked by the Quinte Area Emergency Organization to participate in a six weeks' course, one night a week, with Lt.-Col. Angus D. Duffy as co-ordinator.

The annual dessert bridge, hat and fur show, was a most successful venture as reported by the treasurer, Mrs. Duffy.

It was reported that Robert Burr, a former BCIVS student, had won the scholarship this year of $100, and Bruce Bath, a Grade 10 student, Course II at Moira Secondary School, the $25 award.

The chapter decided to make a contribution to the Canadian Education Trust Fund or the Children's Aid Society, to assist children over 18 towards further education.

Members were reminded of Blits Night, October 16th, for the United Appeal, and were assigned duties as hostesses.

Final plans were completed for the annual district dinner to be held October 24, in Tabernacle Church with Mrs. W. R. Morrison as guest speaker.

The hostesses, Mrs. A. Fullerton, Mrs. O. Smith and Mrs. T. Clapp, served refreshments.

The Argyll Chapter, IODE, is a member of the United Appeal.

NDP APPROVES

new provincial executive did not carry over into the afternoon session.

Richard Fidler from Toronto York East unsuccessfully challenged the policy passed on consumers rights in a draft of the party platform.

Other delegates had previously criticized the placing of the word on "protecting the consumer" in the party platform in the platform.

The preamble, subsequently approved without change by the convention, read in part:

"There are many things known as consumers."

Representation from labor union spokesmen defeated a resolution from the mid-Toronto riding of Dovercourt for the NDP provincial executive appoint a committee "to study and report upon the advisability and feasibility of establishing a labor-relations court."

Tempers flared on one particular phase of the resolution which stated: ". . . The strike should be used only as a last resort."

The convention approved four farm policy resolutions to:

1. "Bolster the net income of farmers by a program of effective solution to agricultural problems . . .".

2. Establish farm production costs by encouraging co-operatives and instituting public ownership "in those areas necessary to control over prices of fertilizers, weed sprays and other basic supplies."

The "labor and management" sections of the draft program was approved with few changes. That portion of NDP policy promises:

Economic and social planning to "create the basic conditions of full employment."

Several resolutions in the 33-page draft program, not discussed because of time limitations, were referred to the provincial council.

Garage Supply Dealers to Be Entertained

One of the few employee-owned enterprises in the Belleville area, Garage Supply (Belleville) Ltd. with a staff of 22 persons, will be "at home" to their various dealers for three days this week.

The local automotive wholesale supply house is holding open house for the dealers on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Started in Belleville back in March, 1931, to supply the automotive trade with parts, equipment and machine shop services, Garage Supply at that time was the first branch of the parent firm in Toronto. There are four members of the staff still with the local firm. These are Orlin "Bolter" Lloyd, president, F. S. Douglas, manager, Ken Allan and Miss Queenie Tees.

The local firm became an employee-owned enterprise in 1954 when the branch was purchased from the parent company.

Six years ago the site of their office at Station and Bridge Street was taken over by the federal government for the new federal building and the firm was forced to obtain new quarters.

A site on Harriet Street was purchased and a new headquarters with 12,000 square feet of floor space was constructed.
